These talks—in some cases, such as in steel and automobiles, the first formal labor-management meeting in three years—are set against a backdrop of unemployment and advancing technology. Unionists are fighting to save jobs while searching for new techniques to deal with the job-killing impact of automation.

In this era of the thinking machine, the big question is whether the collective bargaining process, founded traditionally on conflict and crisis, can be revamped to cope with the human consequences of automation without curbing the vast opportunities opened up for human improvement.

CO-OPERATION NEEDED

While trade unionists generally accept the new technology as inevitable, they fear that the toll in lost jobs and social and economic dislocation often outweighs the promised abundance of automation.

Says economist Russell Ball of the Canadian Labor Congress:

"Technological progress is a misnomer if it leaves in its wake a mass of unemployed workers."

Many observers believe labor and management must relax the traditional tensions and tactics of bargaining and work together continually in close co-operation to find new solutions to problems of technological change.

They see hope in the new rapport between organized labor and big business at the national level, increasingly evident in such forums as the Economic Council of Canada and regional labor - management - government conferences.

GOVERNMENT TO HELP

While the raw test of economic strength—the strike or lockout—remains as a tool in the bargaining process, the emphasis seems to be on round-table consultation, an acceptance by union leader and businessman of their mutual need for mutual respect and understanding.

As a step in this direction, the federal government has offered financial help to companies and unions willing to undertake joint research on future technological changes and their impact on the work force.

William Mahoney, national director of the United Steelworkers of America in Canada, is expected to press again for a joint labor-management committee to work on problems away from bargaining table.

When Steel's contracts expire in July, he is also expected to go after an extended vacation plan similar to that won by the steelworkers in the United States. Under this trail-blazing agreement, long-service workers get special 13-week vacations once every five years.

AID FOR RETIRED

Meanwhile, the auto workers' union has indicated it will be seeking contract protection for retired workers including company-paid hospital and medical care for those who have already left the work force on retirement. Present contracts in the Canadian auto industry start expiring in October.

The railway unions representing the running trades may take on the bargaining table their fight for legislation to protect rail workers from job displacement through technological changes.

Labor Minister MacEachen, backing the responsible approach by labor and management in 1963, says both sides must accept and plan to meet the human problems that result from automation.

"It is clear that new relationships are evolving between labor and management. This is based on a recognition that the broad problems being faced today can be solved only by closer consultation and more continuing discussions."

Bing's Mother Dies of Stroke In California

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) Mrs. Catherine Helen Crosby, 90, mother of singer Bing Crosby, died Tuesday in a rest home after suffering a series of strokes.

Mrs. Crosby had been in failing health for the last two years. She had lived with Bing in Holmby Hills, Calif., since her husband died in 1948.

She is survived by five sons and two daughters: Laurence (Larry) of Holmby Hills; Everett, Salsbury, Conn.; Edward (Ted), Harry Lillis (Bing); George Robert (Bob), Honolulu; Mrs. Catherine Mullin, Watsonville, Calif., and Mrs. Mary Rose Pool, Carmel, Calif.

Mrs. Crosby, christened Catherine Helen (Harrigan) but affectionately known to her friends as Kate used to her family as The Boss, was born in Stillwater, Minn., Feb. 7, 1873 —a date she maintained as a personal secret from even her family for most of her life. It was substantiated only when a sheet from the family Bible, which she had discreetly removed years before, turned up in the private papers of her husband after he died here in 1948.

Canada's Trade Surplus With Britain Booming

Nearly Covers Huge Deficit With States

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's trade surplus with Britain has ballooned so big, so quickly, that it now almost covers this country's traditional huge deficit with the United States.

Figures released today for the first 11 months of 1963 show the Canadian deficit with the U.S. of $500,900,000. All but $15,200,000 was covered by the $485,700,000 surplus on the trade with the United Kingdom.

With Canada also earning larger surpluses in other overseas markets, the over-all excess of exports over imports in the first 11 months was $215,600,000—15 times bigger than the $21,900,000 surplus for the same period of 1962.

This sharp improvement was due partly to a continuing surge of exports, accelerating late in 1963 with large grain shipments to the Soviet bloc. Imports in the 11 months were 8.3 per cent higher than a year earlier. In November alone the gain was 14 per cent.

IMPORTS RISING

Meanwhile, imports also were rising quickly to meet the higher consumer demand at home. Though the cumulative figures show 1963 imports ahead by only 3.2 per cent, they increased 11.7 per cent in November and imports from the U.S. that month were 8.6 per cent higher.

Trade Minister Sharp, who forecast recently a "quite substantial increase" in Canada's exports in 1964, also cautioned that mounting domestic demand also could bring a resurgence of imports—straining the balance of payments—unless the export position is even further improved.

It was largely on the strength of the higher commodity trade surplus this year that Finance Minister Gordon predicted Monday that the end-of-1963 figures would give Canada a balance of payments deficit of $500,000,000, compared with $848,000,000 for 1962.

Exports
United Kingdom	939.4	840.7
Other Co'ntw'lth	361.5	306.5
United States	3,597.1	3,405.7
Other	1,438.7	1,223.7

Board To Probe Coffin Case

QUEBEC (CP) — A one-man royal commission was set up by the Quebec government Wednesday to investigate the case of Wilbert Coffin, the 45-year-old prospector hanged in 1956 for the murder of a young New Hunter shot with his father and a friend in the Gaspe wilderness.

The announcement was made by Attorney-General Rene Hamel following a cabinet meeting for discussion of the controversy provoked by Jacques Hebert's book claiming Coffin was innocent.

Mr. Justice Roger Brossard, 62, of Quebec Superior Court in Montreal, was named commissioner.

In Montreal, Mr. Hebert commented, meanwhile, that he was pleased by the government's action but he said he didn't want to "act like a conqueror."

"What can I say except I am happy at last that a country where one can get justice," he added.

IS LEADING JURIST

The Montreal - born Judge Brossard has been described by some legal observers as one of the leading judicial minds in Quebec. He was appointed to the Superior Court bench in 1950.

During the Second World War, he was chairman of the advisory committee of the National Selective Service and before the war he was a professor of industrial law at the University of Montreal, where he once studied law.

He also won a Rhodes scholarship and studied at Oxford.

Coffin died on the gallows in Montreal Feb. 10, 1956, for the slaying of Richard Lindsay, 17, ambushed and shot in 1953 along with his father, Eugene, 47, and Frederick Chase, 20, a friend, all natives of the United States.

The execution was postponed seven times by legal battles lasting almost two years and Coffin reiterated he was innocent to the end.

French May Buy Uranium

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP) — The huge French Mokta mining complex is investigating the possibility of buying an interest in dormant Canadian uranium mines now acquiring and developing uranium ore reserves in Canada.

W. M. Gilchrist, president of Crown-owned Eldorado mining and refining limited, said Wednesday in an interview that Rene Chouteau of Compagnie des Minerais de Fer Magnetique de Mokta-El Hadid, one of France's oldest and largest mining concerns with, interests in many countries, now is in the country.

Mr. Chouteau's visit is the outcome of a recent recommendation by a committee of EURATOM — European Atomic Energy Community. Members are France, Belgium, West Germany, Italy, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

EURATOM's consultative committee on uranium reserves recommended that member countries take advantage of the current slump in uranium prices "by acquiring interests in mines which are currently dormant in Canada or by stockpiling (uranium) providing that the purchase prices do not exceed the equivalent of $7 to $8 in 1975 and $9.50 in 1985."

PROPOSES EXPLORATION

It also proposed independent exploration by EURATOM countries for uranium deposits "either in Europe itself or, above all, in those countries of the world, which are considered favorable for this purpose, with the object of basing its supplies on sources which are as varied and reliable as possible, whilst at the same time benefiting from the lower prices."

Mr. Gilchrist said that he conferred with Mr. Chouteau in Ottawa Tuesday. Mr. Chouteau left Ottawa for Toronto Wednesday to confer with officials of Canadian mining companies.

Mr. Chouteau said that his company is interested in acquiring uranium ore reserves in Canada, Mr. Gilchrist said. "He also is looking into the acquisition of some interest in Canadian mines so that France will have an assured supply of uranium for nuclear power by 1975."

Mr. Gilchrist said that Mr. Chouteau expects to remain in Canada permanently.

France's uranium requirements for nuclear power are expected to total 4,000 tons by 1970 and increase to some 20,000 tons by 1980. Over the 1970-80 period requirements should reach 100,000 tons.

Mr. Gilchrist said some difficulties lie in the path of a French company acquiring Canadian uranium. There was nothing to prevent a French company buying into Canadian uranium mines or purchasing property for development but it was another matter for such a company to take possession of Canadian uranium.

L. J. Coombs' Death Penalty Commuted to Life Term

Leonard Joseph Coombs, waiting to be hanged in Hastings County jail for murdering his girl friend, has been saved from the gallows by state clemency.

Ordered to hang January 28th, the 23-year-old Toronto parking lot attendant learned late yesterday afternoon his sentence had been commuted by government order. Instead he will serve life in Kingston penitentiary.

With the commutation the federal cabinet observed a recommendation for mercy by Coombs' jury after it found him guilty September 19th of capital murder in the death of Sharon Margaret Frost.

Coombs was arrested February 14th last year after he broke into the home of Miss Frost's sister at L'Amable, south of Bancroft, and attacked the girl with a knife.

They had been dating for several months in Toronto, but broke off after a quarrel a week before the killing.

The commutation order arrived in the offices of Crown Attorney John Pringle about 4:00 p.m. yesterday. He immediately called on Tom Lally, one of two lawyers who defended Coombs without charge during his trial.

Since that time Mr. Lally continued to work for reconsideration of the sentence against Coombs.

In December he drew up a lengthy brief on the original trial before Justice E. G. Moorhouse, and presented it to the Ontario Court of Appeal. The appeal, however, was dismissed.

Shown the commutation order yesterday, Mr. Lally went directly to Coombs' cell and informed him of the cabinet decision that he not be hanged.

Coombs then phoned his father in Toronto and relayed the news to his family.

Since the end of his trial Coombs has been under 24-hour surveillance in his cell. This morning jail authorities would not say when he might be transferred to Kingston.

Apparently a quiet and well-behaved prisoner, he was reported well liked by his guards in the county jail.

How long his life sentence may eventually be, cannot be foretold. Under the Parole Act Coombs becomes eligible for consideration for parole after, serving 10 years. His release then depends on many factors—prison behavior, signs of reform, job opportunity and community and home situation.

He was the fifth death sentence commuted by the cabinet order since the Liberal government took office in April. There have been no executions.

During the Progressive Conservative administration, from 1957 to last April, there were 22 commutations and 14 executions.

Robert Kennedy Is Prepared To Do Anything for Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert F. Kennedy says he will stay on as attorney general and do whatever President Johnson and the Democratic party ask him to do in the presidential campaign.

Beyond that, the future of the 38-year-old brother of slain President John F. Kennedy remains uncharted.

"I'll certainly stay on through the election," he said in an interview. "I don't know what I'm going to do when that's over."

Kennedy deftly engineered his brother's successful campaign in 1960. Would he do as much for Johnson, who fought John Kennedy for the Democratic nomination that year?

"I'll be available to work in the campaign," he replied. "Nobody's said anything to me about it, but I'll do what-ever anybody—the president or the Democratic National Committee—feels will be helpful."

Kennedy, until today, had made no statements for publication about his plans since an assassin took his brother's life in Dallas Nov. 22.

He was non-committal when asked about a recent Associated Press survey which showed him second favorite—behind Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota—for the vice - presidential nomination.

"My one interest now is being attorney-general," he said. However, he was obviously pleased that 11 Democratic county chairmen canvassed in the poll thought so well of him.

What if Johnson should ask Kennedy to accept the vice presidential nomination?

"Well, I'll just have to go back to what I said before," the attorney - general insisted. "I don't know what I'll do after I leave here."

War on Poverty Would Cost Five Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's planned war on poverty would be waged over five years and cost more than $5,000,000,000, administration sources said Wednesday night.

In briefing newspaper men on his proposal Johnson said the program would run in excess of $1,000,000,000. But the sources said later the president's estimate was for the first year.

Pension Plan Prepared

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — A detailed government report on how it intends to implement the Canada Pension Plan and guarantee its financial soundness is in the final stages of preparation.

A spokesman for Prime Minister Pearson said Wednesday the report should be mailed "within a few days" to provincial premiers for their comments.

After that the federal government will have a final look at a proposed legislation on the pension plan for the parliamentary session opening Feb. 18.

The report is based on statistical and analytical material prepared by government experts in response to questions raised by the premiers at last November's federal - provincial conference.

ONTARIO COMPLAINS

Premier Robarts of Ontario complained in a CBC television free-time broadcast Wednesday that he had not received the material promised him by the prime minister.

The spokesman for Mr. Pearson said the delay had been caused by the session-end rush of parliamentary work in December, and the ensuing Christmas and New Year holiday.

Informants in Ottawa hinted, however, that the delay might also be attributed to the rising doubt that Health Minister Judy LaMarsh will remain long in public life.

Miss LaMarsh, now in Europe to watch the Olympic winter games at Innsbruck, Austria, was to have presided at the committee meetings last November at which the pension plan details were discussed.

Prime Minister Pearson, however, took the controversial item under his wing, giving rise to speculation that he was displeased with her performance as the minister in charge of the plan.

Miss lady minister campaigned actively in last September's Ontario provincial election against the Conservative premier, and Mr. Robarts said he would no longer deal with her on the pensions issue and instead would talk with Mr. Pearson.

Later, both Miss LaMarsh and Premier Robarts said their differences had been patched up at the November meeting.

The fact that the final drafting of the government's reply to the provincial enquiries about the pension plan now is under way in the absence of Miss LaMarsh was seen in political circles here as another indication that she is about to be moved from the health and welfare department to another portfolio.

Mr. Pearson has indicated he hopes to have his cabinet changes completed before he leaves.

U.S. To Suggest Watch Against Surprise Attack

Wants Pact to Destroy, Not Sell, Old Weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration is drafting a proposal for a system of international military observation posts to be set up on both sides of the Iron Curtain in Europe as a safeguard against surprise attack.

It is understood officials are thinking about proposing 20 to 30 posts on each side at key transportation centres where unusual military activity by either Soviet or U.S. forces might be detected.

President Johnson announced in his State of the Union message Wednesday outlining government policy in 1964 that "we shall soon have proposals" on disarmament issues when the 17-nation disarmament conference reopens negotiations at Geneva in two weeks.

Work is going forward on the proposals in the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency under the immediate direction of William C. Foster, agency director. He is expected to head the U.S. delegation in the new round of negotiations beginning Jan. 21.

Officials have said the U.S. proposals will deal with familiar issues in new ways which they hope will enlarge the possibility of agreement with the Soviet Union.

CO-ORDINATE POLICIES

Disarmament experts of the United States, Britain, Canada, and Italy are undertaking consultations aimed at co-ordinating their policies. France, whose chair in the conference is empty because President de Gaulle decided not to participate, is an observer in the consultations.

The Western Allies form one bloc in the Geneva conference, Eastern European and communist countries another and a group of smaller nations the third. Other issues on which proposals are being drafted include:

1. Agreement at least on the principle of destroying, not obsolete weapons to prevent their being distributed to smaller countries. The B-47 bomber, a jet-powered nuclear bomb carrier, is cited as one example of the kind of weapon which along with its Soviet counterpart, the Badger, could be destroyed.

2. Agreement on a pledge against the dissemination of nuclear weapons and the factories which do not already possess them.

3. Designation by East-West agreement of nuclear free zones in the world. This would mean

Briefs Ask New System For Co-ops

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — For the third time in two days, the royal commission on taxation today heard a familiar request: That the tax structure surrounding co-operatives be taken away.

Today's appeal came in a bulky brief from the Retail Merchants Association of Canada, whose provincial branches presented similar views to the commission in its cross-Canada hearings last year.

Wednesday, the Retail Council of Canada and the Ontario Retail Lumber Dealers Association came before the commission to propose the same move.

Under the Tax Act, co-operatives can deduct patronage dividends from taxable income and they also get a tax holiday for their first three years of operation. Opponents of this arrangement contend that this represents unfair competition to investor-owned firms which must pay shareholders' dividends in taxable income.

Today's brief said that between 1951 and 1961 sales by consumer co-ops increased by 94.7 per cent while the sales by other retail outlets went up 53.8 per cent.

GIVE UNFAIR EDGE

"The present treatment and untaxed patronage dividends, an inherent aspect of the co-operative movement together with a convenient vehicle for the reinvestment of tax savings, give these organizations an unfair competitive edge and access to relatively large sums of tax-free capital with which to strengthen their competitive muscle and finance growth."

Retail merchants were "extremely concerned" about this situation.

"The co-operatives are well organization and vociferous in their effort to maintain the status-quo . . . Canadian retailers, however, object strenuously to the situation which requires them to compete with institutions which have an advantage not afforded to private citizens. . . . they seek to insure that the rules of the game of business are the same for all players."

Never Mind Food and Water Get Me Out of Here Says Miner

MACKAY, Idaho (AP) — "Never mind the food and water," said no-nonsense miner Stanley Johnson who had been trapped by a cave-in 1,158 feet underground, "just get me the hell out of here!"

So his rescuers, who had thought he might want something to eat after 37 hours in a 12 by six foot mine pocket, got him out Wednesday.

They took him to a hospital in nearby Kellogg where the doctors looked him over, gave him food and sent him to bed.

He was cold and somewhat weakened—the temperature in the pocket around 40 degrees—but otherwise okay.

Custer County Sheriff Glen Taylor said Johnson, 36, a bachelor to the hospital said:

"He didn't have much to say. He was pretty cold but had enough room to keep moving around in there so he could keep from freezing."

Justice of the Peace Art Wright of Mackay said he was with Johnson when he was pulled to the surface at 4:20 p.m. Wednesday. He was in fair to good shape. About the only thing wrong was he was extremely hungry.

"They got him out by drilling a series of holes through a partition from another tunnel, then chipping out the area between the holes. They couldn't blast because of the danger.

"He and Harold Lambert worked into the bottom of a stope—an old one—but they didn't know it was that close.

"When they hit bottom, tons of fill came down. It trapped Harold for about 30 minutes but he dug out, Stanley couldn't—there was too much."

Music Halls Making Comeback In Britain, Business Excellent

In fact four music halls are scheduled to open in London soon and Ray Meckender, president-founder of the British Music Hall Society, predicted yesterday they will do a champagne-and-cockles business.

"Jubilee" was all about it, Meckender described his feelings after a rollicking debut party at the new society Sunday night when guests were entertained by Ada Reeve—who is a youthful 84—and other old Canadian and U.S. audiences.

Meckender said his society has 2,000 members, including a few in Canada where as far west as Winnipeg Derek Bridgman, an engineer, signed up, presumably paying his guinea-a-head the same as everybody else.

Tuesday night's session was held at the Carrick Hotel, in the heart of the theatre district, and aroused considerable nostalgic comment in newspapers.

Meckender, a 32 - year - old Lloyd's insurance broker who always wanted to be a showman, said the four new halls opening within a month will use various techniques.

You'll see straight music hall at the Comedy, old-time stuff with chairman at Sir Martin's, modern version at the Prince Charles and Victorian dust-ups with audience hissing and booing the villain at the Unity.

"It's not only in London but in such towns as Liverpool, Wolverhampton and Coventry that you'll be seeing new music halls," said Meckender.

"People are tired of television — they want to feel the warmth across the footlights."

Anyway, as one columnist put it:

"All this and Shakespeare, too."

Court of Revision Sessions Hearing Assessment Appeals

Failing to Show For Jury Duty Is Costly

TORONTO (CP) — Louis Abrams, an optometrist, was reprimanded and fined $50 by Chief Justice James McRuer of the Ontario Supreme Court Wednesday for failing to show up for jury duty.

"Your manner is not becoming to a good citizen," the chief justice said. "All jurors serve one time or another at some personal sacrifice and inconvenience."

Abrams' lawyer, Edsworth Searles, said his client was under the impression that because he was a professional person he could be excused from jury duty.

Chief Justice McRuer ordered Abrams to serve his two weeks of jury duty despite the man's protests that it would interfere with his business appointments. The chief justice said that the notice of jury duty had been made some time ago and Abrams could have arranged his appointments accordingly.

PATRIARCH MAY VISIT

TORONTO (CP) — The eastern Patriarch who recently made religious history when he embraced Pope Paul on the Mount of Olives will visit Toronto in September, Ecumenical Patriarch Athenagoras of Constantinople, spiritual leader of the world's 200,000 eastern Orthodox faithful, will make religious history again as the first enthroned Patriarch of Constantinople ever to visit North America, his nephew said Wednesday. Vyron Rey, George Dimopoulos, dean of the cathedral of the Annunciation of the Virgin Mary in Toronto, announced the intended visit of his 77-year-old uncle.

The complete re-assessment of all city properties completed last year, is causing more work for the court of revision this year.

In all there were 407 appeals to be considered by members of the court of revision who have been holding sessions since the middle of December. The court meets three days a week from nine until five with a total of eight meetings planned.

For the most part appeals have been as the result of misunderstanding on the part of residential property owners who generally are satisfied once the new assessment system is explained.

In most instances the re-assessment program raised assessments approximately three times with the expectation that the mill rate would be reduced accordingly.

REVISIT PROPERTIES

The idea also was for correction of land-line assessand for more realistic assessments in consideration of today's values.

Since court of revision sessions started approximately eight properties have been revisited, a few assessments have been adjusted and the appeal from one industrial property will go before the county judge for consideration.

Generally speaking, however, industrialists are satisfied with their re-assessment and with the exception of the one to go before the county judge, all industrial appeals have been withdrawn.

Members of the court of revision are J. D. O'Flynn, chairman, with L. E. McLean and Sheriff Roscoe Robson as members.

Little Pig Had Freedom For Short Time

In the beginning there was this little pig.

At the end, police, kids and adults and numerous neighborhoodfull -- were in the act.

It all started when the pig took a notion to go for a stroll on Highway 2 in east Belleville at suppertime last night.

It was first spotted by startled motorists as it wandered through the nearby residential area. Police were called and a cruiser crew despatched on the hunt.

Staff sergeant Ralph Blatchford, just finishing supper when he saw the cruiser go by, joined in the chase.

So did a crowd of moppets and grownups — without much success.

A police constable had an inspiration. He got a rope, made a lasso and snared the pig. The pig shrugged it off — and with it the officer, upended on the sidewalk.

Finally, luck ran out. The animal was tied, placed in the trunk of the sergeant's car and deposited at the city's sales barn, where its owner was discovered.

Automated Licensing System Speeds Sales of Permits

The new automated system adopted by the Ontario Department of Transport for issuing of motor vehicle licences in 1964 has accomplished two things at the offices of district licence issuers.

The new system has speeded up proceedings at local offices and has relieved the clerical result of many motorists buying their vehicle markers early.

Belleville licence issuer, George Olsen, stated today that approximately 20 per cent more auto markers have been sold than at the comparative date last year.

"There is no waiting and no filling in of applications for drivers' licences," he said.

Students Will Benefit by $300,000 Grant

LONDON (CP) — Needy students in eight western Ontario counties and the fields of carpet and heart research, will benefit from the will of Miss Maude E. Gordon of Wallaceburg, who died a year ago, the University of Western Ontario announced Wednesday.

Miss Gordon, daughter of the late John E. Gordon, for many years manager of the Dominion Canner Company in Wallaceburg, left approximately $300,000 to be set up as a trust fund and ordered the money used for aid to needy students or research.

The trust will be administered for 25 years by private trustees and the income given to the University of Western Ontario board of governors each year for distribution. After 25 years the trust fund will be turned over to the board of governors for administration.

WATERLOO (CP)—The first graduate nursing program at Waterloo Lutheran University will begin this fall, Dr. William J. Villaume, president and vice-president, said Wednesday.

Courses will lead to a master of arts degree and will be in French and Spanish.

Summary of Topics In Johnson's Speech

U.S. Congress: With last year's session having been the "longest in peace — time history," Johnson urged that he and Congress work together to make the 1964 session "the best in history." Congress members, he said, should discharge the public business for at least bringing each proposal "to a fair and final vote."

John F. Kennedy: The president appealed to Congress to carry forward the plans and programs of the slain president "not because of our sorrow or sympathy — but because they are right."

Budget: The federal budget to be submitted this month, Johnson said will call for expenditures of $97,900,000,000, a reduction of more than $500,000,000 from the current year. He said it will cut the deficit in half, from $10,000,000 to $4,900,000,000, and in proportion to national output will be the lowest since 1950.

Poverty: Johnson said his administration was declaring "unconditional war on poverty in America." The attack on it, he said, will be better schools, better health, better homes, better training and better job opportunities.

Medical Care: "We must provide hospital insurance for our older citizens, financed by the social security system and paid for under social security. . . ."

Tax Reduction: Every American family, he said, will benefit from the pending $11,000,000,000 tax-reduction bill. He added that the tax bill has been thoroughly discussed for a year. Now we need action."

Unemployment: Johnson said he was opposed to reducing the work week—generally 40 hours in this country — and to creating more jobs but declared he was equally opposed to overtime pay in use of overtime. He recommended legislation to create commissions to determine where higher overtime rates would increase job openings.

Discrimination: "I, as I, make one principle of this administration abundantly clear, that those accustomed opportunities — in employment, education, housing and every field — must be open to Americans of every color," Johnson said. He added that as far as federal laws can all racial discrimination must be abolished.

Security-Foreign Affairs: The country's ultimate goal, he said, is a world without war, "a world made safe for diversity, in which all men, gods and ideas can freely move across every border and boundary."

LONDON (Reuters) — President Johnson's State of the Union message announcing a cut in U.S. nuclear weapons production won applause in world capitals.

In London, diplomatic quarters showed keen interest in Johnson's disclosure that the United States would make new proposals at the 17-nation Geneva disarmament conference reopening Jan. 21.

British observers said the speech was bound to improve further the international climate on the eve of the important and complex Geneva negotiations.

Russian newspapers carried Tass news agency reports of the speech without comment.

"His address is perhaps not dissimilar to what Roosevelt might have said today had he been alive and active," The Telegraph said.

"The Kennedy momentum is maintained, even increased."

FRANCE APPROVES

In Paris, the Johnson address was favorably received in French government circles although there was no official comment. The re-dedication of the administration to the Kennedy stand on racial issues and the policy of giving foreign goods competitive access to the American market were noted with approval.

But there was nothing in the speech calculated to change the French boycott of the Geneva talks. France considers that preconditions for effective disarmament have not yet been met.

In Rome, the conservative newspaper Giornale d'Italia said Johnson confirmed that the aim of his government is to contribute to the progress of the world toward peace."

The Italian Communist newspaper L'Unita said the message was neither disappointing nor did it raise enthusiasm, but was based on prudence.

On the international plane it lacked precise directives to assist in a relaxation of tension, L'Unita added.

JAPAN A BIT CAUTIOUS

In Japan, the Johnson address was warmly received except for a cautious comment on the U.S. equalization-of-tax issue from the foreign ministry. The ministry said in a statement issued after the speech Japan hoped Johnson's new policy "will not put an unfavorable influence on Japan in America's enforcement of the interest equalization tax."

But the ministry said it applauded the message and was in full sympathy with the U.S. vision of a world without war and the control and eventual abolition of arms.

Strip-Tease Act Is Out For Play-Girl

MUNICH, West Germany (Reuters) — British playgirl Mandy Rice - Davies made her debut as a night club singer here early today singing Diamonds are a Girl's Best Friend. The 18-year-old blonde, who was a key figure in a "sex-and-security" scandal which shook Britain last year, appeared on stage in the packed Eve. cabaret club after arriving in Munich late Wednesday. The club owner said she was "well received."

Asked whether she would do strip - tease acts while in Munich, Mandy said:

"Oh really, what do you mean. Whoever suggested a thing like that! I'm an actress, you know. I don't go in for that sort of thing."

Proposed Medium Security Penitentiary at Warkworth Subject of Talk by Member

TRENTON — Dr. Pauline Jewett, MP for Northumberland, speaking at the annual meeting of the John Howard Society in Trenton last night, said from what she had heard, the medium-security penitentiary, to be built at Warkworth this year, would become in time an "industrial centre" of a kind with the inmates working under conditions patterned as much as possible, on factory conditions in the outside world and being paid a small wage.

"It is proposed to erect 25 buildings on the land at first," Dr. Jewett said, and this institution will be enlarged in the years to come. Initial population has been set at 467. "Medium-security" risks will be determined through tests at a Kingston penitentiary reception centre and the tests are comprehensive. The program at Warkworth will include cultural and recreational outlets, and will be designed to instil in the inmates a desire for a good life.

Dr. Jewett said that there was no such thing as a "typical" criminal. Statistics show that inmates in Canadian prisons are Canadian citizens, on nine to ten ratio, ("crime can't be blamed on 'those dirty foreigners," said Dr. Jewett); eight of ten prison inmates are under 40 years of age; eight of ten say they are Christian; eight of ten come from towns or cities; eight of ten are addicted to liquor, moderately to excess; seven of ten did not go beyond the eighth grade, and the "average" went only as far as fifth grade; six of ten are unmarried and six of ten are unemployed when arrested.

WILL EMPLOY 200

The institution will employ 200 persons and the greatest call will be for "custodial officers," (guards). Trades instructors will be needed as well as clerks, typists, bookkeepers, medical personnel and assistant, classification officers, who will assist in compiling case histories and in the rehabilitation program.

Dr. Jewett commended the Trenton branch of the John Howard Society for the work it has done to rehabilitate offenders locally in the past five years. Many men and their families have been helped and local industrialists and businessmen have helped the society by providing employment for many of the men.

Elected to the executive last night were; William Lawson, president; A. J. Campbell, vice-president; Walter Steevie, treasurer; Harvey Canuel, secretary; Rev. J. G. Clancy, W. E. Donaldson, Jack Goldberg, H. E. Hasty, Rev. J. T. Irwin, Eben James, W. R. Menzies, W. A. Ransom, Ben Thompson, Q.C., Ray Irwin and K. R. Vytopil, directors. A. M. Kirkpatrick, secretary-director at provincial level is an ex-officio member of the Trenton group.

Asks Lodging, Tells Police About Robbery

TRENTON — Last night, Gary Lou Generaux, 20, of Consecon, appeared at Trenton police station and asked for lodging over night. He told police he had no job and no place to go. He also told police he was going to Toronto to look for employment, but wanted somewhere to stay overnight.

Generaux was placed in a cell overnight. This morning when he stepped outside the police - station in the drizzling rain, Generaux laughed, turned around to the desk sergeant and said, "I would like to tell you about a break-in that occurred on March 30th, 1962.

He admitted breaking into a home on Dufferin Ave. in Trenton occupied by John Downs and stealing a quantity of women's and men's clothing. He described in detail to police his entry and exit, which checked out with police records.

Generaux has been detained in Trenton and has been charged with breaking and entering. He will be appearing in magistrate's court.

Wooler Store Entered, $150 In Cash Taken

TRENTON — Provincial police from the Brighton detachment are investigating a series of break-ins which occurred in the Wooler area early Wednesday.

Thieves took $150 from a desk drawer at the Red and White store in Wooler. Proprietor Harold Landon had sent his cash register to Toronto for repair.

At Orland, thieves took the cash register but were in for a surprise as the cash drawer had been removed.

Entry in all cases was gained by forcing the front door to the establishment.

Cheese Defended

Dr. Leonard Pugsley, associate director of the food and drug division of the federal department of health and welfare, says that cheese may be a poison for people who are taking certain tranquillizing drugs.

No more devastating criticism of tranquillizers will ever be voiced.

Dr. Pugsley, though, has a strange way of putting things. Cheese may be poison, indeed, to people using tranquillizers! This is like saying that a beating heart may be fatal to a person whose throat is cut, that brains are a dangerous commodity to install in the head if one is going to let it be used as a punching bag in a boxing ring, that people who breathe air find it difficult to exist under water.

Dr. Pugsley has things all mixed up. Obviously what he really meant was that certain tranquillizers may be poison to cheese-eaters.

The idea of any person being poisoned by a slab of mellow old cheddar is too ridiculous to receive a moment's consideration from the sane and hungry. Danish blue is obviously an acceptable substitute for the waters of the mythical fountain of youth. The only charge which will stand up against Swiss is that there would be more of it were it not so full of holes.

Moreover, cheese goes well with a large number of other highly acceptable substances, such as crackers, beer, dill pickles, apple pie, white bread, brown bread, black bread, and other cheeses.

Make a list of other tranquillizers that tranquillizers get along with, Dr. Pugsley.

As for the scientific evidence, it is being weeded unmercifully. Most of the best cheeses, apparently, contain amines, which would cause high blood pressure were it not for the fact that the brain normally secrets monoamine oxidase, which destroys the amines. The tranquillizers neutralize the monoamine oxidase. Now this is certainly a silly thing to do. It has taken thousands and thousands of years to develop man's brain, the best in the world, and if it says that a man should eat cheese and that therefore it needs to have a supply of amine-killer around, who are these newly-come tranquillizers to say otherwise, disarranging the brain's well-organized housekeeping in that fashion and, when a cheese amine enters and trips over the clutter, blaming the results on the cheese?

Pass the cheddar. Oh, yes, and the blue. The limburger is out in the back shed, beside the oka and keeping company with a chunk of samuse, the smelly variety. Now, did you ever sniff anything more tranquillizing than that aroma.

Two Ways to Spend Riches

Why are so many of the newly independent nations, in Asia and Africa, espousing a form of socialism?

One explanation was provided by Prof. Walter B. Harvey in a recent article in the London Free Press.

In Prof. Harvey's view, the possession of great private wealth does not make a man a capitalist; it is the manner in which this wealth is spent which is important. Henry Ford once had an income of eight million dollars a year, but he lived on a modest scale, spent probably about $10,000 a year and reinvested the remainder of his income. The King of Siam, with an income about equal to that of Henry Ford, did not invest it in factories to produce goods, but spent it on palaces, temples and wives.

"In many countries, especially in Asia, capitalism scarcely came into existence," writes Prof. Harvey. "The wealthy men of that continent, and there were many, did not adopt capitalistic habits."

We in the West should not be too smug about this. What was the best policy in the past is not necessarily the best for the future. With automation, there are already signs that we are in danger of investing too high a proportion of our wealth in the capacity to produce more goods of the kind of which we already have enough. While the poor lands need to learn from the West the value of investing in the machinery of production, the affluent West ought perhaps to consider the advantage of spending more for enjoyment, if not on palaces, temples and wives, then on better schools, libraries, art museums, concert halls and the like.

Kenya's constitution, according to reports, is 250 pages thick, the longest of any Commonwealth nation. Probably it could be shortened by good editing, but one is willing to see it just as is. It would take a better-than-average strong man to tear up a 250-page constitution.

VIP's Passe, VOG's "In" Shirt Stuffing Must Not Show

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — So you're out at the airport the other night and who should be waiting in the queue to board the TCA Viscount but the Honorable So and So, Minister of Such and Such.

So what?

So just this — you're watching the Liberal Cabinet put to good use one of the several little lessons it learned from its Conservative counterparts.

And this lesson?

Stuffed shirtism has gone, and will remain out of political style.

Wasn't always that way.

It is not difficult to remember that terrific to-do there was only a few years ago when a Winnipeg hotel manager was a little negligent about rolling out the red carpet for former Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent.

Old "Uncle Louie," as he got to be affectionately known, was as amiable as a Santa Claus most of the time, but he could have his moments, too.

And one of them came that day in Winnipeg, with the then Privy Council Clerk Parliament with a Commons Committee investigating.

VIP'S AND VOG'S

That was in still-only-recent days when a Federal politician, particularly a member of the Cabinet, considered himself a VIP.

Well, all that is changed.

And it was Conservative rebel George Hees, in his days as Federal Transport Minister, who changed it.

He set the political style of being regarded a VOG — VIP but rather as a VOG, especially at the airports—as transport ministers will be the first to tell say—where it not long ago used to be airline routine to segregate the Very Important People from the Very Ordinary Guys.

This was the business of "pre-boarding," as it was known, of the VIPs among the passengers.

Used to work like this—there is a line at the gate, and suddenly over the PA comes the invitation for two or three "Special Names" to board the plane ahead of the "Joes" in the queue.

It sometimes happened that there was a minister, minister or even an MP or two among the pre-boarders, and the mutter would grow in the line of the "Who does he think he is?" or "What makes him so special?"

George Hees was the first to realize the resentment this kind of thing caused. And suddenly, then, as now, the politicians, shrinking from any VIP association, were happy to take their first-come-first-served chances for seats with the tax-paying VOGs.

It has made something of a haunted house of the VIP rooms at the airports. These were snug little hideaways, usually luxuriously draped and carpeted for the private comfort and convenience of "Sir." Sir who didn't care to rub shoulders with The-Rest-of-Us while waiting for planes.

HEES AGAIN

These VIP rooms were blueprinted into plans for new airports after a certain Conservative cabinet minister complained of having to sit, uncomfortably, long and late one night in 1958 in a grubby terminal waiting room.

It was George Hees again who saw the blurring that could be done to a politician's bright and shining image if talk got around that he was using the VIP room.

You could just hear the whispers—"think" he's just TOO important to wait with the rest of us—does he REALLY think he's a VIP—just wait till the next election.

So they use the VIP rooms now only for press conferences where the TV crews can rig up their cameras and roll out their cables without getting in everybody's way.

And now you see Transport Minister Hellyrich, or Trade Minister Sharp, or Revenue Minister Garland, Health Minister Judy LaMarsh and all the rest, elbow to elbow with the taxpayers in the queues at the airport gates.

If you're in the business of public relations—and isn't that perhaps the most important ingredient of politics—what good does it do you anyway to hide away in a private room, even if it has a VIP plate on the door?

The idea, as sold by George Hees, and bought alike by his Conservative colleagues and since by the Liberal Cabinet, is to mix—talk—be warm and outgoing—"affability," as they say in the public relations trade, with the folks, be one of the people, and if there is a little stuffing in your shirt, never, never, never let it show.

Strictly Personal

Some Problems Have No Solutions

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: Nobody ever died from overwork, but many from underwork; nobody from thinking hard and straight, but many from thinking soft and circular; nobody from grief and disappointment, but many from their inability to mourn and their incapacity to hope.

There are some problems with no solutions (a fact which the American temper is reluctant to admit), as, for example, the question of gambling: for whether or not it is legalized makes less difference than we think, since the evils on both sides of the matter seem to be exquisitely balanced.

Hell hath only one fury greater than that of a woman scorned — and that is a woman left with what she considers an inadequate divorce settlement.

(Speaking of that, she is usually right about it: for as one astute divorce judge remarked: "It is invariably the case that the amount I award is too much for the man to get and too little for the wife and children to live on.")

Hardly any of us is without at least a trace of the sadistic and subversive — so that, secretly, we are more pleased to see a boyfriend giving a disliked rival of great cost and luxury than a pulling a small, cheap model.

People cannot be educated for favors as much as they can be won by fairness; a favor conferred can be withdrawn or regarded at the whim of the giver, but the moral climate of fairness never changes, and wins the allegiance of those who can breathe freely only in that air.

Youngsters, in trying to throw off the yoke of parental restraint should recognize that to go to the other extreme is also a form of slavery; over-reacting is just submission in reverse, and not true liberty, which always sets its own limits accordance with reason and reality.

How women can chew over a party or ball at great length afterwards, while the men are oblivious to it all, was neatly put by Malcolm de Chazel, when he observed: "In mixed company, women practice a sort of visual shorthand, which, later they will laboriously and lengthily decode in the company of other women."

The portrait of a person we know well always seems to lack some important qualities; this is not the painter's fault, but the fact that portraits are painted while the subject is in repose, and it is only in motion that certain essential characteristics are revealed.

In every field of inquiry, it is true that all things should be made as simple as possible — but no simpler; and for every problem that is muddled by over-complexity, a dozen are muddled by over-simplifying.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

25 YEARS AGO

January 9th, 1944.

Fire of an undetermined origin stated to have started in an open part of an adjoining implement shed completely destroyed the Sidney township town hall at Wallbridge early Monday morning, together with implements shed and causing unestimated damage to township road equipment contained therein.

Replacement cost of the town hall was estimated by township officials to be in the neighborhood of $5,000 while the amount of damage to the Sidney road equipment contained in the implement shed included a crawler tractor, stone crusher, snowplow, graders and other tools. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

Fearing for the safety of other nearby buildings in the village, the local fire company for assistance from the Belleville Fire Department answered its call with five men and the city pumper.

Members of the Belleville Red Cross Corps will receive special instruction and demonstration on setting up a room in a private home to care for patients having communicable diseases, it was announced this morning by corps officials. Upon instructions from headquarters in Toronto it has been decided to set up such a room in the work rooms at the Kiwanis Centre during the regular meeting. Special lectures on the care of such patients will be given during the meeting, it was stated. All members of the Corps are asked to be on hand at the Centre at eight this evening.

Bad Meters Gyp Drivers

Guelph Mercury

When parking meters fail to work, who is to blame —the motorist, the police department or city hall.

This is a question that goes unanswered day after day, yet it is the unlucky car driver who pays and pays and pays.

Put yourself in the position of the motorist renting parking space on a downtown street. You walk nonchalantly to the meter deposit a cent, nickel, or quarter and the indicator fails to register. You make a second attempt (at your own expense) and again nothing happens. If you are the persistent type, you may make a third try — but if somewhat wary conscious you might be inclined to mutter a few uncomplimentary remarks about the mechanical monsters and ruin your perfectly mild disposition in the process.

Granted, if a policemen is in sight, your difficulties are solved. The officer, after testing the meter, can grant limited parking time and soothe your feelings to some extent, but cannot make refunds for overexpenditure. One difficulty is that policemen are not always on the spot and in such instances the unfortunate driver is left entirely on his own. His only alternative is to leave the car in the parking area and take a chance o regetting a ticket, or move to a new space and feed more coins to the city coffers.

Inventive minds have provided mechanical devices which are serving a useful purpose in accommodating motorists so far as parking is concerned. It will be a happy day for the victimized motorist when a fool-proof gadget is devised to assure him that he will not be gypped by a faulty mechanism of such mechanical equipment.

The first shots of the American civil war were fired 100 years ago Friday — in 1861. The supply ship star of the West was fired upon by southern shore batteries as it steamed up the harbor at Charleston, S.C., with 200 troops and supplies intended for Fort Sumter. The southern guns scored two hits on the ship, which turned back before reaching its destination.

Man's "Singing Voice" From Out of the Past

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My sister is 68 and has developed a singing voice in her head, always a man's voice. It isn't imaginary as she can sing along with him. The songs are all old ones, mostly those our family sang when she was young.

What do you suggest? — M. J.

The brain is a very intricate mechanism. In our old age (and "old age" varies a lot, among us) the speed of the brain may slow down. Or it may retain essentially all of its speed until the day we die. Or it may suffer some moderate derangement, so that we cannot wholly depend upon it.

Some of us begin to lose the knack of remembering recent events, while maintaining our memory of the things we learned earlier in life. Likewise some of us may "remember" — and think to be real — things which we heard or saw or knew many years ago.

Your sister does not really have a man's voice singing, although to her it is real. The fact that she can "sing along" with this voice does not prove that she hears it, but only that she thinks she does.

I believe — and hope — that she enjoys "hearing" the voice. And there is no reason why you should not let her do so. I can say "yes, isn't that nice," and let it go at that.

Some of us are lame at 68, some short of breath, some fat and tired. Some of us have other things that are in our memories only. And some of us are dead.

Let us not rail against being old, because that does no good; nor complain because one of us gets old this way, and one of us that way. Some of us are physically active or mentally sharp at 90-plus.

But let's also be realistic.

All of us, if we live long enough, get old. Age may affect our feet or our digestions or our knees, or our kidneys, or our brains.

Medically we have found a lot of ways to combat the ravages of the years. We have found them all. We still get old.

The brain doubtless is the most complicated of all the parts of the body. If a brain hobo takes a few of its cells in "hear" voice that do not exist, there isn't much we can do about it, except to recognize what is happening and go along with it.

Anyway, this distorted imagination isn't so bad. Just accept the facts, and if it pleases your sister to think she "hears" a voice, where's the harm?

Happiness is the great common denominator of what is good in life. So keep her happy, for happy she is.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: How serious is pernicious anemia? Can it be cured? How long can a person live with it? I have a young girl with it many and I've seven children? — Mrs. G. D.

Pernicious anemia, untreated, is usually fatal, and rather quickly, too. It cannot be cured. However, with proper treatment — perfodic injection of B Vitamins — the condition can be kept under excellent control indefinitely. There is no reason why a girl, with this treatment, could not have children.

* * *

Mrs. G. T.: The milder tranquillizers, such as you are taking, can, if necessary, be continued for years. They do not lead to addiction in the sense that narcotics do, so you are worrying unnecessarily.

What are ulcers? How should they be treated? What can you do to help rid yourself of ulcers and stay rid of them? For answers, read Dr. Molner's helpful booklet, How To Heal Peptic Ulcers and Keep Them Healed. For your copy write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Small Birds Slaughtered

Sault Daily Star

Well, it comes to light now that you may just be fattening some of them up for someones else to kill and eat. Ugly thought? Agreed, but apparently it is true.

When food becomes scarce after the fall of winter, benevolent citizens of most communities take to feeding the feathered creatures bits of bread, suet and partly prepared bird food.

Until recently the best opinion of this corner that birds are fed during winter to keep them in fighting trim and provide times of enjoyment for people who like to watch the hungry chickadees, jays and grosbeaks feeding.

However, there are other people who have turned to catching and killing the small wild birds.

In some countries (and parts of our own) hungry folks have been driven to eat anything they could get their hands on. Since it is estimated that it'll would take one of the practice of killing song-birds and sparrows must have been in the direst circumstances.

Hardly anybody in Sault Ste. Marie today can be that hungry but still the horrible practice continues . here!

The local Humane Society received six calls in the week of Dec. 9-16, from local people who claimed that a neighbor of theirs was catching small birds in a trap and killing them.

The last complaint, before this recent influx of calls, had come just about a year ago. Humane Society Director Bette Gaughn, went to the investigators to arrive at the scene of the incident, witnessed a man unwinding small birds to death in a trap which he had made. Movies taken at the time attest to the truth of the story.

The technique used, with minor variations is this: a depression about three feet long and three to four feet in width is made in a mound of snow.

Then a cord is tied closely on a light frame, is propped over the area of depression in the snow. Bird seed is used to attract the birds.

The engineer of this trap then attaches one end of a string or wire to the prop suspending the trap and carries the other and behind a building or in his basement if the home is nearby. When enough birds have landed in the feed hole to satisfy the hunter a quick jerk releases the frame and the net falls over the depression, trapping birds until they can be killed by trampling or clubbing with a stick.

There are laws protecting certain birds in this district. Then one of these has been found killed the offender may be prosecuted. However, under existing law the trap is permitted as well as the killing of many types of birds. Law makers have probably regarded rules on this subject as superfluous.

With that in their mind would engage in such activity?

Pension

leaves Tuesday for a three-day visit to France.

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Roberts said Wednesday that Prime Minister Pearson has yet to fulfil a promise to send him an outline of the Canada Pension Plan.

Mr. Roberts said in a television broadcast taped in advance that provincial premiers were promised at the November dominion - provincial conference they would be provided with information on the pension plan.

The premiers would then report their feelings on the plan to the federal government, and a draft bill would be prepared by Ottawa.

Mr. Roberts said he cannot understand why the government has failed to send him the memorandum. Asked whether the government was purposely holding it up, he said he did not know.

The premier also continued what he said in Hamilton Dec. 13 — provincial taxes will be raised during the session of the legislature beginning Jan. 15.

Because of budget secrecy he declined to say what measures would be used to gain increased tax revenue. However, speculation at Queen's Park has centred on the provincial sales tax and premium for Ontario hospital insurance.

If the three-per-cent sales tax were raised to five per cent, it would bring in an additional $120,000,000. If the hospital premiums — now set at $4.20 a month for families — could be doubled, it would result in an additional $90,000,000 in revenue.

Mutual Aid Firefighters Honor Officers

A presentation was made to the past-president and past-secretary of the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Mutual Aid Association at its regular monthly meeting held in Wellington on Wednesday evening.

The presentation was made to 1963 president Pat Callaghan of Point Anne and 1963 secretary Chief F. M. Clarke, chief of the Point Anne Fire Department, as the offices were taken over by the 1964 executives.

Co-ordinator for the association, Fire Chief Gerald Vance of the Belleville Fire Department presented each of the two men with an engraved desk pen set on behalf of the association.

The new president, Chief Merv Dafoe, chief of the Frankford Fire Department, and the new secretary, Kent Lewis, also a member of the Frankford department, assumed their positions.

On leaving his office as president, Mr. Callaghan said he had enjoyed his past year and added "fellas there really isn't anything to it." He said that it did not involve a great deal of work and he felt he had gained a great deal of experience from it

CARDS OUT-DATED

Co-ordinator for the association, Fire Chief Vance, brought several matters of business to the floor, one of them being the problem of the long ago obsolete "running cards", a type of card used by all departments, giving the name of each department, the territory covered by each, amount of equipment and whether the department is voluntary or permanently staffed.

Chief Vance said these cards were outdated and told the association he would have new cards made up in the form of a loose leaf booklet for each department if the association would pay for the cost of the books. This was approved.

A second problem raised by the co-ordinator was the purchasing of licenses for foam trailers. The association decided that each individual department would pay for its own licence.

Members voted against changing the phrase "fire alarm" to simply that the nuclear powers would agree not to stockpile weapons in, for example, Latin America, Africa or Asia or at least in designated areas of those continents.

4. Establishment of a committee of experts to work on the problem of putting a ceiling on military budgets.

CUTS URANIUM OUTPUT

Johnson stressed East - West disarmament measures as the major concern of his administration in the foreign policy field. To this top priority goal he linked his announcement that the United States will cut back the manufacture of atomic explosives by a 25-per-cent reduction in the output of enriched uranium and by the closing of four plutonium-producing piles.

Administration officials explained after the president had delivered his state-of-the-union message that the cut design was not made primarily for disarmament reasons but because the United States now has so many nuclear weapons that it no longer needs to expand its arsenal as rapidly as in the last few years.

These officials said that in the last three years the nuclear warhead capacity has been increased by 50 per cent. They put the total of U.S. nuclear weapons of all kinds and sizes in "the tens of thousands."

The cut in production of enriched uranium will have no effect on Canadian uranium exports to the United States.

W. M. Gilchrist, president of Crown-owned Eldorado Mining and Refining Company, said Wednesday that Canada is shipping uranium to the U.S. under firm-price contracts negotiated several years ago and these contracts continue to the end of 1966.

"emergency" in telephone books and directories, as it was felt too wide a field was covered by the word "emergency, for example, the police department, Ontario Provincial Police, ambulance service and others.

Municipalities represented at the meeting included Belleville, Point Anne, Wellington, Bateman, Frankford, Tweed, Sidney, Bloomfield, Deseronto, Madoc, Tyendinaga and Trenton.

Following the meeting, supper was prepared and served by the wives of the Wellington fireman. The next meeting will be held in three week's time at Trenton.

Belleville Livestock

Trade was active and prices firm on most classes of livestock on offer Tuesday. Steers and heifers were steady and cows were strong. Bulls were actively offered. Veal calves were steady and lambs were weaker. Fat hogs were steady and weaned pigs and sheep sold higher. Good springers sold readily on a strong demand.

Following are quotations:

Choice steers 20 to 21.

Good steers 18 to 19½.

Good heifers 19 to 20. Medium 17 to 18½. Common 14 to 16.

Good cows 15 to 16½. Heifery cows as high as 17½. Medium 13 to 14½. Common and cutters 10 to 13.

Good heavy bologna bulls 18 to 19. Medium 17 to 18. Common 14 to 16.

Good stock calves 21 to 24.

Choice veal 32 to 33½. Good 29 to 31. Medium 25 to 28. Common 20 to 24. Rosers 15 to 18.

Grade A hogs 18½ to 20 on live weight basis.

Light sows 17½ to 18½. Heavy sows 16 to 17.

Shoats 30 to 32½. Weaned pigs $15. to $14. each.

Choice lambs 21 to 22.

Small type heifers $160. to $200. each.

Good work horses $75. to $125. each. Work horses 6 to 7.

The remains of the three victims were found in bush country 90 miles west of Gaspe. Hears had eaten most of the bodies and scattered the bones. But a medical examination nonetheless disclosed the men had been shot.

TRIAL AT PERCE

Coffin was arrested and went on trial a year later in Perce, Que. He admitted stealing $600 from the elder Lindsay together with a pair of binoculars, a hunting knife and clothing. But he denied the slayings.

He did admit in the 19-day trial and a jury—made up of French- and English-speaking members—took half an hour to find him guilty. The Quebec Appeals Court upheld the conviction and Mr. Justice Douglas Abbott of the Supreme Court refused leave to appeal to Canada's highest tribunal.

The order-in-council setting up the commission specifically orders an investigation into "the credibility of statements" made by Fraser Lindsay to the police in Miami, Fla., in 1958.

Thompson told police he committed the murders but later retracted the statement.

The commission was ordered to inquire into the actions of officers and police agents and all other persons having participated, directly or indirectly, in the preparation and presentation of the evidence used in the proceedings leading to the execution of Wilbert Coffin, Feb. 10, 1956.

FOLLOWS BOOK

Appointment of the royal commission follows publication in Montreal of a book by Jacques Hebert titled J'accuse les Assassins de Coffin, (I Accuse Coffin's Assassins) which claimed Coffin was innocent of the 1953 deaths of three American hunters from Hollidaysburg, Pa. Technically, Coffin was convicted of the death of one of the hunters.

Premier Lesage, who was standing beside Mr. Hamel when the announcement was made, said Mr. Hebert would have a chance to call witnesses to present his side of the case. Costs involved would be paid out of the $30,000 budget given the commission.

Mr. Lesage was asked whether the government had any doubts after comparing the book and the government's own thick files on the case. Mr. Lesage replied that once a royal commission had been named he could not comment on the situation.

Mr. Hamel said a counsel and a secretary will be named to the commission. They had not yet been chosen.

The commission's hearing are expected to be held mainly in Quebec City.

The order-in-council gives the commission six months to present a report although the way is left open for extension of its mandate.

Work of Safety Inspector Outlined to County Council

PICTON (Staff) — Mr. W. R. Ovens, Construction Safety Officer for the Dept. of Labor, Kingston, waited on the Prince Edward County Council Wednesday afternoon, to explain the reasons why the Government has made it mandatory that each County have a construction safety inspector.

The duties of such a man would entail inspecting all buildings whether being built, re-modelled, demolished, or being moved. His duties would also extend to inspection of repairing and rebuilding of all roads.

"All the cities — all separated towns, and about half of the counties in Ontario, now have their own safety inspector", Mr. Ovens said. "This man need not cost you a lot of money, he will not need an office, as you cannot inspect buildings sitting behind a desk", he added.

"The man selected should be over 35, he should have had at least four years experience inspecting buildings, or in a supervisory capacity in building construction, if he happens to be an engineer, he need only one years' experience, but I repeat, he does not have to be an engineer", he added.

Mr. Ovens reported that in some areas, they have hired a suitable man, who works out of the engineer's office, and as far as safety inspector, was only part time but still assisted the engineer's office the balance of his time.

His duties would be to watch for workers not wearing "hard hats" — using power tools that are not properly grounded, closeness of an overhead boom on a crane to adjacent hydro wires, and a multitude of other things that the average worker would not look for.

COULD STOP WORK

The inspector would have the power to put a "stop work" order on any construction project under his jurisdiction and if the order were to be disobeyed, he can institute court action. The fines are quite substantial for offenders, anything from $100 per day, to $1,000 fines plus a year in jail, or both. He told council that the money from such fines goes back to the municipality in which the offence took place.

Reeve of Athol, Gordon Demore asked "with about 40 per cent of our assessment classed as agricultural and bearing in mind that a farmer may build on his own property, any building that is to be used for farming use, would it not be possible to have these inspections made "pay as you go" type of thing," he asked.

Mr. Ovens said he would be happy to talk this aspect over with the committee at any time a suitable time could be arranged.

The County Home Committee came up with a new name for the Prince Edward County Home at their last committee meeting and asked council to approve the change.

The name they suggested was "Sunset Lodge," and while most of the councillors thought the name sounded fine, it was left to the committee to make a complete check and put their recommendations in at the March session of the county council. The change will have to be done by by-law.

Mr. William McWilliams, superintendent of the home explained some things that will take place in September when the county will be host to the Home for the Aged Association.

It is expected that between 800 and 1,000 people will attend the convention, and council will provide a sum not to exceed $2,500 to take care of expenses at the disposal of the committee. This would only be an estimate, but would probably cover all the expenses," said Donald Bond, committee chairman.

WILL HOLD BARBEQUE

Mr. McWilliams went on to explain that the Prince Farmers will put on a barbeque chicken supper for 550 people, which will cost the county $2.50 per head. Bus trips around the county will be another expense, he told council.

It is expected that the arena will be used for booths and exhibits, and the county will receive 35 percent of the revenue thus obtained. Every hotel and tourist establishment is, according to reports, fully booked for this convention. This is the first time that the association has held their convention in Prince Edward County.

The Fair Grounds Committee was urged to make every effort to have the cement floor poured in the new Prince Edward Curling Club in order that the four lane surface may be used as a banquet room during the convention. As the curling rink is a private club, the committee will also have to make some arrangements with the club for the use of the building.

The county authorized the purchase of a house and lot at a cost of $10,000. The property lies beside the Registry Office and will be used for future expansion of the County Buildings when necessary. The building presently has two apartments, which are rented.

Reeve Barney Hepburn asked the supply committee to investigate the possibility of continuing their good work in refurbishing the balance of the second floor of the County Buildings using the same motiff they did in the chamber. The estimated cost would be less than $2,500.

NEED COUNTY BARNS

Athol's reeve, Gordon Demore, said: "Let's make haste slowly, we have to look at what is necessary—the assessment commissioner and the welfare administrator, we haven't a clue as to the cost, let's slow down on the modernizing until we know what we will have to do on the necessary things. We need a county barn badly," he added.

It was decided by motion to have the estimates prepared and apply for winter works in case the money was forthcoming to do the work.

Wilf Barney Hepburn as chairman, a three-man council tea. was appointed by by-law, to be known as the County Assessment Committee.

Two routine borrowing by-laws were passed late Wednesday. The first is to borrow $220,000 as needed to tide over the county until the taxes start coming in, and $120,000 for roads, as needed, until the taxes and grants come in.

The supply committee has the unenviable task of coming up with some practical ideas of what should be done about hiring—a construction safety inspector—a weed inspector and a plumbing inspector. "It would be fine if one man could do all three," quipped one councillor.

A final motion was passed that all county employees who are paid mileage, keep a daily log, or record of mileage travelled.

Two Fined Same Amounts For Impairment

PICTON (Staff) — In Magistrate's Court here Wednesday two local men were fined identical amounts for identical offences, by Magistrate T. Y. Wilbur.

William Semple, R.R. 4 Picton and Ross Bernard Scott of Picton were each charged with drunk driving and having liquor in a place other than their residence.

In each case the charge was reduced to impaired, they both pleaded guilty and were each fined $75 and costs. On the having charge, they each paid $10 and costs. A further charge of failing to remain at the scene of an accident against William Semple was marked withdrawn.

John Kerry Woodcock and Owen James MacDonald, from the Belleville/Trenton area were fined $60 and costs each when they appeared in court here Wednesday. They were charged with defacing highway property on the Bay Bridge and were remanded from before the holidays. John Arlen Boyd, Trenton, was fined $20 when he failed to produce proof of insurance on his car.

A warrant for the arrest of Clayton Francis, Redmerville was ordered when he failed to answer when his name was called to answer to a charge of driving while disqualified.

Tenders for New Hospital Wing To Be Called

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward Memorial Hospital Administrator William H. Cook announced this week that "we hope to call for tenders on the new hospital wing about the middle of February. The plans have been approved by the Board and by the Province. A few minor details are being cleared up and we hope work will start on the new wing in the spring," he said.

"The addition will add forty more beds of which 20 will be designated for the chronically ill patients. It will bring the total number of beds to 95, with 20 bassinets, making the local institution technically a 100-bed hospital," he added.

The need for the new wing is emphasized by the fact that the hospital has been operating at 80.6 per cent of its occupancy where as the desirable average is around eighty per cent. Mr. Cook pointed out.

When the present hospital was erected, it was so planned that another wing could be added easily, when necessary.

Figures may not add due to rounding.

ONCE HAD DEFICIT

Rising steadily for the last few years—Canada once had a deficit with the U.K.—the surplus reached $486,700,000 for the first 11 months of 1963, an increase of $173,150,000 over the corresponding 1962 surplus of $312,000,000.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures released today show that Canadian exports to Britain increased by nearly $100,000,000 in the first 11 months of 1963 compared with a year earlier, while imports from Britain fell off by $47,400,000.

Meanwhile, there was a further slight improvement in Canada's imbalance of merchandise trade with the U.S. The deficit in that market was narrowed by $36,000,000 to $500,000,000.

Owners of Poles Should Pay For Relocation Says Council

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County Council reported a resolution of Hastings County Council that "the relocation of Hydro and telephone poles should be done at the expense of the owner of the poles, not the municipality involved".

It seems that at present, when a municipality widens a road anywhere, the costs of moving said poles and wires back, are charged to the municipality involved.

They also supported a resolution of United Counties Northumberland-Durham that the province pay the entire cost when a volunteer fire company is called to a highway fire, i.e. a truck, car, or vehicle that has caught fire on the highway.

Regarding a resolution from Grey County that the Province should pay a grant in lieu of taxes, Prince Edward Council suggested that the wording of the resolution be changed, and they might support it. They did however, suggest that the Province pay a grant on Provincial Parks.

"This is especially true where the Province runs a store inside the park for the convenience of tourists and campers. This robs our local merchants of revenue and yet we receive no revenue from this store, apart from a small business tax," said Reeve Delaney.

"The applicants for the position of County Welfare Administrator have been screened down to a few now, from the large number of applications we have received," said Picton's Deputy Reeve Don Thompson.

At the suggestion of council, these men will appear before council on Thursday afternoon, at which time, it is expected a decision will be made.

WHAT BUILDINGS OWNED?

Who owns what buildings at the Fair Grounds — this posed a question at county council to which no one could come up with the correct answer. Tom Walker, clerk-treasurer said he could draw up what buildings the county carries insurance, but apart from this, he was not exactly sure who owned what buildings. A motion was passed that the Fair Grounds committee gather this information for the next session of county council.

Reeve Barney Hepburn suggested that each building be numbered so that councillors would know exactly which building they were discussing.

The Fair Grounds Committee suggested that some work be done on the roof of the "big barn" at once, or possibly it will blow off in a high wind.

The council gave authority to issue a cheque in the amount of $1,500 to the Agricultural Society in the form of a grant. The society spent over $2,800 on the various buildings at the Fair Grounds in the last year.

Finance chairman Reeve Barney Hepburn cautioned standing committee chairmen about budgets. He urged two things, that they pare estimates down to rock bottom and secondly that they have those estimates in the hands of the finance committee before the March meeting of the council.

Non-op Unions Patch up Differences

OTTAWA (CP) The International non-operating railway unions and the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers have patched up their differences and will join again in a single bargaining team in wage talks with Canada's big railways, it was learned yesterday.

The new peace pact was worked out in talks between Frank Hall, head of the joint non-op negotiating team, and William J. Smith, national president of the CBRT.

The CBRT, representing some 20,000 CNR employees, and the 14 international railway unions, representing another 80,000 CNR and CPR employees, split apart last October over the CBRT's insistence that it be allowed to negotiate separately with the CNR for its 1,000 members in the sleeping, dining and parlor car service.

Since then, the CBRT and the remaining non-op unions have gone separate but parallel ways —both filing demands with the railways for a one-year contract providing a wage increase estimated at between 15 and 20 cents an hour.

Education Needed for Proper Attitude Toward Retarded

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Some friends of ours have a retarded son. The boy is 10 years old, his mentality is at the four-or-five-year-old level. He is usually pleasant and well-behaved, but it is apparent that the child is mentally deficient.

The problem is the boy's 16-year-old sister. She is ashamed of her brother and fearful that if her friends see him it will hurt her socially. She insists that the boy be in his room when she comes home from school — in case she brings a friend. When she has a date the retarded child must be kept out of sight.

The parents want to be fair to the girl, but they want to be fair to the boy, too. They don't know what to do. Can you help?—NEWARK.

* * *

DEAR NEWARK — The attitude of the 16-year-old girl is a sorry reflection of ignorant parents. The daughter should have been taught years ago that her brother needs love and kindness. To treat the little fellow as something to be hidden is shameful.

Write for literature to the National Association for Mentally Retarded Children. The parents, as well as the daughter, need educating.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I have been married twelve years and we have four lovely children. My husband causes me more aggravation than all the kids put together. My biggest complaint with him is that I never know when he will be home for supper.

I used to phone him at work every day at 4:15 but the fellows at the plant needled him about the calls and nicknamed him "Mr. Hen-Pecked," so he ordered me to cut it out. He refuses to call me for fear someone will hear him.

He could be home easily by 6:00 o'clock if he wanted to, but more often than not he stops at a tavern and has a drink — or three or four — with the boys.

The kids like to eat with their dad so sometimes we wait as late as 8:00 o'clock. By then the kids are starved and it keeps me in the kitchen till 10 o'clock.

Is there a solution? — 24 - HOUR CHEF.

* * *

DEAR CHEF — Reach a simple understanding with your man. If he's not home by 6:30 have dinner without him.

Any man who'd rather boose it up in a tavern than have dinner with his family has no right to complain about a cold dinner — alone.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — The letter from "Concerned Family" made me furious. So they don't want their well-heeled, socially prominent mother, age 54, to marry a department store clerk because it might damage her in the eyes of her friends! If she listens to them she is out of her mind.

I'm a widow, just about her age. I have my own city apartment and country place, a car and everything money can buy. But money can't buy the things I really want.

My children are happily married so I leave them alone which is as it should be. I try to keep busy but I miss the male companionship I enjoyed for 30 years.

I hope this woman ignores her selfish, snobbish family and marries the department store clerk. And if he has a friend, I'd like to meet him. — SICK OF SOLITAIRE.

* * *

DEAR SOS — Sorry, I can't check out the friend angle for you, but your letter is a good one and I hope for the widow's sake, that she follows her heart.

Ann Landers' frank and informative new book, "Teen-Agers and Sex" ($2.95) is now available at your book store.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Serve Your Family Home Baked Beans

by Mary Moore

For reasons well-known to all of us a pot of baked beans sounds so good and so easy and so cheap.

Tired with the thought of rich food and long hours in the kitchen, I hope you too will welcome this beloved dish. You do not need to be the owner of a bean pot. As I said before, many a wonderful pot of beans has been made in a three-pound lard pail. But I want to add that bean pots are quite inexpensive and give a dandy Maritime atmosphere to your dinner table. A bean pot keeps the beans hot for second and third —servings.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

Spaghetti with Beef Sauce; Grated Cheese; Hearth Baked Italian Bread; Lettuce and Spinach Salad with Italian French Dressing; Fruit Cup of Chilled Grapefruit and Orange Sections; Short bread (see Tuesday); Tea.

SUNDAY

Stuffed Double Loin of Pork (see Friday); Pan-Roasted Potato Halves; Cauliflower au Gratin; Avocado and Grapefruit Salad on Lettuce; Lemony French Dressing; Pineapple Pie with White Cream Cheese (see Wednesday); Coffee.

You have to do one small step in advance. Soak the beans the night before and you can do that with one hand tied.

Eleanor's Bruce says he'd like her to bake a batch every week in the winter. These are that good.

ELEANOR'S VERSION OF HERBIE'S BAKED BEANS

Wash one pound dried white pea beans and soak in cold water to cover overnight. Add a little more water to barely cover, and simmer, covered, until tender, from half to one hour. Place 2 whole peeled medium onions in the bottom of the bean pot and pour cooked beans and whatever liquid is on them over the onions in alternate layers with ½ (or ¾ lb.) of smoked pork squares cut in 1" dice (or ½ to ¾ lb. bacon ends, chopped). Mix together in a small bowl 1½ teaspoons salt, ¾ (or ½) teaspoon dry mustard, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 2 tablespoons molasses, 2 tablespoons catsup. Mix well together and add 1 cup boiling water. Pour over beans and pork and with a fork gently coax it to flow down through beans without disturbing beans and onions. Add just enough hot water to cover beans. Put on cover and bake beans at 300 deg. Fahr. for 6 hours. This time and temperature are exactly right.

Serve this with

SWEETHEART CABBAGE SALAD:

On the medium-fine shredder shred hard green cabbage until you have about 3 cups. Add 2 tablespoons each finely chopped green pepper and green onion tops. Mix with mayonnaise to moisten. Chill this salad before serving if possible. A little sprinkle of vinegar, salt and white pepper over the top just before serving gives it the Springford touch.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Giles, Mary and Wayne, also Mr. and Mrs. Archie Cook of Massassaga have returned home after spending the Christmas holidays in Florida. While there they visited Mrs. Cook's nephew Dr. V. O. Hart, Mrs. Hart and family at Daytona Beach, Mr. Cook's sister Mrs. M. Wilson and Mr. Wilson, at Smyrna Beach; also visited interesting places including Cyprus Gardens, Silver Springs, Marineland and Key West. Enroute they stopped in Washington and visited the grave of the late President J. Kennedy and Cape Kennedy (formerly Cape Canaveral) in Florida.

Women's Institutes

WALLBRIDGE W.I.

The December meeting of the Wallbridge Women's Institute was held in the Orange hall. The Foxboro branch was invited to share the evening and a number of ladies from there were present.

Roll call member gave a 1-minute number pertaining to Christmas.

Mrs. Nicolson introduced the guest for the evening, Mrs. Barber, who gave a most interesting and informative talk of Christmas decorative arrangements.

Hearty thanks were tendered Mrs. Barber and a small token of appreciation was presented to her.

Refreshments were served and all enjoyed a social time together.

YOUNG AT HEART

NEW YORK (AP)—They met in Japan 46 years ago. Wednesday they were married by a 101-year-old bishop. The newlyweds are Rev. Dr. Charles A. Iglehart, 82, and Caroline Peckham, 72, both former Methodist missionaries in Tokyo and Nagasaki. Bishop Herbert Welch performed the ceremony. "I still remember when they were youngsters," he said.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart H. Rosenberg

No man in his right mind would wittingly tempt fate by breaking the laws of nature. Take the law of gravity. Whether you live in Asia or in America, when you fall, you can only fall down, not up. The law operates objectively for everyone, everywhere. Nature's laws, we must remember, are not invented by man; they are only discovered by him.

This is what the prophet Amos had in mind when he told his people that, just as there is no escape from the law of nature, so there is no escape from the law of morality. Both were promulgated by the same Creator. Remember how Amos put it. He said:

"Will a lion roar in the forest, when he has no prey? . . . Will a bird fall in a snare upon the earth, where there is no lure for it? . . Shall evil befall a city, and the Lord hath not done it?"

Put into the terms of our day Amos was saying something like this: To suspect the laws of nature because we can easily secure their immediate, obvious consequences. But the laws of good and evil we regularly forget because we think that they can be overlooked and that we can get away with it. Some insincere critic of religion once said that the Ten Commandments are not so important as the Eleventh Commandment, and the Eleventh Commandment, he quoted as being, "Don't ever get caught!"

We never get away with anything. Every cause has its effect. We pay heavily for the things which we think we can avoid. Whether we are caught or not by others, somehow, we get caught ourselves, caught in the snares of our own undoing.

Amos, and all of the prophets of Israel, made this teaching the cornerstone of their religious message. If evil befalls his people, it is not because they have failed to find good ways to achieve good things. Never, they cohort, can we ride bareback for heaven.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thrasher Celebrate Golden Wedding

RAWDON — On Saturday, January 4th, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thrasher, Mount Pleasant Rawdon was artistically decorated with large golden bells, matching friendship link streamers and several large bouquets of golden mums for the observance of their golden wedding anniversary. Approximately 200 people were in attendance during the day.

The wedding party received in the living room with Mrs. Thrasher wearing navy blue silk with corsage of golden yellow mums. Mr. Thrasher and the ring bearer Mr. Murray Johnston of Selby sported white carnation boutonnieres. The flower girl Mrs. Melville Donnan, (nee Helen Sharp) wore a floral gown of rose pink with corsage of yellow mums. These two attendants were nephew and niece of the bride.

The guests were welcomed at the door by their only daughter, Edna and her husband, Milton Shaw of Ivanhoe. Their grandson, Wayne Shaw, was in charge of the guest book and his wife, Helen Shaw, arranged the gifts. Mr. Thrasher presented his bride of 50 years with a birthstone ring of sapphire.

The gifts included an electric frypan from their immediate family, and an upholstered platform rocker from the Mount Pleasant community, also several articles of copper and china, and furniture.

Mr. W. E. Sandercock, M.P.P., made a personal visit and presented a framed scroll from the Province of Ontario. Telegrams were received from Hon. John Roberts, Premier of Ontario, and Hon. Lester B. Pearson, Prime Minister of Canada.

Grand Master Earl Fox of the Grand Lodge of Ontario I.O.O.F. presented a bouquet of red flowers from Stirling Lodge. The honored couple also received other bouquets of flowers which included long-stemmed red roses and they were the recipients of over 200 greeting cards.

Guests were in attendance from Tweed, Colling Bay, Madoc, Actinolite, Ivanhoe, Stirling, Madoc Junction, Bethel, Wellmans, Carmel and the Mount Pleasant community.

The dining room was appointed with a white damask cloth, centred with a three-tiered anniversary cake decorated with white rosebuds with gold leaves and a large gold 50 on the top in a setting of matching leaves. The silver tea services added beauty to the appointments.

The refreshments were prepared and served by the Mount Pleasant Rawdon United Church women under the direction of the president, Mrs. Donald Knight and her committee, Mrs. Hamilton Donnan, Ridge Road, and Mrs. Clarence Douglas, Ivanhoe, invited the guests to the tearoom. Those who poured were a sister, Mrs. James Sharp, a sister-in-law, Mrs. Cyrus Summers, Mrs. Leonard Sharpe and Mrs. Gordon Linn.

Mrs. Thrasher was the former Annie May Summers, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Summers of Mount Pleasant, Rawdon. Mr. Thrasher is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Neil Thrasher of Madoc. The wedding took place January 7th, 1914, at the home of the bride's parents, with Rev. J. A. Connell officiating. Following the reception the happy couple travelled by auto to Anson Station and thence by train to Ottawa, Rose they spent a week with relatives, attended a session of Parliament and visited notable places in the capitol city. The weather 50 years ago was much the same as now. A few cars travelled the highways and horses, cutters and sleighs travelled on the snow in the ditches.

WELL-KNOWN STOREKEEPER

On their return they took up residence in apartment at the Enterprise Cheese Factory in the Minto community, where Mr. Thrasher was employed as a cheesemaker. Mr. Thrasher had previously made cheese at Hamards Corner and later at Central Cheese Factory, a total of 20 years in that business. In 1928 he was a proprietor of a grocery store in Stirling village and later purchased the pioneer Brimporth property in the Mount Pleasant community. In all he chalked up 36 years as a storekeeper, where he was favorably known by a large clientele. Just recently Mr. Thrasher was presented with a 50 year jewel from Stirling Lodge I.O.O.F. No. 239 and Encampment No. 70, also a 50 year jewel from the Masonic Lodge No. 69 A. F. and A. M.

Mrs. Thrasher was a valued member of Mount Pleasant church choir for many years. She has served faithfully as recording secretary of the W.M.S. before her marriage and after her return to the community. In 1950 she served W.M.S. president and sponsored a special celebration of that organization commemorating 25 years of church union. Mr. Thrasher is also an honorary Brimporth property in the elder of Mount Pleasant United Church.

Mr. Thrasher has one sister, Edith, (Mrs. Paul Sharp) of Wellmans, and Mrs. Thrasher has one sister, Maude, (Mrs. James Sharp), Stirling.

WEDDING

HOLMES — DEAN

A lovely wedding was solemnized recently in St. John's United Church, Tweed, when Gail Marie Holmes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Holmes of Tweed, was united in marriage to Arnold Henry Dean, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Dean, Roslin. Rev. Mr. Payton officiated at the double-ring ceremony before a bank background of yellow and bronze 'mums.

Mr. Fred Porter, who played traditional wedding music, accompanied the soloist, Miss Gwen Leal, in her vocal renditions.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in a traditional floor-length gown of lily-white Chantilly lace over satin and tulle fashioned in a fitted bodice with long lily-point sleeves scalloped neckline appliqued with seed pearls and sequins.

The full skirt was plain in front and the back in tiers of lace. Her crown of seed pearls and crystal held her wrist length veil in place. She carried a white Bible created with red roses and pale forsythia streamers with red roses knotted at the ends.

Mrs. Wanda Franks, Madoc, sister of the bride, as matron of honor wore a rose green peau de soie street length dress with round neckline, short sleeves, fitted bodice featuring small bow, and a pleated panel down the front of the skirt. She wore matching headdress of three roses and short veil. She carried a bouquet of yellow and bronze 'mums.

Miss Sharon Reid, Tweed, and Miss Sandra Lockwood, of Actinolite, attended the bride, were bridesmaids dressed identical to the matron of honor, but in gold tones.

Mr. Lee Hart, Belleville, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Ronald Dean, Tweed, and Mr. Jim Parks, Picton, acted as ushers.

The reception was held in the church parlors, where the bride's table was prettily appointed with white cloth and centred with a three-tier wedding cake decorated with white swans and roses, topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom and misted about the base with white 'mums and pink carnations. The colorful bridal bouquets completed the attractive nuptial setting. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a Celtic blue two-piece suede knit and white marlbon hat, white gloves, black shoes, and purse and a corsage of pink roses. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother, attired in a blue and white printed silk dress, white hat and black gloves, shoes and purse and a corsage of pink roses.

Guests were present from: Newmarket, Belleville, Toronto, Kingston and Peterborough.

Previous to the marriage a miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs. Morley Holmes, and one at the home of Mrs. Reg Reid with Miss Sharon Reid and Mrs. Marion Devolin as cohostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean are residing at 331 Front St., Apt. 4, Belleville, Ontario.

Gifted Pianist To Perform At Collegiate

Charles Rosen, the gifted American pianist who plays here on January 13th at the Belleville Collegiate auditorium under the auspices of the Belleville Community Concerts Association is a phenomenon in the music world. Charles Rosen is the United States' answer to Glenn Gould. He is not only a Princeton Ph.D. and a former professor of humanities at MIT, he is thoroughly literate, and he writes fascinating jacket notes for his own magnificent recordings.

Charles Rosen was born in New York in 1927. At the age of eleven he became a pupil of the late great pianist Moritz Rosenthal. He also worked in theory and composition with Karl Weigl.

Possessor of M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in French literature from Princeton University, and the recipient of a Fulbright Award, Rosen went to Paris to do research in Mediaeval French Musicology. After his return from France he accepted a teaching post at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He accepted his post when it was arranged that his teaching would take only the middle three days of the week, leaving Friday through Monday free for composing, recordings, practice or composition. That appointment was made in 1953 when Rosen was 26 years old. In the past ten years, he has appeared in a Town Hall recital when the critics used glowing superlatives to describe his performances. He has appeared in Europe with the famous soloist.

MILITARY INFLUENCE — Quebec couturier Jean Fortin displays the military influence in his "Air line" sports skirt and matching brass-buttoned vest for the Winter Carnival "duchesses". The ensemble, in red and black tweedy homespun, made with nylon, has two mock pocket flaps on the vest and skirt. Worn with it is the traditional ceinture flechee. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sharpe Mark 60 Years Wedded Life

RAWDON — Over 100 relatives, friends and neighbors attended an "At Home" on December 29 from 3 to 5 p.m. in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sharpe of Hoards who were observing their 60th wedding anniversary. Both are enjoying good health and take an active part in all the social activities of the community.

Mrs. Sharpe is the former Edith Anderson and they have lived their entire married life of 60 years on the Sharpe homestead at Hoards.

Their only daughter Grace and her husband Carman Gunnell received the guests along with the "bridal couple". The dining table was appointed with a white damask cloth, silver tea services and bowls of golden yellow 'mums. The three-tier wedding anniversary cake was flanked by tall white candles in crystal candelabra.

Pouring tea were: Mrs. A. J. Anderson of Trenton; Mrs. Aaron Anderson of Bonarlaw, sisters-in-law of the couple; Mrs. Gene Locke, president of Seymour; East Women's Institute and Mrs. Clayton Thompson, president of Hoards United Church Women.

Congratulatory messages were received from the Hon. L. R. Pearson, Prime Minister of Canada; the Honorable Lionel M.P. of Northumberland; Hon. John Robarts and a personal visit from Russell Rowe M.P.P. and Mrs. Rowe. They also received several telephone messages of congratulations.

Guests were in attendance from Trenton, Napanee, Tweed, Peterborough, Bonarlaw, Stirling, Campbellford and the surrounding district.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

MAIL CALL

Question: I know a hostess should remove her apron before sitting down to the dinner table, but what about a cocktail apron? Should it be taken off as well, or, since it is not utilitarian and more a decorative part of a costume, may it be kept on if the wearer prefers? — E. J. G., Darien, Conn.

Answer: Whether it's splashed with gravy or splashed with sequins, it's still an apron, no matter how frail and delicate it may seem and still is correctly removed before a hostess sits down with her guests to dinner.

Question: A friend of ours who has been widowed for five years is about to be married. My husband and I have been invited to a small reception at a local golf club. The ceremony, itself, will be held in a chapel with only members of the immediate family present. We'd like to send a wedding gift, but wonder if a present is appropriate when the bride has been married before. — Mrs. C. V., Yonkers, N. Y.

Answer: This is strictly a matter of personal choice. Many women prefer removing the band when a divorcee takes place, but many others prefer to continue wearing it, since a divorced woman still has a Mrs. in front of her name. This is especially true when a woman has children. There's no hard and fast rule about whether to continue wearing a wedding ring after a divorce. A divorcee may adopt whichever plan she chooses, depending on personal circumstances.

SUGAR-COATED FASHIONS

Many of us own a spring coat of wool, either a tweed or chesterfield cut, in dressy lines. Sometimes, this coat does double duty in the fall, before the very cold weather sets in.

One of Canada's top raincoat designers has just presented a new line of spring fashions, which will hasten the end of the wool coat for spring.

For the young, who, being young, are great traditionalists, there is the Foreign Intrigue coat, tightly belted with the usual action back and enormous pockets. It can be topped with a Sherlock Holmes cap of the same material, or a "little-boy" cap, worn with the peak over one ear or at the back. These coats are newest in white, but there is a wide range of colors also.

WATERPROOF FASHIONS

There are dressy coats that look like fabric, but are not. There are puckered nylons, velvets and light nylons so thin that they can be folded up in a handbag. The whole point of the collection is that not one of these fashions even looks like a raincoat, but each and every one of them is completely waterproof!

Some have half capes just covering the shoulders, which can be removed. Others are cut as full-length capes. A black velvet, semi-fitted coat is lined in white satin and worn with its own matching skirt, which shows through the slashed sides of the coat. Just the thing for cocktail parties on a rainy night.

There are hooded coats, roomy enough to slip over a warm suit or gorgeous evening wraps, depending on the color and fabric.

Many of these coats come complete with their own matching hats, all in the spring's newest styles. I saw some wonderfully soft-draped, "pirate" hats with turned back brims, some new, soft pillboxes and, of course, the soft-draped fedora.

If you have a penchant for boots, this designer follows the logical pattern by coming up with spats. I don't know why we all do not adopt them immediately even if we have to wear rubbers underneath. We could have warm dry ankles, even in the heaviest rain. Of course, these spats match the raincoats.

I was very interested to see how much brown is used in this collection. It looks wonderfully chic when teamed with robin's egg blue, coral or even white.

Fashion has come a long way when raincoats can rate a full showing all by themselves and leave the audience as enthusiastic as this one was!

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers care of this paper.

SEAL BORN

NEW YORK (AP) — A grey seal, described as the first seal ever born alive in captivity, was born Wednesday at the New York Aquarium. Christopher Coates, director of the aquarium, estimated the seal's weight at 30 to 35 pounds. It was born to two grey seals brought to the aquarium in 1958 from Canada's Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Coates said it would be several weeks before the baby's sex could be determined. Although sea lions of the type frequently seen in circuses do breed in captivity, this is first case of a seal being born alive in captivity, Coates said.

Over-Exposure, Wallpaper Fit Are Aims of Designers

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Call it astronomy, anatomy or fashion, the spring style preview here Wednesday was a continuing study of heavenly bodies.

As if to make up for the past seasons of muffled and shiftshrouded women, American designers are going to go all out on over-exposure and wallpaper fit.

Wednesday's contest for a new low in necklines was a tie between Cuban - exile designer Pepe Fernandez and Spaniard Luis Estevez.

With nary a blush, angular expressionless manikins proved that every curve was their own in bodices that did little else but keep shoulders warm. What was left of their gowns took a binding, curvaceous course to the floor.

Nor is all this bareness for ballrooms alone. In the Fernandez collection, handsome double-breasted jacket suits for day time wear just barely buttoned up far enough.

WAS MODEST

By comparison, the decolletage of the Larry Aldrich Couture House seemed as pure as a Sunday school costume. The collection borrowed through the fashion ages, with emphasis on blazer suits; pleated skirts, simple bias-cut blacks, blouson flounce, polka dots and jewelled bodices combined with swirly chiffon skirts.

The dilemma the decolletage delirium creates for the modest and-or middle-aged woman are bateau or scoop necklines by Hannah Troy that hide lingerie straps. Nor did Miss Troy abandon the loose-fitting girth-disguising dress.

What to wear to a cocktail party, according to Aldrich, is a wool pastel overblouse and skirt edged with glitter. Designer Ann Klein has a bare-arms dress—black bodice with a skirt too dense and too stiff with ruching trim to sit in.

Festering Racial Conflicts Transform British Guiana Into a Place of Terror

In British Guiana a man's racial background is usually a good guide to his political sympathies. In this story Canadian Press reporter Russell Kiman discusses the problems raised by differences between the two main racial groups in the self-governing British colony.

By RUSSELL KLMAN

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (CP)—The stillness of the tropical South American night was pierced by the rhythmic chanting of "Cuba si, Yanquis no!"

Loud cheering and the singing of the Cuban national anthem followed.

The occasion: A reception for Cuban youth leaders given by the militant young people's wing of Premier Cheddi Jagan's ruling Marxist-oriented People's Progressive Party.

Amid the din, a red-shirted East Indian youth, fist clenched, was heard to tell one of the visitors just off a Cuban ship come to lead a cargo of British Guiana rice:

The Cuban, a loyal supporter of Fidel Castro's revolution, replied:

"You must not fight. In your country, all you need do is unite and you'll get what you want peaceably."

The Cuban's words seem a perceptive reflection of the problem facing this troubled self-governing British colony.

RACES DIVIDED

Although the reception, attended also by prominent members of Dr. Jagan's government, underlined the colony's sympathetic ties with the Communist bloc, the main impediment to independence appears to be a lack of national unity aggravated by development of party politics along racial lines.

"The whole life of the country is poisoned and weakened by mutual suspicion and fear between the two predominant racial groups—the Indians and the Africans," says Duncan Sandys, Britain's Commonwealth secretary.

East Indians, who form more than half of British Guiana's 600,000 population mainly support Dr. Jagan, an American-educated East Indian dentist. His party won a majority of seats but not of the popular vote in the last election.

Africans, the dominant minority group, generally support Forbes—Burnham, an African lawyer with socialist leanings who heads the opposition People's National Congress.

A third major party, the anti-Communist United Force, is led by businessman Peter D'Aguiar, a Portuguese.

VIOLENCE COMMON

British Guiana, a country on the northeast coast of South America about three times the size of New Brunswick, has had internal self-government since 1961 but Britain remains responsible for defence and external affairs.

Festering racial conflicts, irritated by political manipulations, have transformed the formerly languid colony into a place of terror.

Murder, arson and other violence are commonplace, and last summer the general discontent found expression in an 80-day general strike. It was reasonably orderly, mainly because of the presence of British troops, but had a devastating effect on British Guiana's economy.

A degree of outward calm now prevails and the chief industries, Canadian-owned bauxite mines and British-run sugar estates, are back in top production. But the colony remains desperately short of development capital, there is chronic unemployment, property values have dipped, construction is at a virtual standstill—and racial bitterness survives.

Racial antagonisms have historic foundations. After emancipation many former African slaves left the land to become urban dwellers. They filled most of the junior posts in the colony's government and aspired to a European way of life. Yet they remained in a subordinate position to the white man.

In turn, the Africans looked down on the East Indian, recruited as indentured labor to fill the gap created by the departure of freed slaves from the sugar estates.

Although the Indians generally remained a separate cultural entity, many rose to become landowners and formed a wealthy segment of the community. More recently they have become the racial majority and by using money and education as levers have begun to penetrate such traditionally African preserves as the civil service.

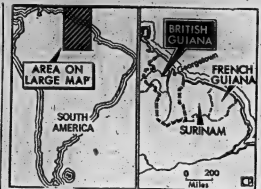
However, ideology sometimes supersedes racial origin in determining a voter's affiliation. Many Africans support Dr. Jagan's party because of its red-dish tint, while many Indians in the business community refuse to support him for the same reason.

WANTS INDEPENDENCE

British Guiana's future course is not certain. The British government has proposed new elections, possibly this year, with a proportional representation scheme to discourage alignment of race with political party.

While welcomed by the opposition, the proposed solution has been attacked by Dr. Jagan, who says he doesn't feel bound to accept it and wants a date set now for complete independence.

Many of his supporters feel U.S. pressure was behind the British decision, which they hope would be reversed if the Labor party were to come to power in Britain.



Britain has said harmony and confidence must be restored before British Guiana can safely assume the responsibilities of sovereign independence.

What the ordinary man wants may have been best expressed by James E. Wegman, a small contractor in the Mahaicony district.

"I want the country to return to economic stability," he said, pausing in his job on a drainage construction project. "I want us all to share a decent living.

"I don't care who's the leader —East Indian, African, white man. I, an African, would have supported to the hilt Dr. Jagan, an East Indian, as a leader, but not his ideology. I don't want communism or racialism, but nationalism."

Tomorrow: Evidence of Communist penetration.

RACE IS POLITICAL KEY — Political parties developed along racial lines aggravate a lack of national unity in British Guiana, self-governing British colony on the northeastern coast of South America. Strong division exists between the two largest racial groups in the country — the East Indians and the African Negroes.

Tariff-Rebating Program To Be Extended With U. S. Says Martin in Program

WASHINGTON (CP) — External Affairs Minister Martin says the Canadian government intends to extend its tariff-rebating program to aircraft and chemical production once the program on automobile rebates is fully developed.

However, Finance Minister Gordon questions whether the automotive formula can be applied to other industries, suggesting that some other scheme may have to be devised.

And Opposition Leader Diefenbaker challenges the whole operation, saying the automotive incentive program "is very wrongly done, wrongly applied and will not be effective."

These and other statements are contained in a recent U.S. educational television production entitled Conflict with Canada broadcast Wednesday night over educational channels in some 80 U.S. cities.

Sponsored by U.S. National Educational Television, an organization that operates mainly through Ford Foundation funds, the program seeks to focus attention on current cross-border problems, concentrating mainly on the automotive situation.

SAME ON PROGRAM

Martin, Gordon and Diefenbaker appeared on the program along with American Sperry Lee, project director for the Canadian - American committee which is made up of a number of business, labor and other leaders from the two countries. Also seen were U.S. Congressmen Cleveland Gallagher, Michigan Democrat and House of Representatives chairman of the Canada-U.S. interparliamentary group; Professor Frank Underhill, author Hugo Cantwell, Ottawa, and Professor Gerald Dorosh of the University of Toronto.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

THE SECOND meeting of the proposed Eastern Counties Baseball Association, scheduled for next Monday January 13th, has been laid over until the following Monday. Inability to secure a hall is said the reason. The January 20th get-together has been called for eight o'clock in Asbury and baseball men interested are requested to note the change in date.

CZECH HOCKEY COACH Jiri Anton says two of the Canadian Olympics team, Barry McKenzie and Terry O'Malley are likely to run into trouble with European referees for over-enthusiastic use of elbows and knees. From what I have seen of the Czechs, the laddies from Prague and environs do not exactly confine these "joints" to bending and praying.

* * *

SPEAKING OF THE CZECHS, Dr. Sidney Anderst, president of their Ice Hockey Association who saw the Hawks-Leafs play last Saturday night remarked: "I was surprised at the fair play between Chicago and Toronto. It was much fairer than the play of your Canadian Olympic team." Brother, he should have seen that post-period party the Hawks-Leafs staged at their previous Toronto meeting.

* * *

A RACE-TRACK WAG phoned the other day to say harness men at the Fair Grounds have a couple of talking horses. So claims he heard one "Mister Ed" say to the other: "I don't recognize your name but your face is familiar."

* * *

RUMOR ALONG THE SPORTS RIALTO has it that it that Sid Foster formerly with the National Cash Register people here, has accepted a position with the Labatt Breweries and has left these parts for his new territory in Windsor. The big, likeable cuss will be missed in these parts, especially in baseball circles. Sid coached the Kenmore Bee Vees and did a manful job despite the many hurdles that faced him. Sid was well liked and sportsmen in general wish him luck in the new environment.

* * *

THEY TELL ME Davy Jones is doing an all-out job as playing coach with the Picton Intermediates who have swept aside all opposition in their sixteen starts. Davy hasn't lost any of that goal-scoring prowess and is potting his share. He has welded a fine club, one that should rate with the best in his class. But, Picton fans apparently won't "buy" that class of hockey. Less than 200 turned out at a game last week. Time ever flies, wasn't it, Lennon?

* * *

LAST SATURDAY'S Maple Leaf Gardens program carried an article asking "Has Rocky Lost His Magic Touch?" Rocky is Rocky the quiet man who took over the Hawks from scrawny Rocky Wilson. Now a team they were saying they the change from comedian to straight man was all Chicago needed. Now it's becoming a debating point.

GUT-OF-SEASON golf story is that of the two players on a district course who had finished play on a hole when a ball rolled up and stopped four feet of the cup. As a joke one of the players kicked it in the cup with the remark, "Let's give the guy a hole-in-one." A minute later a chappie hopped to the green and was told his ball was in the cup. He whooped and jumped and yelled to his unseen partner, "Hey, Jake, lookit, I made this one in six."

* * *

JACK DEMPSEY in an unbelievable story is accused of using "loaded gloves" in his fight with Jess Willard. The next things we'll be hearing is that John Hill is a Norwegian, George McGee has traded his see-going putt-putt for a doughnut-making machine, Feaver has signed with the Yankees, Bert Herrington always favored the Chicago Bears, Pat O'Meara has traded his Hawks teamshirk for a Leafs' halo and O'Mahoney has bet the Canadiens will finish last.

WRESTLING is becoming increasingly popular among sports-minded students of secondary schools of the district and province. Phys-Ed director David Ball of Moira Secondary School has been one of the main cogs in the mat wheel and recently conducted a highly successful invitational meet. Moira, by the way, will be the locale of the COSSA wrestling championships slated for February 29th. Over 100 wrestlers from association schools will vie for championship honors.

Surging Leafs Clobber Canadiens

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Punch Imlach has no peer when it comes to making predictions that don't even come close. But this may be his year.

The outspoken Toronto Maple Leafs coach began his forecasting this season by saying Montreal would miss the playoffs. Then he predicted Chicago would win the National Hockey League pennant in a walk.

That was 1963, however. This is a new year and time to trade in old prognostications.

Imlach now believes his Leafs will win the NHL title, leaving second place to Montreal and third spot to Chicago. After the events of the last few days, he deserves at least a hearing.

The Leafs hacked up their chief Saturday with a 3-0 whipping of Chicago and Wednesday night humiliated the Canadiens 6-1. The Leafs did everything right, the Canadiens everything wrong.

IMLACH BEAMING

"You guys tell me about the game," a beaming Imlach told reporters after Wednesday's one-sided clash in Toronto. "Let me interview you. After all, I've said everything before. After last Saturday's game when we beat Chicago 3-0 I told you it the Leafs play as a team they'll finish first. And they did tonight. The defence was tremendous."

He had praise for left winger Frank Mahovlich, who got his first his current scoring streak (10 points in four games) "could carry us late in the season."

Mahovlich broke up a close 1-1 game early in the second period on a spectacular play. He tallied between Canadiens Gilles Tremblay and Jacques Laperiere, giving away the puck and taking it back twice, and fooling Charlie Hodge with a bullet drive.

TIED FOR SECOND SPOT

The Leafs erupted for two more goals in the middle frames and two markers in the final period, thrilling a crowd of 14,096 and moving into a second-place tie with Montreal with a game in hand, three points behind Chicago.

Mahovlich helped set up three goals to move into sixth place in the scoring race with 28 points. He picked up assists on Red Kelly's opener in the first period and goals by Carl Brewer and Jim Pappin the third.

Henri Richard got Montreal's only goal and was the Canadiens only worker all night, although Coach Toe Blake growled "no one did anything out there." The Pocket Rocket was robbed three times by Leafs goalie Johnny Bower.

Blake was especially disappointed because the Canadiens failed to gain ground on the front-running Hawks, who can stretch their lead to five points when they visit Detroit tonight. New York is at Boston in the only other game.

Canada Meets Yugoslavia

Top Teams In Tournament Test

LONDON (CP) — Canada's Olympic hockey team will meet Yugoslavia in the two - day Olympic elimination round, a tricky innovation this year that could lead to a major embarrassment if one of the big shots is eliminated even before the Olympic Games open Jan. 29 at Innsbruck, Austria.

In previous years, the eight top-rated teams automatically entered group A. This year they will have to fight for their spot in the top bracket.

J. F. (Bunny) Ahearne, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, explained the new schedule worked out last month in Vienna. He said hockey authorities "felt confident" the strongest teams would find into group A for a crack at the world title.

Still, the possibility of one or more humiliating upsets remains.

SET OTHER GAMES

Other qualifying games Jan. 27-28 include: Norway - Switzerland; Sweden-Italy; Germany-Poland; Finland-Austria; Czechoslovakia - Japan; Russia-Hungary, and United States-Romania.

Last year, in the world championships at Stockholm, the group A teams were: Canada, Russia, Sweden, Czechoslovakia, United States, East Germany, West Germany and Finland. Russia won the title and Trail Smoke Eaters placed fourth, Canada's worst showing.

This year East and West Germany will be represented by one team, with Norway or Switzerland favored to graduate into group A to fill the vacancy. If Canada beats Yugoslavia in the qualifying round, its first game in the Olympic schedule will be against the winner of the Norway-Switzerland game.

Their full, provisional, schedule (times EST):

Wed., Jan. 29 — Canada vs. Norway or Switzerland 11 a.m.

Thurs. Jan. 30 — Canada vs. Sweden-Italy 3 p.m.

Sun., Feb. 2 — Canada vs. Germany-Poland a.m.

Wed., Feb. 5 — Canada vs. Finland-Austria 8 a.m.

Sat., Feb. 8 — Canada vs. Russia-Hungary 11 a.m.

Should Canada be eliminated in the qualifying round, then Yugoslavia would play this schedule and Canada would be dropped to competition in group B.

DODGERS GAVE THRILL

NEW YORK (AP) — When the underdog Los Angeles Dodgers stunned to victory in four straight games over the mighty New York Yankees in the 1963 World Series, it was both the upset of the year and the thrill of the year to the nation's sports writers and broadcasters. It became impossible to separate those two categories in the annual Associated Press year-end poll because the voting revolved about the one climatic series almost to the exclusion of everything else.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

Alex Delvecchio and I used to go in deep in our enemy's end in killing penalties in certain situations.

As a rule, however, we try to tip the puck away from the enemy then come back with our checks, with our wingmen.

Around the National Hockey League, Toronto's penalty killers go deep. So does Boston's Jerry Toppazzini and his partner.

New York used to follow our style until they got Val Fonteyne from us. He's one of the speediest players in the NHL likes to go deep.

Picking up the wingmen and going back with them is very effective in killing penalties. It'll save the penalty killers a lot of skating because going to the net and back out to the blue line is a matter of 120 to 150 feet if you have to go across the rink.

As a rule, if Peg Fleming is killing a penalty for Chicago he comes in deep. A lot of times, however, they'll vary, just pivot at the blue line and go back if they've had a shift a minute or two earlier.

Sometimes in killing penalties, some players get in a rut. They'll get the puck and promptly throw it down to the other end.

On occasion, I'll throw the puck down a couple of times, when I'm killing a penalty. Then if the opposing player is a little lax, and just turns around and skates back when he sees me get possession, I'll turn around and go back in my own zone with the puck.

Or I'll pass the puck back to Bill Gadsby. And he'll pass to Pronovost, our other defenceman. The first thing you know, you have them jamming. Then they have to single out a player. Each one has to pick up a man to stop our play.

If you have the puck on your stick, you have less men to beat. And the whole idea is to eat up that time, kill the penalty.

Then there are the times you're battling for the puck at the boards. They'll whistle the play down if the puck is dead. Just keeping shuffling it with your feet. It kills off valuable seconds.

Hawks On Spot

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, said Wednesday it will be a week or 10 days before he completes investigations into acts attributed to Howie Young and Fleming Fleming of the Chicago Black Hawks.

Young already is under indefinite suspension, announced Tuesday, pending investigation of his conduct during a game in Toronto between the Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs last Saturday.

The Toronto club claims that Young used intemperate language and spat while in the penalty box.

Fleming's case calls for automatic review by the NHL president since the Chicago player wound up with a game misconduct penalty. He also had a minor penalty and a 10-minute misconduct penalty and is said to have sworn at referee Vern Buffey.

Campbell said he will have to travel to Chicago and Toronto in getting evidence in the two cases.

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Black Hawk officials said Wednesday they will make every effort to ensure that their suspended National Hockey League star player, Howie Young, gets every opportunity to defend himself of formal charges.

"The Chicago Black Hawks will make every effort to protect their own interests and to ensure that Howie Young gets every opportunity to defend himself on the formal charges lodged by Mr. Stafford Smythe, the governor of the Toronto Hockey Club.

"It must be remembered that hockey is a fast, spirited game with body contact stressed so players are often penalized for certain infractions of the rules, and when penalized for certain infractions, are very often angry with themselves and the world in general. This attitude no doubt prompted Mr. Smythe's charges.

"Mr. Campbell is acting on formal protest by the Toronto governor which is clearly covered by a NHL bylaw. We hope that Mr. Campbell, after he completes his investigation, still will be able to clear Howie Young of the Toronto charges."

The bylaw referred to gives the league president discretionary powers that amount to almost unlimited suspension, and/or fine. The only appeal permitted is against a fine of more than $200.

Army Helps At Innsbruck

Lack Of Snow Threatens Winter Games

By HANS BENEDICT

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP)—Emergency crews of the Austrian Army were out in force today to save the 1964 winter Olympics, threatened by an alarming lack of snow.

Some 2,200 soldiers were packing ski courses for the alpine and nordic competitions with coats of ice and snow from nearby areas.

Professor Friedl Wolfgang, chairman of the organizing committee, pledged that the games will be held as scheduled.

"The weather is not going to interfere with the games," he said. "We guarantee satisfactory conditions.

Other preparations have moved smoothly.

MAKE SKI RUNS

Hundreds of square miles of rugged mountain terrain have been bulldozed into ski runs. The jump hills have proved to be in good condition. Banked chutes and skating arenas had a glistening coat of ice.

But for nearly three weeks, Innsbruck has basked in bright sunshine under blue skies. The little snow which fell earlier now is melting away or is showing bald spots.

Wolfgang said, however, the situation only affects preparations for the alpine ski runs south of Innsbruck and the cross-country trails in the north.

"We are prepared to handle any extremes," he said. "If the snow shortage continues, then we will bring in all the white stuff we need from adjoining areas.

"If the weather changes and we get too much snow, we have plenty of men and equipment to keep the runs in shape."

WILL CARRY FIGHTS

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Broadcasting Company confirmed Wednesday it plans to continue carrying weekly boxing programs during the summer. Earlier reports said the network was dropping the sport in April.

Bruins Eye 'The Gump'

QUEBEC (CP) — Boston's slump - ridden Bruins are trying to land Gump Worsley in a goaltending swap for Eddie Johnston, it was learned Wednesday.

Lynn Patrick, vice - president and manager of the National Hockey League club, left Quebec prematurely early Wednesday to return to Boston before concluding any deal.

But he said in an interview before his departure that both he and coach Milt Schmidt are dissatisfied with Johnston's work and would like to get him off for Worsley.

The Gump, traded to Montreal by New York Rangers in the off-season, lost his job with the Canadiens to Charlie Hodge after suffering an injury.

Hodge performed so well in his absence Worsley was unable to crack his way back into the lineup and was sent to Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League, ostensibly to work himself into condition.

That was last November and he's still here.

Patrick saw Worsley at his best Tuesday night when the Aces dumped Baltimore Clippers 6-0 although outshot 35-31. The two clubs meet again here tonight and Patrick was to take in that game as well.

But he had to fly back to Boston because of business there.

Say Tokyo Games Best In History

TOKYO (AP) — The Tokyo Olympic organizing committee predicted Wednesday that the 1964 Olympic Games next October will be the biggest in history.

Basing their estimates on the first 22 replies received to inquiries to 100 nations on how many athletes they will send to the games, officials said their original estimate of 5,500 appeared much too conservative. The record total of 5,396 competitors was set at the 1960 Rome Olympics.

The officials said the replies indicated the number of entries from Asian countries will increase because of shorter travel and because the Olympics will be held in the Asian region for the first time. Entries from European countries probably will decrease slightly.

The United States said it plans to enter 473 athletes, the largest number mentioned, as compared with 347 sent to the Rome Olympics. Britain plans a team of 300 and Australia 294. India's 156 is the largest Asian entry listed so far.

Canada will be represented by about 75 athletes and 20 coaches, officials and administrative personnel, James Worrall, president of the Canadian Olympic Association said Wednesday.

VOTED TOPS

NEW YORK (AP) —Darrell Royal of U.S. college champion Texas was voted Coach of the Year by the American Football Coaches' Association Wednesday. Royal, head coach of Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian League in 1963, was previously named Coach of the Year by the Football Writers Association of America. He earned that title in 1961 as well.

Cinch For Olympics?

Trio Climbs Russ Wagon

NEW YORK (AP) — The Soviet hockey team will win the world championship at the Olympic Games in Innsbruck, Austria, next month, three international hockey experts predicted Wednesday.

The three were Muzz Patrick, general manager of New York Rangers of the National Hockey League; Sven (Tumba Johansson, veteran centre of the Swedish team, and Tom Lockhart, long-time president of the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States.

They were present at a luncheon honoring the Swedish squad which recently completed an exhibition tour of Canada.

"The Russians have a very strong team," said Patrick, who witnessed a Soviet-Swedish two-game series in the Scandinavian country last month. "They're on a par with the American (professional) League over here and I'd be surprised if they didn't win the Olympic championship."

"There are five good teams, but the Russians are the best," said Johansson, a 32-year-old who had a tryout with Boston Bruins of the NHL six years ago.

CANADIANS SURPRISED

"The Canadian team surprised me," Johansson added.

"They are tougher than I thought and they beat us in one game up there. The Americans will be rough, too, because they always seem to come up with a good Olympic team. Our team and the Czechs also have a chance."

The United States is the defending Olympic titleholder on the strength of unexpected victories over Russia and Czechoslovakia in the final games of the 1960 Olympics in Squaw Valley, Calif.

"Our team might be up there," Lockhart said. "But it should be a walkaway for the Russians. Their passing is beautiful and they are strong in every department. Our trouble seems to be in goal."

The 1960 American team had relatively few goal - tending problems because of the astonishing performance of Jack McCartan of St. Paul, who starred against the Russians and Czechs. McCartan now is with St. Louis of the Central Professional League, an affiliate of Chicago Black Hawks of the NHL.

Conacher Interested In Leafs

TORONTO (CP) — Charlie Conacher, former National Hockey League star, may join the prospective buying syndicate of the Toronto Maple Leaf Baseball Club, now owned by Jack Kent Cooke of Los Angeles, reported to have $250,000 invested in the club.

Conacher, on the club's board of directors, was on hand Tuesday when George (Sparky) Anderson was introduced at a press conference as the Leaf's new field manager.

Anderson's position is secure whether or not the club is sold, for a price reported at $125,000.

"I'm interested, definitely," Conacher said in an interview Tuesday following the conference.

Samm Starr, a Toronto manufacturer of children's clothing, and Toronto broker Robert L. Hunter are reported leading about 10 sportsmen who have invested $5,000 each in the Leaf deal.

ASK SHIFT

ARCADIA, CALIF. (AP)—Leaders of striking Santa Anita Park employees asked the state Wednesday to give Santa Anita's racing dates to another track. That way, a union spokesman said, the state wouldn't keep losing $200,000 a day in racing revenue. But a Santa Anita official said union proposals rejected by Santa Anita also would be turned down by other California tracks.

High School Board

May Bar Hockey Students

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Six St. Thomas Barons B hockey players will be barred from three city high schools if the club does not pay a $2,518 debt to Central Elgin District high school board by the end of the month.

The board Tuesday night recommended this action to the principals of St. Thomas Collegiate Institute, Central Elgin Collegiate Institute and Arthur Voaden Secondary School after reviewing the club's debt.

"Give them a time ultimatum," said city representative H. N. Goldsmith. "The crowds they've been getting they should be able to pay it."

Mrs. James Collins, board secretary-treasurer, said the club owed the board the money for tuition fees for the six players, all of whom come from other towns. The club plays in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior B League.

Donald Burgess, Yarmouth Township representative, said the schools received no grants for the players' tuition because the province does not permit the transfer of grants.

"This is a drastic step to take, but we have no alternative," he said. "The province could rectify this situation if they would allow the transfer of grants from one area to another."

Barons' President L. D. Marshall said an executive meeting will be called.

Association Commissioner

Asks Govt. Control Of Boxing

PATERSON, N.J. (AP)—The commissioner of the World Boxing Association called again Wednesday for federal control of boxing in the United States and a unified effort by all forces in the sport to help save it.

Otherwise said Abe J. Greene, boxing "will move out of the public eye and into oblivion."

Greene, an editor and boxing official here, said that a broadcasting chain's decision to end its weekly television fights after its present contract runs out "is the climactic insult to a sport which has been sorely abused throughout the years and has done nothing to deserve better."

"If those who have some say in the sport do not speedily forget their cupidity, their petty jealousies and hypocritical ambitions, the television insult will become the coup de grace which will tell the 10-count for a once great sport.

"A new unity, in which selfish goals must be forgotten in the broad interests of preserving the sport, is the only salvation," he added.

THEY FORGET

"Boxing men have become so accustomed to hearing their own whine as whipping boys that they forget they've been the bad boys. At the same time they have not only not lifted a finger to bring order to a madhouse but have frequently thrown roadblocks in the way of decent reform which could have saved the sport."

"The World Boxing Association, with its laudable aims, doesn't have the teeth to force the necessary unity," said Greene. "Nor is there any law or any unified influence which can prevent a small clique from making a personal bonanza out of the heavyweight championship, the richest and the biggest bauble in boxing.

"The high potentates who control Sonny Liston pick their own spots to operate and thumb their noses at any suggestion of regulation or of accomplishing some good for boxing."

He did not elaborate.

"The government must step in, not only to help preserve boxing as a body builder and a stimulant for national aggressiveness, but as a rich tax source."

Minor Hockey

Low-scoring and mostly close games featured action in the Tyke section of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association last night.

Red Wings and Flyers played to a 2-2 tie. Murray James scored two Flyer goals and Andy Ecketts bagged the other one. Larry Kirby, Steve Kirby and Doug Laffman had a goal each for the Wings.

Browns grabbed a 2-0 shutout over the Black Hawks. Dave Flesch and Mike Burley nudged a goal apiece to give Browns the nod.

Frontenacs and Bruins battled to a 2-2 dead-lock. Steve Creelman fired both Bruin markers. Kevin Jordan and John Masterson scored for the Frontenacs.

Barons copped a 4-0 shutout victory over the Leafs. Garry Moore had a pair of goals while Gary White and John Venuti split the other pair.

In Squirt play, the Peewee Leafs dropped a 4-1 decision to the Senior All-Stars. Greg Simms scored two goals and assisted on the other pair. Coster Rick Meagher fired the other two goals and also earned one assist while C. Jantsch also had an assist. D. Demers potted the only Peewee marker, aided by R. Barber.

NORWEGIANS TO PLAY

OSLO (AP) — A Norwegian curling club with four members and a manager will leave for Canada to take part in the Scotch Cup in Calgary. Other countries taking part, besides Canada, are the United States, Switzerland and Scotland. The Norwegian Curling Association has 350 members in 15 clubs in south Norway. Canada has more than 700,000 active members.

Olympics Whip West Germany

One Down - - Nine To Go

FUESSEN, West Germany (CP-AP) — Canada's Olympic hockey team Wednesday defeated the West German team of Fuessen 9-0 in the first game of the Canadians' exhibition hockey tour of Europe.

Single goals for Canada were netted by Roger Bourbonnais, Riviere Qui Barre, Alta., Marshall Johnston, Birch Hills, Sask., and Al McLean of New Westminster, B.C.

The Canadians were leading 1-0 at the end of the first period, tallied again in the second, and three times in the final period. Fuessen got two goals in the second and three in the last period.

Harness Horsemen

Accept New Purse Deal

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Harness Horsemen's Association accepted a purse schedule Wednesday totalling $1,742,000 in 1964 on 3 tracks operated by the Jockey Club Limited.

The Jockey Club also announced that closing dates for 44 stakes events scheduled at the tracks would be 10 days before each meeting.

John J. Mooney, managing director, said the new schedule would probably reduce purses at Greenwood "but we all feel it will be for the good of harness racing in Ontario."

He said the Jockey Club's theory was that harness horsemen should be able to race for the same purse money in the fall as in the spring.

In his reference to entering stake races 10 days before each meet, Mr. Mooney said past policy was to list the stake entries in January and February.

"The new method would eliminate unnecessary entries for events and give horses who have shown well on circuit a chance to enter," he said.

Association president Bob Park of Hanover said if any driver was dissatisfied with the new schedule he can go elsewhere, but at least he will know what we will be racing for during the entire season.

Foot Injury Bothering Bruce Kidd

Kidd, one of Canada's best long distance runners, has withdrawn from the Knights of Columbus games in Boston scheduled for Saturday, the official opening of the indoors season this year.

He re-injured his heel training for a San Francisco meet in which he won the three-mile event. A doctor advised the University of Toronto runner Tuesday to take a rest.

The young athlete has been bothered periodically with the injury for some time and it finally sidelined him last year. He tried a comeback during the summer in a tour of England but made a bad showing against inferior competition because the injury was still bothering him.

Finley Told To Refrain From Move

BOSTON (AP) — American League president Joe Cronin Wednesday directed the owner of the Kansas City Athletics to refrain from any further arrangements on moving the club to Louisville.

The Kansas City owner, Charles O. Finley, has signed a two-year contract to shift the Athletics' franchise to Louisville.

He said he was confident the owners of the other American League clubs would approve his move.

In a telegram to Finley, Cronin said:

"In noting published reports and in view of the purposes of the American League meetings scheduled to be held in New York Jan. 16, I consider your current activities unfair to the loyal baseball fans in Kansas City and feel they could result in disillusionment for the baseball public in Louisville, Ky.

"I therefore, as president of the American League, direct you to refrain from any further arrangements and avoid the determination of the American League concerning this matter."

Quinte Saints Nose Out Cobourg High

By ROBERT SNETSELLA

Quinte Collegiate Saints defeated Cobourg high school in an exhibition basketball game yesterday by a 42-32 score at Quinte.

Quinte outmuscled the taller Cobourg team for most of the game and hung onto a slim one point lead through the final moments to win. Cobourg was given a foul shot just as the game ended, but it was missed.

For Quinte Jack Hayward was high man with 13 points. Mike Chetland and Bill Leslie followed with 12 and 10 respectively.

The Quinte Juniors won by a 44-36 score. Tony Meddings topped all scorers with 21. Marvin Madrid, also of Quinte, hit for 14.

SENIORS:

Q.S.S. (43): Heppard 12, Chetland 11, Leslie 10, McBride 5, Morton 5, Champagne, Middleton, Berry, Hancock.

COBOURG (42): A. Davis 17, Sayers 8, Hill 6, R. Davis 5, Roversdale 4, Nowton 2, Bean, Mitchell.

Former Champion Calls Charges 'Ridiculous'

Williard Claims Dempsey Used 'Cement' Gloves

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — Former heavyweight boxing champion Jess Willard and the memoirs of the late Jack (Doc) Kearns each claimed Wednesday that Jack Dempsey used loaded gloves to win the title from Willard in 1919.

But Dempsey called the charges "ridiculous — a lot of hokum" and detailed why he believes his gloves could not have been loaded with plaster of paris.

The memoirs of Kearns, Dempsey's manager in 1919, were a copyrighted feature in Sports Illustrated magazine Wednesday which also carried a denial by Dempsey of the charges.

Willard, now 82, said from his southern California home at La Crescenta that by using the plaster-laden gloves, Dempsey "cut me all to pieces and hammered my eyes closed — that's why they gave the title to him."

The plaster was supposedly in the tape on Dempsey's hands.

ALWAYS TAPED OWN

But the 68 - year - old ex-champion Dempsey, in Modesto for a sportsmen's dinner, told Lu Gandolfo of the Modesto Bee that "I always taped my own hands.

"As I recall that night there was a man from Willard's corner and one from mine as I taped my hands.

"If any plaster of paris was used, I certainly was not aware of it. After all, how much of it could be sprinkled on top of the tape? In the first place, the plaster of paris would not have had time to set.

"How long would it take for it to dry out? Thirty minutes or so? It would have cracked after one punch. I may be stupid but I certainly wasn't that stupid that Kearns could have pulled that type of trick on me."

Dempsey explained that at the time protective covering consisted of a layer of cotton, then gauze, then tape.

HE'S NOT BITTER

Dempsey showed no bitterness at the accusations. "As far as I'm concerned, all is forgiven, and it will make Willard feel any better, you can tell him that he is still the champion," he said.

The story, said Dempsey, has been known to him for 30 years.

He maintained that Willard "was a giant of a man at the time but as I remember he had not fought much for two years . . . he was one of the easiest guys I ever met, but he took a terrific licking."

In an interview at his home, Willard said: "I've been trying for almost 45 years to get the story printed but nobody would believe me. They thought it was just a loser complaining. I'm glad Kearns has finally admitted it. My law is still carved in from the beating that fellow gave me with cement on his hands."

At the article, Kearns said Dempsey was "entirely innocent of what happened."

Bears Edge Hornets 2-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hershey Bears lead the Eastern Division of the American Hockey League even though they haven't scored as many goals as have been scored against them.

The Bears eked out a 3-1 victory Wednesday night over Pittsburgh Hornets, atop the Western Division with Cleveland, to give them 39 points—two more than runner-up Baltimore Clippers in the East.

But the triumph did nothing for Hershey's unimpressive statistics—113 goals scored and 126 goals scored against. By comparison with 347 sent to the fourth - place in the East, dropped an 8-6 decision to Buffalo Bisons but still looked good with a 188-139 goals record.

Problem of Presidential Successor Well Debated

By CYNTHIA LOWAY

NEW YORK (AP)—CBS Reports Wednesday night undertook, successfully and unsuccessfully to explain the knotty problem of presidential succession, without taking a position itself. "Profoundly confused" and "profoundly controversial" was the way commentator Eric Sevareid summed it up.

Former president Truman and Eisenhower in recently taped interviews disagreed on the proper successor in the possible event there is no vice-president.

But, along with former vice-president Richard M. Nixon, who faced the succession problem during three serious illnesses of Eisenhower, they agreed the matter should be resolved quickly by law. They also agreed that the constitutional definition of presidential "disability" should be clearly defined.

Truman favored the Speaker of the House of Representatives as second in the line of succession, partly because Speaker is an elected representative and partly because he probably would have a long history as a public servant. Eisenhower thought the secretary of state would be the more logical heir because the Speaker often has been a member of a rival political party.

By moving frop one guest to another, various viewpoints were thrown into the spotlight.

Canadian Pickets Car Firm Demanding Car to Stay

LONDON (CP)—A Canadian racing driver continued his "I want a test" picketing of the famed Lotus car firm today —but his resources appeared running out.

John Hughes, 23, of North Bay patrolled the factory at Cheshunt, 15 miles northeast of London, with a placard reading "I am just a damn good Canadian driver wanting a test &6 drive."

Hughes received a generally friendly reception from passersby — "nice chap" and "gritty fellow" were some of their comments — but a decidedly cool reception from the Lotus management.

"I thought he could have spared me a little more time after I came here by cargo boat by way of Belgium," said Hughes.

But Chapman said it would be uneconomic for Lotus to risk a test drive with everyone who asked.

"We'd lose a lot of cars that way," he declared.

Lotus drivers were selected on the basis of success in competition over a fairly long period and this was well known in car racing circles, the spokesman said.

Hughes indicated he would give up the picketing soon if he did not have success.

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

AT THE BELLE — Doris Day, James Garner, Arlene Francis in "The Thrill Of It All", in color 2.26 7.26; 9.36.

AT THE PARK — "For Love Or Money", Kirk Douglas, Mitzi Gaynor, Gig Young, 7.35-9.35.

AT THE PARK — Kirk Douglas is sure Gig Young is faking an injury so he will not have to leave the company of John Newmar, who is looking on, to keep a blind date with Mitzi Gaynor. This is a scene from Universal's rollicking comedy in color "For Love or Money" showing today, Friday and Saturday at the Park Theatre for its first Belleville showings. Complete shows tonight at 7.00 and 9.10 p.m. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00 p.m.

Successful Living

Fond of Writing Letters Wants to Help Lonely

DEAR DORIS — I love writing letters and the thought struck me that I could use a little spare time to correspond with a couple more people.

I would like to find a couple of people (women, please) who are shut-ins, or really lonesome, who would appreciate having someone to correspond with. I know there must be such people, (confined to crippled hospitals, for instance) (and others, who are just plain lonesome, those who have no families, etc.) where a letter could bring a little joy and happiness.

Where can you send me? — LETTER WRITER.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR LETTER WRITER — Friendship by mail is a happy thought. As a starter, try the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, National Office, 900 Yonge Street, Toronto 5, Canada.

Have you thought of offering your talent to your local general hospital? Many patients need letters written for them, and you could become a valuable volunteer.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — We are two girls (16) with similar problems. We have both gone out with two very nice boys who French kiss. We don't.

We enjoy their company and have a wonderful time with them but feel we are letting them down by not kissing the way they do. What can we do? — EMBARRASSED.

DEAR EMBARRASSED — You are not letting them down. French kissing is sexually disturbing as well as repulsive to many — hardly an acceptable way of expressing affection!

If your boy friends do not realize this, it is time that they did. An open discussion is the way to clear the air. They'll probably be more embarrassed than you are — which is all to the good!

• • •

(Putting it down on paper helps. Doris will reply privately to your letter if you enclose a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Despite Title Dr. Strangelove Wildest Satire in Years

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Can the H-bomb be funny?

A lot of people may not think so, and hence pass up Stanley Kubrick's new film, Dr. Strangelove, Or: How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb. It may be a mistake. Despite its title, the movie is one of the wildest satires in many times.

That doesn't mean Dr. Strangelove is an unqualified success. Some of its humor is misdirected and the actors sometimes get out of hand. But when its zaps is on-target, whammo!

The film begins eerily with the camera advancing over a carpet of clouds through which juts a mountain peak. Under this eternal shroud in the Arctic, the narrator ominously intones, the Russians are working on the ultimate weapon, the doomsday bomb. The musical background is a syrupy rendition of Try a Little Tenderness.

Then the word is heard that a psychotic air force general (Sterling Hayden) cracks up and sends a fleet of bombers with their deadly cargo toward the Soviet Union. He is the only person who knows the code that can call the bombers, and he isn't telling.

ROUSED FROM TRYST

The commanding air force general (George C. Scott) is roused from a motel tryst to attend a meeting with the president and other high officials. The interplay becomes more ludicrous and the tension mounts until—well, I won't tip the ending. But I will say that the background music is another syrupy number, We'll Meet Again.

The tone of the satire is demonstrated by the character names. Hayden is Gen. Jack D. Ripper, Scott (who purposely overacts but gets a little out of hand) is Gen. Buck Turgidson and Keenan Wynn plays Gen. Bat Guano.

Peter Sellers displays his gift of mimicry in three roles: leading roles: 1. Group Capt. Mandrake, a British officer who tries to dissuade Gen. Ripper; 2. President Muffley, the Adlai Stevenson-like chief executive; 3. Dr. Strangelove, a German scientist working for the Americans. The latter is a classic.

Dr. Strangelove will enrage many — especially the far right, and dismay some, perhaps our allies. But, others may find it the most effective piece of social comment on the screen in years.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For January 10

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Favorable action indicated on "pressing" matters. Don't be afraid of—changes. Display sparkling personality, magnetism. Fine for adding to your knowledge.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Pressure lifting. Encouraging news indicated - - covers finances as well as personal matters. Stress on home, domestic adjustment. Key is being diplomatic.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Time to do more listening than talking. Don't be insistent. Be reasonable. Show that you are a responsible individual. Give a little in order to gain much.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) Don't carry too great a load. Face yourself. Accept assignments - - but only those which can be carried out. Calm attitude will win respect from hisher-ons.

Leo (July 22 to August 21) You may be caught by surprise if you fail to do your "homework". Means be prepared for change of plans. Applies especially to dealings with members of opposite sex.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Excitement "close to home" indicated. Stress independence of thought, action. Highlight originality. Fine chance to put talents on display. Don't be modest.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Read humane message. Realize events are swinging in your favor. But you cannot make demands without accepting responsibility. Be sure you are prepared.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Expand activities. Meet people. Turn on wonderful charm. Maintain attitude of acceptance. You will gain financially by expressing intellectual curiosity.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Flurry of action can be utilized to personal advantage, but be wary of false flattery. Be a shrewd bargainer. Hold out for quality. Obtain money's worth.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Stick to facts. Avoid wandering "off course." Tendency is to rush, act on impulse. Overcome this; base actions on knowledge. Fine for travel, visits, creative activity.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Observe safety rules. Applies at home as well as travelling. Excellent for entertaining, being entertained. But obtain sufficient rest. Key is moderation.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Key is accomplishment. Make most of opportunities. Draw line of action and carry through to conclusion. Aid forthcoming from "energetic friend." Move with confidence.

If today is your birthday you are capable of surmounting obstacles, of presenting material in original manner, and of achieving great recognition.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for Scorpio, Sagittarius, Capricorn. Special word to Gemini: Be patient. What you need, you will receive.

DESERONTO

Legion Branch 280 Installs New Officers

DESERONTO — The Installation of the newly elected officers of Branch 280 (Deseronto) of the Royal Canadian Legion took place on the evening of January 3rd.

After the normal course of business, retiring president Earle Brant turned the chair over to Zone Commander Jack Lashott of Tweed and President Norman Hardwick of the Belleville Branch who conducted the installation.

Incoming president Dr. D. C. McVicker, with his executive P. Knight, D. Hubble, I. Thompson, Keith Brooks, and first and second vice-presidents A. E. Hill and O. Oliver assumed office directly on installation.

Heat Lamp Causes Fire At Deseronto

DESERONTO—Fire originating from a heat lamp did considerable damage to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Boomhour last Tuesday morning. The lamp was used to keep the engine of the car warm and Mr. Boomhour placed it in a wooden box forgetting to turn it off. Mrs. Boomhour some time later noticed the flames reflected in the window of the house next door and found the box burning. She called the fire department at 11.40 a.m. The firemen were responding to the wrong address and went up St. George St. across Dundas before the fire chief caught up to them and redirected them to Brant St. The fire travelled up the side of the building and under the roof. Three holes were made in the roof and two inches of one inch and two lines of one and a half were used to quell the blaze. Insurance adjusters placed the damage at over $1000. The firemen returned to the station about 1.00 p.m.

Rev. J. Soutter Will Attend Special Course

DESERONTO — Making use of the period of small activity that follows the heavy Christmas and New Year season the Rev. James M. G. Soutter of St. Mark's Church, Deseronto has left for Bloomfield Hills in Michigan to attend a special course at the Institute for Advanced Pastoral Studies.

This institute, under the direction of Reuel Howe internationally known author and director of pastoral work, has been in operation since 1957. It is an ecumenical and non-denomination school that offers a ten-day course for clergy interested in relating the role of theology to the active ministry.

In past years clergy from as far as Australia and South Africa have taken advantage of the advanced training and study offered.

Attendance is by invitation only. At the course now in session the Rev. Father Soutter is the only Canadian to have been invited.

Along with the regularly scheduled classes time has been reserved for sensitive discussion of problems facing the clergy in teir day to day presentation of the gospel.

With the advent of the power chain saw, the lumberman's axe has more or less fallen into disuse, but for more than two million Woodmen of the World the axe still is an important symbol.

In founding the fraternal organization back in 1901, Joseph C. Root of Omaha, Nebraska, envisioned people like trees, all different, but contributing o th design of brotherly kindness, human sympathy and doing good to the greatest number.

The organization spread into Canada and in 1921 the Belleville Camp of the Canadian Woodmen of the World was organized. Members include persons of both sexes over 18 years of age with good moral character.

Wednesday night at St. George's Mission Hall on Station Street, 1964 officers of the Belleville Camp were duly installed by District Deputy Morley Beckstead of Oshawa. The local camp has 55 members who meet monthly for the furtherance of Woodcraft principles.

PANAMA FIGHTS YANKS OVER FLAGS

Medicare Plan Will Be Delayed Says Robarts

Liquor Laws to Have A Complete Revision

TORONTO (CP) — A delay in implementing Ontario's medical insurance scheme was forecast Thursday by Premier Robarts.

Discussing a myriad of provincial matters at a press conference Premier Robarts also predicted a complete revision in the province's liquor laws would be forthcoming.

Although the government's original intent was to introduce the medical insurance plan in 1965, the premier said the time factor would probably be extended in view of the progress of a 15-man committeeholding public hearings.

The committee has met twice since December — in Windsor and Toronto — and received dozens of briefs and reports which criticize the draft plan and recommend, in many cases, broad changes.

The hearings will resume Jan. 21.

HAS LIQUOR PLANS

Plans for updating the Liquor Control Act and Liquor Licence Act are already in progress, the premier said. However, he did not elaborate on what revisions were planned.

He was unsure whether any legislation to amend the two acts would be enacted during the Legislature session starting Wednesday.

The premier did say that a start had been made to rewrite the two acts.

Of the province's plans for the 1967 centennial year, he said the centennial committee was already studying plans for a multi-million dollar "memorial to confederation."

He added the province would match the $2,500,000 which the federal government has said would be made available in each province for centennial cultural centres.

He also said the province would match any City of Toronto plans for constructing part of the St. Lawrence Centre of Arts, if plans for the project were forthcoming. The money, he said, would not come from federal grants.

"I think we should have a memorial of lasting benefit to the entire province," said the premier.

Turning to the Ontario Police Commission, Robarts said recent replacements for two commissioners who resigned recently will be announced shortly.

The commission chairman, Judge Bruce Macdonald, and commissioner Mel Gen. S. A. Sparling will be replaced on the three-man commission.

Living Costs Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Increased prices for a wide range of consumer goods and services boosted living costs in Canada to record levels in November, the bureau of statistics said Thursday.

The cost of living index—Canada's barometer on living costs —rose two-tenths of a point during the month to a record 144.2 at Dec. 1 from 134 a month earlier. The Dec. 1 index was 13 points above the index of 131.9 for Dec. 1, 1962.

During November increases were recorded in the cost of food, housing, clothing, health and personal care and recreation and reading. The cost of transportation was lower and tobacco and alcohol prices were unchanged.

The increase in living costs in November followed a rise in average industrial wages during October, latest figure available. The index of average industrial wages and salaries at Nov. 1 was 197.1, compared with 196 a month earlier and 189.9 at Nov. 1, 1963.

FOOD INDEX HIGHER

The food index at Dec. 1 rose six-tenths of a point to 131.4 from 130.8 a month earlier. Prices were higher for most dairy products, fats, bakery and cereal products, fresh and canned vegetables, poultry and a number of other items including jam, coffee, soft drinks and apples. They were considerably lower for eggs, oranges, bananas and sugar and more moderate declines occurred for most meats.

Increases in the shelter component boosted the housing index to 137.3 from 136.9. Within shelter the rent index was unchanged but the home-ownership index was higher. The household operation component of housing was also unchanged as scattered price increases for some items of furniture, floor coverings, textiles, utensils and equipment and household supplies were not sufficient to move the index.

An increase of two-tenths of a point was recorded by the clothing index which moved to 118.9 from 118.7. Cost of men's wear, footwear and piece goods increased while women's wear, children's wear and clothing services moved down.

The health and personal care index rose to 165.4 from 164.8 as a result of higher prices for men's haircuts. The recreation and reading index advanced to 151.4 from 151 due to higher prices for toys and a newspaper price increase in Montreal.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — The strong northerly winds following Thursday's storm have spread cold air into all of Ontario. Prospects for Saturday are for variable cloudiness across most of Ontario with some moderation in temperatures in southern regions.

PCs Meet To Draft Platform

By JAMES NELSON

MONTREAL (CP)—The Conservative party's policy - makers meet here today to draft what is likely to be merely a stop-gap platform for the next general election, if it comes suddenly.

Party informants do not look on the current two-day meeting of the 21-member resolutions committee as the one which will write a basic or long-term program for the party. Work has begun on it, but it is still very much in the thinking stage.

The committee, with more than 400 draft resolutions before it, is to prepare a report for next month's Progressive Conservative Assn. election annual general meeting in Ottawa. The resolutions were sent in by party organizations from coast to coast which will send delegates to Ottawa to debate the committee's report next Feb. 3-5.

In addition to the 21-member resolutions committee, there is a smaller, more select group of Conservative party thinkers currently at work assessing long-range Canadian problems and the application of Conservative principles to them. The national policy research group was initiated by Egan Chambers, party president, Montreal last November and has barely begun its work.

CONSIDER MANY IDEAS

The resolutions committee is consolidating the ideas sent in by party workers and writing a report for the annual meeting under 10 general headings. The first of these, in addition to expressing loyalty to the Crown and confidence in Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's continued leadership of the party, may attempt to state the basic principles of the party in brief.

The resolutions, will also deal with the broad topics of national unity, federal - provincial financial relations, national development, the national economy, industrial relations, social security, defence, international affairs and youth.

But the definitive statement of party philosophy may not emerge from the work of the party study group for another year—if then, assuming another general election does not interrupt the progress.

LBJ WILL SPEAK

NEW YORK (AP) — President Johnson will be the speaker at the annual dinner of The Associated Press April 20, Paul Miller, president of the AP, announced Thursday. Miller received confirmation of the president's appearance from the White House. The invitation to Johnson to address the annual luncheon gathering of the cooperative newsgathering association was extended some time ago.

Lost $1,600,000 in Crap Game, So Term Gambler 'Might Fit'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An assistant U.S attorney asked Nicholas Andrea (Nick the Greek) Dandolos Thursday if he would describe his profession that of a professional gambler.

Dandolos, who is said to have once lost $1,800,000 in a single crap game, replied, agreeably:

He was born in 1882, came to the United States, from Greece early in the 1900s, and was given $50,000 by his godfather. He invested it in leasing "to beat the horses," and in 1911 and 1912 ran it up "to about $2,000,000" in Canada. He has been gambling ever since.

"If I never gambled with anyone who couldn't afford the money," he said.

Dandolos did not say where in Canada he made his fortune.

The prosecution says Allen Smiley, Johnny Marshall and Charles Ali Shai conspired to extort $40,000 from Palm Springs, Calif., hotel man Ray Ryan.

Smiley's lawyer says Ryan obtained Dandolos' gambling loan in an electronically-rigged poker game and the defendants were trying to collect a portion of the debt for him.

Dandolos, tall but stoop shouldered, testified slowly and hesitantly, told the court:

"I never authorized anyone to collect any money, because I thought Ryan would pay me, of course."

Dandolos is said to have won and lost more than $500,000,000 in his career and to have been alternately rich and broke 14 times. Police reports say he has never been arrested.

Critics of 'Overkill' Hope LBJ Won Over

WASHINGTON (AP) — Critics of "overkill" believe they have gone a long way toward winning over the Johnson administration to their view that the United States owns too much nuclear weapon power and ought to slash it drastically.

They may be a little too optimistic, although President Johnson gave them encouragement Wednesday by decreeing a major reduction in the output of materials that go into making atomic and hydrogen weapons.

There is no sign that Johnson or Defence Secretary McNamara are ready to halt further production of nuclear weapons.

U.S. officials have made no move to dismantle any missile bases or retrench from goals which contemplate a force of more than 1,200 intercontinental ballistic missiles and 656 submarine-launched Polaris missiles within the next few years.

Administration authorities said after Johnson's address that nuclear weapon stocks have increased 50-per-cent during the last three years.

While declaring 'we must not stockpile arms beyond our needs," the president did not suggest the United States has yet reached that point.

The stockpile of enriched uranium, plutonium and other weapons ingredients has grown so large since the Second World War that it will provide a considerable backlog from which to draw for some time to come, even with a lower material production rate.

Furthermore, the retirement of obsolescent weapons such as those carried in B-47 jet bombers makes available nuclear materials that can be reworked into more modern warheads.

The president's move serves to focus attention on the "overkill" argument which has been going on for some time in the relative privacy of circles interested in arms policy and strategy.

Critics of heavy atomic armaments use the term "overkill" to dramatize their view that the United States has built enough such weapons to pulverize an enemy many times over.

This, they contend, does not ensure national safety but actually makes the danger of war greater.

Report Will Indict Heavy Cigarette Use as Dangerous

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most persons close to the cigarette-health evidence are convinced that the Saturday report by a special federal panel will indict heavy cigarette smoking as dangerous.

Even sources on the fringe of the tobacco industry have conceded that trying to collect a portion of the debt for him.

Dandolos, tall but stoop shouldered, testified slowly and hesitantly, told the court:

"I never authorized anyone to collect any money, because I thought Ryan would pay me, of course."

Dandolos is said to have won and lost more than $500,000,000 in his career and to have been alternately rich and broke 14 times. Police reports say he has never been arrested.

Johnson Confers With President Of Panama

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson conferred by telephone today with President Roberto Chiari of Panama in an effort to settle peaceably the crisis in Panama.

Johnson initiated the 15-minute telephone conference. Pierre Salinger, White House press Secretary, declined to give details of the conversation, except to say:

"The two presidents agreed there had to be a stop to the violence in the Canal Zone."

Gunfire Renewed After 10 Killed In Wild Rioting

Aggression Charges Being Laid by Panama

PANAMA CITY (AP) — New gun fighting broke out today between U.S. troops and Panamanians on the border of the U.S. Canal Zone, adding more casualties to a toll of 10 dead and more than 200 wounded.

The dead included seven Panamanians and three U.S. soldiers. At least 190 Panamanians and 34 U.S. soldiers were hurt in the first fighting Thursday night.

Panama suspended relations with the United States and accused it of aggression. The fighting broke out when Panamanian students tried to plant their country's flag in the U.S. - controlled Canal Zone. They acted after U.S. students raised the American flag in defiance of American officials.

In Washington, the Organization of American States called an emergency meeting of its council for 4 p.m. EST.

Panama also was carrying its case to the United Nations. Stopping off in Miami en route to New York, Aquilino Boyd, Panama's ambassador to the United Nations, accused the U.S. Army of opening fire on defenceless Panamanians.

GATHER AT PALACE

The gunfire began to crackle again at 9 a.m. on the Pacific side of the canal. There were casualties among Panamanians but no figure was available.

Panamanians armed with guns gathered at the Presidential Palace in Panama City, less than 50 yards from the border with the Canal Zone city of Balboa.

This was the place where most of the fatalities occurred Thursday night.

The violence grew out of a quarrel between U.S. residents of the Canal Zone and Panamanians over the display of U.S. and Panama flags. Under U.S.-Panama agreement details had been worked out for joint display of the banners at selected sites.

ENTER SCHOOL GROUNDS

Panamanian students crossed over to the Balboa High School Grounds Thursday afternoon and planted a Panama flag outside the building alongside the U.S. banner.

Then in the evening Panamanians crossed back into the Zone. Canal police were unable to control the crowd. Panamanians who set fire to buildings and

RCAF Base In France Will Close

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Former Conservative defence minister George Pearkes once—on Aug. 4, 1960, to be exact — described the Liberals' defence policy as "scrap, scrap, scrap."

Defence Minister Hellyer prefers the expression "judicious pruning," though he has cut an impressive list of scrappings in his attempt to shift defence spending policy from high maintenance costs to purchase of more weapons and equipment.

Authorities said Thursday major reductions are coming at the end and that in the next few months the policy will be "buy, buy, buy."

Still to be announced, informants said, are the closing of the RCAF base at Grostenquin, France, and the shutdown of several heavy radars in central Canada.

But when the 1964-65 fiscal year starts April 1, the defence department will unfurl with shopping list in hand.

It won't be a buying spree, of course. The defence department doesn't want to achieve quickly its goal of ensuring that 10 to 25 per cent of the $1,600,000,000 defence budget is spent on weapons and equipment.

But the defence white paper to be presented to parliament early in the next session, which opens Feb. 18, will lay out a 10-year policy which will narrow rules for the armed forces. Purchases of equipment to fit these roles will follow.

Officials indicated that the first purchases will be transport planes of various types to provide a modest airlift for the army in its new role as a small marine corps.

Quick action is also expected to be taken to acquire the American M-113 armored personnel carrier for the Canadian infantry brigade in Europe.

Another of the vital type of warship the navy should have are expected to be completed in May. It is possible that a new Canadian shipbuilding program will be announced within the next year. One type now considered is a helicopter carrier; another, a submarine.

There are no apparent purchases will be made for air defence in the next fiscal year.

Despite the cancellations and reductions, authorities said lasting savings won't be made in operations and maintenance costs until there is a substantial manpower cut in the armed forces. Their strength now is about 122,000.

No immediate reduction is planned because it is hoped to tie this in with partial integration of the services. But authorities indicated such a cut won't be too long postponed.

Toothy Profile Far From Vile Seen in Smile in Loren Style

BOSTON (AP) — Dr. Harvey Peck, 28 and single, is a girl watcher with a cause: He's looking for the perfect face.

Peck has been studying girls (just their faces; other facets of girl watching are for another year, he says. He still has a year to go on his project. Nonetheless, Peck has reached some tentative conclusions, to wit:

"American and international beauties have a tendency toward a toothy, full profile, rather than a straight profile."

They lack the orthognathic profile, he says. On the other hand, there's nothing whatever wrong with the vertical and forward growth of their mandibles.

Or, to put it another way, they don't have straight-line profiles, but their jaw bones are lovely, just lovely.

Now Peck wants it understood that a pretty pout is not a prerequisite for beauty. For example, there's Grace Kelly, Elizabeth Taylor and Debbie Reynolds. They have straight-line profiles.

So far, Peck has examined the faces of 35 women. None of the aforementioned lovelies were included, but he concentrates on recognized beauties such as models and beauty contest winners.

This is serious work for Peck, a resident orthodontist at the Boston University Medical Centre. He says results of his study, titled A Photographic and Cephalometric Study of Facial Symmetry and Balance, may provide orthodontists with a guide to the ideal face.

Peck says it's possible to change the lower profile of a child up to the age of 14 through orthodontic therapy. It is common practice, for example, to give a child with buck teeth a straight profile.

In addition, appliances may be used to alter vertical and horizontal growth direction of a child's jaw bones—the key to facial shape.

Launch Program to Record Data in Air Accidents

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCAF, the National Research Council and Leigh Instruments Limited, Carp, Ont., have launched a project to produce a method by which accident data recording equipment carried in aircraft may be recovered intact in event of a crash.

The research stems from aircraft accidents in which equipment used to automatically record a variety of functions on an aircraft is destroyed in the crash.

RCAF and NRC officials said such a system would be of major value in helping to determine causes of aircraft crashes such as the recent crash near Montreal of a Trans-Canada Air Lines DC-8F passenger plane with a loss of 118 lives. It also could lead to aircraft modifications to prevent future crashes.

Several years ago NRC developed a crash position indicator, a device which can be attached to the tail unit or fuselage of an aircraft. In the event of a crash, the indicator is automatically ejected into the air stream created by the plane.

The design of the indicator now produced by Leigh Instruments under an NRC licence—pictures it to curve sharply upward and away from the aircraft and permits it to fall to earth on land or on water without being damaged.

As soon as it is detached from the aircraft, a foam-protected transmitter starts sending a distress signal which can be picked up within a 40-mile radius and can be heard for about four days.

Under the research project an attempt will be made to place an accident data recorder inside the crash position indicator. At present accident data recording equipment is carried inside an aircraft.

If such a system can be developed, it will be possible to recover from the crash position indicator a magnetic tape recording showing how the aircraft was functioning prior to a crash.

More Charges Laid Against Accused Man

A Belleville man — arrested following the theft of a stolen car — was seeking bail today after police laid further charges of false pretences.

Police asked property bail of $10,000 or $5,000 against Howard Dean, 28, when he appeared before Magistrate T. J. Wills this morning.

Dean, arrested near Bloomfield Monday allegedly driving the car stolen in Belleville the day before, has now been charged on three counts of false pretances, and one of uttering.

He told the magistrate he might be able to raise half the bail asked by police.

He is to be between five and ten thousand dollars property. I'm confident," Magistrate Wills told him.

He was remanded a week.

Mayor Calls Caucus Meet On 2 Subjects

A caucus meeting of city council was called for next Monday afternoon by Mayor Jack Ellis for consideration of two matters deemed to require early attention.

One of the matters to be considered is the establishment of the newly-proposed industrial commission, which would see Belleville's industry divorced from the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

The proposed commission would consist of a membership of seven with representation from the municipal council and from the Chamber of Commerce. The function is to appoint a full time industrial commissioner.

The other matter to be up for discussion at Monday's caucus is the city's 1964 capital works program.

BCI Open House Date Is Changed

Originally scheduled for next Monday evening, open house at the Belleville College Institute for parents and students in Grades 9 and 11 has been postponed until the following evening, January 15th.

From 7:30 until 9:30 that evening the teachers will be in their classrooms to meet with the parents and discuss their work.

Principal Harry Hall said a similar opportunity will be given to parents of students in Grades 10 and 12 on Monday evening, January 20th.

Invitational letters outlining the procedure to be followed have been sent to all the parents. Interviews will be by appointment only and limited to five minutes with each teacher. If more time is required arrangements can be made for consultation at a later date can be made.

Parents of students who have failed in one or more of the fall-term examination are especially urged to take advantage of this opportunity to discuss causes and to seek solutions of academic problems.

Raided at Dawn

Bad Boy and Heather Hill Charged With Price Cutting

By I. C. BARRGINS

The most secret and carefully planned raid in the history of this area took place at dawn this morning when a combined force of seven police departments surrounded the hideout of the notorious Bad Boy on Dundas Street west in Belleville.

The Bad Boy, who has been consistently warned about selling at low prices, and just a year ago was convicted and fined $100 in Kingston, Ont., didn't give up without a struggle. The attacking force had to resort to tear gas to force him out of this hideout.

The raiders had a tremendous stroke of luck, for not only did they capture the Bad Boy, but they also took into custody the mysterious Heather Hill. This highly mysterious and beautiful creature is alleged to be the brain behind the entire organization.

Upon entering the Bad Boy's hideout, they found the goods bulging with brand new 1964 merchandise. They caught the Bad Boy and his partner Heather Hill, in the act of marking their low prices on the counter.

We have information from a reliable source that authorities have definite proof that Bad Boy does sell for less.

Apparently conviction for low prices in 1963 have not been severe enough for the Bad Boy. He stated "I'm not sure I ever tell me at what price I must sell my merchandise".

Our informant told us that upon searching the mysterious Heather Hill, they found in her possession one of the legendary Bad Boy "cut-the-price" lists that proves beyond any reasonable doubt the Bad Boy actually does sell for less.

'Legs Frozen, Amputated Below Knees

EDMONTON (CP)—A man whose legs were amputated below the knees after they were frozen said Thursday four days in a locked railway freight car and three days under a pile of pipe on Edmonton's roads before were included in the chain of events ending with the operation.

Frank Merdinger of Fort McMurray, Alta., was admitted to hospital Oct. 29 after being found wrapped in cardboard under the pipe.

In a first-person story in the Journal, he said he had hopped a freight at Fort McMurray, 280 miles north of Edmonton, headed for Calgary to look for work as a stock hand. He was locked in the car until it stopped 30 miles east of Winnipeg. Before he reached Calgary the door jammed and he tried to attract attention by banging on the door with a piece of wood.

"I didn't get scared," he said, "until the third day . . . I was getting very weak and hungry." From Manitoba, he said, he rode an open gravel car of a westbound freight for three days.

"My feet must have frozen," Mr. Merdinger said, "because when I got to Edmonton I had to crawl on my hands and knees over the track.

"After I while, I couldn't crawl any more, so I got a piece of cardboard and made myself into a parcel under the pile of pipe."

He said he spent three days like that before police hauled him out.

Railway companies were unable to name anybody who could cast light on the subject.

A detective who later questioned the tiny Japanese-Canadian said the story "could have been fabricated."

Mr. Morimoto is to try out artificial limbs.

Board Hears Objections to Zoning Change

Approximately 20 interested citizens turned up at city hall last evening to object to small or hear objections to an application for a change in the zoning of a section of Dundas Street to from residential to commercial.

The application was by Dr. J. N. Hart and Mrs. Hart, who would plan a medical centre for the area if the zoning change is granted.

Last night's hearing was called by Planning and Suburban Planning Board of whose attention Dr. Hart's application was referred by city council.

Five letters objecting to the zoning change were filed with the planning board prior to last night's meeting, while two objectors, Murray Tallman and C. Nicholson last night objected through counsel or in person.

The objections of the Dundas Street residents will be taken into consideration by the planning board, which will make their report to city council.

MISS DOROTHY BELL

The funeral of Miss Dorothy Bell was held Thursday afternoon from the John R. Bush Funeral Home where service in the chapel was conducted by Rev. N. W. Hutchinson.

Interment was in Elmwood Cemetery.

'Proper Funeral' Held for Board Of Education

DESERONTO — A special meeting of the Deseronto School Board was called last Thursday night to discuss the dissolution of the Deseronto Board of Education.

All seven members were present and when the meeting was called to order by chairman John R. Neal, M. L. Detlor, a member of the board, brought to the attention of the board that the reason for the meeting was not mentioned on the notice sent out prior to mail.

The secretary advised the chairman that all board members had been notified by telephone and told the reason for the meeting.

Mr. Detlor said that "the town council is trying to bury the school board, and the board feels that it should have a proper funeral."

The motion presented by Mr. Detlor was: "I move that the Deseronto Board of Education be dissolved pursuant to the provisions of section 61 of the Secondary Schools' Act, RSO 1960 chapter 362 and a copy of this resolution be submitted forthwith to the municipal council of the town of Deseronto the question 'are you in favor of the dissolution of the Board of Education?' and that the vote of the electors of the municipality."

The motion was seconded by E. Scott and a recorded vote it was passed unanimously.

In the discussion following the presentation of the motion, Mr. Detlor said this is what should have taken place last year." In reply to Mr. Detlor, Mr. Neal's answer said "there is no use looking at the past, let us look to the future."

IN MEMORIAM

BANNON (Warham) — In loving memory of our dear husband, William F. Bannon, who passed away one year ago, January 10, 1963.

Lonely is the world without you, Life to me is not the same, But to me who loved and lost you, Dear to you will never be. Surrounded by friends I am lone.

In the midst of my joys I am sad,
With thoughts on my face I've a heartache.
Longing for you,
Lovingly remembered by wife Evelyn.

BANNON (Warham) — In loving memory of William Farrell who passed away one year ago, January 10, 1963.

So many things have happened,
Since you were laid to rest,
So many things to share with you,
How you would enjoy it.
Every day in some small way,
Through absent, you are ever near,
Still loved as you were dear.
Daughter-in-law Mary and Dougdaughter-in-law Mary and Doug.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

One of the major complaints that has been made against many new apartment houses is the problem of noise and even ordinary conversation being transmitted through partitions that lack adequate soundproofing qualities.

A recent survey of new apartment renters disclosed that, indeed, this was the number one complaint. Now that competition for renters is increasing, builders have taken steps to correct this condition. It is still present in many buildings, however, and Mr. L. M. gives us an idea of what can happen when thin walls transform community living into communal living.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We just moved into a new apartment that has walls so thin that we can hear everything that goes on in the adjacent apartment. We would like to move but are stuck with a two-year lease. Viewed objectively, there are some advantages to thin walls. We don't need an alarm clock (unfortunately the alarm goes get up an hour earlier than I prefer).

We don't need a radio either as we can hear theirs quite clearly. We even get other free entertainment — some of their family quarrels are classics. I don't know the wife's background, but from the language I judge she must have been a female longshoreman.

Nonetheless, I am willing — even eager — to pay to see this sort of thing at the theatre, pull up an hour later and to listen to something other than the top 100 tunes. Isn't there something I can do to muffle the sound? — Mr. A. L. S.

Answer: Sound proofing a building, once it has been erected, can be a very expensive proposition. Since your situation will apparently be temporary, such expense would not be justified. As a simple solution, I recommend that you hang heavy drapes from ceiling to floor on the common walls between you and your neighbor.

This should allow relatively quiet enjoyment of your apartment. Drapes have an additional advantage. In mountains of boredom you can easily move them aside and avail yourself of the continuous entertainment next door.

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I don't have much money but I have lots of good ideas and have figured out a way to build a new house without any cash.

I am handy with tools and have good credit. I plan to build the house myself and get the materials by ordering them in small lots on my credit (a good one from a great many suppliers all at the same time. By the time I have used up all the credit there are to avoid payment, I expect the house to be finished, and I can sell it and move on — and pay off the suppliers.

I have gotten many ideas from reading your column. As a fellow real estate expert, I want to invite you personally, to the housewarming party I plan to give when the house is finished. — Mr. N. M. S.

Answer: I appreciate your invitation, but I'm afraid the sheriff will move in on you long before you move into your house. I must admit you have original ideas (and I hope you didn't get this one from reading my column) but with your energy and resourcefulness there is a simpler and more acceptable way of getting your house without much cash, and without sacrificing the good credit you have established.

Many lenders have had good experience in granting both construction and permanent mortgages to persons who build their own houses, and they will probably be sympathetic to your effort to do so. Your determination. If you do all the work yourself, the "Sweat Equity" build up by your labor may well be large enough so that your mortgage advance may be sufficient to pay for all the materials.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I never miss your column and I'm even making a scrapbook for the future. I have a real problem, however, that you haven't covered.

I listed my house with a real estate broker and he has done nothing to sell it. He has not advertised it or even brought a prospect to see it. I want to give it to another broker to sell, but I was told that unless I give him the original agent to sign off, I may find myself stuck with paying a commission to both brokers. I don't understand this as I only signed a three month listing agreement and it has been more than five months since then. — Mr. L. K.

Answer: You have received good advice. The listing agreement you signed, although basically for a three month period, apparently provides for automatic renewal unless notice is given to cancel.

Give written notice of your intention to cancel to the broker who now has the listing. At the end of the period required for cancellation, you can turn the listing over to a new broker.

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Most of the questions you get are much more complicated than mine, but I need and would greatly appreciate an answer. My wife and I are going South and our house will be empty.

My wife thinks we should leave the heat on while we are gone, but half of my pleasure on this vacation will be not having to pay heating bills for the first winter in my life. I plan on draining the house completely, and just shutting it up. I am confident that this is all that is necessary.

Harry Rollins New Chairman Of PUC, Two New Members

Senior member of the Public Utilities Commission Harry W. Rollins, was named chairman of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission at its inaugural meeting held Thursday evening.

The new chairman succeeds John A. Weese as head of the commission. Mr. Weese retired in December after more than 20 years in various phases of municipal life.

Last night's inaugural meeting of the utilities commission saw two members take their seats. Mayor Jack Ellis took his seat on the commission for the first time, while the other new member is former mayor Gerald Hyde who was elected to the commission in December, filling the vacancy caused by the retirement of Mr. Weese.

Mr. Rollins thanked his fellow commissioners for the honor and confidence shown him in his election as chairman and expressed the hope that good fellowship would carry on throughout the year.

"We may not always agree, but regardless of our positions we are legislating for the same people for the city of Belleville," he said.

There are two elected members on the three man utilities commission — one elected each year for a two year term together with the mayor who is ex-officio member.

Last December Belleville voters turned down a move to increase membership of commission to five men including the mayor.

Oshawa Man Elects Trial Before Jury

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Preliminary hearing on charge of bank robbery against John William MacDonald, 32, of Oshawa and Truro, N.S., will open here Jan. 17.

He is accused of robbing a Dartmouth branch of the Royal Bank of Canada last April 4. A lone man walked into the bank and demanded money from a teller. He escaped with about $3,200.

MacDonald was arrested by Antigonish, N.S., police and RCMP in an Antigonish hotel room Tuesday morning and was charged with carrying a concealed weapon. RCMP said they found a .45-calibre revolver in his overcoat pocket.

Dartmouth detectives questioned him in Antigonish Tuesday and he was brought here the following day and charged before Justice of the Peace C. A. Mohr.

MacDonald told the court he was a clerk-bookkeeper. He is a widower.

Gifts Presented Mental Patients

The appreciation of the Belleville branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association for the success of its recent campaign was expressed today by Mrs. Lorne Hurst, chairman of the Association's Christmas Gift Program.

The campaign was for Christmas gifts for the patients at the Ontario Hospital, Cobourg. Over 600 gifts were delivered.

The Association extended its thanks to the many societies and individuals for their gifts and generous donations of money to the merchants for their co-operation in allowing White Cross boxes to be placed in their stores and also to the persons who collected the gifts from the boxes and the ladies helping in the sorting and wrapping of the gifts.

Roy Thomson Subject of Talk At Luncheon

TRENTON — A man who knew Roy Thomson "away back when", Mr. Keith Packer, general manager of the Trenton Ian, spoke to the Trenton Lion's Club last night and his subject was "Roy Thomson, the man".

Mr. Packer, who knew "Mr." Thomson before 1931, (I'll just call him mister. He hasn't decided on a title yet", said Mr. Packer), said that he (Thomson) got some kicks out of trying to raise a hundred dollars in the old days than he does now when bank managers mail requests for a million through the banks with the greatest of ease.

"Thomson was, and still is, a salesman of the highest form" said Mr. Packer, "His career can be summed up by "work, work, and more work".

Mr. Packer said he first knew Roy Thomson in North Bay when Thomson was trying to unload radio sets. Hardly anyone listened to the radio in those days, Mr. Thomson started up a radio station, CFCH to time the unloading of his radio stock easier. Thomson then moved to Timmins and borrowed $5,000 from the publisher of the Timmins newspaper to buy the paper from him. ("What a salesman").

Thomson ran for, and gained, a seat on the North Bay council. This was in the depression. He ran for mayor, meaning to put the city on its feet financially, but the electors turned him down on the grounds that he had no idea of financing. ("What a joke").

After acquiring newspapers and radio stations in Canada, Thomson moved across the Atlantic, where he was allowed by the Secretary of State for Canada owning Scottish family because he spelled his name without a "p" thus qualifying for a company rule that only a Scot could own the newspaper.

Mr. Packer said that he and his wife visited Thomson in England in 1962 and found him unchanged. His only regret was that the "real fun" had gone out of business since he acquired wealth and fame.

In reference to the Trenton paper, Mr. Packer said that the employees ran the paper and received no directives from head office as to how to run it.

"We're human . . . we make mistakes . . . if you don't like something in the local paper, come down and talk it over. We'll appreciate that".

Judge Reserves Judgment on Township Claim

TRENTON — A judge from the Ontario Municipal Board Wednesday reserved judgment on a claim by Murray Township that Trenton should pay approximately $2500 towards the township's "operating expenses," and as a compensation for a loss of assessment this year by the annexation of 353 acres of township land by the town. The township council claims that the town should pay $5,000 towards a loss of provincial road grants in the annexed area, was dropped at the OMB hearing. Trenton has agreed to pay the township $7,000 towards school debenture costs over a 16 year period.

Appointed as Air Cadet Liaison Officer for the high school corps was Mr. Sutherd; board representative on the Recreation Committee, Mr. Whitley; board representative on the Trenton Memorial Library Board, George Wilkinson; Attendance Officer, S. H. Sear.

Mr. Wilkinson, as the secarte school board appointee to the Trenton school board, may deal with matters pertaining to high school only.

Prayer Week Is Success

TRENTON — This week, the "Week of Prayer," has been the most successful prayer week ever held in Trenton, according to a ministerial association spokesman, Rev. Ronald Reid of Bethel Temple.

Mr. Reid said on Thursday that capacity crowds had attended almost all the meetings which have been held in different churches every evening. Monday night, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was "packed," said Mr. Reid, and there was standing room only at Bethel Temple Wednesday night.

Rev. William B. Thorulce of Napanee, the guest speaker for the series, was reported by Mr. Reid to have been "an outstanding speaker," brilliant, sincere and humble." The worshippers each night were advised to give value to the spiritual life and to live a life centred around Christ.

"Churches today," said Mr. Thornloe, "are too concerned with temporal and material-ism. We should loose ourselves from material pursuits and get back to God".

At Bethel Temple on Wednesday the Revelation Male Quartet rendered three sang a number of enjoyable gospel songs.

Rev. Thornloe addressed L. 200 students in the high school auditorium Wednesday morning.

Nine Appear In Court for Theft of Wire

TRENTON — Nine area men, who have been charged with the theft of a quantity of Bell Telephone wire, appeared in Brighton Court on Thursday.

Bell Telephone officials estimated the quantity of wire taken at 20 tons valued at upwards of $10,000, from obsolete lines in the outlying area over a period of time.

Charged with the theft is Francis Mills of Trenton, who entered a plea of guilty. Mills was remanded out of custody until January 22rd — Leonard Richardson of Trenton, entered a plea of guilty. He was remanded in custody for court appearance in Cobourg on January 17th — Edward Barry, Robert Anderson and Carl Buck, all of Trenton, also charged with the theft did not enter a plea but will appear in court on January 22rd. Raymond O'Sullivan of Frankford, pleaded guilty and will appear on a later date for sentencing. Percy Spratt, also from Frankford did not enter a plea but was remanded on a bail to appear on January 22rd. Orville Burr and George Burak were remanded in custody until January 17th.

The case is being heard by Magistrate R. B. Baxter of Cobourg.

A Message to Remember

President Lyndon B. Johnson's first "state-of-the-Union" message to Congress was a revelation—of the state of mind of President Johnson.

Revelation is not too strong a word. It is amazing to hear a President of the United States declare "we must not stockpile arms beyond our needs or seek an excess of military power that could be provocative as well as wasteful."

Johnson sounds as if he had been listening not to the Pentagon theme song but to the heresies of the late John Strachey, the former British Labor cabinet minister, one of whose last contributions to world politics was this writing of a book "On the Prevention of War." Strachey's main theme was that world peace today depended on the preservation of a balance of nuclear power, and that it was just as dangerous for "our side" to have reasonable prospects of becoming overwhelmingly strong as it was for it to become woefully weak.

How else explain Johnson's recognition that "an excess of military power" would be provocative? Surely this can only mean that Johnson believes achievement of such an "excess" might push Soviet Russia into launching a preventive war.

Johnson made it plain that he considers himself "a Kennedy man," pledged to bring to fruition the plans of his predecessor. But there was much more than a mere echo of Kennedy in his address. Johnson emerges as a strong president in his own right. Despite the fact that he made his reputation as a politician, a man skilled in the art of the possible, the Texan's views are not only as broad as his native state but his speech is as bold as the traditional Texan boasts.

He takes an aging Khrushchev thrust, "we shall bury you," and twists it into a memorable acceptance of this challenge—"we intend to bury no one—and we do not intend to be buried."

He has no patience with those who regard the exploitation of today's scientific developments as too expensive—he is going to put a man on the moon by 1970, "in co-operation with other powers if possible, alone if necessary."

He has no time for those who worry about the growth of big government while the legitimate responsibilities of any government are left undischarged—so he calls for "all-out-war on human poverty and unemployment in these United States."

He is not afraid to break new ground. Who but a pioneer in political thought would propose legislation increasing wage rates for overtime work to a point where "consistently excessive" use of overtime would prove uneconomic and firms would be forced to hire more workers?

And who would have imagined that we would hear a Southern Democrat take a stand on civil rights in words like these: "As far as the writ of federal law will run, we must abolish not some but all racial discrimination."

In a single speech, a brief speech at that, President Johnson has burned so many political bridges that the light of their fires is certain to illumine the whole presidential campaign in this election year.

If Johnson keeps this up, he will make Truman's memorable achievement in filling the boots of another great president, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, look like a strictly second-class performance.

History may yet record that John Fitzgerald Kennedy discovered the New Frontier, Lyndon B. Johnson made it his private backyard.

Wrong, But Understandable

U.S. officials want to establish a chain of American-sponsored reading rooms in the Soviet Union and to increase sales of the U.S. State Department magazine "America" from 60,000 to at least 100,000.

The business object.

They are, of course, wrong to do so. That is the only attitude which any person who truly understands the principles of our democratic system can take.

But at the same time we ought to be able to understand, while still disapproving, the Russian attitude.

Because all reading material is state-produced. It is simple for the Russian government to prevent its citizens from reading anything which might suggest that their system is not the best.

Does anybody really suppose that, if a similar situation existed in the U.S., or indeed in Canada, there would not be a number of people who would advocate keeping it that way?

When Cultures Meet

BBC London Letter

Two or three hundred thousand years ago men living thousands of miles apart were already thinking alike and learning skills from one another, said Sir Mortimer Wheeler, the distinguished British archaeologist, in a talk broadcast in the BBC Overseas Service series "When Cultures Meet" in which various speakers have been examining the interaction between the world's cultures through the ages.

Whether this "sharing of ideas" happened by coincidence or by transmission we could not guess, Sir Mortimer Wheeler said, but that it did happen was beyond doubt. For example, 40 miles southwest of Nairobi in Kenya, any visitor could see an amazing hoard of prehistoric stone "hand-axes" — the all-purpose tool of the people who lived there some two to three hundred thousand years ago. But thousands of Stone AGE tools of an identical type had been discovered in north India and along the banks of northern rivers of France, five thousand miles from Kenya—something of a miracle when we remember how microscopically small the total human population of the world was then, and how primitive were means of intercommunication."

Even more astonishing, said Sir Mortimer, was the spread of man's greatest discoveries — fire-making, and much later food production. Both reached writing. At about the same time that primitive men were making those hand-axes in Europe, others living near Peking were already using hearths, as bones found bear witness to and proved.

Before the domestication of animals and the cultivation of cereals—both achieved in 7th with a constant and balanced supply of food, said Sir Mortimer, he had to rely on hunting and gathering, and to live in small, restless, and wholly self-sufficient social units, to avoid exhausting food supplies. The shaping and interchange of ideas was therefore incredibly slow and uncertain.

As soon as man found himself able to produce and control his food supplies, everything changed. The social unit could be enlarged, and specialization, "Civilization — the art of living in crowded cities — became inevitable." Writing, the extension of man's achievements, was astonishingly new. As far as is known at present, it was first used for domestication and cultivation occurred no more than twelve thousand years ago, whereas Mankind in some form or other had existed for a million years or more.

The earliest instances of food production yet discovered were, at Jericho in Palestine, and, in Turkey, in northern Iraq, and possibly in northern Iran, Sir Mortimer said. At first, known town, some ten thousand years old, had been discovered at Jericho by the late Garstang and other cities, "in the full sense of that imposing term," lay in the valleys of the Euphrates and of the Tigris — cities such as that of the Chaldees.

From Western Asia, food production and its social sequel — civilization — had spread to Egypt and Europe by degrees and the eastern part of the Mediterranean. How much further it had spread, he said, we need in early times remained to be seen. Although it had been argued that Egyptian civilization, the Old World at any rate, there had been a gradual diffusion of a single process in which Western Asiatic sources, and these had found local expression according to the genius and animals of the various regions. (More impressive was the claim that food production and civilization had been contrived quite independently in Central and South America).

With regard to the major invention of writing, said Sir Mortimer, there could be no doubt that the idea had spread from a common source, invented little more than five thousand years ago in the early cities of the Euphrates-Tigris valleys, it had arisen from the elementary need to keep accounts and other lists for administrative purposes. In this way literature began, and the idea had spread from region to region, the script taking different forms adapted to local languages and usage. "The spread of ideas does not necessarily imply large movements of population. It doesn't take a thousand men to carry an idea; but a thousand brains can vary quickly record and adapt a borrowed idea; and the sharing of ideas is an age-long habit of man."

UN Troubles Can Be Solved

Financial Post

The United Nations seems to be in several different kinds of trouble as 1963 ends; but none of its ailments need be fatal. Take three current examples.

UN is now $134 million in the red. This is awkward but looks less alarming when it is remembered that $134 million is about one eighth of Ontario's budget. The human race, which UN works for, is still solvent, in spite of appearances to the contrary. The money will be found.

Many are worried about the new look of UN membership. Of 113 seats the Afro-Asians now hold 54 — a majority. But considering that the Afro-Asians are well over 60 percent of the earth's population, this arrangement may not look at all cockeyed from their point of view.

It is cockeyed but the Asians China's 700 million, close to a quarter of humanity, have no vote at all. But some of the new African countries that do have votes have no more than a few hundred Canadian provinces or English counties.

This does not make much sense. The UN Assembly is indeed not "representative." But anyone looking about him should take comfort that the Assembly's decisions are not laws; they are only hortatory opinions.

Lately there has been much talk about the Security Council, likely to be enlarged to give the Afro-Asians a showing. In the re-shuffle "the rich get wealth" may lose the seat allotted to it in the past by geographic-political logic. That is unfair; but is it really?

Nigeria, a Commonwealth member, now rates as African. India, another, rates as Asian. So "the Commonwealth" in UN voting purposes, now means just Canada, Australia and New Zealand, those three countries so important, relatively, that one or other of them must always be a member of the Security Council cabinet? It is at least a moot point.

Disputes in UN are a sign of life. They are also a sign that UN is still a long way from being a smooth world government". But it is humanity's best effort in that line up to now and there is no substitute in sight.

CNR Accepts Wrist Watch

Montreal Star

As steam passenger runs now will pass the two old sights of the conductor standing at train-side gravely regarding his gold-hunter-lined hands and the blunt black figures of a railroad pocket watch.

Effective January 1st, Canadian National will accept two brands of Swiss watches as timepieces for its operating staff. Canadian Pacific has not yet discarded the old turnip as the only arbiter of railway time, but obviously a trend has started, as it usually does, to succeed and as it is doing now with the disappearance of the alleged fortunes from the freight devil's cab.

A lot of people can whip up a delicious potato, a pot roast and a cobwebbed as a bottle of good port, when technological change overcomes the traditions of railroading.

Perhaps it is a little like mentioning tops in the house of a hanged man, but men have been navigating the sky for a generation now with wrist watches — and navigation requires even more accurate time than starting the Super Continental on its way.

Question of indigent accounts at the Belleville General Hospital came up for discussion at county council on Thursday afternoon following the matter being addressed by the hospital administrator. Following his talk Mr. Barclay presented to the council a number of old disputed accounts, the county there being slightly over $3,000.

Mr. Barclay assured councillors that every effort was being made to collect outstanding hospital accounts before their being turned over to the county for payment, and indicated that during the current year 257 suits were entered against persons owing accounts. He was convinced that suing these people is the only way to get them to pay, and Mr. Sills suggested that hospital bills must be paid. I intend to keep on suing," stated Mr. Barclay. He expressed his appreciation to the various council members for their co-operation and assistance in getting hospital accounts paid.

Realizing the shortage of practical nurses throughout the province, the Community Nursing Registries will continue its policy of preparing suitable persons for the work and will offer another training course which will be held under the direction of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario.

It is pointed out that the course is not primarily a training measure but is designed to meet the need for simple nursing care in the community. The program will correlate theory, practical work and nutrition to round out a well organized demonstration for the preparation of a group of young women as to good care in the home for which there is a great need.

Do Not Try To Get Even

Saint John Telegraph-Journal

Did you ever give in to the urge to put some smart-aleck driver in his place?

He's rushing along a few feet from your back bumper, so you snap your brakes on for an instant and watch the shock on his face in your rearview mirror as he realizes the distance between you is closing so suddenly and unexpectedly.

He is approaching far out your left window and in the next lane, so you give him a long, angry blast of the horn and crowd him back into place.

He is behind and you hear his tires squeal saucily as he spins past to pass in a manner you, so you sig out just a little as he roars by to throw a scare into him.

He is lane-hopping back and forth trying to get ahead of the pack when you and all in the same frustrating crawl, so you angrily crowd up to the car in front to vet him off.

Continue the list as far as you like you never know of all similar situations. He's the amateur slow - off driver and you, well, you're the careful, upright citizen, understandably irritated and determined to teach him a lesson.

Resist the impulse. Let him go. Keep calm and proceed with normal care. You'll probably get there at the same time as the amateur, and with a lot less wear and tear on your nerves — and a lot less chance of an accident.

Those times you wish you had a big police siren — or even a small cannon mounted on the bow — are the times when it is important so relax.

The best safety device to have in a car is a cool head.

Raw Meat Said Not to Be The Cause of "Pinworms"

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Should children be fed extremely rare meats? I am old-fashioned I know, but as youngsters we were served only meat that was well-done. In fact, we were told we would get pinworms from eating raw meat. — Mrs. D. W. S.

Raw meat is not a source of pinworms, but it can result in other types of worms.

Pork can cause trichinosis, or infestation with a worm which lays eggs, then when these hatch, the larvae burrow into muscle tissues in many parts of the body.

Lamb and beef are different. They do not come from meat-eating animals, so the threat of trichinosis is not present.

But they can be the source of tapeworms at times.

They should be reasonably well-cooked to eliminate this risk.

By that I mean they should be cooked at least to what we call medium well done for people who like meat that way.

"Very rare" means uncooked at the centre. This can be potentially unsafe. Veal, fish, fowl, lamb will have tapeworm, of course, in which the rare meat eaters are not likely to be, but are concerned with is avoiding the occasional risk.

Dear Dr. Molner: What about the removal of an ovary? I have only one left. Is it necessary for me to have it removed? — Mrs. H. G.

No, it doesn't. You may have only girls — or you may have nine boys from now on. It isn't the ovaries, but the chromosomes in one of the cells, which control the sex.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Are spicy foods bad for the complexion? What is good for skin blemishes? Do you recommend soap and hot water? — M.T.

I don't think that spicy foods cause skin blemishes. But I do think that an ingrained taste for spicy foods leads to eating more ordinary diet, may have ill effects.

Soap and warm (not hot) water are helpful, if used regularly and preferably with a soft cloth. Avoid hard soaps. Perhaps we need something original and different. After all, $4,000 is a good deal of money. Why not? I thought just vaguely crossed her mind that if she and Ned had a good idea, today's paper is full of them. Write to me in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 136, Dundas, Ill.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a cyst on the edge of my lower eyelid.

An ophthalmologist says it must be removed surgically to prevent recurrence. Do you think this is necessary? I am so afraid of having my eye cut. — H. D.

Yes, that's the right way. A cyst can be relieved temporarily by puncturing or cutting off the top off, but it seals itself and grows again. The only way to get rid of a cyst permanently is to remove it.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: My bladder doesn't empty completely. Even though I urinate often, there is content voided is very small. Is this caused by the prostate gland? Someone told me an operation might be necessary. I am 64.

This is a common result of an enlarged prostate. The cause is not known but it happens to a great number of men. Surgery likewise is common, and your age certainly is not a barrier to it.

Strictly Personal When Charity Sounds Sour Note

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The luncheon meeting of the Lady Bountiful Society was called to order at 1 p.m., to discuss ways and means of meeting the $4,000 deficit incurred in running the society's private charity — a convalescent home for tired mothers.

The ladies at the luncheon were gathered to decide whether the deficit should be raised by a ball, a bazaar, a raffle, a theatre party, or some other traditional way of extracting funds from a languid public.

Since there were exactly 40 persons at the luncheon, it might seem that the simples method would be to assess each woman $100, and dispense with the foldcrol. But, of course, that was unthinkable.

"I suggest a costume ball," said Mrs. J. Spitz Thyroid, who was wearing a new $80 hat for the occasion, "that will bring in at least $2,500 that way, and sell chances for door prizes on the side."

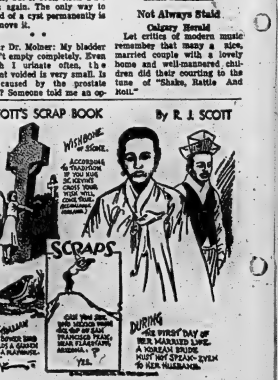
"Do you think we could?" questioned Mrs. Norman Nadir, who had husband had just that week purchased a $90,000 motorboat. "Isn't costume ball boring. "But we can't have it in January, you know — everyone is away then."

"What about a bazaar?" asked Mrs. Pierre Arrivista. She had just returned from New York, where she and her husband had successfully bid on two Mondrians and a Klee for $96,000. "I think we could have a five-dollar admission fee, and get a thousand people there."

"I think the party is the way to do it," put in Mrs. Morgan Thaw, "it's the fun way to raise money, together with a little supper party afterwards." In a delicious anticipation, she was unconsciously licking the last of a $30,000 emerald pendant Mr. Thaw had brought her last week for their anniversary.

"Oh, I don't know," whispered in Mrs. Ned Wurtzel, "perhaps we need something original and different. After all, $4,000 is a good deal of money. Why not? I thought just vaguely crossed her mind that if she and Ned had a good idea, today's paper is full of them. Write to me in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 136, Dundas, Ill.

"Well, ladies," said Madame President. "I'm sure we can't decide it today, just like that! I move until next month, when a full meeting can be called to talk about it, and then we'll form a committee."



They stooped out gaily, impressions of sweet benevolence on their faces, representing aggregate wealth of seven millions dollars, deeply concerned with the task of raising $4,000 for the underprivileged.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Prices edged ahead but the stock market appeared to be taking a week-end breathing space with the volume at 11 a.m. just tipping the 1,000,000 mark.

On the industrial board, Harding Carpets was the main loser, off 4¼ to 23 following an announcement that the company intends to subdivide and change each of the issued and unissued common shares into one common share and two non-voting Class A shares of $1 par value each.

Canada Permanent Mortgage rose ½, Huron and Erie ⅝ and Simpsons ¼.

International Nickel was ahead ¾ in senior base metals. Falconbridge traded a special size transaction of 12,700 shares at $61.75 a share. McIntyre traded in special size blocs of 4,100 shares at $37.50 a share.

Chimo rose nine cents to $1.19 and Salem 4½ cents to 47 cents among quieter speculative mines.

On index, the Exchange index gained .16 to 131.72, industrials .18 to 140.94, base metals .09 to 80.19, golds were unchanged at 130.97 and western oils dipped .17 to 83.82.

The index rose .28 on the day to 131.56. The previous high was 131.30, set in December, 1961, although there is some debate as to the validity of the actual figure as the indexes for that year have been corrupted only on a monthly basis.

However, observers agree that if this is not an actual record it is extremely close to it.

On the industrial board, International Minerals and Chemical rose 1¼ to 57, Chrysler 2¼ to 46¾ and Canada Steamship Lines, Great Lakes Paper and Frost A one point each.

Chimo was the heavy trader among speculatives, up 25 cents to $1.10 on 300,579 shares. Consolidated Mogul advanced 15 cents to 85.35.

On index, industrials rose .41 to 140.76, base metals .39 to 80.10, western oils .05 to 83.99 and golds slipped .42 to 130.97. Volume for the day was 4,955,000 shares compared with 5,314,000 Wednesday.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP)—The demand was broad and all classes and grades of slaughter cattle traded actively at strong prices with good and choice steers selling highest at the Ontario public stockyards this week.

Cows opened lower to regain the loss and replacement cattle were active on a light supply.

Veal and calves were sharply lower. Hog prices were lower and lamb prices were steady.

Cattle receipts were estimated at about 9,300 head, about 2,500 head more than last week and about 700 head more than the same week in 1963. Western cattle receipts were 309 head, some 50 head less than last week. Western stock calf receipts were double those of last week at 75 head. Fifty-three calves were received from New Brunswick. One load of fat cows was shipped to eastern Canadian slaughterers and 110 veal calves were shipped off the market for slaughter in the United States.

Slaughter cattle: Choice steers sold at $25-25.50 with fancy feedlot steers to 34.30; good 24.50-22.50; medium 18.50-20.50; common 15-18; choice heifers 21.50-22.50; good 20-21.50; medium 17-19; common 13-16.50; choice fed yearlings 23.50-25.25; good cows 15.50-16 with odd sales to 17; medium 14-15; canners and cutters 10-13.50; good heavy bologna bulls 19-20 with sales to 20.75; common and medium 15-18.50.

Replacement cattle: Good stockers 22-24 with sales to 25.50; common and medium stockers and stock calves 17-21 with good light steer stock up to 26.

Calves: Choice vealers 32-34 with sales to 36.50; good 28-30 medium 23-27; common 20-23; boners 15-20.

Hogs: Grade A 24.90-27.10; heavy sows 17-19.40 with light sows gaining a $2 premium; stags 13.50 on a dressed weight basis.

Sheep and lambs: Lambs 16-22 per hundredweight with good lambs closing at 22; bucks discounted at $1 per hundredweight; sheep 3-10 according to quality.

Gen. G. Simonds To Speak Here

Lt. Gen. Guy Simonds, C.B., C.B.E., D.S.O., C.D., president of the National Ballet guild of Canada, will speak to the Belleville Rotary Club on Monday.

A former chief of the army general staff, Lt. Gen. Simonds has been regarded by many as Canada's ablest field commander in the Second World War.

Since his retirement from the army he has been active in Canadian business life, holding directorships and presidencies on several boards, including the Toronto Brick Company Limited, Frontenac Floor and Wall Tile Limited, and August Lenz (Canada) Limited.

His interest in the affairs of the National Ballet Company of Canada, has extended over several years as an active executive member of the board of directors of the National Ballet Guild under whose aegis the Ballet Company operates.

Lt. Gen. Simonds visits to the Rotary Club here indirectly to focus attention on the National Ballet Company's visit to Belleville later this month.

Bakery Fined

Magistrate T. Y. Wills fined a Belleville bakery $100 today for what he said amounted to misrepresentation.

Burkholder's Bakery was hailed before the magistrate by federal inspectors and charged under the Food and Drugs Act.

Government counsel, Douglas Boyle, said the bakery had been selling loaves labelled "enriched bread" not baked with enriched flour.

He asked for the $100 fine "in view of the previous warnings" given the bakery.

Defence counsel William Argue said the bakery was "temporarily out of that flour" at the time the charge was laid.

Magistrate Wills termed the fine "reasonable".

New County Garage Planned Along With New Equipment

PICTON (Staff) — The County of Prince Edward plans on building a new county garage. The estimated cost of the new building is not known but the Road Committee was today authorized to proceed with plans and specifications. The total cost is not to exceed $125,000.

The road committee was severely handicapped in presenting a report due to the absence of county engineer, Ron Thompson, who has not yet returned from a Christmas holiday in Scotland.

"We will certainly have to pare down the estimated budget of $372,900 for construction of roads," said Chairman Reeve John Fox, deputy reeve of Hallowell. "When you consider that another $180,000 must be added to this figure for maintenance, then we sure have to pare it down to somehow near what we can afford," he added.

The budget estimate included construction of several roads in the county, but did not take into consideration the purchase of some new, and badly needed equipment.

It did, however, allow $60,000 for the new barn, which will be taken out of the estimate. The cost of the new building will be debentured.

Speaking on the building, it was stated that the county has now 18 pieces of equipment, 13 of which should be in heated storage during the winter months. "There is just no use kidding ourselves," said ...Mr. Fox, "this new building is going to cost us $100,000 but we will get the major portion of this back in grants."

The road committee will investigate certain suitable sites and bring in a report at the March meeting.

BUY NEW LOADER

The road committee was asked to check into the legality of cars parking on the road adjacent to the new ski club near Mountain View.

A letter from the hourly rated road employees, asking for a raise in their hourly rate was turned over to the road committee for further study. They will submit their recommendations at the March meeting, and any raises will be retroactive to January first. There are 21 presently employed, with 30-35 being employed during the summer months.

A needs study, which amounts to a traffic study, or traffic count, suggested by the Department of Highways was referred back to the road committee, with instructions to hold a meeting with the county engineer when he returns.

"If we expect any co-operation from the department in the future, we should heed their needs study," said one councillor. The cost of $60,000 half of which is subsidized, was thought to be about twice what it should cost to make the study. The study is usually done by consulting engineers.

In her annual report to county council, Miss V. Anglin told council that the cost of operation of the Children's Aid Society was about $88,000 and that they had received from all sources, about $67,000, which left them about $1,000 short, "but we are not without some resources," Miss Anglin said with a smile, "we have picked up a bit here and there and are not too badly off right now."

The report showed that there were 22 adoptions made last year, a decrease over 1962. The society looked after 138 families who all told have over 300 children.

Welfare and Assessment Commissioners Appointed

PICTON (Staff) — The County of Prince Edward has a new County Assessment Commissioner and a Welfare Administrator. Both appointments were confirmed by by-law at Thursday's meeting of the county council.

Prince Edward County is the second county to appoint such people. The county of Wentworth is the only other county in Ontario to have a Welfare Administrator and the county of Lincoln, over in the Niagara Peninsula is the only other county in the province to have an Assessment Commissioner.

55-year-old W. Grant Harvey, a retired Wing Commander in the RCAF, now living near Redneersville, is the new Welfare Administrator. He brings to his new position over 33 years in the RCAF, the last 20 of which he has been a commissioned officer.

In his duties in the Air Force, welfare of the men under his command was his particular concern, and the council felt that he had the qualifications that best suited the task of setting up a welfare department in the county.

Mr. Harvey was chosen from 28 applications. Four, including Mr. Harvey, met with council in the afternoon session. The other three were D. O. Reynolds, Fred Juby and Art Ryker.

After much discussion, Fred Jennings, present county assessor was appointed County Assessment Commissioner. The assessment committee recommended that Mr. Jennings be hired, but there were dissenting voices from at least two of the councillors.

As assessment commissioner, Mr. Jennings will have complete jurisdiction over all assessors in the county. He will be his responsibility to bring in an equalized assessment as soon as possible. It is expected he will have at least three assistants.

MUST BE APPROVED

Both of these appointments have to be approved, Mr. Jennings by the Dept. of Municipal Affairs, and Mr. Harvey by the Minister of Welfare.

The County of Prince Edward was commended by letter for their action in hiring a Welfare Administrator, by the Deputy Minister of Welfare.

Frank Noble, Welfare Administrator from Belleville, attended council while the four men were being interviewed, and answered many questions regarding the applications and the duties of the man hired.

Council passed a motion that they join the Association of Rural Municipalities, and that Reeve Kotchapaw, and Reeve Boyce attend the convention at Toronto on February 10 - 11.

Council passed a motion that any councillor who could make it, would attend the Good Roads Association Convention at Toronto in February. The county will pick up the tab up to $25 per day per man.

County council will continue on Friday.

Problems Put to Inquiry Committee on Medicare Plan Becoming Complex

By CARL MOLLINS

TORONTO (CP) — Public scrutiny of the Ontario government's draft medical insurance program has passed the halfway mark and problems put to the inquiry committee are becoming more complex.

Arguments presented to the government - appointed committee so far have grappled with the draft legislation on three main fronts—its basic principles, the scope of protection offered and its administration.

The 14 - member committee has heard both praise and criticism for the decision of Premier John Robarts' Conservative administration to meet public demands for protection against the expense of health care by making the present system of voluntary, prepaid, private-enterprise insurance.

A succession of professional groups which provide health care have appealed for the protection of their services in benefits to be provided, protesting against the draft bill's prescription from coverage of virtually all health care except that provided by physicians.

The working and administration of the program also were prompted some of the most tangled discussions, with both committee members and witnesses often disagreeing on just what the draft legislation means and how it is likely to work in practice.

COMPLETES SESSION

The inquiry committee — six of the 14 in private medical or allied professions, three insurance representatives, two businessmen, a farmer and a labor representative under J. Gerald Hagey, president of Waterloo University—completes a three-day-a-week session here Wednesday and heard presentation of its 378th brief.

In all, 83 briefs have been filed with the committee since its appointment last Aug. 31 but 10 of them will not be argued publicly. The rest are due for scrutiny at hearings Jan. 21-23 and Jan. 28-30 in Toronto.

The Ontario Medical Association, consulted at first with insurance companies by the government in drafting legislation, gets the last word at the hearings Jan. 29.

The legislation, introduced as Bill 163 last April, would require both commercial and non-profit insurance carriers to offer to the public standards of medical plans, defined by the bill, in addition to their regular plans.

The standard plans—one for in-hospital treatment only, the other more comprehensive—would carry premiums up to a maximum not yet fixed. The maximum premium rate could be altered once a year by the insurers — organized in a body to be called Medical Carriers Incorporated—if the government superintendent of insurance approves. If not, the issue would be arbitrated by a board of two insurers and a third person named by the supreme court.

SET BY OMA

The benefits to be paid under the standard plans would be set by the Ontario Medical Association.

The government would pay the standard-plan premiums of persons receiving public welfare — an estimated 10 per cent of the population, most of whom now receive free medical care under the Ontario Medical Welfare Plan—and would pay part of the premiums for an additional marginal income group not defined but possibly ranging to 10 per cent of the population.

In practice discussion Mr. Hagey indicated, Bill 163, would enable persons for whom private medical insurance is now out of reach—the old, chronically ill and the poor—to buy a standard plan if they could afford the premiums or pass a means test and get government help in payment.

Critics of the plan's principles —notably the Ontario Association of Social Workers and Associated Nursing Homes Incorporated—have said it is unlikely to extend greatly the public's protection against medical costs.

The social workers and the 100-member nursing - homes group both said the only effective way of achieving the government's avowed aim of universally available, adequate health care would be through a Saskatchewan - style, tax - financed program.

LIKE ALBERTA'S

Indication have been that the p ...uma act are more likely to be in line with Alberta's similar voluntary pro gram—$63 for a single person, $158 for a family annually—than with Saskatchewan's tax-supported plan, which has annual premiums of $6 single, $13 for a family.

Most interest groups, such as the Windsor Chamber of Commerce and the Metropolitan Toronto Social Planning Council, have supported the Ontario plan's principles of free-enterprise insurance. One witness, Collins wood doctor J. W. McGillivray, has said that even this system endangers individual freedom by government interference.

A parade of organizations — chiropractors, podiatrists, physiotherapists, dental surgeons, optometrists, visiting nurses, psychiatrists and a Christian Scientist — have said the bill is discriminatory in excluding them and maintaining the exclusiveness of doctors in the health-care field.

Apparently the insurance companies, who were consulted by the government before the serious complaints about the bill as it stands because none have been filed with the inquiry.

REGISTER COMPLAINTS

But some non-profit medical care groups have registered grievances. Associated Medical Services Incorporated, which complained that the commercial firms would shoot holes in the non-profit groups to the wall by siphoning off low-risk subscribers, and the Blue Cross, by limiting people to be covered by the non-profit insurers.

Insurance committee members did not interpret the bill as being likely to work out that way.

Witnesses have differed on what they believe will be the effect on the insurance industry and on medical Carriers Incorporated.

Some say it will be a centralized administrative b ody while others predict necessary government control will be avoided and suggest a strong administration with pooling powers and government representation.

The inquiry committee's work, although six days of hearings a week, is not yet half completed. After sorting out conflicting opinions and arguments, the committee must report to the government on the government on final legislation, while maintaining the "basic principles," and advise the government on final legislation, while maintaining the "basic principles," and advise the government on final legislation, while maintaining the "basic principles," and advise

Canadian Publishers Split On Ban on Foreign Control

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian newspaper publishers are expressing divided opinion on the issue of government restrictions on foreign ownership of Canadian newspapers.

At least two have requested the government to proceed with legislation involving such ownership. Others have expressed strong opposition to any form of government control in the newspaper field.

Publisher Roy Thomson, who arrived from London last week and for a Canadian visit, said on his arrival that any kind of government restriction in the newspaper field "would be a disaster."

In Toronto, The Telegram in editorials has opposed any legislative control, saying "such interference would set a precedent that would alarm all who hold the freedom of the press—freedom to express political opinions without fear of political reprisal—to be one of the most supporting pillars of democracy."

On Tuesday Prime Minister Pearson in Ottawa, during a press conference that the government has been making a wider examination of foreign control in Canadian communications media than was made during 1961 on the question of publications. That examination, headed by Senator M. Grattan O'Leary, president of the Ottawa Journal, made a number of recommendations covering the periodicals field but Mr. Pearson said the cabinet has not yet been before being dissolved in 1962 and 1963 for general election.

Mr. Pearson said the cabinet now has considered legislative steps, although he added that this did not mean a decision had been taken against government action. He expected to make the government's intentions known when Parliament reconvenes in February.

St. Clair Balfour, president of the Southam Company Limited, which owns a group of Canadian newspapers, said at the time of the royal commission conference that his company has requested from members of the government legislation to control foreign ownership of newspapers in Canada.

"I told them we felt the only practical alternative to preserve Canadian control of newspapers was to do it by law as France has done," he said.

"Magazines may not seem such an attractive purchase as non-Canadians right now, but newspapers do. They are still profitable in this country."

John McConnell, president of the Montreal Star, followed Mr. Balfour to the stand to back restriction restricting outside ownership of newspapers, saying "There is nothing at present to prevent foreign groups from getting control—except the refusal of the owners to sell."

Foreign ownership was "all part and parcel of the danger to Canada of this immense influx of American ideas—one way or another."

DOESN'T LIKE IT

Mr. Thomson said during the week that publishers "who advocate government interference in ownership and operation of media are inviting further government regulations — perhaps even a government licence to operate."

The Toronto Star, in an editorial supporting government legislation against foreign ownership, said the fear that freedom of the press would be endangered is "nonsense," adding:

"There is no proposal here to censor Canadian newspapers or to prevent Canadians, as individuals, group or parties, from starting up publications of any kind."

It said a newspaper owned by foreigners is likely to reflect the interests and outlook of another country. While this would not be particularly noticeable in normal times, "it will become all too evident in the event of a dispute between Canada and the country of which its owners are citizens."

The Windsor Star said in an editorial that neither Canadian newspapers nor magazines need protection from foreign competition. "If they do then there is something wrong with the Canadian product."

In a newspaper story Tuesday The Telegram quoted three other publishers as opposing restrictive legislation:

Michael Wardell of the Fredericton Gleaner: "It's a damn lot of nonsense. People can look after themselves and their interests without government legislation."

Stuart Keate of the Victoria Times: "Seventy per cent of the world's press is controlled to some extent. We're in the 80 per cent that isn't. Let's keep it that way."

Max Bell of the Calgary Albertan: "I hate to see more government controls of anything. Restrictions on stock control should be done by individual companies rather than the state."

CAMPBELLFORD

Death Accident Verdict of Coroner's Jury

CAMPBELLFORD — A five-man coroner's jury at Warkworth Wednesday afternoon found the death of Ernest Alvin Read, 73, at Warkworth, on December 10th, 1963, was "an unavoidable accident." The verdict came at a brief inquest held in the Warkworth town hall Wednesday afternoon.

Evidence showed Mr. Read died the night of December 10 when he was struck by a car as he walked along a sideroad known as the "Mustard Hill Road," less than a half-mile east of the village of Warkworth, on a slight curve a few hundred feet out of the town.

Ernest Alvin Anderson, the driver of the car which struck Read told the court, presided over by Campbellford coroner Dr. J. Jolliffe, that he was returning from Belleville, west bound on the "Mustard Hill Road," when he saw headlights of cars travelling in the opposite direction as he approached the village. He expected to meet these lights to pass, and when Mr. Anderson flicked his lights back and forth on the switch panel he said "I saw an object in the road right in front of me. I pulled to the right and put on the brakes before I hit it."

He said he backed up to see what the object was and saw a man, whom he recognized as Read, lying on the roadway. He called the police, and in the meantime and thought Read's eyes were closed. He placed the man, believing him to be alive, on the back seat of his car and then drove to the home of Dr. R. F. Jolliffe in Warkworth. Dr. Jolliffe pronounced the man dead.

Mr. Anderson identified several photographs submitted in evidence by Campbellford police photographer, William W. Reid—no relation to the deceased.

SKULL FRACTURED

Dr. Jolliffe, described the injuries suffered by Mr. Read and said that while there were "multiple injuries" none was serious, he attributed death to a skull fracture.

Provincial constable of R.R. 4 Warkworth, driver of the car which went and passed the Anderson vehicle, said he saw a man and walking west in the westbound lane of the roadway just before Mr. Anderson's car and remembered wondering at the time if the driver of the other car would be able to see the man, who was wearing dark clothing.

Harvey Read, son of the deceased, said his father had gone to Howard Warkworth to pick up some paper bags at a grocery store, and that neither he or his mother knew of the accident until notified by police.

OPP Constable M. S. Ruther-ford of the Campbellford detachment exhibited clothing worn by the deceased at the time of his death, and said the investigation revealed Mr. Read had not visited the grocery store to pick up the paper bags indicating he was probably walking west as earlier testified, when he was struck. He described damage to the car driven by Mr. Anderson and photographs submitted in the case, and on the road as he described how he believed the accident happened.

The jury, consisting of Norman McMurry as foreman and Bruce Birrey, Gordon McCubbin, Claude Morgan and Harold Sackett, said in its verdict that "Mr. Read came to his death at approximately 10:15 p.m. on the night of Dec. 10th, 1963, as a result of injuries received after being struck by a motor vehicle while west in the westbound lane of the roadway and that his death was an unavoidable accident". The jury made no recommendations and deliberated about 45 minutes in reaching a verdict.

The inquest was held in the council chambers of the Warkworth town hall.

ASKS SELF-TIGHTENING

MONTREAL (CP)—W. Earle McLaughlin, chairman and president of the Royal Bank of Canada, said Thursday the Canadian image is at home and abroad has been blurred and distorted.

"We have been shaken and confused by events such as the exchange crisis of mid - 1962, which were in part cause, in part effect, of a failure to define our problems," said Mr. McLaughlin in his address to the 96th annual meeting of shareholders.

"The blurred collective image is not the creation of any one government or level of government, nor is it the creation of any one political party. It belongs to all of us and all of us are in various ways responsible for it."

He said there are three main problems:

1. A deficit in Canada's trade with the world in goods and services—a balance of payments deficit on current account;

2. A net import of foreign capital—a balance of payments surplus on capital account; and

3. A failure by the Canadian government's balance of receipts and expenditures — an overall deficit in the federal budget.

He said that in the 1950s Canada was particularly attractive to private investors in foreign countries, with the result that foreign capital inflow exceeded her capital outflow by a large amount."

FIGURES RELATED

Mr. McLaughlin said a country with a surplus of capital account must develop a current account deficit, and that this problem is really a reflection of the second.

"A current account deficit is the only way to convert an inflow of capital funds into a real transfer in the form of goods and services."

He said these "two fundamental truths of international economy"—a deficit on current account is sometimes inevitable and foreign capital is attracted by favorable conditions — were not heeded.

"We should blame not the inflow of capital or the floating (exchange) rate, but an unduly austere monetary policy before June, 1961, and a disrupting exchange rate policy immediately after that date for the failure of the mechanism of adjustment that led to the currency crisis of May-June, 1962."

The proper budget policy for Canada today "is a general tax-increase but a general tax-cut."

In fiscal policy, Mr. McLaughlin recommended removal of "tax dis-incentives" such as the double taxation of dividend income which discriminates against Canadian investment in enterprises requiring risk capital.

"Another part of the answer is solving taxation would be an overall reduction of taxation even where that burden is not discriminatory."

CROSFIELD — ROSE

Red poinsettias formed the background setting in Christ Church, Belleville, on December 28, of Judith Ann Rose, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Roger Rose and niece of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Rose, Belleville, to Edward Benjamin Crosfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Crosfield, Vancouver, B.C. The Rev. R. G. Fleming officiated at the ceremony. Spruce boughs with tinsel designated the guest pews.

Traditional wedding music was rendered by the church organist Mr. Croyden J. Withers who also accompanied six choir boys in their wedding selections.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Donald Rose, the bride wore a floor-length princess style bridal gown of peau de soie featuring a gored shirt with a matching long sleeved box jacket top with stand-up collar and covered buttons down the front. Her elbow length veil flowed from a circle of artificial roses. She carried a bouquet of red Yuletide roses with ivy and green fern designed in the form of a cross.

Mrs. M. J. Caswell of Toronto as matron of honor was dressed in a cranberry red velvet sheath with long sleeves, matching red velvet headpiece with white veil and carried a white wine-green mufi created with red Yuletide roses and green fern. Miss Judith Smith of Picton as bridesmaid was dressed identical to the matron of honor. The little flower girl, Miss Amber Rose, of Kingston, niece of the bride, was dressed in green velvet with matching velvet hat and carried a posey of red and white mums.

Mr. David Athans of Pembroke, was groomsman, while Mr. John F. Jones, of the RCAF Station Foymount, cousin of the bridegroom: Mr. William Rose, of HMCS Cataraqui, Kingston, brother of the bride, and Mr. Francis Rose, cousin of the bride, of Belleville, were the ushers.

A reception was held in the parish hall at Christ Church where the bride's table was covered with a white linen cloth and centered with a three-tier wedding cake encircled with white tulle and green holly. White candles in silver candelabra completed the nuptial setting.

The bride's aunt, Mrs. Donald Rose, received the guests, wearing a gold brocade sheath; gold colored accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Assisting was Mrs. H. E. Crowe; second vice, Mrs. A. J. Fort; recording secretary, Mrs. G. M. Anderson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. T. S. Ransom; treasurer, Mrs. D. Ivison. The Misses Ivison and Dyer made their promise to support the executive to the best of their ability.

Archdeacon McConnell in speaking to the ladies emphasized the fact that it was the efforts of the individual member that made a successful organization. He presented chapter president Mrs. J. A. Pringle with a token of appreciation for her efforts in making the first two years of the organization such a success.

The knitting and sewing group will re-convene on January 13th at the home of Mrs. Wrenshall, 19 Montgomery Blvd.

Switchboard Operator At Govt. House on Staff for Twenty Years

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — Clementine Hutchins went to work at Government House for a month and stayed on staff for 20 years.

As operator of the telephone switchboard at the Governor-General's official residence since 1944, Miss Hutchins has worked under the late Earl of Athlone, Viscount Alexander, Vincent Massey and now Georges Vanier.

"It has been just like being part of a large, warm-hearted family," says the Ottawa woman who joined the Bell Telephone Company as a long-distance operator 24 years ago when just out of her teens and got her job at Government House where she was asked to substitute for another operator.

"It was to last for only one month but I guess they must have liked my work because I've been here ever since."

Twenty years of association with prominent people have made Miss Hutchins an expert at diplomacy and a past-master at the art of remembering names and voices.

She is still surprised, and amused, at how different a person can be from the impression that his telephone voice gives.

VOICES MISLEAD

"I often hear a man's voice on the phone for weeks and weeks before I see him in person or see his picture in the paper. The one who sounds as if he should be tall and handsome is nearly always short and fat."

"He usually likes to joke about the scrapes his two sons, then in their teens, used to get into when the Alexanders lived here."

The diminutive Miss Hutchins, who fits easily behind the tiny one-position board, treasures an autographed picture Winston Churchill gave her during a visit to Government House.

"Sir Winston made a great many calls while he was here and just before he left he asked whether I would accept his autographed picture as a token of his appreciation of my services."

Miss Hutchins also has autographed photos of Lord and Lady Athlone, the Alexanders and Mr. Massey.

PARTY TIME BUSY

The switchboard, which connects extensions all over the big residence to outside lines, is busiest when foreign heads of state are visiting. Many members of the royal family and royalty of other nations have stayed there, as well as U.S. presidents.

"We get hundreds of calls from women, wondering what they should wear and whether the party will be cancelled if it rains."

But no matter how busy Government House is, it's a busy day when Miss Hutchins doesn't hear a cheery "good morning" from her earphone from Gen. Vanier.

The governor-general hardly ever forgets to pay good morning—in fact, sometimes he even calls back to make sure he's given me his daily greeting."

SPEAKING OF MANNERS BY PATRICIA LEWIS

PUBLIC MANNERS ARE IMPORTANT

"I can almost pinpoint the ones who will be inconsiderate neighbors," the real estate developer said the other day.

"They show an almost complete disregard for others existing the model houses and, in various little ways, they give a preview of how they will keep up their own homes and associate with the people living around them," he continued.

"As a man who builds and sells houses to the public and, in effect, creates a community of people who have never met before, I'm obliged to judge wouldbe purchasers only on their financial ability. I often wish I could judge them on the kind of neighbors I know they will be."

Perhaps it's just as well the real estate man is limited in the way he can deal with prospects. He might be tempted to pass judgment on skimpy evidence or make an emotional evaluation of the person's mannerisms or appearance.

But a visit to the model homes of a newly-announced development, following our conversation, provided proof that there's some justice in the builder's remarks. Although I wouldn't draw any conclusions about what he did, I saw many examples of lackadaisical manners among the crowd of househunters.

LAWNS WERE LITTERED

I arrived about two hours after the announced opening and the carefully-manicured lawns around each house were already littered with crumpled newspapers, cleaning-gum wrappers and the remains of picnic lunches. An employee was busily trying to scoop up the debris, but it was a losing battle.

A number of visitors ignored the clearly-marked concrete walks and used the shortest distance between the exhibit homes — over the already-abused grass. Some even stepped on the begonia banks which politely implored "Please keep off the grass."

Since newspaper ads that weekend had produced such a large turnout, lines were formed at the entrance to each house. The majority of home-seekers waited patiently in line, but some of the impatient ones surreptitiously edged up to the front or barreled their way to the front.

In the houses, there were any number of fingerprints and smudges on the freshly-painted walls and on windows and kitchen equipment. The carpeting was stained by the muddy footprints of those who had neglected to scrape off their shoes on the mat at the door.

Whether those responsible for such inconsiderate acts would make poor neighbors is hard to say. Chances are they are tidy and well-mannered in their own homes. Unfortunately, many forget they should be the same in other homes, even if it's only a builder's model.

WORKED AS QUEEN

MONTREAL (CP)—New York actress Lesley Stewart, here recently in a musical, said she was once a professional beauty queen in New York, operating furniture shows and housing developments. "In New York, you get paid for that sort of thing and being a queen kept me going."

Tweed Couple Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Thompson of Tweed celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Tuesday, January 7th, when many friends called at the Thompson home, Colborne St.

On January 4th they were honored by their three sons, Frank and Harry of Toronto, Robert of Montreal and their wives and by their daughter Jean (Mrs. Dennil Cox) and Mr. Cox, of Minden, at a dinner at the Tweedsmuir hotel to mark the occasion. Mr. Thompson's sister, Mrs. Harry Letch and Mr. Letch and Mrs. Thompson's sister, Mrs. E. Crediicott and Mr. Crediicott and three grandchildren were also guests.

The couple received many lovely gifts, a mirror from the plate glass mirror from the family and many congratulatory messages including one from His Excellency the Governor-General and Madame Vanier; the Prime Minister, Lester B. Pearson; and the Hon. John Roberts; a plaque from the Ontario Government, also flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson were married at the Rectory in Tweed, January 7th, 1914 by Rev. F. G. Kirpatrick.

This is an extension program in this area under the Family YMCA is trying to meet more of the needs of more families.

Teen-Agers' Ideal Dress, One With Built-in Phone Is Fashion Probability

By JEAN SFRAIN WILSON

Thought — recording earrings, heating and cooling units, radios and a combination shoe and stocking also may be part of the female wardrobe in 1970 or '71, actor Kirk Douglas said.

He spoke at a Crystal Ball Gazing luncheon arranged as a part of the week-long spring press preview program.

Designer Mollie Parnis created one black costume which, by interchanging the units, can be worn seven days without looking the same way twice.

Italian couturier Federico Forquet believes that soon women in uniforms such as nurses, waitresses, will wear short trousers and overblouses; and that movable lens-visor replace spectacles worn today.

DREAMS THEM UP

Contending that extra - sensory perception and astrology will have a greater influence on our lives in the years hence, Ilses Fa of Sweden dreamed up those thought-recorder earrings. Simonetta, of Italy and Paris, cooked up Bobinhood-like shoe-stockings to be worn with skirts five inches above the knees.

The telephone, pinned to a suit lapel, is Spanish designer Ello Berbarger's contribution to loquacious adolescents.

He, Rud Ellpatrick of California and Sybil Connolly of Ireland, are convinced that clothes will be temperature controlled with transistors.

By contrast, England's couturier Mary Cavanagh predicts women will don long-sleeved and Greek cross-draped toppers for work and play in seven years.

BEHIND THE TIMES

TORONTO (CP) — Alderman May Birchard told a B'nai B'rith youth group here Canada is 50 years behind more advanced countries such as Norway and Britain in the field of public housing. She said the government is looking after the middle-class family and ignoring the needy living on small pensions.

Readers' Friday Column

BY MARY MOORE

QUESTION:

I wonder if you have a recipe for carrot cake? It was baked in an angel food pan. It was a rich cake which kept well and needed no icing — Lynn C.

ANSWER:

This recipe I am giving you is a "lost" type and the only recipe I have which comes close to your request. If other readers recognize Lynn C.'s Carrot Cake and have the recipe I would be grateful to receive it.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

Stuffed Baked Whitefish; Tomato Sauce; Baked Squash Halves; Spinach; Mixed Bowl Salad; Peach Upside Down Cake; Coffee.

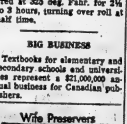
CARROT NUT LOAF:

1 cup grated raw carrots, ¾ cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 2¼ teaspoons baking powder, 2 tablespoons shortening, melted, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup warm water, 2 eggs, 1½ cups flour, 1 cup whole wheat flour, ½ cup nuts, chopped, ¼ cup candied cherries or Sultana raisins.

Sift flours, measure and add baking powder, soda, salt and sugar. Sift together. Reserve ¼ cup to flour nuts and fruits. Add milk to the beaten eggs and water and melted shortening. Combine liquids with dry ingredients. Fold in floured nuts and fruits and grated carrots. Pour batter into greased loaf pan. Let stand 3 minutes. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour. Exceptionally good for school lunches.

QUESTION:

While I was out of town my husband and sons had some roast pork at a neighbor's. As far as I can make out, it was two loins of pork which were boneless tied together with stuffing between. They want me to make it. Would you please tell me how? — Yvonne D.



ANSWER:

STUFFED DOUBLE LOIN OF PORK:

For a 3½-pound double boneless loin of pork make this Stuffing: Melt ¼ cup butter and in it gently sauté a medium onion chopped finely, 1 medium-large apple, pared and chopped, ½ cup chopped parsley flakes, until soaked in butter but not brown. Pull apart 3 cups of white bread with crusts on, into quite small pieces and add to pan. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and a little poultry seasoning and stir until bread is buttered and tinged with gold. Chop apple keeps this stuffing moist.) You may think you have too much stuffing but you have not. Untie the boneless loins and with fat sides out put with stuffing between, persisting in tucking back any which fall out. Tie with cord to make it snug and tight. Sprinkle with paprika and salt on both sides and then smear with 2 tablespoons soft butter. Roast uncovered at 325 deg. Fahr. for 2½ to 3 hours, turning over roll at half time.

Ann Landers

So-Called Friend Not Qualified to Earn Title

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband sells encyclopedias direct to the consumer. He makes very good money, is a fine father and husband and we've never had any trouble that couldn't be talked out in one evening.

Because of the nature of my husband's work he often has to make evening calls. I never thought a thing about it until a friend of mine asked if I had any proof that he was going where he said he was. Did he ever leave a number where he could be reached? Did he ever come home too late or too tired to be much of a husband? I admit she raised some doubts in my mind.

I've been examining his clothes for lipstick and can't find a trace. There are no bobby pins or red-tipped cigarette butts in the car ash trays. In other words, not a shred of evidence. What does this sound like to you? — BIG QUESTION.

DEAR BIG — It sounds like your friend's mouth would make the Grand Canyon look like a buttonhole.

And as for that last question, Toots, did your husband ever come home and find you too tired to be much of a wife? Does that mean you were cheating on him in the afternoon? Use your head, Girl. Your friend is no friend.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a high school junior, 17, years of age, and want you to answer a simple question in the newspaper so my folks can see it with their own eyes.

Why shouldn't a 17-year-old girl who makes good grades, is on the school paper, is a cheerleader, and holds a class office be allowed to date during the week?

I started to date when I was a freshman, and I've always behaved like a lady. At present my Numero Uno is a college freshman. We are not going steady but I'm afraid he might fall hard if someone else if I can only see him three times a week. I need your help — NEVER ON WEEKENDS.

DEAR NEVER — A 17-year-old girl should be at home evenings during the week. The reason you've done well in school is because your parents have been bright enough to keep you under control.

High school homework is poured on mighty heavy these days and kids who date during the week can't possibly do justice to their assignments. Three dates a week is a great plenty for Numero Uno. It's always best to keep a boy friend wanting just a little more of your company.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — You were wrong when you told "Miss Inquisitive" that a left-handed handshake has no special meaning. I will quote from the manual "Tenderfoot to Queen Scout":

"When a famous Ashanti Chief surrendered to Lord Baden-Powell the latter extended his right hand as a token of friendship. The chief insisted on shaking with the left hand, explaining that the bravest of the brave shake hands with the left hand, since, in order to do so, he must throw away his greatest protection — the shield." Scouts shake hands with the left hand as proof of their good faith and true friendship. — CALGARY, ALBERTA.

• • •

DEAR CAL — Your reference to the Queen Scout suggested that the southpaw approach was strictly a custom of our Canadian neighbors. After checking with my Silver Beaver friends in Chicago I learned that the left-handed handshake among Scouts is universal. Thank you for cluing us in on the interesting background.

Honor Couple At Shower

JOHNSTOWN — Last Saturday relatives, friends and neighbors gathered at the Brooks farm to honor the newly married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Brooks (nee Carol Dobbin) at a miscellaneous shower when over 80 were in attendance. The event was arranged by Mrs. Earl Stickle, Mrs. Curt Orr and Mrs. Donald Sandercock.

The home was appropriately decorated with pink and white streamers and white bells, where a table was laden with an assortment of gift wrapped parcels. Mrs. Sandercock expressed best wishes to the young couple on behalf of the gathering and invited them to open their gifts.

Wayne expressed thanks on behalf of himself and his new bride to everyone for their kindness. Both Mr. and Mrs. Brooks teach school at College Street School in Trenton.

Refreshments were served which "included a beautifully iced cake with the inscription Best Wishes to Wayne and Carol" from Mrs. Earl Brooks of Frankford.

RAWDON — Miss Barbara Williams was hostess on Monday evening for the meeting of Rawdon's Young People's Union at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Williams. Miss Carol Sharpe conducted the brief devotional.

The 1964 officers were chosen as follows: president, Barbara Williams; past president, Carol Sharpe; vice-president, Nancy Tompkins; secretary, Mary Dreyup; treasurer, Lois Morton; pianist, Sally McAdam; lunch committee, Janet Fletcher, Nancy David, Judy Cooney and Grieda Graham; progress committee, Lorraine Fortner, Kenneth Smith and Alvira Sharp; recreation committee, Kenneth McConnell, Charles Nix and Fred McAdam.

Following the election of officers games were enjoyed and refreshments served.

"Idaho Adventure" Captivates Audience at Collegiate

By A. HENDERSON

One of the finest travelogues of the current season, under the sponsorship of the Kiwanis Club of Belleville, was presented last evening at the Collegiate auditorium by Julian Cromer, under the caption, "Idaho Adventure." The outstanding color photography of unsurpassed beautiful scenery, coupled with a sparkling flow of narration, and "the action-packed" scenes held the fine audience captive from the first picture until the final and impressive portrayal of the 23rd Psalm which brought the showing to a close.

Mr. Cromer, who was introduced by the past president of the club, Mr. George Hume, was pleased to see so many present on such a rainy evening. He is an enthusiastic boatman, winning over 40 trophies in boat racing, and is "at home" in all kinds of water. He has personal films on the Pacific coast; the Gulf Coast; the Atlantic Coast; the Columbia River; the Snake River; the Colorado River, and this, his latest, "Idaho Adventure," showing the Snake River with its boiling rapids, and the Salmon River, or the "River of no return."

TRUMPETER SWANS

Following the Snake River through the State of Wyoming, backed by snow-capped Sawtooth Mountains, there were scenes of quivering aspens and reflected evergreens on shimmering waters; a visit to a little shrine along the way where people stopped to thank God for the beauties of North America; scenes of trout fishing; the Trumpeter swans gliding on still waters with their little families; Jackson Lake in Wisconsin, the source of the Snake River; the Dude Ranch where guests paid to work—learning to build fences; some remaining as long as ten weeks; loving horses and colts, the colts a few days old, while one was but one hour plus, still shaky on his long legs; large dams; the means of irrigation making the dry and arid land fertile which makes for great lush growth of corn, and other produce at the Idaho Falls.

Other scenes include a Mormon Temple on a distant lofty height surrounded by banks of beautiful flowers which included various colored dahlias; gladiolas; petunias; pinks of definite coloring and design; lovely gloxinias which are shown 20,000 times their normal rate of development; lovely purple iris, both opening and closing; a visit to a large volcanic crater with its colorful lava. The narrator stated that it takes 1,000 years for the lava to return to the consistency of soil, but when it does, it makes the ground very fertile. Little flowers were shown growing

By SYDNEY OMARR

For January 11

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Good news indicated from afar. Important to get house in order. Reach decision based on combination of maturity, diplomacy. Consult with family member.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Merely wishing is not enough. Apply yourself for concrete results. Go over project, review details. Money situation due to improve. Good evening for enjoyment.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Whatever you undertake — be enthusiastic. Optimism proves "catching." Gloom defeats you purpose. Legal or business question will require additional study.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Examine statements by one who assures you "all is easy." Be observant. Pick out flaws. Be safe, informed rather than sorry later. Don't rely on one side of story.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21): Shake off groundless fear, doubts. Good lunar aspect corresponds to chance for romance, creative accomplishment. Take initiative. Display independence, showmanship.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Your own ideas may require modification. Be willing to listen. Read Taurus message. Objective attitude essential. Permit reason to rule over emotions.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): If you try to expand too quickly, disappointment follows, instead, finish one task at a time. Get in on ground floor. Learn the rules. Then apply yourself.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Avoid self- deception. Applies especially where money affairs are concerned. Chances of income will require added attention. Extra effort today will pay off in near future.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Cycle high. Personal appearance favored. Means get out and be seen and heard. But take care in dealing with those in authority. Tread lightly!

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Delve deep to obtain facts. Means don't be satisfied with superficial statements, knowledge. You could uncover valuable secret — if you are persistent. Go to it!

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Visits, entertaining, being entertained — very much favored today. But don't permit flattery to "turn your head." Keep feet on ground. Read Scorpio message.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Associates may have reacted in unusual manner. Stick to beliefs. Do job as you know it must be done. Evening favors quiet relaxation. Avoid one who wants to "hurry."

If today is your birthday . . . you are intuitive, would make a wonderful teacher — your sympathy extends to underdog and you will fight for the rights of others.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius. Special word to Cancer: Being fair to all is of paramount importance. Don't jump to conclusions.

APPOINTED DIRECTOR

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Cass announced Friday that Stephen J. Sexton, 46, has been appointed director of the insurance branch of the attorney-general's department. The position is a new one created in a reorganization of the insurance branch. Mr. Sexton formerly was claims manager of the Co-operative Insurance Association in Toronto.

"Of course, I'll be able to improve on it quite a bit once we get started building!" .

Showing Way to Others

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

When was the last time you invited someone, or were invited, to church? If Andrew or Philip lived in your neighborhood, chances are they would often invite others to visit their church, a member of their family, a child, even a person of another national or racial background. This would make no more difference to these men today than it did when they were disciples of Jesus.

Andrew and Philip were from the same home town. Evidently they were close friends, for they are repeatedly linked together in the Bible record. See Mark 3:18, John 6:7-8, John 12:22, and Acts 1:13. Together they made a fine Christian team, and were laymen of which any church today would be proud.

FAITH AND FAMILY

Andrew first showed his deep interest in religion by following John the Baptist, who interested Andrew in learning more about Jesus. What he learned as he recited him he ran to tell his own brother Simon, later called Peter. As the Bible puts it, "He first fineth his own brother Simon. . . and he brought him to Jesus" (John 1:41-42).

This was no small thing when we think of the role Peter was to play in the gospel story. It is to Andrew's everlasting credit that he first sought his own brother to tell him about Jesus.

Why must we be hush-hush about mentioning religion to our own relatives and children? Why is it not as natural to be concerned about a loved one's religious growth as it is to be concerned about his physical or mental health? A secular youth should be proud to know that his parents are interested in his spiritual welfare. A wise parent will not be dogmatic. He will invite the child to find in religion what he has found. At least he should feel free to do what Jesus and Andrew did. Jesus said to Andrew: "Come and see." Andrew said to Simon, "Come and see." Was it both Andrew and Simon saw changed their lives. While we are trying to see what science can do, or what philosophy says we need to see what religious faith can show. A good place to begin to tell what we find is to members of our own family.

FAITH AND FOOD

Both Philip and Andrew feature in the account of the feeding of the five thousand. Philip was the practical one. He protested that 200 pennyworth (probably about $40) of bread would not begin to provide enough bread to feed the crowd. Andrew took a lad who had five loaves of bread and two small fishes for lunch, and brought the lad to Jesus who used the lunch in a miraculous way to feed the multitude.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for January 12: "Philip and Andrew, Evangelists," Mark 3:14 - 19a; John 1:35-51; 6:5-14; 12: 20-22; 14; 1-12; Acts 1:13.

Hunger is one of the greatest, if not the greatest, problem of our day. How can we possibly get enough food to feed the exploding population of the world? How can we nourish people of India, South America, China be fed? A practical man would say, "Forty billion dollars worth of foreign aid would not feed all the hungry people of the world." Perhaps there is a better way. We can inspire youth to bring their talents and skills to the service of mankind, and through science help to produce more food. We must try to lead others to the forces of understanding and good will that are necessary if disorder, or any other ills to be solved on a international scale.

Race and nationality must not be permitted to stand in the way. It didn't for Andrew and Philip. When certain Greeks wanted an audience with Jesus, they came to Philip who had a Greek name. Philip took them to Andrew, and together they took them to see Jesus. Once Philip shared his faith with an Ethiopian (Acts 8:26-32). These men knew that the church must transcend barriers of race and nation if it is to demonstrate to the world the kind of love and good will that can unite men in a common quest for peace and brotherhood.

Andrew and Philip have shown the way for others to follow. What can you and I do? We can be dedicated to our faith, and, as opportunity permits, try to show it even in our own home. All of us can be concerned about the needs, particularly the hunger, of the world. We can seek to enlist youth in the task of extending a helping hand of love and service to all mankind. You and I can always try to bring others closer to the ideals and spirit of Jesus.

"QUEBEC'S "EMBASSY" — This handsome three-storey building in the Invalides district of Paris houses the Quebec government's offices, handling economic, cultural and artistic affairs in an effort to present the "true image" of Quebec. The building was purchased for $280,000, refurbished for another $350,000. (CP Photo)

Quebec Projects Image Onto Paris Boulevard

By ALAN HARVEY

PARIS (CP)—Quebec's bid to establish new horizons abroad is moving out of the growing-pains stage into the realm of solid achievement.

Its Paris office, called La Delegation-Generale and opened in November, 1961, deals daily with 10 to 50 visitors, seeks to establish the "true image" of Quebec and handles economic, cultural and artistic affairs in much the same way as an embassy.

"We want to establish that we represent a government," says gentle-voiced Charles Lussier, the former Montreal lawyer who runs the attractive, sparkling white provincial office in the Invalides district.

Lussier bought the building at 19 rue Barbet-du-Juoy for $280,000, spent an extra $50,000 refurbishing it and recently turned down an offer of $600,000. It is a handsome, six-storey three-storey establishment decorated in quiet good taste and splendidly located in an area that is central, uncrowded and yet dotted with French government ministries and diplomatic residences.

Apartments lived in by the late Andre Gide and Albert Camus can be seen from delegation windows. The Duke of Broglie, mentioned in Proust's novels, also dwelt nearby. The building itself formerly belonged to the Murat princes.

JOB ISN'T EASY

This has led visitors to expect tours of the Murat palace, most distinguished of the buildings owned by the princely family. They have to be told gently that the Quebec establishment is one of the lesser dwellings.

Establishing a new "presence" in Paris is not always easy, and a reporter's impression is that the delegation has had some tough problems. Sophisticated though it is, Paris is not accustomed to representation by provincial governments; every one of the 10 Canadian provinces has an office in London, but the practice is unfamiliar in Paris.

An embarrassment is that Lussier is trying to make Quebec better known in France just at a time when the movement for Quebec independence is attracting attention. Sometimes the delegate-general finds himself forced on the defensive, obliged to remind callers that his province does not want to become another Katanga.

Lack of knowledge about Canada is a frequent hazard. Quebec officials are sometimes asked if it really true that they speak French to their children.

Sometimes it is the French who are embarrassed. When Quebec Premier Lesage visited Paris, the foreign office wondered what to do about decorations, since Quebec though not a state has its own flag. Finally it was decided to deck buildings visited by Lesage in French-Canadian colors, with the odd Quebec flag at strategic intervals.

"We want to let it be known that our roots lie in France. We want to stress our modern dynamism. We have made some progress since the days of Maria Chapdelaine."

Assisting him in the cultural field is Robert Elie, who dreams of assembling the best Canadian reference library in Europe. Elie administers a student-aid program and is out to try to attract French teachers to Quebec.

"We are short about 4,000 French-speaking teachers," he says. "This is the place to get them. But it is rather slow going because we have to arrange things with French educational authorities about pension rights, and that sort of thing."

HELP STUDENTS

Scholarships are being arranged for French-Canadian students and efforts are being made to make it easier to buy Canadian books in Paris. Canadian poetry and art is also being boosted. Quebec helped the Canadian embassy to arrange an art exhibition at the Galliera exhibition that included works by Alfred Pellan and Jean-Paul Lemieux, though the emphasis was on English-speaking artists Yorke Wilson of Toronto and Joe Plaskett of Vancouver and New Westminster, B.C.

At first, some embassy officials took a grumpy view. They thought the Quebec effort might cramp their style. Instead, Lussier and his officials have tactfully worked in close co-operation.

Patrick Hyndman, who succeeded Georges Mercier as commercial attache nearly a year ago, said his main task is to change the climate of French thinking about investment and trade with Canada.

MISSION TO CANADA

"Canada has made a rather shallow penetration in French thinking," Hyndman said. "Their emphasis has been on their own colonies. They tended to regard Canada as either an American or a British preserve. There is still a good deal of reticence to overcome."

Quebec played a big part in arranging the successful French mission to Canada a year ago, led by former French finance minister Wilfred Baumgartner, who remains one of Canada's biggest boosters.

French industrialists sometimes feel that it is no use trying to sell industrial goods to Canada because Canada is such an advanced country. In fact, says Hyndman, the nation is one of the world's biggest importers of manufactured goods. He hopes that the Montreal exhibition last Oct. 11-27 may have done something to educate French businessmen.

Quebec also has facilitated French and Belgian studies aimed at participation in the province's developing iron and steel complex.

Delegation information officer is Andre Giroux.

PROCLAMATION

DO IT NOW "CAMPAIGN"

WHEREAS there is a regular falling-off in construction employment during the winter months of January, February and March, and,

WHEREAS there are many construction, alteration and repair jobs which can be readily performed during these months, and,

WHEREAS many of the skilled tradesmen currently unemployed would welcome the opportunity of performing this work at this time, and,

WHEREAS by providing work for tradesmen in their slow period of the year, you would be helping not only the tradesmen but your City, your Country and yourself,

THEREFORE, I, J. R. Ellis, Mayor of the City of Belleville, hereby call upon all citizens to support to the limit of their ability the Government-sponsored "DO IT NOW" CAMPAIGN.

Construction, Transport Workers Are Hardest Hit By Winter Unemployment

Construction and transport workers are hardest hit by winter unemployment in the Quinte area, National Employment Service figures show. Of 1390 unemployed men registered at the Belleville N.E.S. and U.I.C. offices in Belleville at the end of December, 1963, 380 are construction laborers. In September of last year, there were only 189 unemployed construction laborers registered.

Trades in the construction industry suffer too, from winter unemployment. Among heavy machinery operators, bricklayers, painters, carpenters, plumbers and similar trades, there were 170 unemployed at the end of December, compared with 31 during December.

Because the transport industry is largely dependent on construction, transport workers are also hit hard by winter. Including taxidrivers, tractor drivers and routemen with the truck drivers, there were 146 unemployed at the end of December, compared with 31 during September Most of the increase of 95 unemployed are truck drivers, who normally drive dump trucks and trucks carrying construction materials

Things are improving though. During December of 1963 the N.E.S. received 199 orders for employees, compared with only 161 the year before. The total number of unemployed remained the same, but the same number of unemployed represented a smaller percentage of a larger working force. There are three main causes of the increased opportunity.

TAKE ADVANTAGE OF BONUS

The Winter Home Building Incentive Program offers a bonus of $500 to the first buyer of a house built mostly during the winter months. In practice, this bonus will probably be paid on any house completed before the end of March, which was not yet past the sub-floor stage at the beginning of December. No figures are yet available on the number of houses being built with this bonus as an incentive in Belleville, but most builders are taking advantage of the offer.

The Municipal Winter Works Incentive Program is another important help. The Provincial and federal governments between them are paying 75 percent of direct payroll costs on civic projects between Nov. 1st. and April 30. Local firms are benefitting from a sewer and water project in Frankford and a sewage disposal plant in Picton being built under the plan and a major pipeline in Belleville will be financed, at least in part, by the program.

Spread across industries of all types, the Older Worker Employment and Incentive Training program is improving employment statistics for Canada's older workers — in the over-45-years age bracket. The Department of Labour is offering to pay employers up to $75 per month for 12 months for each employee hired under this program between Nov. 1st and March 31. The subsidy is planned to balance employers' fears that people over 45 might be less productive workers, or might prove less able to absorb training.

Program Five, which is paying more than 125 unemployed people to return to school during the evenings in Belleville is also proving effective. People taking the training are receiving an allowance, which is expected to cover their living expenses and they are learning trades which should help them get and hold jobs. Courses leading to several trades, and courses in straight schoolastic instruction, are being offered now at Quinte Secondary School.

Technical developments are also reducing winter unemployment by boosting winter construction. Transparent plastic sheeting draped over a building's framework, or supported on light wooden frames, can be used to turn a construction site into a gigantic greenhouse. During cloudy weather and at night, portable heaters can warm the site, when the sun is out its heat makes shirtsleeves weather out of the coldest winter day. The plastic material costs little, and it can be re-used up to about ten times, as several local construction firms have discovered.

More powerful machinery, owned now by some firms in the area, can rip frozen ground almost as though it were loose sand, and pre-cast concrete, cured in steam-heated moulds, works just as well during the winter as during the summer. Concrete additives, the newest one on the market is made by a Belleville firm, enable contractors to pour concrete in near - zero weather, and even without using additives, contractors are finding they can usually count on enough mild days to operate at a profit.

Most of Canada's unemployment problems of now and the future, however, cannot be cured by permanent giveaway programs. They cannot be cured by technical developments either, because the sad fact is that the problems are partly caused by the technical developments. Canada was unprepared from an educational standpoint, for the technological explosion since the Second World War. Thousands of new jobs were created for professional people and technicians in a space-age world, but too many Canadians had a backwoods education. The result is that Canadian industry is hampered by the lack of educated people to handle the jobs that need filling, and Canadian labor is hampered by the lack of unskilled jobs.

GAP BEING CLOSED

The educational gap is being closed now, but until very recently the facilities were not available to close it completely, according to some authorities. Universities built more and more facilities and accepted more and more graduates, during the past years, but little attention was paid to the needs of occupations between labor and professional levels. Even so, not enough professional people have been trained, but the shortage of technicians is the more serious problem.

The problem is being met by projects such as Program Five, and facilities such as the new technical wing at Quinte Secondary School will provide at least some of the technicians needed in the years to come. Authorities find, however, they must be prepared to battle the prejudice of some parents who, finding they are able to afford a university education for their children, insist the children get it whether they want it or not.

The problems of the future are being solved, slowly but surely — the problem of the present is the one of most concern to today's society. Winter unemployment is everybody's business, because it hits everybody in Canada right in the pocketbook whether they know it or not. The unemployed don't buy cars, they don't spend the evening at theatres, and sometimes they miss payments on things they have already bought. And the vicious circle closes tighter and tighter until employment rises in the basic industries. Technology, government programs and the builders who continue work through the winter are all combined in an effort to break that circle.

Back at the entomology lab here after three months in Russia and some holidays in Canada, Dr. Harold Welch thinks Canada is ahead of the Soviets in entomology. The Russians have more scientists though, he adds, and they may well pull ahead during the next few years.

Dr. Welch is an insect pathologist, interested particularly in the disease borne among insects by nematodes, (small parasitic worms which kill and breed in the insect which swallows them). He spent the three months alternating between Moscow and Leningrad as part of an exchange program arranged by the National Research Council and the Russian Academy of Sciences. He took some nematode cultures from the Belleville lab over for the Russians to study, and he studied some Russian cultures while he was there.

Dr. Welch reports he had no trouble getting along in Russia. He learned some Russian before he left, which helped on the streets, and his English, German and French were all useful with the Russian scientists. He confesses to occasional moments of confusion though, from having to speak two languages in the same conversation at times. One minor problem arose because, as a guest of the Academy of Science, he stayed at a hotel operated for Russians, rather than one of the places operated by the Intourist organization. The difference was that there was no special provision made at his hotel for people who don't speak Russian. One girl who worked at the desk Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, however, spoke English — so any problems arising on those days could be easily straightened out.

BACK FROM RUSSIA and a vacation in Canada, Dr. Harold Welch of the entomology lab in Belleville inspects a culture of nematodes, similar to some he left in Russia. Dr. Welch spent three months in Moscow and Leningrad on a scientific exchange arranged by the National Research Council.

People who have left town — Dr. D. A. Chant, a staff member at the entomology lab here from 1955 to 60, has been appointed head of the Department of Biological Control at the University of California. We assume it's insect biology he's expected to control. Between Belleville and California, Dr. Chant was director of a Department of Agriculture lab in St. Catherines.

Dr. L. T. Greenfield, works manager of Deloro Stellite Ltd. in England, is over this way for a two week visit now. Deloro Stellite Ltd. is a subsidiary of Deloro Smelting and Refining Ltd., the Canadian firm, but because of the size of the market the English plant is about five times the size of the installation in Belleville. Purpose of the visit is to give Dr. Greenfield and Belleville plant manager Pat Houston a chance to co-ordinate production ideas and techniques. Both of them left town Wednesday, for a short trip through Detroit and Chicago to look at new equipment, but they'll be back during the weekend.

Meanwhile, sales manager Bruce MacKenzie of Deloro is quietly going mad with another problem. Y.M.C.A. week is coming up — Jan. 20 to 25, and all the Y directors are working on different programs for the event. The new Y building on Victoria Ave will be opened before the start of Y week, then a series of open nights at the old building. One of the highlights of Y week comes on the Wednesday night — when the Board of Directors meets and invites all the local school principals in. Main item on the agenda is a discussion of physical fitness, with an expert from Toronto imported for the occasion.

Lecithin Products Canada Ltd. has an order of 125 barrels of lecithin on the high seas now bound for England. The lot left Belleville last week. Nothing unusual about the firm shipping to England, but this is the first lot to go in winter, through Halifax. In previous years, rail freight rates shut off foreign markets, as far as the local firm was concerned, as soon as the lakes froze. The rates are low enough this year though, that the cost of the long rail trip can be absorbed. There's another order, the same size, due to leave town in three weeks. The new shipping schedule won't make much difference to the firm's gross — it sells all the lecithin it can find the materials to make anyway — but it will smooth out the profit curve over the whole year.

Things are settling down now, at the new Industrial Accident Prevention Association's office on Front Street. The Association decided months ago that Belleville was a more central location than Cobourg for the division office, and it took a suite at 157 Front Street. About the end of September Mrs. M. J. (Peggy) Kerr was hired and sent to Toronto for a week's training in I.A.P.A. problems, then set up in the office here, concerned with all the Association's business from Ajax to Gananoque. For the time being Mrs. Kerr's assistant in another office is handling Peterborough and Oshawa.

MRS. M. J. KERR

Now the confusion has settled, things are running in the right grooves, and the local office is concerned with setting up meetings in the Belleville-Trenton section and elsewhere. First local event is an executive meet, January 16, at the Queen's Hotel. On February 11 there's a general dinner meeting at the Trenton Country Club. Main feature of the dinner meeting is a talk on and demonstration of static electricity, what it can do and how it can be prevented from doing it.

The people at Pyrotenax in Trenton have high hopes for an experiment being conducted by one oil company. The oilmen have used Pyrotenax heating cable for pipe tracing on all pipes in a refinery — about a half a million feet of cable. If it works as planned, such orders may come a couple of times a year.

Pyrotenax cable consists of one or more conductors surrounded by a layer of magnesium oxide powder as an insulator, the whole inside a copper sheath. The whole works is waterproof and permanent. It costs a bit more to buy than some types of wiring, and a lot more than others, but it is often preferred in installations where a breakdown costs more than doing the job right in the first place. In most cases, this means heavy industrial and commercial installations, but it is also used in a lot of the better homes.

The design can also be adapted to heating cables and this is where some of the big money of the future may lie. In some places, (including the plant's front walk), Pyrotenax heating cable is laid under pavement to clear off snow.

Other uses include eavestrough heating, (because frozen eavestroughs can be expensive), building heating and pipe tracing.

Pipe tracing (the term is used in the business, involves putting a heating cable or a steam line alongside a pipe, usually inside an insulating jacket, to keep liquids flowing in cold weather. In the modern installations, electrical cable is taking over from steam. The refinery experiment is the first time in Canada that anyone has "traced" all the pipes in a big refinery — usually only a few of the more important pipes are traced.

Other new markets opening for Pyrotenax cables are in power generation. The slow shift in Canada, from hydro-electric generation to steam plants is helpful, because steam plants rely more on Pyrotenax cable than do hydro plants. And the latest development, Ontario Hydro's Nuclear Power Demonstration at Douglas Point, may rely more on Pyrotenax than do the steam plants.

YMCA BUILDING

Minor panic now, at the new YMCA building. The building is scheduled for completion about the end of March and the work is right on schedule — but the date will be moved up to the public sometime before YMCA week, which starts January 20. The place will be ready for inspection about within the time limit, according to job supervisor Archie Peake.

Heat is on and water is running throughout the building. Concrete is poured on all floors and the plastering should be completed by the end of this week. Main floors are being field paved and the ceramic tile for the lining and floor area of the swimming pool has been delivered. Some glass is still to be installed in the pool area, (plastic sheeting now holds cold weather out), and the building will be essentially complete. A lot of work and a lot of time is needed to finish the trimming in a building like the new Y, though.

Up from Toronto yesterday to inspect work on the building, is W. Hardy Craig, the consulting engineer. He comes up about once every two weeks to check, says he's very much pleased with the job.

BAY BRIDGE

Down by the bay (bridge), Ken Fox and his Central Bridge crew are at work on the east side of the north span now. The Bailey section that used to be on the west side was shifted across Monday, and a DOH crew under foreman Bill Bell bolted it to the bridge Tuesday. Bolting to the bridge consisted of drilling holes through the bridge deck and running six-foot bolts down to hangers slung around the bridge beams. Joseph Banyay of Toronto, the DOH engineer who planned the operation, was up Wednesday for a look at the results.

The east side of the new north portal arch will be in place by Tuesday, if the weather holds good, then the Bailey section comes out Wednesday if all goes well. That isn't the end of the work, but it is the end of the traffic delay. There is one portal truss to be replaced at the north end of the swing section, but this will be handled without holding up traffic, Ken Fox says.

The grid-welding job on the swing section looks bigger and bigger, the closer you look at it. Most of the cracks don't show now, it seems, and there's add some new ones will show when the welding starts. First thoughts were to do the work from above, perhaps, and slow traffic for a day or so while the job was whipped through. Looks now though, like the job may take a week or more. Plans are to do the work from below, so no traffic delay at all.

MORMON CHURCH

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints on Palmer Road may be open by the middle of February. The volunteer workers on the site have most of the strapping on the ceiling joists now, and the gyrock was delivered Wednesday for the ceiling. Walls are about ready for painting, the furnace and most of the radiators are installed and the electrical work is nearly finished. Because the trades are mostly voluntary, schedules depend on the amount of spare time available, but work has been going quickly so far.

SIDNEY COURT

Charles Lambert's Sidney Court apartment development has the first building completed and occupied now. Interior is finished on the second building, and one apartment occupied — two of the outside walls bricked. No permits yet for the other two buildings planned for the development.

MORE APARTMENTS

Right beside Sidney Court, Leo Buckley's development is coming along fast. First bricks are being laid on the first of his two buildings and the first floor apartments are being rough plastered now. Finish plastering will start next week. Firewalls are complete on the second building, and frame is up to the third floor level now. Walls and a roof will go over the third floor next week, if the weather holds. Two more buildings to go on this site too, but no start planned until the first two are complete.

ELLIOTT MOTORS

Roof slabs and steel on Elliott Motors building this week. Wilson's Concrete crew, under foreman Frank Wiles, used the firm's 100-ton crane to drop the first of 15 prestressed slabs into place. About the middle of the job, as the crane had to reach farther and farther for the 24 ton slabs, they tied a bulldozer to the front of it to help the crane to help balance it. For the last few slabs he did a workout from the outside of the building, and Wilson's brought in a second crane with the same model, to help out.

Shortest route from Wilson's plant on Sidney Street to the site, on North Front, is via Wallbridge Road and the 401. Four trucks carrying 32 foot slabs. The long loads can't make the corner from Sidney Street to West Moira, but they can make the less acute turn on to Wallbridge Road. In years gone by the route has been followed by the old Wallbridge Road goes over the railway tracks would have been another problem, but this crossing was enlarged last year when Wilson's had some really big, (100 ton), beams to take to Toronto.

Bill Finkle Jr. started last week, erecting the steel over the showroom of the new building. A real way-out roof, if the skeleton is any indication of the final shape. He's got four men up there and the firm's 40-ton crane, hopes to have the job finished by tonight. Schedules called for completion a couple of weeks ago, but the Toronto firm that supplied the steel didn't deliver.

Quints Roofing is at work now on the composition roof for the building, the doors are expected sometime next week and the steel deck for the showroom roof is also expected next week. If the delivery dates are kept, and the weather remains good, the main building may be closed within two weeks. Glass goes for the showroom will take longer.

GREENLAWN APARTMENTS

Plans for the Greenlawn apartment project call for finish of the the new building by the first of March. The finishing cost of plaster is going on now, should be through in about a week. Then floors, final fitting of plumbing and so on.

BLACK DIAMOND

Foundations were finished last Tuesday at the Black Diamond addition, and the steel contractor arrived on the site Wednesday. Standard Steel Construction Co., of Welland, began work Thursday and the roof should be in place by the end of next week, according to McAlpine's supervisor Slim Yuzwak. His timetable calls for heat in the building, (under polyethylene plastic cover), within four or three weeks.

SMITH'S TRANSPORT

Going fast in the warm weather, Howard Lewis of Tatham's has the north wall poured at the Smith's Transport building, and Bradshaw Construction, laying the brick and block, has a good start. The north wall was poured in two stages, (the second stage was finished Wednesday), to keep an area clear to move equipment in. Now it's finished, there's a new ramp at the west end of the building, and everything has to come in from that end. All work from now on will progress from the west to the east end of the building.

The Bradshaw crew on the site, is led by foreman John Cresswell, (now finished with the car wash on Dundas). Work started Monday and if the weather holds, he hopes to have things finished in about three weeks.

Carr - Braint Construction, subcontracting for Dodge on the new building for Bell Telephone at Victoria and Pinnacle Sts., had 28 men on the job last week pouring concrete. First pour on Thursday January second formed the beams, then 108 cubic yards of concrete poured on the slab Saturday. A second pour tomorrow will put another 45 cubic yards in, to complete the first floor slab. A crew of 16 men are now on site, framing pillars for the second floor and the south wall for the second floor. Four for these will be next Wednesday for the west wall, according to Ken Carr - Braint. Third floor slab might be poured in the next two weeks. So far the job has lost about a week to the winter weather — more from now than from the cold.

CAR WASH ON DUNDAS ST.

The roof's on now, at the new car wash building on Dundas St. near Foster. Fred Smith of Belleville started tearing down the houses on the site Dec. fouth of last year, and he hopes to have the new building ready in with plastic this week. Window frames are in, but the glass contract may not be let until next week. Not much glass to go anyway.

Lots of interior work to do still, pits, grease traps and the like. Might be ready to pour the floor by the end of the month. The doors have been ordered, and will be installed by the manufacturer, but not until the whole job is nearly finished.

BANK OF MONTREAL

Roof was poured last Monday on the new Bank of Montreal building, College at North Front, and Mike Voscamp's packet called for the floor to be poured yesterday. Things are going well in the warm weather. The firewall between the bank building and the coin-laundry next door should be done by tomorrow night. Walls of concrete block with a brick veneer will be started as soon as the window frames arrive — enlarged last year when Wilson's had some really big, (100 ton), beams to take to Toronto.

AT NORTH FRONT STREET AND HIGHWAY 401, Sam Goodman's new motel is just about finished now. The two-storey building with 75 rental units and three dining rooms is the biggest construction job in Belleville so far this winter. Plans include a swimming pool, which will not be built until next summer.

NEW YMCA building is closed in, heated and has water running now. Finish coat of plaster is almost done, and terrazzo floors are being laid. Ceramic tiles, to be laid in the swimming pool, have been delivered to Belleville. Building will be open to the public, but not fully finished, before the beginning of YMCA Week, January 20 to 25.

IT'S SHIRTSLEEVES WEATHER inside transparent plastic hoardings, at any time of year. In the picture, John Solmes of Marmora is bricking a house at West Park Village, protected from the winter by transparent plastic sheets mounted on light wooden frames. Plastic to protect a whole house costs only about $250, and at West Park the hoardings can be used on eight or nine houses before they are discarded. With the sun providing the only heat, snow has been known to melt under the plastic when the outside temperature was well below zero.

CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS on Palmer Ave. is closed in now, will be heated within a week or so. Volunteer labor and trades are pushing the job through quickly.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It seems that Howie Young, Chicago Black Hawks flare-boy, has been raising the dickens with, as a Toronto columnist puts it, his "Great Expectorations"

Mr. Stafford Smythe, the grand vizier of the Toronto Maple Leafs, objected to being forced into a compliant role because Mr. Young sought a target for a saliva salute and promptly reported the incident, plus, to Clarence Campbell, the Zeus of the National Hockey League.

Mr. Smythe also reported that Mr. Young proceeded his personalized projectile with the choice expletives claimed to have originated with the salty tars of His Britannic Majesty's Navy when they were chasing Spanish galleons and French buccaneers after the days of Sir Walter Raleigh who invented the first chewing "cud."

Fortunately for Mr. Smythe and perhaps more fortunately for Mr. Young, the PBM (penalty box missile) was away off target. It is reported Young's line of sight was good but apparently he used the wrong propellant charge because the missile fell short and failed to scatter.

As was mentioned, Mr. Young's address based on his opinion of the state of the referee's union, was generously colored with words not contained in Mr. Webster's tome, so Mr. Smythe charges, and this too is undergoing the probing activities of Mr. Campbell.

Swearing in the penalty box. So what else is new?

I am not condoning Young's actions in the penalty box or on the ice, but it seems to me he comes under the category of "Give a dog a bad name and everybody wants to take a swipe at him."

And the worst offenders in this case are those hale'ed Joes in the pews who pay their way into hockey arenas with the impression that their ticket gives them the privilege of sipping at a forbidden "mickey", roaring far the home team and blasting profanity-wise the opposing players and generally the officials, depending on who suffers from a penalty viewpoint.

You don't have to go to Maple Leaf Gardens or any other National Hockey League forum or arena to listen in on cuss-word capers. Nor do professional hockey players have to hold graduation diplomas from a school of Applied Profanity before they are offered a contract.

You can get just as rich fare in any arena where hockey is played. Rabid hotbead fans give way to their feelings without regard for, as Mr. Smythe put it, "There were women and young people who were forced to listen to it," or words to that effect.

And particularly so if there is a "special target" on the forces of the opposing team.

As a Maple Leaf Gardens executive said, according to a story in a Toronto newspaper, "I don't blame some of the players when they blow up and yell back. The fans never come down and tell the guy off, they stand up in their seats, safe, and yell some pretty shit things."

He goes on: "Chicago's Howie Young isn't the first player to blandly answer his critics. No matter what NHL president Clarence Campbell hands out as punishment, he won't be the last either. Hot-tempered Howie went too far when he spat, but so did some of the fans who goaded him into retaliation."

City hockey fans will recall there was plenty of player-goading in the halcyon days of senior "A" hockey. And that applies to every club and arena in the circuit. We had it aplenty here.

I remember covering a senior "A" tilt in a certain city. Prior to the game I saw some thirty or forty young urchins loading water-pistols at a drinking fountain?

I asked them "what for?"

"We're going to give that Belleville goalie the works," said a hard-looking teener.

Perhaps Gordie Bell will recall that incident. During the game he almost went into the stands to "get at" some hecheeds who were hurling verbal imprecations at him.

NAMED TOP HORSE

TORONTO (CP) — Country Don, a four - year - old pacer owned by Andre Mercure and Roger Caron of St. Hyacinthe, Que., was named Thursday as the Canadian Trotting Association's horse of the year for 1963 at the association's annual meeting here. He was also named top three-year-old. Country Don has a best mile record of 1:97 3-5 and was ranked right behind Overtrick and Meadow Skipper as the outstanding three-year-old in the United States last season. He earned $141,739 last season.

Rangers Win Four In Row ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Blues Bop Bruins; Wings Clip Hawks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Rangers are hot, Chicago Black Hawks are cold and that's the way things went in the National Hockey League Thursday night.

Rangers made it four straight victories with a 5-3 win over Boston Bruins while Chicago bowed to Detroit Red Wings by the same score.

The loss was the third in the last four games for the league-leading Hawks.

LOSE 10 STRAIGHT

Attendance at Boston Gardens was a low 6,739.

Boston's Ed Westfall was taken to hospital complaining of impaired vision after suffering a 10-stitch cut when struck by a stick held by New York's Phil Goyette late in the second period.

Detroit blew an early two-goal lead but bounced back to take the game sparked by a two-goal effort by Larry Jeffrey in Detroit.

Jeffrey's second marker came in the third period with the Hawks pressing for a tie.

FOUND THE MARK

Hull's goal was his 34th, the best in the league so far, and it was No. 88 for Wharram.

All teams are idle until Saturday when Boston goes to Toronto to play the Maple Leafs and Detroit visits Chicago.

Picton Plays Juniors Here Tonight

The Belleville "B"s, hard-hit by injuries just when the club was making its move up the OHA Eastern Junior Hockey League ladder, will tackle Picton's rugged Merchants in a nine o'clock game here tonight.

Belleville will be without high-scoring Stu Muirhead for the next six weeks and Bill Lang is also expected to miss tonight's tilt. Picton will be missing a key man in defenceman Tim O'Grady. He was injured in a car accident last week.

Picton and the "B"s have met twice to date this season and provided two close, hard-fought games. They played to a 4-4 tie in Picton and the "B"s nipped the visitors 6-5 here two weeks ago. The Merchants will be out to even that count tonight.

No official word has come from the team but it is expected that Bobby Boyle may be moved up to fill Muirhead's spot on Belleville's top line. At the time of Muirhead's injury he had 14 goals and 19 assists for 33 points. Left-winger Grant Hagerman was 15-9 for 24 and centre Jim Rutherford had 12-8 for 20, giving the line 77 points.

Manager Mel Richards said earlier that he was attempting to land a replacement for the injured Muirhead. His desire will be tough ones to fill and no other word has been forthcoming on the matter this week.

Bulldogs Tie Maroons In Overtime

WINDSOR (CP)—Real Cherrétils tucked in a crease shot at 11:40 of the third period to give Windsor Bulldogs a 1-1 overtime tie with Chatham-Maroons in an international Hockey League contest Thursday night.

The tie lifted the Bulldogs into a fourth-place tie with Des Moines Oak Leafs and moved the Maroons within a point of fourth spot.

Only three penalties were called with Chatham taking them all. Rutledge made 33 saves and Chatham's Al Bennett came up with 31.).

Feather Champ Fights Tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP) Featherweight champion Sugar Ramos may desert his division if he beats lightweight Vicente Derado in a non-title 10-round televised fight tonight.

Depending on the result of tonight's encounter with the rugged Drado, Ramos may then seek a title bout with Ortiz.

Bower 'Injury' Imlach Excuse?

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

In the top-seven bracket of the National Hockey League's point-collecting race, everyone with the opportunity made something of it Thursday night.

All five players who were active improved their records.

Stan Mikita, the leader, added an assist to run his total to 83 points.

Andy Bathgate, the No. 6 man, picked up an assist. Phil Goyette, just back of him, collected three of them.

Jean Beliveau's Montreal Canadiens and Frank Mahovlich's Toronto Maple Leafs were inactive. The two round out the top seven.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts.
Mikita, Chi	22	31	53
Beliveau, Mtl	18	23	41
Hull, Chi	34	34	40
Wharram, Chi	23	18	41

TORONTO (CP) Veteran goal tender Johnny Bower of Toronto Maple Leafs will miss two weekend games with Boston Bruins and next week's practice sessions because of an injured hand, the club announced Thursday.

He will be replaced in the Toronto nets by alternate goalie Don Simmons.

"I have seen this about three times in the last three weeks and it has not improved," Dr. Murray said. "I think it will become chronic if he doesn't have a period of rest."

However, a story in The Globe and Mail suggests the injury report was cooked up by Leaf manager - coach Punch Imlach to hide the real reason for Bower's departure.

DISCARDED EQUIPMENT

The Globe says Bower "stomped angrily" into the Leafs dressing-room 19 minutes before Thursday's practice session was to end and hurled his equipment to the floor.

Bower refused to comment on his action, the newspaper says, but adds it learned from one source that an incident in Wednesday night's 6-1 victory over Montreal Canadiens led to Bower's annoyance.

"As one stage of the game, Canadiens pucks John Ferguson sped across the Toronto goal mouth, brushing against Bower. Ferguson fell hacking into the boards. When play halted, Bower skated toward Ferguson with solicitous intent, and gave him a friendly pat with his stick when he saw the rival player was all right.

"Imlach, according to this source, told Bower that his job was between the goalposts and to stay there. When there was a further reference to the episode during practice, Bower reportedly steamed off the ice with words to the effect that he would play the game his own way."

Vote Four Hawks To NHL All-Stars

Beliveau Over Mikita

MONTREAL (CP) — Not unexpectedly, Chicago Black Hawks have a unanimist choice of the positions in midway voting for the National Hockey League all-stars.

The Hawks, in first place for most of the first half of the season, voted 12,118 ballots on the two teams, announced by the NHL Thursday night. They placed four men on the first team, including Bobby Hull, who was the only player to receive 90 points, the maximum possible.

The teams, with points received:

Second team: Goal — Johnny Bower, Toronto, 86; defence — Elmer Vasko, Chicago, 54, and Bob Baun, Toronto, 17; centre — Stan Mikita, Chicago, 64; right wing — Gordie Howe, Detroit, 45; left wing — Frank Mahovlich, Toronto, and Dave Balon, Montreal, 23.

Sports writers and sportscasters in the six NHL cities chose the teams, with the voting compiled on a basis of five points for a first-place ballot, three for second and one for third.

CAGE FOR NOMINEES

Each of the players named to the first team will receive $800 and those on the second team $250. Balon and Mahovlich, for the second-team left - wing spot, will each receive $250.

There will be another vote at the end of the regular schedule and those selected will receive $800 and $250 for first and second-team berths. In the over-all compilation of the two votes, first-team members will receive $2,000 each and second - team players $500.

Hall and Pilote, both in their ninth season with Chicago, are the only players on the final all-star team. Howe, sixteen times named to the 1963-64 midway first team. Mahovlich, Mikita and Vasko were named to last season's first team and Horton, Vasko and Hull to the second team.

Wharram, Baun and Balon have never before been selected to an all-star berth.

HONOUR NOT NEW

For Hall and Beliveau, the honour is not an unusual one. Beliveau has been on six first teams and one second team and Hall has been on the first team four times and the second three times. Hull has had two first and one second — selection. Pilote one first and three seconds and Horton two seconds.

Other players who received one or more votes:

Goal — Charlie Hodge, Montreal, 23; Gump Worsley, Boston, 12; Terry Sawchuk, Detroit, 9; Jacques Plante, New York, 4; Roger Crozier, Harry Howell, New York, 15; Terry Harper, Montreal, 14; Tom Johnson, Boston, 13; Ted Harris, Montreal, 12; J. C. Tremblay, Montreal, 8; Jacques Laperriere, Montreal, 6; Jean-Guy Talbot, Montreal, 6; Doug Barkley, Detroit, 5; Carl Brewer, Toronto, 5; Marcel Pronovost, Detroit, 4; Allan Stanley, Toronto, 3; Bill Gadsby, Detroit, 1.

Right wing — Andy Bathgate, New York, 26; George Armstrong, Toronto, 12; Bernie Geoffrion, Montreal, 1.

Generals Defeat Hawks

Marlies, Habs Keep Pace

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hard - shooting Yvan Cournoyer is one reason Montreal Junior Canadiens are keeping pace with league-leading Toronto Marlboros in the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A series.

The high-scoring rightwinger fired both goals in leading the Canadiens to a 3-1 victory over Hamilton Red Wings. The victory left Montreal eight points back of Marlboros, who defeated third-place Peterborough Petes 7-2.

The only other scheduled game saw Oshawa Generals strengthen their hold on the last playoff spot by dumping fourth-place St. Catharines Black Hawks 6-3.

Toronto, winning its 24th game in 33 starts, including five ties, leads the parade with 53 points. Montreal trails with 45, followed by the Petes with 36. St. Catharines 33, Niagara Falls 32, Oshawa 26, Hamilton 17, and Kitchener Rangers 12.

Cournoyer, runner-up in the division's scoring battle, pushed his goal-scoring lead to 37. His first goal came on a power play in the opening period, and his second with 15 seconds to go in the middle period.

Ron Buchanan, a pleasant surprise in the Oshawa attack this season, counted two goals to lead the Generals in their defeat of the Hawks, played in Trenton. Defenceman Bobby Orr, Bill Smith, Wayne Cashman and Bob Kilgor added singles. Dennis Hull, Joe Kish and Keith Laidlaw scored for the losers.

Art Graham of the Black Hawks suffered a broken nose in the second period when he was hit by the puck. He was taken to hospital where the nose was set and he returned to play in the third period.

Cubs Get Good News

Ernie Banks Physically Fit

CHICAGO (AP)—Ernie Banks has been produced 100 per cent physically fit for the 1964 National League baseball campaign, a cheery note for Chicago Cubs.

So important was Banks' fitness premium that the report was read by Dr. Jacob Sulkin, physician, to club stockholders Thursday.

"Ernie is 100 per cent fit," said Sulkin. "There is no reason, physically, that should prevent him from playing every game in 1964. His eyes have also checked out okay. All we can say is that he is physically fit to play. But we can't hit for him."

Last year the ailing Banks slumped to a .227 batting average, his lowest in the majors. He hit only 18 homers compared to his high of 47 in 1958, and drove in 64 runs compared to a high of 143 in 1959.

The great slugging star was converted from shortstop to first base in 1962. He hit .369 then, drove in 104 runs and got 37 homers.

Banks, who will be 33 Jan. 31, was in Nassau and unable to make the meeting. He appeared in only 130 games last year. His slump was blamed on an illness diagnosed as a rare form of mumps.

He was a worried man and was finally relieved later when he got a clean bill of health from Mayo Clinic.

EXPECTS AVERAGE

Head coach Bob Kennedy expects Banks to have an average season this year.

"By that I mean he should hit 35 to 40 homers, drive in around 100 runs and bat about .275," said Kennedy. "That would be about his average over the years."

North Shore Hockey

Melville Shorelinrrs were credited with the best record of the season, by forfeit, while Wellington and Stinson's fought to the finish in Prince Edward North Shore Hockey League games at Wellington last night.

Consecon allegedly using 5 legal players defeated Melville 3-2 and Consecon was promptly awarded the win to the young Melville squad.

Stinson Consecon traded Wellington 3-1 and 5-3 by periods before the county boys outscored Stinson 5-3 in the final period to grab the tie.

Bill Cenerewicz, wigs two goals and one assist, and Ed Esi and Pete Mitchell, each with a brace of goals, were the Stinson scoring leaders. Winner of odd Weatherall had a goal and two assists while Dickey potted the other goal.

Gary Pyke sparked the Wellington attack, scoring three goals and helping on another. Al Pettingill and Norm Kerr each added two assists each, Joe Scott was one and one. Al Rewtie and Norm Hodgson had a goal apiece.

There were ten penalties assessed in the game, including a major to each club.

Aces Create Jam Atop Division

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Quebec Aces have created a logjam atop the American Hockey League's Eastern Division standings with three clubs involved in the scramble.

Aces whipped Baltimore Clippers 6-3 in the only game played Thursday night. In winning, Quebec moved into second place, past Clippers, who fall to third.

The victory enabled Aces to close within one point of Mic Hershey Bears, the Eastern Division pace-setter. Bears have 30 points, Quebec 38 and Baltimore 37.

A pair of goals by Terry Gray his 19th and 20th of the season—triggered Aces to a 3-0 lead in the first period and Aces never were headed. They boosted the advantage to 6-1 before Baltimore scored twice late in the game.

Ed Hoekstra, Jim Morrison, Leo Rochefort and Bill Sutherland were the other Quebec goal-getters. Harry Pickering tallied twice for Clippers and play-ing coach Aldo Guidolin scored the other goal.

Junior Commissioner Frank Boucher

Says Hockey Needs Major Rules Changes

REGINA (CP) — Commissioner Frank Boucher of the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League says hockey lost its place as Canada's top sports a good deal because it has not matched the major rule changes made in football.

Boucher, 61-year-old former national hockey league player, coach and manager who won the Lady Byng Trophy seven times in his career, thinks play in the NHL, said in an interview here Thursday that "there hasn't been a major change in the rules of hockey for 30 years."

"But within the last 30 years football has become the number one sport in Canada because of the major rule changes they've made. The forward pass is one example."

Boucher had some suggestions which he feels would make hockey a more open and attractive game to the paying public. One of his suggestions, curtailment of the slap shot, already has been carried out in the OJHL.

HAS OTHER IDEAS

Boucher advocated, in addition to curtailment of the slap shot, lengthening of the end zones by three feet each; removal of the red centre line; changing the "icing the puck rule" to make it apply only to shots from outside the attacking zone and prohibition of body-checking within three feet of the boards.

He said also that there should be stiffer enforcement of rules prohibiting holding of a player on the puck. This would eliminate holding against the boards.

Boucher said his rule changes would eliminate excessive forechecking into the boards, holding of an opponent or the puck against the boards and overemphasis on the slap shot—all "undesirable tactics."

The commissioner said the last major rule change in hockey was introduction of the red centre line in the early 1930's. This was done to eliminate wide-open end-to-end play by allowing defensive players to pass the puck up the centre line.

Before the red centre line emerged, defending players had to carry the puck out of their own end of the three zones marked out by the two bluelines and this was often impossible when five attacking players were trying to prevent defensive play.

But now, Boucher said: "A persistent and effective forechecking game has come into being which is making it almost impossible to organize a good attack on play. Something should be done to make it more difficult to forecheck so much that the game becomes so scrambly."

Ron Hergott Clings to Score Lead

GALT (CP) Ron Hergott of Galt Hornets clung to the OHA Senior hockey individual scoring lead for the second straight week but Vance Millar of Orillia and Burlooks is hard on his heels.

Hergott's linemate, left winger Jim Dahmer, bolted into third place only two points off the pace. Dahmer fired five goals in the same game, as Galt won, lost and tied its last three decisions.

Bob Robinson of Woodstock, Jimmy Robertson of Welland and Joe Hogan of Galt share fourth place, all with 32 points. Dave Dryden of Galt remained at the head of the goal-tending race for the ninth straight week but his average swelled to 3.14 from 2.83.

Trot Boss Hands In Resignation

TORONTO (CP) — Hugh Proudfoot, 51, of Fort Coulonge, Que., unexpectedly resigned Thursday as president of the Canadian Trotting Association because of having "too many irons in the fire."

Proudfoot guided the CTA through the major struggle three years ago when the Ontario Racing Commission announced its decision to control, direct and govern harness racing in the province. The commission had the power to do so by provincial statute.

Stating president of the CTA was fun when I started," said Proudfoot. "But the job now demands more than I can give it and I'll say the decision to quit it has been on my mind since last year."

Gananoque Shaded By Picton 6-5

By JACK FAWKES

PICTON — A three-goal eruption in the third period snatched a 6-5 victory for Picton McFarlands Juniors over the Gananoque Islanders in the latter's arena last night.

Back-to-back Gananoque penalties in the final frame paved the way for the win, the Picton sharpshooters sweeping in two goals to break the Islanders' shorthanded.

The home squad grabbed a 3-1 lead in the first period with both teams counting twice in the second frame.

Harold Haddock who scored three goals for the winners, cut the margin to 5-4 early in the third. Then came the Gananoque penalties with Bob Brown tieing the score and Haddock firing home the winner.

Gary Hasnell and Bob Thompson rounded out the Picton scoring.

Yvette Mimieux Yearns To Be Free From Contract

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Behind the limpid eyes of Yvette Mimieux lies a whim of iron. Her agents found that out this week. She fired them.

Her studio will soon discover it. She's going to ask for a new deal.

Yvette is shopping for agents, and the new team will have the assignment of adjusting her contract with MGM. It has only two more years to run, but the winsome blonde yearns to be free from the studio's exclusive control.

"Last year MGM presented me with six different scripts, and all of them were fantastic" she said. "I couldn't possibly do them, and I told the studio so. As far as I can see, there is nothing out there for me in the future. So why shouldn't I be free to take some of the attractive possibilities that come along on the outside."

MGM BAILED

With an eye to her freedom, she is incorporating herself and plans to buy story properties which she could produce. She has despaired of getting MGM to do the same. She discovered the novel Lilith and sent copies to studio bigwigs. Nothing happened. Robert Rossen snapped it up for Warners.

Yvette's last two films have been for other companies—Diamond Head for Allied Artists and Lie. But she did return to the parent lot for a television show. It was a surprise because the girl, on principle, has long held out against television.

"But it would be unrealistic to overlook the ability of television to reach a mass audience," she explained. "In one night on TV I can be seen by more people than would go to three hit movies."

So Yvette takes the plunge next week in a Dr. Kildare show, a two-parter. She plays a surfing enthusiast who rejoices to sign her board even though a mild epilepsy attack makes it appear the sport would be dangerous for her.

At the Park

"LOVE OR MONEY"

Universal has another smash comedy! A witty and engaging romantic affair, packed with hilarious situations, and liberally dashed with surprise, this one bears the intriguing title "For Love or Money." Happily for movie-goers, it continues in the succession of superior comedies from Universal, and the laughter which rocked opening day audiences yesterday at the Park theatre was boisterous proof that the film more than lives up to the promise of its title.

And with this film, a new sophisticated romantic comedian has come upon the screen. That new comedian is Kirk Douglas, and in his first role as a romantic farceur, he emerges so tremendously, he opens up a whole new area for the deployment of his capable histrionic gifts.

Of course he is aided magnificently by a stellar cast which is composed of past masters of light screen entertainment such as Mitzi Gaynor, Gig Young, Thelma Ritter and William Bendix. Add to this list several curvaceous blondes in Leslie Parrish and Julie Newmar, paired with William Windom and Richard Sargent, respectively—and you have a picture of the reason the laughs come so fast and loud.

The other reason is in the creative handling of the production. "For Love Or Money" boasts the work of the top-notch experts at lighthearted cinema fare — producer Robert Arthur and director Blake Edwards. Arthur reigned, among others, "That Touch of Mink" and "Operation Petticoat", while Gordon, among his many successes, helmed the Rock Hudson - Doris Day Comedy, "Pillow Talk". In "For Love Or Money" they surpass their former successes.

The glib, sharp scenario, written to garner every available laugh by Larry Markes and Michael Morris, has Douglas as a lawyer-about-town, a bachelor so eager and knowing he has eluded all martial nets cast by husband-fishing beauties of every description. One of his clients, wealthy and eccentric Miss Ritter, hires him — at a fee large enough to solve his injured conscience — to serve as Cupid's aide.

He is to marry off, to men of his client's choosing, each of her three daughters, the misses Gaynor, Newmar and Parish, to Young, Sargent and Windom. How he accomplish the job—and gets himself enmeshed in the end — gives rise to a pyramiding of side-splitting situations, each complete with bright and sometimes terrible dialog.

The comedy of the new year stays until Saturday only. Complete shows tonight 7.00 and 9.10 p.m.. Saturday continues from 1.00 p.m.

Producer Planning Series On Healthy, Happy Kids

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Writers of television dramas during the last two seasons have been busily exploring problem adolescents—delinquents, gang members, bars, narcotic addicts, thieves. Meanwhile, one television producer has been planning a series about bright, healthy and happy children.

The program called Science All Stars, begins Sunday 'on ABC (4:30-5 EST). Guests will include a 16-year-old Seattle boy who built a television camera for $60; a 13-year-old Chicago boy who constructs robots and an 11-year-old Brooklyn girl who made a two-foot model of a subway, complete with self-operating electric door. . .

Steve Carlin's own television and radio experience includes writing and producing such action shows as Gangbusters and Counterspy. He also was involved in some of broadcasting's most successful games shows, including Quiz Kids, and, naturally, The $64,000 Question.

The science show had its beginnings when Sputnik I went up and Carlin, a serious-minded man realized the importance of stimulating young Americans' interest in science. He spent two years travelling around the country attending science fairs and interviewing young exhibitors.

Successful Living

Lying Is Not the Answer To Romantic Problems

DEAR DORIS — There is one boy who really seems to take me for granted and only comes around whenever he feels like it. The other night his friend told me that he thinks he can get me whenever he wants.

Last night I got mad with him by pure luck and when he walked me to the door he said, "Well, I guess I will kiss you good-night." It was then that I told him I was going steady. Of course this is not true, but I would rather die than go on with him thinking he could get me whenever there was no one else available.

Do you think telling him I was going steady was a good move? — BEV.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR BEV. — No. One lie starts a chain reaction and you end up telling three or four.

DEAR DORIS — Is it possible for me to visit Canadian Indian Reservations? I have been told I would need a permit, but surely that is not so! My interest in Canadian Indians has simmered quietly for a good many years, but now I wish to learn more. — WIDOW WITH A HOBBY.

DEAR WIDOW — You do need a permit. Get the name of the Indian agent for your area from the Indian Affairs Branch, Department of Citizenship and Immigration, Ottawa. Other sources of Indian lore are the Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada, 47 Dundonald Street, Toronto 5, Canada; and your own public library.

DEAR DORIS — I have a friend who is in the late 70's, an intelligent man with a good store of information. Unfortunately he is unhappy because people do not invite him more frequently to their homes. His attributes it to their selfishness.

He does not know it but the cause is not that. It is because he smells strongly and has dirty teeth. Like many men he objects to nightwear and pajamas. He wears, wearing the same ones in the day. This sounds terrible, but exists.

Church people would like very much to invite him home, but others in the family say firmly "no" for the reason given. — A WOULD BE HOST.

DEAR WOULD BE — Put the finger on his doctor. It could be he needs proper medical advice on caring for himself.

If the stench is from just plain dirt — which soap and water could remove — perhaps a friend like you will have to deliver the message as tactfully as possible. Soften it by first praising his intellect and by saying you like him so much you want him to appear at his best. In other words, let him have the soft soap first!

COMMUNIST LEANINGS? — Premier Cheddi Jagan (right) of British Guiana and his American-born wife, Janet, secretary of his ruling People's Progressive Party, are suspected by many of having Communist sympathies. They advocate a neutralist policy for the British colony, which has internal self-government, but whose defence and external affairs are controlled by Britain.
(CP Photo)

By RUSSELL ELMAN

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (CP)—What is the degree of Communist infiltration into British Guiana?

Rumors flit thick and fast. There are documented reports of landings of arms, Russian financial assistance for Premier Cheddi Jagan's leftist People's Progressive Party and of Cuban-style military training for youth groups.

The British colony on the northeast coast of South America has had internal self-government since 1961 but Britain handles defence and external affairs and will continue to do so until satisfied that British Guiana has attained the political maturity necessary for complete independence.

Dr. Jagan and Janet, his American-born wife who is secretary of the left party, advocate a neutralist role for an independent British Guiana. Nonetheless, they have attended a warm hand of friendship to Communist countries, encouraging trade ties and educational exchanges.

SELLS TO CUBA

Cuba, already a principal market for British Guiana sugar, recently ordered $1,800,000 worth of railway ties from the colony through Guyana Import Export Limited (Gimpex), a private company specializing in trade with Communist countries. Some of its directors are politically sympathetic to Dr. Jagan's government.

At the Gimpex office near the government buildings in Georgetown, samples are on display of such items as quality Czechoslovakian typewriters and shortwave transistor radios selling for under $50, Eastern European canned foodstuffs and blood tonic from Red China.

The agency, which acts on behalf of Cuban ships and arranges visas for visitors to Cuba, also plans to import East German cars and farm machinery and sell gasoline outlets.

Gimpex imports goods on credits from suppliers in Communist countries with repayment terms ranging between six months and five years at two per cent interest. This easy credit became available at a time when many Western companies, which still have the sugar industry, withdrew credit because of political uncertainties.

FLOUR DESTROYED

During an 80 - day general strike last summer when regular supplies were cut off from Western sources, British Guiana imported Russian flour — some of which subsequently was seized and destroyed by local health authorities because it had gone mouldy and was full of worms and canned foods. Most of the iron Curtain consumer goods seemed to find their way only to stores in country areas, where Dr. Jagan draws his greatest support.

Recently the government negotiated a $1,071,000 short-term loan at an interest rate of four per cent from Gimpex to help tide it over after the strike.

On the educational side, it is estimated at least 80 British Guianese youths are on scholarships in the Curtain countries. Several of the leading faculty members of the newly established University of Guiana are said to hold political views considerably left of centre.

Of growing importance in Dr. Jagan's party organization is the young people's group, the Progressive Youth Organization which Assistant General Secretary I. S. Singh said has many adherents in the 12,000 youths in the 13-35 age group, although the paid-up membership was only approximately 15,000. On special occasions, such as its recent annual conference, PYO members appear in uniforms of white shirts, green ties and red berets.

MARXIST VIEW

At his desk—cluttered with Communist literature—in pink-colored Freedom House, headquarters of both the PPP and PYO, 30-year-old Singh said the youth organization "provides for young people political education from a Marxian viewpoint."

It arranges lectures and seminars, publishes a monthly paper and organizes other activities including a steel band. A party college outside Georgetown offers members courses in English, mathematics, trade unionism, history of the government and party.

The printing press for the PPP daily newspaper, Mirror, came from the Communist bloc but the paper is difficult to get in Georgetown, opposition stronghold. News items, fearful of violent reprisals, sell surreptitiously from brown envelopes.

Opposition critics have also accused Dr. Jagan of packing the civil service with his own supporters, though they rarely produce their claim with concrete examples.

However, at one rice mill in the country an elderly man employed to represent farmers' interests when they get their grain graded, made no bones of the fact that he was a former PPP constituency secretary and was unstinting when he observed reading, while on the job, a strongly anti-American book on Latin America.

Want to be a camp counsellor this summer? Teen-age Canada warns that applications for the job have to be made while winter winds are still blowing.

Teen-Age Canada Predicts Best Summer Jobs Filled in Next 10 Weeks

By JAC HUTTON

Remember that popular song that begins: "Oh it's a long, long time from May to December, but the days grow short when you reach September?"

The writer of "September Song" could easily have written a different months. Time flies by even more quickly after January especially if you're hoping for a summer job.

"I'll predict right now that within 10 of 12 weeks the majority of the best and most interesting summer jobs will be spoken for," says Barry Lowes.

Have you thought of working in a summer camp? If so, listen to Barry Lowes, executive of "The Camp Counsellors' Book" published less than a year ago in Canada.

"Counsellors? I've hired almost all the staff I'll need for my own summer camp," he said. "And most camp directors I know are looking for counsellors right now."

WARM SPRING

"Many young people," he added, "start thinking about summer camp work during those first warm days of spring. Unfortunately for them, directors were looking for volunteers back in the cold days of January and February."

How do you find out if someone has a job for you personally if you have little or no experience in camping?

"Well, I suggest writing to one's provincial camping association for information," said Lowes, president of the Ontario Camping Association, until last September.

"I know the Ontario association helps in two ways. First, it advises a prospective counsellor, then it sends out lists of applicants and sends out their names to all camp directors who help anyone interested in summer camps. The Quebec Camping Association, for example, runs a registry service similar to Ontario.

"If any one of your readers don't know the address of his or her provincial association, they can find out by writing to the Canadian Camping Association, 4322 4A St. S.W. Calgary Alta.," said Mr. Lowes.

"But they may find directors are expecting more of their counsellors these days. I started as a counsellor when I was 13-years-old and thought I did a good job. But I realize today how little I really knew."

Camp directors, said Mr. Lowes, are looking for young people who seemed to be gung-athletes. "That day is passing," he said. "Today the director is more interested in young people who understand and get along with children."

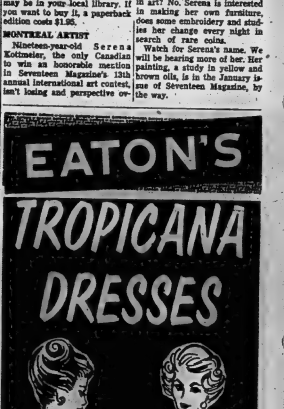
What about pay? "This varies since a great many camps still expect their counsellors to do volunteer work for nothing," said Mr. Lowes, "I think this is unfair when the same directors expect higher qualifications."

The 17-year-old will find a minimum of $75 or $100 at some camps, and may have a base salary of at least $200 by the time he is 18 years old. The important thing is that wages are increasing for counselors and will get better."

If you're interested, The Camp Counsellor's Book is published by Longman's Canada Ltd. and may be in your local library. If you want to buy it, a paperback edition costs $1.95.

MONTREAL ARTIST

Nineteen-year-old Serena Koltzeiser, the only Canadian to win an honorable mention in Seventeen Magazine's 13th annual international art contest, isn't losing and perspective over the award.



"I think I'll wait a bit before exhibiting," the Montreal artist told reporters. She is still attending Ecole des Beaux Arts as a third-year student in Montreal.

How early do you become serious about art to enter award-winning category? Serena has been painting steadily since she was in Grade 8. She began painting in oils during Grade 9.

But is she now interested only in art? No. Serena is interested in making her own furniture, does some embroidery and studies her change every night in search of rare coins.

Watch for Serena's name. We will be hearing more of her. Her painting, a study in yellow and brown oils, is in the January issue of Seventeen Magazine, by the way.

Disband Ottawa And North Bay Voodoo Units

Will Reduce Squadrons From Five to Three

OTTAWA (CP)—Disbandment of the RCAF's two Voodoo jet interceptor squadrons at Ottawa and North Bay, reducing the number of Canada's home defence squadrons to three, was announced Friday.

The CF-101 Voodoo squadrons at Chatham, N.B., Bagotville, Que., and Comox, B.C., will be retained, Associate Défence Minister Cardin said in a statement.

He said the consolidation will "improve operational efficiency and promote economy."

It was the second big economy move by the defence department this week. On Wednesday, Mr. Cardin announced 14 warships will be taken out of Royal Canadian naval service by the end of March.

Ottawa's No. 410 squadron will be disbanded March 31 and No. 414 squadron at North Bay will be closed out on June 30.

That means there will be no nuclear warheads at Ottawa, "improve operational efficiency and promote economy."

Ottawa's No. 410 squadron will be disbanded March 31 and No. 414 squadron at North Bay will be closed out on June 30.

That means there will be no nuclear warheads at Ottawa, North Bay, Bagotville and St. Chatham, N.B., reducing the number of warheads to 36 the national capital in the event of war. Although North Bay is losing its interceptor squadron, it still is a must defence centre because of its radar and communications base.

Mr. Cardin said nuclear warheads for the Voodoo squadrons at Chatham, Bagotville and Comox are not expected to be delivered until late 1965. Defence Minister Hellyer has stated previously that the storage dumps for the warheads could be completed about Oct. 1, 1964, and that the warheads would arrive soon after that.

In addition, a nuclear storage dump will be built at a deployment base at Val d'Or in northern Quebec.

In 1961, the year the RCAF switched to the American-built supersonic Voodoo from the subsonic CF-100, built by Avro Aircraft Limited, Toronto, the number of home defence squadrons was reduced to five from nine. Besides the two CF-101 squadrons each at Ottawa, North Bay, Bagotville and St. Hubert, Que., and one at Comox.

The RCAF received 66 Voodoos in 1961. Mr. Cardin, after becoming defence minister last April, turned down the air force's request for more Voodoos, which have gone out of production in the United States.

Where he announced this rejection, he indicated the number of Voodoo squadrons would be cut further.

However, action on this was not expected so soon.

The Voodoos are armed with Falcon missile, a conventional air-to-air missile. Once the Voodoo bases have their nuclear storage dumps, the aircraft is to be armed with the Genie nuclear rocket.

The consolidation of home air defence in fewer squadrons instead of five will involve increasing the number of aircraft and crews in the squadrons at Bagotville and Chatham.

Scholars Stranded By Gale

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Southern Ontario highways were mostly bare and dry today where local snowfalls and gale-force winds caused sudden drifting Friday.

Highways near Stratford had some snow - covered sections with moderate ground drifting. The highway department reported, but there was no repetition of Friday's conditions which caused officials to warn motorists to detour away from the south shore of Georgian Bay. Eves department snowplows and sanders had been unable to move there because of near zero visibility.

Good to-fair visibility was reported today.

Provincial police at Walkerton called their cruisers in Friday night when heavy drifts blocked sections of the highway.

Most schools around London, St. Marys, Mitchell, Milverton, Stratford, and west to Sarnia and Orillia closed early as officials attempted to transport students home before highway and county roads became impassable.

BUS STALLS

Some buses were successful, but others bogged down in the process. At Stratford, 30 high school students from nearby West Zorra Township were returned to Stratford after their homeward - bound bus stalled and the driver decided not to take further chances.

Two buses taking students home from an Orillia high school also became stuck.

Provincial police at Stratford were investigating a nine-car pileup when they were called to investigate another multiple-vehicle smashup, involving four cars and a truck, a mile away. No one was injured.

Sixteen-year-old Ralph Taylor had his leg broken in a four-car collision on a county road near Owen Sound. Police said the chain it started when a woman driver stopped and opened her door to see if she was still on the road.

A following car hit the open door and as Taylor and Catherine Edmonson, 20, jumped to shut the door, a third vehicle hit them. Before the road was cleared a fourth car collided with the third car.

WINDS HIGH

Northern Ontario escaped the brunt of the snowfall but winds gusting to 50 miles an hour in the open areas continued considerable drifting and reduced visibility.

Highways today ranged from bare and centre bare to snowpacked with slushy sections. Visibility in the north part of Northern Ontario was good.

Today's Chuckle

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Early morning temperatures dropped to near zero in several localities in southern Ontario and in the north country to near 40 below zero. The sunny cold weather is expected to continue in Northern Ontario. The rest of Ontario will have increasing cloudiness today with snow later today and Sunday.

Father Of Six Hanged For Murder Of Mistress

A 10-pallbearer strip is limit that cute Panama in two has been a source of considerable income, and of bitter resentment, for the Central American republic for six decades.

The Panama Canal Zone came under U.S. control in 1903, only a fortnight after Panama had achieved independence from Colombia with assistance from the United States.

Ever since Panama has complained repeatedly about the terms of the deal, with the issue finally building up to the bloody clashes that broke out Thursday night.

The list of Panamanian complaints is a long one, but it breaks down into three main issues:

1. Sovereignty — Panama is content for the time being to let the U.S. run the canal, but wants its legal and civil authority to extend into the Canal Zone. The U.S. grants only "titular sovereignty" but no actual control.

2. Money—Panama feels the current annual payment of less than $2,000,000 for the zone is ridiculously low. The U.S. argues that the actual income to Panama from the canal is much more—$75,000,000 in 1962, for example.

3. Duration of U.S. rights — The 1903 treaty provided that the U.S. exercise all authority in the zone in perpetuity. Panamanians see this clause as a kind of left-over colonial issue that can no longer be tolerated. They want a fixed time limit for U.S. withdrawal.

EXPLOSIVE ISSUE

Of all the complaints, the sovereignty question has been the most explosive.

In 1959 it led to riots when a group of students tried to plant the Panamanian flag in the zone.

President Eisenhower later said that the U.S. had recognized the "titular sovereignty of Panama" over the zone for 60 years. One Panamanian flag was permitted beside the U.S. flag in a remote corner of the zone. American residents were furious.

The flag issue was raised again in the summer of 1962 when President Roberto Chiari paid a friendly visit to Washington. President Kennedy agreed to "the flying of Panamanian flags in an appropriate way in the Canal Zone."

Kennedy and Chiari also agreed on establishment of a commission to study points of dispute over the Canal Zone, an action which apparently gave the Panamanians high hopes that their claims would be recognized.

The results were limited. Last January the U.S. announced two concessions. It said that in future the Panamanian flag would fly beside the U.S. flag whenever it was flown "by civilian

Will Urge Both Countries To Place All Restraint On Troops And Civilians

United States Special Envoys Launch Peace-Making Efforts

By CARMAN CUMMING

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United Nations Security Council appealed early today for an immediate cease-fire in the two-day clash between Panamanians and U.S. forces in the Panama Canal Zone.

The move came after Panama, charging U.S. forces with shooting Panamanians, said it had broken diplomatic relations with the United States.

There were no objections to the action, proposed by Brazil, although the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia had called earlier for stronger measures by the council.

Other members said the council should do nothing to weaken the peace-keeping machinery of the Organization of American States already was in motion.

SENDS APPEALS

The council adjourned at 12:30 a.m. less than two hours later, a UN spokesman said the chairman had dispatched identical appeals for a cease-fire to U.S. State Secretary Rusk and Panama's Foreign Minister Galileo Solis.

The emergency night session was called at the request of Panama, which accused the U.S. forces in the American-controlled zone of unprovoked armed attacks on its civilian population in which 20 persons had died.

Ambassador Aquilino Boyd said the trouble had been started by American students and "Zonians," as residents of the 10-mile-wide Canal Zone are known, but that it was the Zonians had always been noted for their hostility to the people of Panama, for their discrimination and their contempt for the laws and institutions of Panama.

The Zonians, with U.S. authorities turning a blind eye, had sabotaged an agreement under which the U.S. and Panamanian flags were to fly side by side in certain parts of the zone he said.

Boyd did not elaborate on his reference to international control over the canal except to say that Panama would claim special privileges in its operation.

He said the 1903 treaty under which U.S. had obtained permanent rights in the zone was "virtually imposed" on Panama. But his country had nevertheless fulfilled its share of the pact, while the U.S. carried out only those parts with which it agreed.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson denied the charges of aggression, saying that only minimum measures had been taken to protect the zone and its residents. He said tear gas and small-calibre rifle fire had been used after disorderly mobs entered the zone and attacked U.S. citizens following a flagraising incident.

Stevenson said the U.S. government and people were deeply stressed by the tragic and needless loss of life" in the clashes, which were a blot on the record of friendly relations between the two countries. His government was doing everything possible to restore peace and order.

PANAMA CITY (AP)—Strong diplomatic efforts were launched on all sides today to resolve the crisis surrounding Panama's decision to break relations with the United States and scrap the 61-year-old Panama Canal Treaty.

In the wake of violence that claimed 23 Panamanians and three U.S. soldiers—the emphasis shifted to maintaining a state of relative calm. Jails in the capital city were jammed with Panamanians arrested for looting and causing disturbances.

A peace mission from the Organization of American States arrived from Washington and arranged for immediate conferences with President Roberto Chiari and Foreign Minister Galileo Solis.

President Johnson's special envoys were also at work. U.S. Assistant State Secretary Thomas C. Mann and Army Secretary Cyrus R. Vance met for an hour and a half Friday night with President Chiari.

NEW SHOOTING

Even as they conferred at the Presidential Palace new shooting was reported at the Canal Zone border. Panama officials said U.S. troops opened fire, but the only casualties reported were six Panamanians injured by flying glass.

Quiet prevailed in the capital this morning with flags remaining at half-staff and most businesses closed as Panamanians

Goldwater Asks Probe By Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Barry Goldwater asked Friday for a full-scale Senate investigation of what he called a dependability gap in U.S. longrange missiles.

Refusing to back down on his statement that "our intercontinental missiles are not dependable," the Arizona Republican pressed a controversy that could develop the bitterness of the missile-gap controversy of the 1960 U.S. presidential election campaign.

"If I am proven wrong I will be very pleased and happy to admit it," he said, "but if there is a lack of dependability I do not believe the American people should be lulled into a false feeling of security by numbers and statistics. . . ."

Goldwater asserting he probably would "catch hell" for doing so, raised the issue at a press conference in Portsmouth, N.H., Thursday while campaigning for the Republican party's presidential nomination for the November U.S. election.

Defence Secretary Robert McNamara promptly issued a statement accusing the senator of "damaging U.S. security with what McNamara called a completely misleading and politically irresponsible reference to the country's intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Goldwater said in his statement Friday: "I do not mean to say to me that the secretary of defence would call a dependability gap a political issue when the missile gap, so profusely used in the 1960 campaign, wasn't so considered by his present associates. And it was a gap, by the way, that never existed, as the secretary and his associates well know."

Venezuela May Blacklist Nations Trading With Cuba

CARACAS, Venezuela (CP-AP) — President Romulo Betancourt says his country's "reaction" to nations that trade with Cuba — particularly Canada, Britain and Spain—"could be to give them a choice between commerce with Cuba and commerce with Venezuela."

Observers here interpreted the Venezuelan president's statement as a strong threat but not a final declaration that Venezuela intends to end commerce with countries involved in Cuban trade.

Betancourt told newspaper men attending the annual seminar of North American Journalists Thursday that "these commercial actions with Cuba are greatly resented by those who have suffered from communist subversion." He urged censure of nations trading with Cuba.

He cited sales of British buses and Spanish and Canadian ships to Cuba.

"It is incomprehensible," he said, "that countries within the free world, who also form part of NATO, conduct commerce with a government which is actively promoting Communist subversion on the continent."

Three tons of weapons allegedly sent from Cuba and found on a Venezuelan beach last November should, he said, convince the free world that Cuban Premier Fidel Castro is exporting subversion and violence against democracy.

He said that an outboard motor, sold to Cuba by Canada, was found among the weapons. The date of the sale was not known and he did not blame Canada specifically for the sale.

Among those present at the conference was Paul Kidd of the Hamilton Spectator. Asked by Kidd what he would suggest as being a valuable role for Canada in the hemisphere, Betancourt replied that Canada could, perhaps should, join the Organization of American States.

He said that even though Canada did not sign the Rio Treaty creating the OAS, Canada has an obligation of "solidarity" to the hemisphere.

Labor Congress Concerned At Use of Consumer Taxes

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress said Friday it is concerned with the increasing government reliance on consumer taxes as a source of revenue. These taxes, the congress said, have no regard for the ability-to-pay concept.

Russell Bell, acting director of research for the 1,050,000-member CLC, said that so long as the government continues to collect a greater portion of its tax-revenue from consumer taxes "and going to fall on the person least able to pay."

The CLC delegation, headed by Secretary - Treasurer Donald C. MacDonald, presented its brief to the commission that said the Canadian tax structure, wherever possible, should be built on the ability-to-pay concept, and income taxes were best suited to this. The brief also said that not enough use is being made of fiscal and monetary policies to control the economic climate in Canada.

In this respect, the CLC suggested that additional powers be given to the government so it could implement Canada's budget without waiting for parliamentary approval — although it would have to be subject to parliament later—so necessary tax changes would not be delayed. Mr. Bell said that by using taxation as an economic lever, threatened inflations or recessions

The Sin of the Father Bears Hard on the Meekers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five little children, whose father is under sentence of death, now have been abandoned by their mother, social welfare officials disclosed Friday.

The five are Gary 6, Mary Ann 5, Denny 4, Judy 3, and a baby boy, not quite two, who officials said were born into a life of poverty and heartbreak which resulted from the marriage union of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Meeker.

Meeker, 30 — barring successful appeal or commutation of his death sentence—is to be hanged March 17 for the brutal sex-slaying of 12-year-old Alice Mathers of Mission last June. Their mother, attractive 28 - year - old Lillian Meeker, supported the children on social welfare after leaving her husband 21 months ago.

But today the little Meeker children don't even have their mother.

"Please call the welfare to take the kids. I can't keep up with it all now."

60 Drugs Banned in United States Are Allowed to Be Sold in Canada

QUEBEC (CP) — Lawyer Sidney Lazarovits said Friday at least 60 drugs are being sold in Canada that have been banned by the Food and Drug Administration in the United States because they have harmful side effects.

The statement came during the trial of J. Harry van Vliet, owner of the Generic Drug Company, Cap Rouge, Que., charged with selling 600 tablets of both triparanol and trifluoropromazine in 1962.

Mr. Lazarovits questioned officials of the Canadian food and drug directorate on the definition of a "new drug." Van Vliet is charged with breaking a regulation that says drugs that are new may not be sold until they are approved by the food and drug directorate.

There's Many a Slip Of Beer From the Ship

QUEBEC (CP) — A new beer in bottles identical but known in the region as La Sainte Adresse has become familiar on a 76-mile stretch of the St. Lawrence River's north shore, police said Friday.

The beer is so well known that police could not be surprised to find cases of it in driving snow and high winds off Les Escoumains, 145 miles northeast of Quebec.

The vessel was carrying 30,000 cases of beer to Baie-Comeau, 225 miles northeast of Quebec.

Jean - Roman Bouchard, captain of the Saint Adrienne, said in an interview here 10,000 cases of beer are missing from his vessel and the rest will be destroyed.

He said it is only two miles from the vessel to the nearest road and that some persons even approached the Saint Adresse in tractors and snowmobiles to get the beer.

Capt. Bouchard said it was easy to get access to the ship's cargo at low tide.

"A lot is said about La Sainte Adresse beer in the area," he said. "Some persons have even had to go to hospital because of drinking frozen beer."

Policy Group Drafting New PC Program

By JAMES NELSON

MONTREAL (CP) — The policy drafting committee of the Progressive Conservative party today tackled the hard core of its problem of writing a vote-attracting program for the next federal election, a document it may come.

The 36-member group, preparing for next month's annual general meeting of the party which is expected to draw more than 3,000 delegates and guests to Ottawa, worked all day Friday and Saturday morning behind heavily-guarded doors.

So far, committee spokesmen said, it has not reached the key question of the party leadership.

While chairman A. W. Cox, Toronto lawyer, is avoiding mention of any particular proposals before the closed meeting of the committee, it is known that several groups have suggested a secret ballot vote on any resolution affirming continued support of John Diefenbaker.

MORE MEANINGFUL

Party officials have also say suggestions that there should be a secret vote do not constitute a criticism of Mr. Diefenbaker, but rather a feeling in the party's ginger group that if the Conservatives are to win a vote of confidence without the influences which probably would accompany an open vote, it would be a more meaningful victory for the party's present leader.

Other committee sources said that when it does come to deal with the leadership question, the committee is likely to produce a strong motion in favor of Mr. Diefenbaker's continued leadership, leaving it then to the make-contents to propose amendments or the to-by to defeat it on the floor of the open meeting in February.

The committee will meet again in Ottawa Feb. 2, on the eve of the general meeting Feb. 3 to 5.

Report Expected to Link Smoking With Lung Cancer

By JOHN BARBOUR

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government makes public today its special advisory committee's findings on cigarette smoking affects life and health.

The report was expected to link smoking to a number of diseases, including lung cancer and heart disease.

Already health and anti-smoking groups are issuing blasts at smoking and urging educational campaigns against it.

The impact of the report on the big tobacco industry and tobacco producing states was also being watched.

As it awaited the stock exchanges were closed and thus will show no immediate reaction. However, even with expectation of a bad report, tobacco stocks have remained on a fairly even keel during the week.

And despite the previous rash of medical findings in Britain here and abroad condemning smoking as a health hazard, Americans were expected by the agriculture department to have lighted up a record number of cigarettes last year — an estimated 523,000,000,000.

NO RECOMMENDATIONS

It will work for 14 months pouring over the findings of Surgeon - general's advisory committee and under strict orders not to offer any recommendations for federal action in the report.

The committee's assigned duty was to weigh the available scientific and statistical information and to rate the measure of the risks smoking presents to the individual.

A separate report—perhaps by a different committee—will survey those risks and offer suggestions as to what can be done.

The tobacco industry has argued that no medical proof has been developed to link cigarette smoking to be a health hazard.

The long-expected and unprecedented federal report—by 10 doctors and scientists chosen for their lack of bias on the issue—will present no new research. Its sole job was to assess the evidence on hand. So in a sense the report will be only as good as that evidence.

Although the committee's report has been well guarded under "top secret" conditions—few close to the available evidence doubted that the report would conclude that smoking is a health risk.

Penicillin Pills Mixed With Aspirin

NEW YORK (AP)—A major drug manufacturer said Friday night more than one per cent of oral penicillin tablets were mistakenly placed in shipments of six hospital-size bottles of the company's aspirin tablets.

In co-operation with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, E. R. Squibb and Sons now is attempting to trace and recover these bottles of aspirin. There are 250 penicillin tablets mixed in with 30,000 aspirin tablets, the company said.

While oral penicillin is safer than when injected into the body, the company said it is possible for a person to have an adverse reaction.

Squibb said the aspirin tablet is stamped on both sides with the company name. The penicillin tablet is grooved, but does not bear the company name. Both tablets are white.

West Berliners May Cross Wall If Need Urgent

BERLIN (Reuters) — East Germany is willing to let West Berliners visit East Berlin for "urgent family matters" under a new proposal to West Berlin authorities published here.

The proposal, following the Christmas pass plan which ended last weekend, was published by the East German news agency ADN and East Berlin newspapers.

A West Berlin city government spokesman confirmed the bare fact, but said no detailed proposals had been received from East German negotiator Erich Wendt.

Hay Bay Area Joins No. 11 Tourist Region

KALADAR — The regular monthly meeting of the Regional Council of the Hastings and Land O' Lakes Tourist Region, No. 11, was held in Kaladar Hotel. The council will continue to support information centres on No. 7 Highway, and the Ontario Travel Council's operation of tourist information and service centres on 401 Highway. It has contributed $1,075.

Correspondence from the traffic and planning studies section of the Department of Highways indicated that it would not be willing to make any additions to the signs at Highway 401, as requested by the Regional Council of Frankford, Marmora and Stirling. A committee was appointed by the Regional Council to look into the matter and see if anything further can be done about the situation.

It was announced that the Hay Bay district, which was part of the Quinte Isle Region, is joining Land O' Lakes, thus participating in Region No. 11.

Correspondence was read regarding government grants to historical museums, and exemption from federal sales tax for certain classes of printed matter.

Representatives from the Kaladar Rod and Gun Club attended the meeting, and plans were discussed for a regional fishing contest, the suggestion being that winners from the various fish, rod, gun or conservation clubs be eligible to compete in John Deere prize-from the Regional Council.

A pamphlet which gives a colored picture map of all highways, roads, lakes, rivers, bays, etc. in the region together with the history of the region will be ready for distribution within the next two weeks and plans were laid for the prompt handling of all enquiries for accommodations.

The February meeting of the council will be held in Napanee.

FIND BODIES

ST. ANTHONY, Nfld. (CP) — RCMP said early today the bodies of four persons who fell to their deaths from a 2,000-ft cliff on Belle Isle off Newfoundland's northern tip have been recovered. A Grenfell mission plane sighted four bodies at the bottom of the cliff Friday.

County Museum Will Stay Open Year Around

Museum chairman T. S. Ransom announced this morning, after attending today the County Museum on Church Street will be open every Saturday and Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m.

Since the Museum opened in 1961, it has always closed for four months in the winter, but this year museum officials have realized their goal of a year-round operation.

Mr. Ransom explained that the museum would also be available throughout the entire year for group tours and meetings.

"Rising labor productivity makes it imperative that economic measures be adopted to assure a continually rising rate of growth in demand, for more effective use of tax policy will be needed if a deficiency in demand is to cause economic stagnation and a high level of unemployment."

KROGER'S TREND

Mr. Tell said that any new tax system should involve a trend back toward the ability-to-pay basis. Personal income taxes, the only system based on this principle, accounted for about 20 per cent of total revenue, and this meant that for the most part Canadian taxes were not progressive.

Even the personal income taxes were "not strictly ability-to-pay systems as often alleged," he said. While the rates varied between 11 and 80 per cent, the scale of rise tended to level off at high income levels, and it was commonly believed that anyone in Canada actually paid the top rate. The top rate could be avoided through the use of the 50-per-cent dividend tax credit, legal loopholes and forms of evasion.

The dividend tax credit is "excessive," he said, and should at least be reduced to a rate of 10 per cent. The practice of firms giving stock options in place of cash also worked toward the erosion of the tax base, and contributed to a less progressive structure.

Mr. Bell said he doubted if any government would make additional taxation powers it had to deal with economic control. In fact, because political implications in a government might very well hesitate to use such power." But at least it would have leeway to deal immediately with any threatening economic change.

One suggestion by the CLC was that the Carter royal commission investigate the feasibility of a graduated sales tax to replace the existing flat rate of 11 per cent now applied at the manufacturers' level. Mr. Bell suggested that a Cadillac should bear a higher rate of tax than a two-cylinder car, and the same system could be applied between other necessary and luxury items.

"... It is conceivable that many kinds of goods, because they are necessities, or simply of the price range of lower income buyers, could bear a higher sales tax."

The CLC brief didn't think this would result in a drying-up of the revenue for strategic goods. "A person who has become accustomed to purchasing a Cadillac is not likely to change his preference because of an increase in the sales tax."

Despite repeated claims before the commission that the present rates of corporate taxes are too high, the CLC said there was still no evidence to support this.

Pearson's Paris Visit Given New Importance

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—New importance may have been given the visit of Prime Minister Pearson to Paris next week as a result of failure of efforts to arrange a meeting between President de Gaulle and President Johnson.

Observers feel these circumstances could be a ready-made opportunity for Mr. Pearson to play a role in French-American relations similar to her former role in relations between London and Washington.

Success in assuming such a role may depend on the extent to which Mr. Pearson wins the confidence of Gen. de Gaulle next week and President Johnson whom he visits the following week.

Canada's deep-rooted cultural and political ties with Britain and close neighborly ties with the United States have placed the country in interpreting the one to the other.

The new emphasis which Mr. Pearson's government has placed on Canada's bilingual and bicultural character of Canada may convince France that Canada can be a similar way between Paris and Washington.

EXCHANGE VIEWS

Reports from Paris earlier this week said that France and the U.S. exchanged views on a possible meeting of Gen. de Gaulle and President Johnson next spring on the Caribbean island of Martinique.

However, the U.S. president turned down the suggestion on the ground that his newly-assumed duties bar him from leaving the country in the months ahead.

Gen. de Gaulle plans to go to Mexico in the fall and will be stopping off in Martinique en route home.

He has not yet had a meeting with Lyndon B. Johnson since John F. Kennedy's assassination brought the Texan into the driver's seat in U.S. domestic and foreign affairs.

He can hardly make a move in foreign affairs without calculating what it will be received in the U.S. and in what direction American policy is moving. The same is true of President Johnson.

It may be of benefit to both to hear their views at a third party, whose country has a foot in each camp.

Cass Will Get Crime Report By Month's End

TORONTO (CP)—An Ontario Police Commission report on organized crime in the province will be handed to Attorney-General Cass before the end of the month, Commission Chairman Judge Bruce Macdonald said Friday.

Judge Macdonald said the commission has completed its investigation and now is documenting evidence obtained in Ottawa, Washington, D.C., and New York State.

Tendering the report will be one of his last duties, he said, before he resigns as commission chairman Jan. 31 and returns to the bench in Windsor.

TCA Aircraft Skids in Snow, None Injured

OTTAWA (CP) — All 113 persons aboard a Trans Canada airliner escaped injury Friday when it skidded into a snow bank while taking off at Uplands Airport for Toronto.

TCA officials said tricky wind conditions developed at the airport and temporarily suspended flights in and out of Ottawa.

The plane, carrying 106 passengers and five crew members, was sent skidding off the runway by a sudden gust.

The aircraft was flight 653 originating in Montreal. It was to have left Ottawa at 3.30 p.m. EST. No damage was reported to the plane.

The flights in and out of Ottawa were cancelled Thursday because of icy conditions arising out of a day-long freezing rain

CIA Report 'Fabrication' Says Moscow

LONDON (AP) — Moscow radio Sat denounced as "another anti-Soviet fabrication" the report of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency that the Soviet Union is in deep economic trouble.

An English-language broadcast monitored here Friday night said in part:

"There is nothing surprising about the fact that Washington has come up with another anti-Soviet fabrication. This is not the first, and probably not the last.

"The new departure is that this time the report is from Central Intelligence Agency. The agency can always claim to have some secret source of information. However, this trick with secret information fell flat. To begin with, the CIA has greatly spoiled its reputation in the eyes of the Americans in connection with its intelligence action in Cuba and South Viet Nam.

"What is most important, however, is that the action in Cuba ressible data about the Soviet economy that is available in the United Nations and many American organizations and institutions proves just the opposite of what the CIA says."

Russia to Buy Million Tons Of U. S. Wheat

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet Union signed a contract to buy 1,000,000 tons of wheat in the United States, the news agency Reuters said in a broadcast monitored here.

Tass said the contract was signed in Moscow by Leonid Natreyev, chairman of the Exportkhleb foreign trade organization of the U.S.S.R. and Roy Folk, vice-president of the Continental Grain Corporation of the United States.

Thompson Says Caouette Wing Broke Promise

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson accused Real Caouette's Ralliement des Creditistes Friday of failure to keep its commitments to the Social Credit party at the last election.

He denied in an interview Mr. Caouette's statement Wednesday that the former Quebec wing of the Social Credit party paid deposits of 30 unsuccessful Social Credit candidates in Ontario because the national party had no funds.

"Quebec promised to pay but never did," Mr. Thompson said. "The national office had to pay them."

He described as "straight falsehood" Mr. Caouette's claim in a Sudbury, television interview that the national party lacks an organization in Quebec and other provinces.

The provincial organizations were not separate from the national organization, Mr. Thompson said. He had attended every provincial convention, except Quebec's, in the last year.

SEES DESPERATION

"These are the words of a desperate man," Mr. Thompson said in reference to Mr. Caouette's statements.

Mr. Thompson came here for a number of meetings which will determine whether Social Credit candidates will be entered in byelections in Montreal Laurier and Montreal St. Denis Feb. 19. The decision will be announced Monday.

First Aeroquay At New Malton Airport Opens

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto International Airport's first aeroquay—there will eventually be four—opens at midnight tonight.

Facilities at the doughnut-shaped, seven-storey complex, easily the most prominent building on the 4,000-acre $42,000,000 airport, range from luxury hotel accommodation to a jail.

It contains a dozen departure rooms that circle the building, an equal number of open observation decks for visitors, conference rooms, restaurant, bar and a nursery. On top there is parking space for 2,400 cars.

The aeroquay will rank the airport at one of the most modern air terminals in the world. When expansion at the airport is finished, it will be equal in size and scope to similar facilities in Chicago and Los Angeles, and will meet air traffic demands of the future.

PLANNED FOR 1972

A second aeroquay is planned for completion in 1972 and sites have already been set aside for the other two.

Calcutta Area Rioting Kills

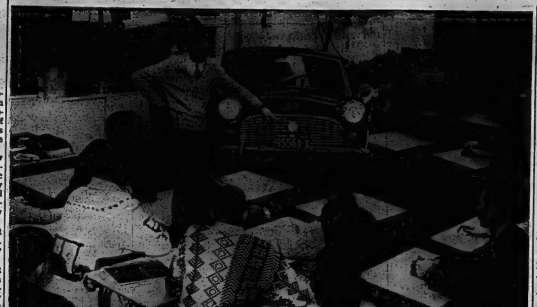
CALCUTTA, India (Reuters) More than 60 persons were killed in two days of Hindu-Moslem rioting in the Calcutta area, it was learned today.

A government official gave the latest death toll for the disturbances which brought government troops into the streets to keep the peace.

Unofficial reports also said more than 100 persons have been injured in the disorders in Calcutta and surrounding areas.

The clashes between Hindus and Moslems followed reports of disturbances in the neighboring areas of East Pakistan.

Hindus are in the minority in Calcutta.



Police in the area opened fire at least six times since midnight Friday night to disperse persons attempting to loot and set fire to stores.

Three Children Perish in Fires

MONTREAL (CP) — Three children were killed in eastern Quebec fires Friday and a Montreal fire captain was injured when an explosion ripped through a CPR underpass.

Camille Martin, 13, and his three-year-old brother, Jean, died when fire swept through the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Martin, in Jacques Cartier, across the St. Lawrence River from Montreal. The fire was caused by an oil heater blast, police said.

Alibe Cessel, 3½ - year - old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Cessel, was killed in a similar fire which police said started with an oil furnace blast in their Drummondville home 80 miles northeast of Montreal.

Capt. Marc Trudel of the fire department was overcome by gas in the blast in northeast Montreal which ripped a wooden door off the reinforced concrete room on the wall of the underpass. He was taken to hospital for treatment.

British Troops Are in Control In Borneo

BRUNEI TOWN, Brunei (Reuters) — British Defence Minister Peter Thorneycroft said Friday night terrorists crossing the border from Indonesia into Malaysia were "fairly well organized and rather well-equipped," but British, Malaysian and Gurkha troops were "obviously in control of the situation" in the Borneo territories.

Thorneycroft said whenever the "enemy" crossed the frontier they were repelled by the defending troops.

The defence minister was speaking after a helicopter tour of military outposts in the Malaysian Federation states of Sarawak and Sabah (North Borneo).

The two states plus Singapore and Malaya form the young British - backed federation — strongly opposed by Indonesia as an extension of imperialism.

There have been frequent clashes in recent months between Malaysian forces and guerrilla forces allegedly based in Indonesian territory.

Authorize Sale Of More Wheat

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government issued licences Friday for the sale of an additional $104,000,000 worth of wheat to the Soviet Union.

This raised the total of proposed shipments of U.S. wheat to Russia and her satellites to about $300,000,000 to date.

The commerce department, in announcing the latest authorizations, said the $104,000,000 covers five proposed sales.

All but $29,000,000 worth of the wheat has been earmarked for shipment to Russia. The total amount sold behind the Iron Curtain was estimated at about 150,000,000 bushels.

GIVE UP SEARCH

HONOLULU (AP) — Disheartened searchers finally have given up the hunt for nine men aboard an air force plane that has been added to the list of aircraft that have vanished in the Pacific. Eight of the men were air force crew on the C-124 Globemaster cargo plane, and one was a sailor bound for discharge who volunteered to accompany a comrade's corpse to the mainland.

Moira Cagers Sweep Games From Brighton

By DOUG BELLWOOD

Moira Trojans took all three basketball games against the Brighton high school in a home and home tilt held at Moira.

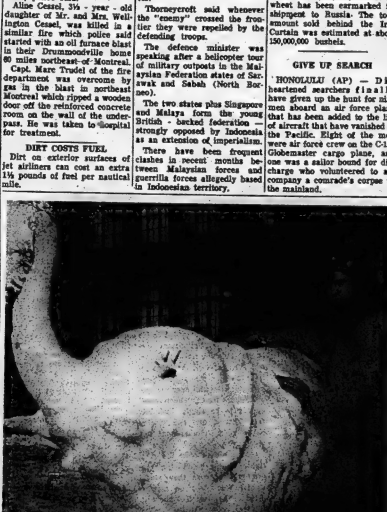
In the first half of the senior game there was very little scoring done. It was a fast moving game with good checking coming from both teams. Going into the third quarter, the score was 24 to 11 for Moira.

The last half proved to be very rough, with the major share of the 38 fouls coming then.

George Pugh of Moira was top scorer with 17 points; John McKibbon followed with nine. Hough of Brighton had 10. The final score was 65 to 18 for Moira.

The bantams defeated Brighton by a score of 40 to 18. Gordie Hayman was the big gun of the game with 14 points. Blake of Brighton hit for 6.

The juniors won by a 52 to 24 score. Bob Watson of Moira had 19 points. Graham of Brighton had 9.



Seniors

M. S. S. (65)—Pugh 17; McKibbon 9; Dunsmore; Jury 8; Graham; Newell 8; Woodcock 4; Bailey 3; Iglen; Ritchie, McMartin 2.

Brighton (18) — Hough 10; Hamilton 6; Stewart 2.

DISPUTES ECONOMY

LONDON (Reuters) — The Russian government newspaper Izvestia said Thursday the United States had dismantled 33 of its military bases not as the defence department claimed "for reasons of economy," but in order to redistribute them, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

TRENTON — The following films, selected by the Trenton and District Film Council, are available for rental from the Trenton Memorial Library during January: "D. for Design," Danish; "Million," Cornelius Kresghoff; "Correlieu," Onias Ledoc; Village in the Dust, Four Seasons, Frozen Stream and Down in the Forest, in the travel and science department; Introducing Canada, in the Canada section; A Day in the Life of Jonathan Mole, discussion and Chips Steps Out for good clean fun.

Make Donations

TRENTON— Thursday night, the Trenton Lions Club voted to donate $25.00 to the Trenton branch of the John Howard Society. Earlier in the week the Bata Shoe Company of Canada donated $50. to the same body. The John Howard Society holds the bail fund and makes no public appeals for funds. Money donated by interested citizens or groups is used to assist the families of men in prison or to assist the men themselves upon release. Several area families were helped last year by the local society. This year, William Lawson is the president of the Trenton society and he will be assisted in the devolent work of the group by Jack Goldberg.

Union Refused Right to Query Conciliator

TORONTO (CP) — A bid by the Building Service Employees' International Union (CLC) to subpoena the chairman of a conciliation board dealing with a dispute between the union and Trenton Memorial Hospital was refused Friday by the Ontario Labor Relations Board.

A spokesman for the board said disclosures of private or confidential matters would undermine and damage the conciliation process. He said it was necessary for the conciliator to "retain the personal confidence and trust of both parties to the dispute."

Some 70 non-professional employees of the hospital went on strike last November over a salary dispute. The union is seeking permission to prosecute the hospital for failing to bargain in good faith.

George J. Moir Retires After Long Service

TRENTON — Squadron Leader George J. Moir, CD, has retired from the RCAF after 22 years of service. Within two months, S/L Moir will take up duties as the general manager of Bell's Limited of Prince Albert, Sask., a farm supplies company, specializing in export grain cleaning. One of the principals of the firm is S/L Moir's father-in-law, "Lew" W. Bell. During and immediately after the war, S/L Moir served at RCAF installations in Ontario, including Trenton and Mountain View.

Since August, 1959, S/L Moir has served as Air Cadet Liaison Officer for Air Transport Command Headquarters at Trenton and during the summer of 1961 served as Accompanying Officer for the Royal Canadian Air Cadet group visiting the United Kingdom as part of the Air Cadet International Exchange scheme. S/L Moir will continue his connection with the air cadets and has been named to the Saskatchewan Provincial Committee of the Air Cadet League of Canada.

Presented With Gift

TRENTON — At Wednesday night's inaugural meeting of the Trenton Board of Education, Louis Knack, retiring member, was presented with a certificate and a gift of appreciation by board chairman T. S. Ketcheson. Mr. Ketcheson thanked Mr. Knack for his co-operation while on the board and for his faithful attention to his responsibilities. Mr. Knack has served on the board two years and was the board representative with the Trenton Recreation Committee.

Receive Promotions

TRENTON — Two Trenton-based Flying Officers have been promoted to Flight Lieutenant on the New Year promotion list. F/L R. Harvey Bailey, a native of Sudbury, has served under Staff Officer Construction Engineering at Air Transport Command headquarters since June of last year. He is married to the former D. Helen Currie of Montreal. The couple have one son, Lance.

F/L Alan G. McMullan, born in Vancouver, has served since 1961 as a staff officer in the Intelligence Branch of Air Transport Command headquarters. He is married to the former Ruth Dolligant of Vinton, P.Q. The couple have one daughter, Donna Marie. They live at Trenton.

Time to End This Farce

Isn't it about time that Canada ended the farce of sentencing murderers to death?

We ask this question not as a newspaper which has joined in the widespread demand that the death sentence be abolished, but rather as an advocate of its retention.

Our objection to the existing system is that it in no way resembles that uniformity and certainty of punishment which alone can make the death penalty a useful weapon for society in its efforts to protect itself from the vengeful or the wanton slayer.

Despite everything which the opponents of capital punishment have said, none of them can deny that no man who has been hanged for his first murder has ever committed a second after his execution.

That alone is an adequate reason why capital punishment should be retained—but in a society ruled by law it is imperative that this penalty should be imposed uniformly.

It has been years since this has been the case in Canada.

When the Diefenbaker Government came to power, the number of murder cases in which death sentences were commuted to life terms rose sharply.

Such cases were dealt with individually by the Cabinet—on "its merits" was the phrase used, but what was meant was that, after an alleged killer had been tried by a jury of his peers and found guilty, and after he had exhausted all avenues of appeal, the Cabinet tried the case again.

Eventually Parliament got around to devising a method which promised to restore some uniformity, and certainty, of punishment. Murder was divided into two classes, "capital" and "non-capital." The death penalty was retained only for capital murder.

On Feb. 16 of last year Leonard Joseph Coombs of Toronto entered a Bancroft home and threw a mallet to death his former sweetheart, Sharon Margaret Frost. He was charged with capital murder, tried at the Supreme Court of Ontario here, found guilty and sentenced to death, as required by law.

The Pearson Cabinet has now commuted the death sentence to "life" imprisonment, which means that Coombs will be eligible for consideration for parole after serving ten years in penitentiary.

The Canadian Press reports that "his was the fifth death sentence commuted by cabinet order since the Liberal government took office in April. There have been no executions."

It is difficult to understand how a record of five commutations and no executions could be described as a law "retaining" the death penalty.

Since our government has evidently decided, in its wisdom, that only a small fraction of the murderers duly convicted by the courts and sentenced to be hanged will be allowed to actually go to the gallows, it is time those of us who favor the retention of the death sentence for murder should make it plain that this is not the kind of justice which we have been advocating.

If some killers are going to be eligible for parole after ten years, regardless of whether the murder of which they were guilty was the "capital" or "non-capital" kind, then let all such killers share in this clemency.

The government can follow such a policy secure in the knowledge that not one victim of a murderer has ever been known to even murmur a protest when his killer is set free.

Cannot Afford a Budget

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Jansen of Pembroke live dangerously. They are raising eleven adopted children on Mr. Jansen's salary of $65 a week.

They keep no budget.

Bully for them!

"What would be the use?" asks Mrs. Jansen. "We'd only worry from week to week."

Exactly.

We can just hear some welfare workers sniffing in disdain and there is a crashing clatter of pencils dropping from the horror-raised hands of accountants, but the Janssens are too poor to be able to afford a budget. Rabbie Burns, who knew something about both children and poverty, had a phrase for their situation—the best laid plans of mice and men gang aft agley. With a family of eleven, there must be so many plans agleying that trying to fit them to budgetary rule would be an invitation to despair. The only thing to do is to spend what there is on what is most urgently needed —and damn the budgeteers.

Misery Makes Company

Montreal Gazette

It is an old saying that "misery likes company." But it could be put more grimly. As often as not misery not only likes company, misery makes company. Persons who are miserable may insist that no one else should ever be happier than they. To them the look, or hope of happiness in anyone is an affront and an injury.

So it is with Mrs. Gummidge in Dickens' "David Copperfield." "I am a lone lorn creetur'," she would say, and everything goes contrary with me."

Often she would add: "I had better go into the poorhouse, and end my misfortunes." If it were ever suggested that other people might have their troubles also, she would reply, "I feel it more than other people."

The sight of a wedding, and the faces of the happy couple, moved her to aggressive misery. When David Copperfield's faithful old nurse Peggotty had just been married to Mr. Barkis and the couple were setting out together in their little cart, Mrs. Gummidge was urged to toss the old shoes after them for good luck.

She refused, saying: "No. It had better be thrown by somebody else. . . I'm a lone lorn creetur myself, and everything that reminds me of creeturs that isn't alone and lorn, goes contrairy with me."

At first she was persuaded to kiss the bride before she left. But she had no sooner done so when she fell into a damp spell of the festive nature of the departure by bursting into tears, and saying that always was the case to the poorhouse at once. And this morning Mr. Copperfield wonder whether it wasn't really "a sensible idea."

It is, of course, easy for those who are happy themselves to wish the whole world could be likewise. They have no vested interest in misery. The Irish poet Thomas Moore, when asked to sing at the height of his fame, felt ready to gather the whole world into his own charmed circle.

In the summer of 1804 he was travelling in Canada, and found his fame had preceded his way for him. The captain of the steamer on Lake Ontario refused to accept any passenger to have so illustrious a passenger would be payment enough. At Niagara a poor blacksmith repaired Moore's watch for him, but he also refused to accept anything. The poet, he said, should take this little service. It was a mark of honor to some one he had heard so much about but had never expected to meet.

Moore admitted that he revelled in such evidence of his fame. Yet he could not feel it was vanity, for his own success made him kindly toward the whole world.

He wrote at this time: "This is the very nectar of life, and I hope, I trust, it is not vanity to which the cordial owes all its sweetness. No, it gives me a feeling toward all mankind which I am convinced is not unlike the impulse which begins with self, spreads itself out instantaneously around it which teaches all the sociabilities and benevolences of the heart."

If the spreading of happiness is easy for the happy, those who are unhappy need not always insist on ruling a domain of misery.

Certainly Sir Walter Scott, in his later years, had quite enough to be miserable. Crippled, stricken by debt, breaking in health, suffering bereavement, he yet had the resolution not to impose his distress on others, least of all upon the family circle.

In September, 1827, he was writing to Miss Joanna Baillie, telling of the black dog still hanging about me; but I will shake him off presently. I have many good spirits in company of my family whether I am enjoying them or not." And he went on to analyze the harmless mirth of others by suffering your own melancholy fits to be as much subject of exercise is, like virtue, its own reward, for the good spirits which they first simulated at length become real."

This is rather like the picture of Sir Richard Steele drawn by the writer, with Addison, of "The Spectator" papers. When he was old and ailing, Steele had built himself carried out to the village green to watch the rural sports of a summer's day, and it would be saw some girl of the village tripping particularly well, he would write out an order for her and there, that she should be given a new gown at his expense.

There are many kinds of sympathy in this world. But one of the best of them is that which sympathizes with happiness. And such sympathy is never a grander thing than when it is found in the unhappy.

They will always escape the terrible denunciation hurled by the savage satirist of mankind, Jonathan Swift, of whom it was said: "He desired to others it's happiness he had not the heart to enjoy himself."

Hobby Only

Port Arthur News-Chronicle

A man who walked 5,100 miles from Vancouver to St. John's, Nfld., is now very unhappy because he has not received any recognition and the only job he has been offered in Newfoundland is digging peat out of town. Looks like walking is fun only when it's a hobby and not serious.

Air-Cycle Is Possible

National Geographic Society

The day may come when a young man can climb into a flying-cycle out in an air cycle built for two. Girls with strong legs probably will get the most aerial dates.

Though muscles will never replace engines in the air, many energetic British enthusiasts still are pursuing the elusive goal of man-power flight as a sport. They've had some success.

A slender winged, feather-light plane has been flown more than a half-mile at 19 miles an hour, the sole "engine" was a husky young man whose furious pedalling spun a propeller. At the moment Britain's top aeronautical engineers, are competing in this linear race. The Royal Aeronautical Society is contributing grants and advice.

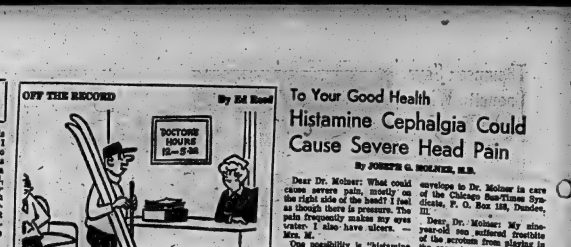
Ironically, the lumbering manpowered aircraft benefit from jet-age advances in aerodynamics. Its great constant development is a long, narrow wing that gives maximum lift with minimum scarcity.

Some of the muscle-powered planes have wingspans of 90 feet, which poses a parking problem for a harassed commuter who dreams of hopping into a personal plane and pedalling off to work far above the madding crowd.

Though designers have experimented with superlight plastics, many have returned to just plain wood because it has superior strength-to-weigh characteristics.

Engineers estimate that it takes from .35 to .70 horsepower to lift a plane off the ground and keep it aloft. An Olympic cyclist can pump out about .35 horsepower, but only lasts anxious a unique flying machine requiring sophisticated engineering, piloting skill, and athletic prowess.

Aeronautical engineers generally agree that the streamlined plane should have fixed wings and be driven by a propeller. Several prototypes, however, have not given up on the age-old ornithopter, a man-powered plane with flapping wings.



Some years ago, one inventor raced down Cowes Hill by foot in Somerset, madly thrashing his 16-foot wings. He tripped and fell on his face and broke his instrument. Another aspiring bird-man hopefully launched himself from a bridge, but flopped into the Thames.

Such has been the way of the ornithopter for centuries. The most famous victim was Icarus, of Greek mythology, whose artificial wings were held together with wax. He flew too near the sun and plunged into the sea.

Vanishing Welsh

Peterborough Examiner

The council for Wales and Monmouthshire is hoping that the British will co-operate in a movement bound with the sole function of preserving the Welsh tongue. Since more than half the population of Welsh Wales and Monmouthshire (a county which is English by statute and Welsh by inclination) could speak the Welsh language. By 1951, the number had dropped to a third; by 1961 to less than a quarter, and about 90 years it is feared that Welsh will be a language for scholars.

Is Marriage For Doctors?

Medical Tribune

Is television trying to tell us something, subliminally perhaps about marriage?

All last year we worried about the fact that Dr. Kildare was not married; and Dr. Gillespie because his chief, Dr. Gillespie, who seems to be a widower, never remarried. Our concern mark that Dr. Ben Casey: Not married; and if extended staff chief, Dr. Zorba: Status unknown, but wife never mentioned. Even most of the temperamental talkies are spread their personal crises all over the hospital corridors of "The Nurses" appear to be single, including Mrs. Thorpe, that combination, charge nurse, mother-confessor, chief-surgeon.

We don't dare raise the question with the psychiatric programs because they would want to know why we're interested or how we feel about it. But we note that the same familiar patterns are now emerging on the new series dealing with organization tactics, and the like, are very helpful in preventing such a headache. The patient has learned the stigma of an approaching migraine, since these drugs do their best work before the headache has started, rather than after.

My advice is to have your doctor analyze all the symptoms and then determine your type of headache. Only then will he be of so effective job of curbing or stopping it.

You might also be helped by reading my booklet "How To Have Healthful Headaches." It goes into the subject in greater detail. Many readers say it has helped them a lot, both in understanding their headaches and in getting over them. To receive a copy, send 25 cents in coin and an unstamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 188, Dundee, Ill.

Dear Dr. Molner: My nine-year-old son suffered terrible of the acrotum from playing in the snow too long. Will this make him sterile? My daughter says he doesn't think so at this time. — Mrs. N. P.

I too, doubt that it will cause sterility. The frostbite was of the skin covering, rather than of the testicles themselves.

Dear Dr. Molner: When one doesn't inhale cigarette smoke, can it cause a cough and drainage from nose of sinus? — Mrs. N. P.

There's no such thing as not inhaling to some degree. Of course, there will be less irritation if you do not deliberately inhale.

Dear Dr. Molner: We have frozen some green beans, carrots and other fruits and vegetables. Is there danger of being poisoned by any of them? — R. S.

Not if you froze them properly.

They should be cleaned before freezing, and then frozen as quickly as possible. Keep them frozen until you are ready to use them.

Most food poisoning cases can be traced to (a) inadequate cooking or (b) letting food sit at ordinary temperatures, or in a warm place. You can't have a old rule for safe food: Keep it hot, keep it cold, or don't keep it!

Histamine Cephalgia Could Cause Severe Head Pain

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What could cause severe pain, mostly on the right side of the head? I feel as though there is pressure. The pain frequently makes me vomit water. I also have ulcers. — Mrs. M.

One possibility is "histamine cephalgia," or "histamine headache." This is a one-sided headache as a rule, accompanied by heavy flowing of tears in the eye on that side. This type of headache frequently occurs at night. Desensitization with histamine helps.

There is also a one-sided headache, the migraine, which tends to bother a person who is inclined to ulcers — the hard-driving, exacting perfectionist.

For this type of headache, the treatment is entirely different. Making a deliberate effort to change your mode of life, and learning to relax and ride along with problems instead of worrying constantly, keyed up, is one part. In addition, certain drugs based on ergotamine tartrate, and the like, are very helpful in preventing such a headache. The patient learns to learn the stigma of an approaching migraine, since these drugs do their best work before the headache has started, rather than after.

My advice is to have your doctor analyze all the symptoms and then determine your type of headache. Only then will he be of so effective job of curbing or stopping it.

British Jest Not Relished

Brantford Expositor

The English sense of humor, often a safety valve for making the best of adverse circumstances, is not always shared by others. English troops in the trenches in the first war had to be ordered to refrain from referring to "our gallant Portuguese allies" as "the pork and cheese." In the same way the Eighth Army was warned not to parody the Egyptian national anthem by singing it to the popular version of it in the streets of Cairo.

Six young Britons have now been deported from Uganda for holding a party where African aspirations were said to be not been belittled. Eight white civil servants who showed "their disloyalty" to the government of Prime Minister Milton Obote by attending are also to be expelled. The hosts, guests at the party on the eve of Kenya's independence, has since been mysteriously described.

The six sent out facetious invitations to a celebration to mark "the end of the white man's burden" in East Africa. Replies were requested by "native bearer or interpreter." The bottle party, in song and skit, satirized the passing of the old order, and the end of the great British colonial administration as well as jesting at the new African rulers. Some parties present failed to see the funny side of the incident and interpreted it as an attempt to belittle Africans' ability to handle their own affairs. The six were fortunate to escape with just deportation.

In time, when Africans develop more confidence, they will learn to laugh at themselves. The British sense of humor cannot be passed on as a tradition that goes with independence. Ghana recently banned George Orwell's Animal Farm. This satire on totalitarianism apparently struck uncomfortably close.

It has been said of the Englishman that his proudest boast is that he doesn't have to brag. The sense of humor enabled his countrymen to survive "the white man's burden." The burden is now the native man's, and he badly needs something to bolster his morale.

Canada and the United States, following three years of negotiations, signed the Boundary Waters Treaty 35 years ago today — in 1909. The treaty led to the establishment of the International Joint Commission, authorized to settle final decisions on all cases involving the use or diversion of boundary waters or of rivers crossing the boundary.

The Belgian and French troops began their occupation of the Ruhr to enforce German First World War reparations.

Making Violins Is Interesting Hobby for Belleville Man

By GLADYS WARD

Cremona, Italy, may have been famous for its violins, but Belleville also has several makers of violins, one of whom is Mr. E. G. Gurnett, Northwood Crescent. Having completed a career as manager of the East Central Region of Ontario Hydro Mr. Gurnett expected he would have more time to spend on his hobby, but instead finds that his outside interests in the United Appeal, on the finance committee of Albert College, his activities at Bridge Street United Church take up so much of his time that he has less than ever to spend on his avocation.

In the past ten years Mr. Gurnett has made 20 violins, with each one consisting of some 45 separate pieces. They are assembled entirely with glue and there are no nails, screws or metallic fasteners anywhere in their construction.

TEN COATS OF VARNISH

For the benefit of this reporter Mr. Gurnett demonstrated the complete assembly of the violin with parts in various stages of construction, from the slab of well-seasoned spruce for the front and the quarter-cut maple for the back which was shaped on an inside mould with holes cut out for clamping and pieces of pine cut for corner and end blocks. The making of the top alone takes a week of working every night, and the finished instrument requires ten coats of varnish with the final coats rubbed down with pumice and water, and pumice and oil. It has then to be hung up for a month to dry.

With the use of a template Mr. Gurnett marks a channel down the centre line of the rough top to make the long curvature of the instrument and then does the same with the five cross sections, templates, thus giving the overall curvature of the front. Using the gouge and the violin plane all the wood between the channels is cut away, blending the outline in the uniform curvature.

Step by step the parts are added, the neck which is fashioned with a scroll and includes the peg box and four pegs, the finger board, the tail pin, the bridge, the strings, the chin rest, until finally there it is, a darkly gleaming thing of beauty, the "King of Instruments," ready to interpret the music of the ages, with its vibrant searching tones reaching into the very heart of man.

EACH VIOLIN TONE DIFFERENT

Violin making reached its peak of perfection about 300 years ago, and yet today practically every violin made is as exact a copy as possible of the instruments made by the Amati family or by Stradivari. When one considers the scientific advances and developments in almost every line of endeavour, it is amazing that the violin persists in almost identical form as those made so many years ago. It is almost impossible to obtain the same tone in any two instruments because the slight differences in the wood, or in the thickness of it, coupled with its individual characteristics make the resulting tones slightly different.

In Mr. Gurnett's opinion it is evident that as a result of advanced knowledge the present form of the violin seems as scientifically correct as it is possible to get, and was probably arrived at as a result of a tremendous number of trials and errors and reasoning, and so far all efforts to improve the instrument by variations of shape, size and material have been abandoned, and the best makers today are still following the design of the old Italian masters.

Mr. Gurnett is also interested in lapidary, which we hope to deal with at a later date.

DISCUSS AMBULANCES

TORONTO (CP) — Government aid for ambulance runs will be discussed when five Ontario cabinet ministers meet with medical men and ambulance operators at Queen's Park Jan. 20, Attorney-General Fred Cass said Friday. The ambulance operators threatened about two weeks ago that they would refuse calls to highway accidents if a meeting could not be arranged.

Council Will Advertise For Four Asst. Assessors

PICTON (Staff) — On the last day of a session which started on Tuesday, the Prince Edward County Council passed many motions and gave third reading and passed many by-laws.

They approved the purchase of equipment for the assessor's office, to include an address-o-graph machine, a calculator and a typewriter. The address-o-graph equipment will cost about $12,000, but when the council ascertained that it would cost $15,000 to rent the same equipment for three years, they approved the purchase.

Council will advertise for four assessors to assist the newly appointed Assessment Commissioner, Mr. Fred Jennings. The advertised salary will be $3,600 per year, plus car allowance mileage. A special meeting of council will be held in late January or February to deal with the applicants for the positions.

Council also approved the mileage each person using their car on county business would be paid. 10c for the first 7,000 miles; 8c per mile from 7,000 to 14,100, and 7c per mile for all mileage over the 14,000 in any one year. Council will supply a daily mileage log book, which will be kept up to date.

The collection of dog licence fees came up for discussion at this meeting. It seems that in the past, each municipality had their part time assessor do this collecting. Now with a county assessor, this will not be possible. The assessment committee were asked to bring in a method of collecting these fees. In the meantime each township will pass their own dog licensing by-law.

W. Graft Harvey, newly appointed Welfare Administrator for the County, will take courses supplied by the province. The Dept. of Welfare has volunteered to not only send a senior man down to help the new Administrator get started, but they will also supply a man to take over while the county man is on course at Toronto.

The county will take over all costs of welfare from the municipalities as of February first. It is expected that Mr. Harvey will commence work at once. He told the clerk-treasurer by phone he was ready to start any morning.

Council passed a motion to hire a girl for secretarial work, and it is thought she will do part time for the administrator. She will also do work for the Roads Dept.

Council made $10,000 available to the County Health Unit until the budget is brought down.

Council asked the L.C.B.O. to regulate the hours of the Picton Liquor Store. This is the same motion that was proposed by the Picton Council, and the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce.

They asked that the store hours be 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. each day but Friday, when the hours shall be 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. At present the store closes at six p.m. and is closed Wednesday afternoons. When council voted unanimously for the motion, Deputy-Reeve John Fox quipped", it is easy to see that we have no bootleggers on county council."

A special centennial committee was set up. This committee will be composed of Warden Kenneth Hicks, Reeve Donald Bond, Deputy Reeve George Cunningham, from council, James Clemmons, clerk of Wellington, J. A. C. Rogers, David Taylor, Doctor Howard Walmsley, Gordon Walmsley and William Smith.

This committee will deal with anything pertaining to the county and its participation in the 1967 Centennial celebrations. In order to obtain a grant, plans must be in the hands of the Government by the end of the year.

Council passed a by-law giving engineer Ron Thomson authority to refuse a building permit to anyone wishing to build near a highway, if the "set back" of the said building is not sufficient.

Ron Thomson also reported that he had been told by owners of the old club at Mountain View that they were going to build a parking lot south of their clubhouse. Traffic cannot continue to park on the highway and make it impossible for the snow plows to get through," he added. According to the law, any car blocking the path of the snow plow can be towed away at the owner's expense.

Picton's Mayor Harvey J. McFarland entertained the members of the county council and the press at a luncheon at the Royal Hotel on Friday at noon.

Two Black Eyes 'Reasonable' Punishment

He found that Montpetit had not intended to use excessive force when he struck Gary Alvin Lynch of Metcalfe, a Grade 10 student, Sept. 12.

The magistrate referred to section 43 of the Criminal Code of Canada which permits the use of "reasonable" force in the disciplining of a student by a teacher.

He said the boy had been looking for trouble and the teacher's action had been "reasonable under the circumstances." However, Montpetit would have been wiser to have taken the boy to the principal.

Evidence was presented that the boy received two black eyes, a broken nose and a cut mouth in an alleged attack in the classroom. The magistrate found there was no definite proof the teacher's blow had broken the boy's nose.

Smoke Damages Entire Stock Fraser Store

PICTON (Staff) — A fire in a work area of Fraser Dry Goods last night smoke-damaged the complete stock of ladies' ready-to-wear clothes, according to store owner George Fraser. The work area - storeroom was gutted completely.

Picton hockey player Bob Brown spotted smoke from the fire as he returned about 1.00 a.m. from a game in Belleville. He alerted the fire department and the alarm was answered by fire chief J. Nelson Bell, deputy chief Lawrence Burford and 19 men. Heavy smoke filled the building the firemen who entered had to search for the fire. No hoses were used until the fire was located.

Firemen fought the fire through a back door, leading directly to the fire area, opened by George Fraser under direction of the fire chief. A single two-inch hose was used.

Estimates of the total damage are not yet available.

DENIES DIVORCE

LONDON (Reuters) — Top British Navy Colin Jordan denied Friday that his marriage to the niece of Christian Dior, founder of the famed French fashion house, was breaking up. Jordan, leader of the British National Socialist movement, made the statement at London Airport after arriving from Paris, where he saw his 21-year-old wife of three months, the former Francoise Dior.

Readers' Saturday Column

by Mary Moore

Question: After the holidays my housekeeping budget is shot and I have to recover. I thought I could do this by serving hamburger. I have lots of your excellent hamburg dishes but want one for chili con carne and spaghetti with meat sauce. Would you be good enough to give these in a column in the near future? — Adele C.

Answer: A peach of a question! I'm glad you asked for these popular hamburg dishes for many of our readers are in the same predicament.

Dinner Menu

SATURDAY

Chilled Tomato Juice; Baked Beans (see Thursday); Springford Cabbage Salad (see Thursday); Dark Rye Bread; Prune Whip with Custard Sauce; Tea.

CHILI CON CARNE (Serves 6)

Note: This is a revised recipe from one that I have included in dried kidney beans (with canned as an alternative) because they reduces the total cost.

3 tablespoons butter, margarine or salad oil; 3 medium onions, diced; 1½ lbs. ground beef; one 28-oz. can tomatoes; ¼ cup water; 1½ teaspoons salt; to 3 tablespoons chili powder; 1 lb. dried red kidney beans (see below) or two 20-oz. cans kidney beans.

Soak dried red kidney beans in water to cover by 2" overnight. In morning add more water if needed to cover and cook until tender — about 1½ hour. Do not salt beans. Melt butter or other fat in a large saucepan; add onion and cook until tender, but not brown. Add ground beef; cook until browned, breaking up with fork. Add tomatoes, water, salt and chili powder (amount is a question of your and your children's taste for chili powder). Cover and simmer 45 minutes. Add cooked or canned kidney beans and liquid; simmer 5 or 10 minutes to blend flavors. Serve with crusty French or rye bread.

The following recipe for Beef Spaghetti Sauce is a combination of two. One was given to me by an Italian girl. The other is a Canadianized version. The combination suits me fine.

BEEF SPAGHETTI SAUCE
(amount to serve 8 over spaghetti)

One 1 lb ground beef or hamburg, 2 medium large onions, chopped, 2 cloves garlic chopped (or as much as possible), 2 tablespoons cooking (salad) oil (Italians use olive oil), one 6 oz. can tomato paste, one 28 oz. can tomatoes, one 10-oz. can condensed tomato soup, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, 1 or 1½ teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon chili powder (optional). Sauté the onions, garlic and beef in the salad oil until meat is delicately browned. Add tomato paste and mix in well. Add tomatoes, tomato soup and remaining ingredients and simmer covered for 1 hour over low heat.

Boil 1 lb. spaghetti in a large pot of salted water until tender; cooked but not too tender. You do not want it to be soft enough to break. Drain in colander. Turn out on very large platter and pour sauce over and toss it gently with 2 forks to mix through. Sprinkle with grated cheese. Serve piping hot and accompanied by Romano or grated old Cheddar cheese at the table.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

HI-FI CAN BE OVERPOWERING

We have a number of high fidelity addicts in our neighborhood who are really high on their addiction.

Luckily for them — and for us — we live in a somewhat rural area where houses are some distance apart and the sound of their high-fidelity sets doesn't reach the neighbors' unwilling ears.

But a member of the woofer-and-tweeter set isn't worth control level unless he's prepared to show off the excellence of his set to guests. And prepared he is, even though his guests sometimes are not.

Somehow, high volume and high fidelity go hand in hand, and my husband, addict that he is, bears witness to that statement. But there's some hope for him: Following some "guidespouse, he now turns up the volume only for an audience of wife and children and plays it at a normal level when guests are around.

I wish I could give the same sort of guidance to some of our addicted neighbors when I am a guest at their homes. NOWADAYS I retire to the kitchen, where I try to help the harried hostess prepare dinner (she's retired there for the same reason). I've heard many salads around this way.

SEEKS INTERESTED GUEST

The routine in the living room is almost always the same. The host is already tuned in to music on the FM portion of his set as background for the conversation, but there's a eager glint in his eyes as he glances around the room. Finally, he spots a guest who seems to be listening to the music more than to the talk.

Here's the opening he's been waiting for. If the guest doesn't comment on the quality of the reception, he does. Of course, he adds, no one can really appreciate the clarity of his FM tuner unless the volume is turned up.

Without waiting for an expression of interest, he turns the knob as far as it will go and sits back contentedly while the conversation, suddenly turned into a shouting match, dwindles and dies.

Having literally captured his audience, the host then remembers his vast record collection and the hours he's spent demonstrate the turn-table and speakers. He may play Brahms or the latest "demonstration" stereo record which, as far as the ear can detect, is composed of sounds made by over-amplified muted trumpets, a battery of naval guns and a locomotive whistling for a station.

High-fidelity is high in my book, but lower in decibels. And if my husband can listen to it, it pitched at a listenable level out of politeness for others, then anyone can.

Honor Couple On 40th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Green, St. Charles Street, were honored recently on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary when approximately 35 relatives and friends gathered for the special occasion.

Mr. Green a former employee of the Canadian National Railways, retired in August of 1963. Mrs. Green is the former Jessie Brown. There were five children, two sons, Burton of Toronto and Carl of Barrie and one daughter, Mrs. Carl Kelly (Lois) of Belleville. The couple also have five grandchildren.

Pink and white wedding streamers and bells formed an appropriate setting in the dining room where the tea table was most attractive, centred with a beautifully decorated three-tier anniversary cake topped with a crystal vase which had adorned the wedding cake 40 years ago.

The couple received many lovely gifts in keeping with the Ruby theme of the 40th anniversary for which they expressed sincere thanks.

During the evening tea was poured by Miss Helen Brown and Mrs. Douglas Smith with tastly refreshments served by Mrs. Carmel Lasher assisted by Miss Linda Kelly and Miss Heather Krogman.

Rev. R. Gamble who was present for the occasion closed a pleasant evening with prayer.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

HAMMOND W. I.

MARMORA — The Marmora Women's Institute held its regular meeting on January 8th, at the home of Mrs. R. Harper with 12 members and two visitors present.

The president, Mrs. George Empey, presided and opened the meeting in the usual manner. Minutes and correspondence, including several thanks you notes for get-well and sympathy cards were read.

During the program portion, Mrs. Napier read an interesting paper on home economics, showing the fallacy of food fads. She pointed out that a carrot contains the same vitamin A of iron even if it is grown in a garden soil, although the size may vary. A discussion followed re the entertaining of the senior citizens in February. Mrs. Gordon and Mrs. O'Neill are to be the leaders in the sewing class beginning in January. Final preparations will be made on January 13 for kitchen band.

Lunch was served by the hostesses.

CANNITON-CORBYVILLE

The January meeting of the Canniton-Corbyville branch of the Women's Institute held their regular meeting in the town hall at Canniton with Mrs. F. Reid, president in the chair. Correspondence and business were quickly dealt with and the convener for the evening, Mrs. W. Hall, turned the meeting over to Mrs. Carl requested an open meeting for Thompson, councillor, who had the purpose of discussing the monetary involvement re a Health Unit for Hastings County.

After the meeting members and guests were served a delightful lunch by the hostess-Mrs. W. Andrews and her committee.

LOW DEATH RATE

VICTORIA (CP)—British Columbia's infant mortality rate reached an all-time low of 22.1 deaths per 1,000 births in the first 10 months of 1963. It was believed the lowest rate in Canada for the period.

Doormat Hubby Has Missed Only Solution to Problem

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am only the husband and father in our family so of course I don't have much to say. I am allowed to pay the bills and drive everybody where they want to go.

I am keenly aware that in our society children are the central figures so I have learned to keep my mouth shut and do as I am told.

There is only one thing I want out of life, Ann, and please tell me if you think I'm unreasonable. When the family finishes with the newspaper I'd like to have it handed over in readable condition.

Yesterday there was a big hole in the page where your column had been ripped out. Our daughter was sending it to her boy friend. There was another hole where my wife had torn out a recipe for potato kugel. My mother-in-law plays the stock market so the financial section is always upstairs in her room.

If I complain, I am "grumpy." Any suggestions you have to offer will be greatly appreciated. — MERE MALE.

DEAR MERE — The solution is so obvious I'm surprised you haven't thought of it. It would be well worth the money if you invested in a second subscription to this excellent newspaper. Call it a contribution to your mental health.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — The letters signed "A Polaris Wife" struck a raw nerve. My husband is not in the Navy — he's a travelling salesman — away from home five days and five nights a week.

Married women who get into mischief and use "loneliness" and "time on their hands" as excuses are only kidding themselves. The wife who wants to play around will manage somehow to find the time.

When I was a child I remember vividly the woman next door. She had seven children and was one of the most promiscuous females in Wayne County. Her husband wasn't in the Navy. He was right in this city. Another neighbor who lived across the street had no children, but she was so busy doing thoughtful and generous things there was never a breath of scandal about her.

I'd like to warn Mrs. Polaris against thinking that extra marital affairs will solve her problem. They'll only hatch new ones. — ANN LANDERS

DEAR ALONE — Many women with absent husbands wrote in response to Polaris' letter but yours said it best. Thank you for writing.

* * *

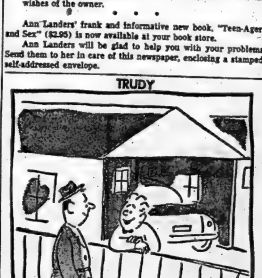
DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband's mother, who was a dear, sweet person passed away recently. Her relationship with her two daughters was not good. In the 20 years I have been in the family, my mother-in-law had suffered considerable anguish due to the selfishness of her daughters.

She was not a wealthy woman but was a collector of exquisite antiques and silver. She frequently told me she'd like me to have these two objects when she passes on.

The day before the funeral her daughters went through her home and helped themselves to everything of value.

My husband is furious. He feels we should demand that they share some of his mother's treasures with us. I want no part of such a family fight. What is your opinion? — FREE-SPIRITED.

DEAR EMPTED — I'm with you. Nothing of material value could possibly be worth the ugliness which would surely result from getting into a hassle with the vultures.



Try to bet your mother-in-law didn't put her generous intentions in writing. This is the only way to make sure that wordly goods will be disposed of in accordance with the wishes of the owner.

AVONDALE NEIGHBORS' AID

Avondale Neighbors' Aid January meeting with 16 members and one visitor present was held at the home of the president, Shirley Griffith, who opened meeting with a poem on "Friendship."

Regular reports were given. Three members have had perfect attendance, Della Wiley, Margaret Twiddy and Ethel Day, who were presented with bouquets of mums, as were also two retiring officers, Shirley Griffith and Marion Anger.

The president thanked the officers and everyone who had helped make her two years in office a pleasure and success.

Devotional period was taken by Win Cameron and Olive Mayell; a reading was given by Betty Lough; several piano selections by Donna La Griffith were enjoyed.

Discussion on plans for 1964 took place. It was decided to continue having telephone contacts to be held on January 13, with dessert luncheon at Win Cameron's.

The meeting closed with Lena Reid, Betty Lough and Della Wiley serving refreshments.

Canadian Fashion & Fad

BY pegg rogers

FASHION GOES TO YOUR HEAD . . .

To wear this season's newest hats successfully, teased bouffant hair styles will have to be discarded. The newest and most flattering hair fashion to emerge along with the new chapeaux, is a short, simple style, gently curled at the ends. The hair should be just long enough to be drawn up at the sides in a suggestion of an upsweep for evening wear.

The hats themselves are so varied, that the woman who says she cannot find one to suit her this season has not a try. Hats of all, because of the continuing simplicity of the dresses and coats, hats are even more important to the general silhouette. The slightly wider look to the shoulder line calls for the extra width that the new hats impart.

The new, "pirate" style with its soft, off-the-face brim, is usually made of fabric, perhaps moire taffeta, velveteen, or the tweed- or wool to match a new coat. Most of these new fabric hats have been designed to stand the weather. There are soft leathers in pliable styles, which can be moulded to suit the individual wearer.

SOFT, PASTEL FELTS

Some of the youngest, prettiest styles in this spring's collection are soft pastel felts, fashioned with huge upturned brims, a Baxter Brown, Queen's Park sophisticated numbers have a "Florentine" tilt to the brim, almost falling over one eye.

For those who want a new straw to wear in January with fur coats, there are neat, sharp pillboxes, high and wide. These are very smart in black, sparkled with a pastel. Dobrins are made of a roughly textured straw, with neat ribbon banding.

The flowered hats for this spring are quite different from those of last year. The flowers are smaller and more delicate. Small neat roses and lilac are lightly spread over a net base and lavishly trimmed with velvet ribbon. There are a few realistic daisies and field flowers, combined with net, fashioned in pillboxes and cloches.

The "hand-made" look is back again in finely woven straws, either combined with shantung or printed fabrics in pastels. These colorful hats will lift a wintery wardrobe right out of the doldrums. But before you try them on, be sure that your hair style is neat, short and only slightly teased. Otherwise, you will probably be among those women who complained on the fashion "quiz" that the head sizes of to-day's hats are all too small!

If you have a question on fashion just write Pegg Rogers care of this Paper.

TEACHING QUALITY

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada should export only first - rate teachers to the developing African nations, Dr. Wayne Hall of McGill University told a group of women here. Dr. Hall, who spent a year in Nigeria as a technical adviser in education, said African students need teachers with vision and dedication, as well as skills.

DO YOU HAVE...

—a marital problem

—trouble with your children

—difficulty in budgeting your income

If so, the Children's Aid Society can be of help and invites you to talk it over with one of the members of its family service department staff. You will find them sympathetic and understanding of your problem and desirous only of helping you to help yourself. There is no obligation on your part and you may terminate the contact at any time. The Society's offices at 63 Moira St. West are open from 8.30 to 5.00 o'clock Monday to Friday each week. For your convenience it is suggested that you telephone for an appointment. Your call will be treated with complete confidence.

A Lift for Living

Music of Life Can Be Made From Sunlight or Blindness

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

What is music? A small child, chunks on a piano bench and strikes a heavy blow upon a key just any key. The resulting sound is not music, but noise. Again, the piano is jarred while furniture is being moved during house-cleaning, time and a small statuette falls from the piano top and hits a key. The falling object makes a noise, but it is not music. Even when a renowned pianist strikes one note on the piano, the effect is a sound without music. Music is not a single note, but a meaningful composition of tones. Life is not any given note out of a melody and make it stand alone, and it is meaningless. A note of music gets its meaning from its context in the composition.

So it is with life. Consider any event apart from the entire composition and it is likely to seem senseless. A wedding gets its meaning from the courtship that preceded it and the ensuing relationship that it anticipates. The birth of a baby derives significance from a growing love between the parents and the latent possibilities hidden in the future of the child. A funeral is meaningful because of the kind of life that led up to it and the nature of the life that follows it. The separate events of a good existence are not senseless nodes on a meaningful note in a great composition.

FROM TROUBLED PEOPLE

Have you wondered why it is that much of the world's great poetry and music has been composed by people who were terribly troubled? Homer and Milton were blind when they wrote some of the most enduring poetry of all time. Would we have learned of their triumphs had it not been for their infirmities? Would we have Chopin's music without his tubercular condition, Handel's Messiah without his paralysis, or Beethoven's best symphonies without his deafness, which rendered him while he was still rising to the height of his powers? It is doubtful. These giants of the arts let their troubles contribute to their craft. They did not see tragedy as a isolated thing. They beheld it within the context of what they feel they should be and do.

This was the genius of their lives as well as of their art. Poetry is not fashioned from sparkling, joyous words alone. Dark and sombre words must sometimes make an appearance. Music cannot deal only with light, and the noter of the upper registers. The low, throbbing, sorrowful notes must be used too. If fate struck us unexpected and unwanted note, the great masters of the arts and of living gathered it up to the sum total of what they were making of their art and of their lives and bent to it that it be round the note that it made their music better rather than bitter.

While in fall Saint Paul one time wrote a letter to his friends at Philippi, telling them of his imprisonment and the possibility of his execution. The letter is full of comfort and encouragement. Without a touch of self-pity, Paul refers to the disasters he was suffered and gratefully declares, to those brethren, that what has happened to me has really served to advance the gospel."

Imprisonment is hardly a pleasant experience, and when Paul considers it a testimony for good, it must seem senseless. Yet Paul made sense of it. He lived lonely hours for writing letters that became a part of the New Testament. The good, the gospel must be sung to the world, and Paul's jail experience would become a note in that music. Paul knew how to make music from misery.

ANTHEM FROM ANGUISH

A modern mother in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, had Paul's gift for making an anthem from anguish. She lost her little boy, led was struck dead and killed by a car while crossing a busy intersection that was not adequately policed. Many a mother would have become bitter with grief. This mother was arrested; she grew sad, she sought and found a job as a traffic policewoman on the street where her son was killed. Explaining her action, she said simply, "I could help prevent one accident. I know the pain I can spare a mother."

The meaning of music is there. She saw that her boy's death was not so single, melancholy note struck on life's great keyboard. Other notes, ones in the weeks to come undoubtedly, would sound. Gobel. His grandson lives three miles from the scene." This he said was all he knew.

Lack of time made research impossible, but I was impressed that its name Ayr is corruption of Ayres, the founder's first name.

On our journey homeward another surprise awaited us. We were driving along on the splendid double-lane North Dakota No. 10 highway, not far from Mandan, when a sign: "Ayr"

Immediately we turned off the highway, and a few minutes later reached a small prairie village, population 97: Ayr, North Dakota. We met and spoke with the post-master and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Green who kindly handed us a little history pamphlet: Ayr, North Dakota, Settled, bought a grant of land of 14 sections, each of the villages which it was suggested should be called Elgin. But because there was another Elgin, the name was changed to Ayr in 1884."

To complete our story, upon arriving home, a Belleville friend, Gilbert Hamilton, most thoughtfully sent us a copy of the Hamilton Spectator, (Sept. 7 '63) with a full page spread of — Ayr, Ontario! Written up by Bruce Murdock, we were most delighted and pleased to obtain facts such as: The first settler in 1834 was Abel Modge and became known as Modge's Mill In 1840 on the opening of the Post Office was named Ayr. And Why? Because so many people from Ayrshire in Scotland lived there. In 1894, it was incorporated as a village, which soon had a population of 500. Today it has grown to 1,050.

"The small town had its place of importance, we believe, in the early developments of (this land)," the history of Ayr, North Dakota concludes: ". . . It's true a few came hoping to find wealth in a few years' time but the majority came with faith in their hearts to mold permanent homes here on the prairies, knowing the hard work and sacrifice involved.

"We admire their foresight in building schools and churches that would so early the next morning.

Enroute, we kept passing through strange places with familiar names: Washington, Elbert's a Washington close to Ayr, Ontario) and Marysville, even Belleville, where we had breakfast; all in Kansas, on Highway No. 36. Here we turned North, penetrated the Nebraska border, stopped at the drug-store in Geneva (a family name for us) where the owner said the town was named after Geneva, New York, by one of the settlers who had relatives there, and when told of our quest said: "There is a town named Seward near here and a town of the same name in Hewall. Each year students exchange basketball games. They say it's a fine idea to keep in touch with

Travelogue To Be Given At U. W. Club

Mrs. A. C. Locke will present her world tour travelogue to the Belleville and District University Women's Club at their January meeting.

Born in Tweed, Ontario, Mrs. Locke received her early schooling there. She later graduated the University of Toronto and Columbia University, from which she graduated with a Bachelor of Science of Nursing degree. Mrs. Locke worked in Public Health in the "Henry Street Settlement", in New York city, and later became company nurse for the Nichols Chemical Company at Sulphide, Ont.

Dr. and Mrs. Locke have lived in Belleville since 1927, when Dr. Locke began practice in the city. Mrs. Locke has been nurse and bookkeeper in his office for many years.

"I'm from Denver. My home. How I miss the mountains!" de-clared the youthful gas attendant, at Kearney, Nebraska. What did he know about Ayr, Ontario? "Not a thing. Never heard of it."

At last, we arrived in Ayr. Population 97. Nestled within a triangle of roads we noted The Ayr Grain Company, a public school, Methodist Church and a small I.O.O.F. lodge (closed) just across from a general store which housed the Post Office. And there, to greet him, the very man who had founded Ayr, Ontario's Mr. Lavern E. Eischen. He generously tried to tell us where Ayr got its name but could find out more about the history:

"The village is named after a settler who could rush days, by the name of Archibald Gobel. His grandson lives three miles from the scene." This he said was all he knew.

Lack of time made research impossible, but I was impressed that its name Ayr is corruption of Ayres, the founder's first name.

Marital Problem Could Stem From Fear of Pregnancy

DEAR DORIS — Is there some way I can learn to enjoy sex? My husband gets so discouraged. I have heard that this indifferent feeling comes from lack of love.

I always thought I did love my husband All I want now is to make the best of our marriage, but I don't want any more children. I am 31. — TEN YEARS MARRIED.

DEAR TEN — Fear of pregnancy is an effective way of destroying desire Of course you love your husband. You could do with some first class instruction in sex expression and birth control; and I am sending you the names of some books to get you started.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I have been writing to a girl friend for over a year and when I asked her for the size of her finger for a ring she told me should would not wear a cheap one. I asked her what was the cheapest she would wear and she said $150.

Is it up to her to set the price or should I take the warning and beware of her? I think she might be extravagant for me. — J. P. K.

DEAR J. P. K. — Is this a Sight Unseen Romance? Correspondence alone is a poor way to find out enough about a person to decide whether you want to marry her.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — In July we paid a great deal to have our floors filed. Some ladies visited our home with high heel shoes left awful marks, one in particular as she rocked kept pushing her heels to keep the chair going. Well I was really sick about it.

So I asked my friends what would they do in such a case. One suggested meeting my visitors at the door and saying "Oh, not with those high heel shoes—floors just tiled." Another suggested: "Say nothing," which still hasn't solved my problem.

Could you suggest an easy way, as one does not want to hurt or insult their friends. — FUZZLED.

• • •

DEAR FUZZLED — It's a caution. One airline would not let spike-shod passengers aboard, for a time. Those steel heels are a threat to nice floors.

My brain waves include: scatter rugs at strategic points (like under the rocker); a request to step lightly "with those pretty heels"; and (or) one casual sitting area where you just don't mind.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — We are two married couples who have chummed around for four years. Now the other couple have a house and for a year we have gone to their place every week. But they won't come to ours because they say they can't afford a baby sitter. Yet he earns almost twice what we earn.

They think we can leave the baby with my mother "free" because she lives with us. I don't think it's fair. My husband doesn't mind too much but he agrees they should come over at least once in a fourtimes. Are we asking too much?

We also have to phone them because she's too busy at home with her kids, and I have to work as well as keep house and baby. What shall we do? This is our only beef, as they are a wonderful couple otherwise. — D. D. DEPRESSED.

• • •

DEAR D. D. DEPRESSED — Unless it's turn about, your friendship could fade away. Isn't once a week getting pretty often, with growing families on both sides? Try what four-nightly would do—with half the calls coming from her to you.

• • •

Confidential to IN NEED OF HELP — With the turmoil you live in, you do well to put it all down as clearly as you have. Neither your mother nor your husband reads like a good influence on your children.

You deserve credit for finishing your matriculation. Without knowing more I'd suggest you work towards completing the business course and then getting off on your own. However, since you are constantly being badgered by your mother, you could profit greatly by having counselling with a personality. You can find the counsellor you need at the Children's Aid Society, 63 West Moira Street, Belleville, which counsels on family problems as well as when children are involved.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I would like to answer "Unwanted Wife." I had the same operation (hysterectomy) about 14 years ago. I never felt better in my life, and had the same feeling for my husband as before. I had to have that operation because I had a clot. I was 40 then.

The men that say to their wives (that they are no more use to them) just have a poor excuse. There may have been trouble even before the operation. Hope this will be of some help to "Unwanted Wife," and others with the same trouble. — VOICE OF EXPERIENCE.

DEAR VOICE — Agreed. Physical relations are subject to many psychological influences.

(Let a trained social worker give you insight into your special human relations problem. Write a letter to Doris.)

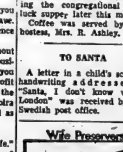
FRANKFORD — Frankford Full Gospel Women's Missionary Council met on January 9th in the recreational room at the parsonage. Mrs. Ethel Ed Strome welcomed everyone and several choruses were sung.

Mrs. Rose brought the message dealing with "The Servant of the Lord must not strive, but be made into all men." The monthly bulletin was read by the president. Mrs. Spring closed the meeting with prayer. Refreshments were served and a social period of fellowship was enjoyed.

— ALPHA GROUP



The Alpha Group of the Presbyterian Women of St. Columba Presbyterian, Deseronto, met recently, with Mrs. W. Bowles in the chair.

Devotions were conducted by Mrs. K. D. Taylor. Mission study for the evening was in the form of a panel discussion on India and members taking part were Mrs. J. Burke, Mrs. R. Ashley, Mrs. C. Dennis, Miss. A. Dunsmore and Mrs. N. Hutchinson. A letter was read from Doreen Morrison, Canadian missionary in India. Plans were discussed for the forthcoming C.O.N. dessert, also a Valentine coffee party. An announcement was made concerning the Presbyterian World Service Project, supper later this month.

Coffee was served by the hostess, Mrs. R. Ashley.

Going Places

St. Thomas, V.I., Is Paradise With Beauty and Bargains

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Islands — "The trouble with St. Thomas," a long-time and lovelorn native told us, "is that it hasn't been sold for what it is. People come down here for the first time expecting a combination of Acapulco, the French Riviera and Miami Beach."

The time comparison is apt. Mrs. Celia Temple, President, and Barbara Riley conducted the business portion of the meeting.

St. Thomas is almost the diametric opposite of those places. We found a tiny, sleepy backwater island, unoversweept, sunny but hardly tropical.

There are only 18,000 hilly, brushy acres punctuated by gem-like white beaches, and scarcely one soul per acre. Most of the hotels are of the typical tropical island variety, ramshackle and rustic, buried amid foliage, added to piecemeal over the years, constantly undergoing the hammer, saw and paint-brush.

Yet more vacationers of taste and discretion come here each year after year than to practically any island in the Caribbean. For all its subtle charms, it is not as highly practical — reasons, most find it completely captivating.

THREE THINGS GOING

St. Thomas has three things going for it: A warm, dry unpressure climate; some of the best bargain shopping in this part of the world; and as oldest town, rattling charm that completely belies its commercial image. You might also add a fourth: "Swinging protection of the American flag.

Queen Denmark sold the government of the Virgin Islands to the United States, in 1917, part of the deal was continuance of the free port status, now manufacturing prosperity (more than 70 of St. Thomas' 500 businesses are tax exempt.)

To the tourist, it means $1.25 gin and Scotch, as well as watches, perfumes and other imports sans taxes. The federal government has also levered the Virgins by making it the only place in the world from which citizens may bring back $200 worth of such trinkets duty-free instead of the usual $100, a-d-d-e-d incentive to stay minutes they may spend on the islands.

Liquor is retailed here as if it were free. As in Nassau, store looks like an alcoholic's dream (or nightmare). The cavernous emporium sports more than 25,000 bottles displayed on shelves stacked up to a cathedral ceiling. Only in his right mind keeps a stock like that on hand unless it moves.

LOOKS LIKE CRAZY QUILT

In common with many sophisticated resorts, St. Thomas appears on the surface anything but sophisticated. The main street of Charlotte Amalie is a crazy quilt of ware-houses, cream-colored plaster homes with crimson shutters and corrugated roofs to match. Narrow and zagging streets are watched over by French wrought-iron balconies and grill work, sturdy Dutch doorways, and Spanish patios. Victorian mansards and pastel villas compete with each other for hillside views of the harbor, among which are joined with stone steps and crowded with tumbling foliage.

Off-beat curiosities abound. Old Ford Christian, where several pirates were hanged, is painted a shocking red. Equally livid is the police station with the year 1671 proudly carved on its stone facade. Towers of old fortifications dot the hills and one of them is the central building of a hotel named after Blackbeard. Also standing are the oldest hotel built as such and the second oldest synagogue under the American flag. The latter features the ancient tradition of sand floor.

The island's distinctive culture is woven of all the threads of the European civilizations that have passed through it. In a district of Charlotte Amalie called Frenchtown, the descendants of Napoleonic exiles still speak a patois.

Much to their own surprise, they also gave birth to the cha-cha hat, which has nothing to do with the Latin dance but resembles a pizza, "fresh fish." The high-crowned straw headgear with the up- or down-turned white brim with a black band is all the rage among fashionable sun-shy ladies, but long has been traditional, and functional, adornment of fishermen here.

CLING TO CUSTOMS

The Danes still cling to their ways, living haughtily in their high-walled villas and paying $1.00 a pound for Danish butter in favor of the low-priced American spread. The island's giant shipping agent, Hamburg Industry, the West Indian Company, is Danish owned. Most taxis still bear Danish names.

Rough looking tropical nightclubs with stereotypable-sounding names (the Black Patch, Calypso) and low drink along the harbor. They're peaceful enough, however, although the night they opened a new floor at the rooftop nightclub of a distillery, one reveler managed to fall off.

Shacktowns, harbor facilities, housing and school development, and pattern of business and government buildings all jumble together in Charlotte Amalie on the island's steep incursion in the closest thing you'll find to a colonial outpost under the American flag.

St. Thomas is 30 minutes and $18.00 round trip by air from Puerto Rico. Those who are conscience-stricken about tearing themselves away from the luxuries of San Juan's more usually comfort themselves that the savings on liquor alone pay for the transportation.

AN "AYR" QUEST

At the outset of our motor trip, we visited our relatives in Ayr, Ontario. In the Weekly Ayr News was an item concerning a letter which had reached an Ayrite from South America via a circuitous route.

Under the person's name was written: "Ayr, North America" and for a guess, it had been directed to "Ayr, Nebraska wherewupon, the postmaster had written: "Try Ayr, Ontario, Canada.' And so it safely arrived.

This bit of post-office magic came to mind, while staying over night at Seward, Kansas (next, tidy streets laid out in squares like those of a cut cake. A plaque on a corner of main street read: "To the brave men who rode the Pony Express, 1860-61. This is the exact place of the Pony Express station.") For while studying the road map of Kansas, we discovered Ayr, Nebraska was only a matter of a few miles out of our way.

"Let's visit the place!" we exclaimed, and proceeded to do

Ask Henry

DEAR HENRY — I read your book Ask Henry. It was pretty good except for your opinion on women's ability in politics (page 105). You must admit that Queens Victoria and Elizabeth I were no shrimps. They did a darn good job! ANN B

DEAR ANN — Yes I must admit that Queen Victoria didn't do too bad but don't forget that she was taught politics, was crowned and was constantly counselled by Men.

As for Elizabeth I, if it wasn't for her masculine personality and her ability to outwear any man (hardly admirable characteristics) she wouldn't have managed.

That's not mentioning Francis Drake, (male), Walter Raleigh, (male), and Lord Howard, (male), who many a time saved her financially, militarily, etc.

So I'm not changing my mind. Women should stay out of politics and stick to what they do best. HENRY

* * *

DEAR HENRY — I am a girl of 13 who likes an 18-year-old boy. Is there anything wrong with liking him? He told me he liked me. He joined the navy a couple of weeks ago. A friend of mine said that I should get another boy friend. I wouldn't see him till next February. What should I do? LONELY

* * *

DEAR LONELY — No, there is nothing wrong with liking this sailor, as long as he is your brother! In other words drop him. He's way too old for you, and besides you're probably just a part of a large network of "girls in every port."

HENRY

* * *

DEAR HENRY — I am 13 and am in grade 8. I have a problem mother. We are going to have a party. This is a formal dance and everyone is getting all dressed up for it.

I asked my mother if I could wear a little lipstick. Brace yourself for the shock! She said No!

I could have cried on the spot. It's getting so that I can't even wear nylons to school or for special occasions. Please advise me. KATHY

* * *

DEAR KATHY — When girls of 13 wear lipstick, in my opinion they look more like clowns than anything else! If you have to keep up with the other girls . . . wear your nylons.

Wait a year or so for the lipstick and for now stay looking like a girl.

So it looks like even though your mother was born "when the prairies were mountains" she still knows what's good for you. HENRY authorities." And it permitted the Panamanians to license foreign consuls in the zone, although the U.S. retained the right to veto.

The Americans have refused to re - negotiate the treaty although they have made attempts, particularly since 1959, to remove some causes of friction.

Salaries of Panamanian workers in the zone were increased to bring them closer to the level of American workers there. Public facilities in the zone were officially desegregated in 1960 and Americans were encouraged to get to know Panamanians.

The Americans also discussed ways of increasing Panama's income from the canal, without raising the "rent." The U.S. started out by paying $250,000 a year, raising it to $430,000 in 1934 and to $1,900,000 in 1955.

Panama has called for 30 per cent of the canal's gross revenues, with a fixed minimum of $5,000,000 a year.

Some Panamanians have questioned the legality of the original canal treaty. It was signed hurriedly Nov. 18, 1903, by State Secretary John Hay and Philippe Banau-Varilla, a Frenchman who was named Panamanian representative in Washington by the new junta after the revolt against Colombia.

Panama's Foreign Minister Galileo Solis says Banau-Varilla was to have served only until a Panamanian negotiating team got to Washington—and that the negotiators arrived hours after the treaty was signed.

Others contend the treaty is not valid because it was signed before the country's constitution went into effect and it was never ratified by the National Assembly.

Despite the differences, cool heads on both sides have tried to solve the issue without letting emotions get out of hand. President Chiari has repeatedly emphasized that he does not want to "pressure" the U.S. In the autumn of 1963 he went so far as to praise U.S. authorities in the zone for their "firm and judicious attitude" during attempts by Panamanian extremists to invade the zone.

Diplomatic observers said this made it particularly regrettable that the action of a group of American high school students in refusing to fly the Panamanian flag has sparked this week's revolt.

One unofficial estimate said 500 have been arrested for violence. U.S. establishments were the major target of demonstrators who caused damage estimated at thousands of dollars.

In the disorders that started late Thursday Panama reported 20 of its citizens killed and hundreds wounded in gunfights with U.S. soldiers. U.S. casualties were listed as three dead and 40 wounded.

The rioting erupted after a fight between U.S. and Panamanian students over display of their national banners, but behind the immediate cause is the broader question of sovereignty over the Canal Zone.

SECURITY COUNCIL MEETS

Panama demanded at an emergency meeting of the UN Security Council Friday night that the United States give up control of the canal. Aquilino Boyd, the Panamanian delegate, asserted the canal should be either nationalized or placed under international jurisdiction.

Heading the five-man OAS delegation is Venezuelan Ambassador Enrique Tejera Paris. Others are Rodolfo Weidmann of Argentina, Alfredo Vazquez Carrizosa of Colombia, Jose Antonio Bonilla Atiles of the Dominican Republic and Manuel Trucco of Chile.

As news of the dispute echoed around the world and brought new Communist denunciations of the U.S., the Organization of American States dispatched its own mission to Panama.

In Washington, President Johnson telephoned Chiari in an effort to calm passions as the new administration faced its first major international crisis since taking office six weeks ago.

During the telephone talk, Chiari agreed to meet with Mann and Vance, and Johnson's two trouble shooters left immediately by jet for Panama.

Johnson ordered a thorough investigation into the anti-U.S. rioting. He was reported to have asked whether Communist agitators played a part in arousing the mob fury and organizing the gunfire against U.S. troops.

WANTS PROMISE

Charging "unmerciful acts of aggression" by U.S. troops against Panama's civilian population, Chiari's government said only a U.S. promise to revise the canal treaty could bring a restoration of relations.

The 1903 treaty gives the U.S. perpetual control over the 10-mile-wide strip across Panama, but Panamanians have long insisted they are actual owners of the land.

After bloody rioting in November, 1959, resulting from an attempt by Panamanian students to plant their flag in the Canal Zone, President Eisenhower declared the U.S. had recognized Panama's titular sovereignty for a half century. He ordered the U.S. and Panamanian flags raised side by side at the edge of the Canal Zone.

Neither Panamanians nor U.S. citizens were pleased.

The Americans anticipated further erosions of their privileged status in the Canal Zone, which includes higher pay and special food and recreational facilities.

TOKEN GESTURE

Panamanians regarded the joint display as only a token gesture. President Kennedy tried to placate them by ordering the Panamanian flag flown wherever the Stars and Stripes is raised in the Canal Zone.

Then came this week's explosion. U.S. students at the Canal Zone's Balboa High School defiantly raised an American flag, and brawled with Panamanian students attempting to raise their own banner in front of the school.

The Panamanians charged their flag had been defiled. When word of the incident swept like a brush fire across the country of little more than 1,000,000 persons, the violence began.

Want to Confer With Malaysia Prime Minister

MANILA, P.I. (Reuters) — The presidents of Indonesia and the Philippines today called for an early meeting with Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman of the Malaysian federation.

The meeting would discuss an early settlement of the bitter dispute surrounding British-backed Malaysia.

Afterwards Sukarno left by air for Cambodia where he was to remain until Wednesday as the guest of Prince Norodom Sihanouk, head of state.

In the communique, Sukarno defended his "confrontation" policy against Malaysia — the union of Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak and Sabah (North Borneo) — as being directed against "the neo-colonialists policy of an outside power."

He also promised Indonesian support for Filipino territorial claims to Sabah.

The two presidents also called for the spread of "Maphilindo" a proposed union of Indonesia, the Philippines and Malaysia.

They signed agreements for a general expansion of trade between their two countries.

Special service bulletin for Mutual Life policyholders

This year Mutual Life policyholders will again share in a substantial dividend increase — the ninth in the last eleven years. This means another reduction in the already low cost of Mutual Life insurance.

In 1964, dividends paid to owners of individual policies will total $16.5 million — an increase of $1,350,000 over the amount paid in 1963! If you are leaving your dividends with the company to accumulate at interest, the rate paid in 1964 will be 4.9 per cent, increased from 4.75 per cent.

Mutual Life of Canada policyholders are accustomed to big dividends. If you are not a policyholder, there's a Mutual Life representative nearby who will gladly tell you about life insurance at low cost from the company with the outstanding dividend record.

Stories of Famous Hymns

WE PLOW THE FIELDS AND SCATTER

We plow the fields and scatter
The good seed on the land,
But it is fed and watered
By God's almighty hand;
He sends the snow in winter,
The warmth to swell the grain,
The breezes and the sunshine,
And soft refreshing rain.

He only is the Maker
Of all things near and far;
He paints the wayside flower,
He lights the evening star;
The winds and waves obey
His will.

By Him the birds are fed;
Much more to us, His children,
He gives our daily bread.

We thank Thee, then, O Father,
For all things bright and good,
The seed time and the harvest,
Our life, our health, our food.
No gifts have we to offer
For all Thy love imparts,
But that which Thou desirest—
Our humble, thankful hearts.

No hymn of thanksgiving is more dearly loved or more universally sung than this one.

It was written in 1782 by Matthias Claudius, a German poet, and was translated into English more than three-quarters of a century later by Miss Jane Montgomery Campbell of London. Both author and translator were children of clergymen. Matthias' father was a Lutheran minister and Jane was the daughter of the Rev. K. Montgomery Campbell a Church of England rector.

The verses now used as a hymn were part of a long poem, of 7 stanzas, a dramatic piece entitled "Paul Erdmann's Fest," in which the German writer pictured a group of peasant friends trooping into the home of their host bearing fruits of the harvest and then pausing to sing a hymn of gratitude. When Miss Campbell picked them out, they were published in 1861 in a booklet called "A Garland Of Songs." Soon they began appearing in leading hymnals of the day.

Miss Campbell's literary interest did not end with hymns. She turned out a good bit of poetry and some prose, including "A Handbook For Singers." She found time, apart from writing, to teach in her father's parish school.

Matthias Claudius enrolled in a theological course at the University of Jena when he free-thinker friends, he forgot was 19 years old, but before his Christian faith and it took many months went by he a severe illness to bring him switched his attention to law back to his religious moorings and literature. Failing under He died in 1815, two years be the influence of a group of fore Miss Campbell was born.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Old hockey players will not, like old soldiers, just fade away and die.

Old National Hockey League players, that it.

All they have to do is play the payday shinny up to twenty years, reach the age of 65, then sit back, live the life of a hockey Reilly and look back on "those were the days that was."

For the National Hockey League through its wisdom in perfecting a pension plan has arranged for its puck-scarred senior citizens to enjoy the overtime years in peace, plenty and lazy prosperity.

They don't have to play twenty years—and the majority of them won't—to collect from the pension exchequer. The sunset-years benefits start after five year of toiling at goal-producing, body-checking, penalty collecting and bonus-chasing.

Of course the longer the boys remain in the NHL the greater the monthly stipend. After ten years it doubles, and increases a third after fifteen years.

In any event with wigt they have accumulated from talame pay during the hectic years and the pension they should be able to see the world without benefit of joining the navy.

The monthly visits of the cheque-bearing postman can be attributed in no small measure to NHL prexy Clarence Campbell. It was here the league introduced its pension plan at the beginning of the 1947-48 season, the year after Campbell became president and who, as was stated, had a lot to do with it.

In 1957, after the first ten years of the plan had been tweaked it was revised with greatly increased benefits to the players.

So if Gordie Howe plays another two years in the National Hockey League—and lives to be 65 years of age, he will be able to sit back in the ole rockin' chair and collect a monthly pension of $1,000—yup, that's right—$1,000.

Well, it might be a little less than that because Gordie was in the National Hockey League before its pension plan was revised in 1957. He would take out $9,500 a year, which is a little more than $900 a month. If he were to die at 64, his death benefit would amount to over $120,000.

Figures quoted by Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carvell reveal that an NHL five-year player would pick up $250 monthly pension; a ten-year man $500, and a 15-year man $750 at the age of 65.

In comparison a professional baseball player who puts in 20 years collects $723 monthly at the age of 65, a fifteen-year man $623; ten years $523 and five years $261.

In professional football a five-year player picks up $437 monthly, a ten-year man $656 and a fifteen year veteran $821. There is no allowance made for twenty-year men because football players just don't last that long.

Mr. Carroll points out that the average contribution by the hockey players is only a year, tax free. In terms of takehome pay it would be considerably less. The baseball players only contribute $250 a year, but both baseball and football have sources of greater revenue for their pension plans than hockey.

The hockey players do very well in comparison with baseball and football players. They can start drawing their pensions at 45, which is five years earlier than the baseball players and 20 years earlier than the football boys. But, of course, the longer they leave it the more they take out.

McMaster, Redmen Tie
Gaels Lose To Varsity

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

University of Toronto Blues' 5-2 win over Queen's Golden Gaels coupled with a 1-1 deadlock between McMaster University and McGill Redmen created a first-place tie in the Senior Intercollegiate Hockey League Friday.

Toronto and defending champion McMaster have both won two games and tied one for five points.

In the only other scheduled game Laval University of Quebec thumped Waterloo Warriors 9-3 to take over second place with four points.

McGill and Montreal follow with two points each while Queen's and Waterloo, both pointless, share the cellar spot.

Blues' rightwinger Steve Monteith led Toronto with two goals while singles went to Bob McLeland, George Olah and Hank Monteith. Barry Dinsmore and Doug Hunt scored for the visitors.

Pete Randle opened scoring for McMaster midway through the first period in Montreal. Billy Roy knotted the count for Redmen in the second.

Will Test Football Mouth Guards

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary dentists plan to sponsor a program aimed at reducing mouth injuries among high school football players.

Dr. Ben Salk, secretary of the Calgary and District Dental Society, said plastic mouth guards will be fitted for a sample 100 football players next fall. He said the society hopes that eventually all high school players will use the guards.

Dr. Salk said U.S. statistics show the use of the guards reduce injuries by 52 per cent among high school players.

After the students have used the guards, they will be polled to determine the guard's comfort, protection provided and ability to breathe.

Gifford To Replace Bud Dial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The odds against the East team in Sunday's National Football League Pro Bowl game rose a trifle Friday as Frank Gifford of the New York Giants arrived.

Dial, recently swapped from Pittsburgh to Dallas, sprained his knee in a pre-game workout and was sent home Thursday, leaving a special vacancy on the East squad.

Gifford will wear Dial's number, 84, but Washington's Bobby Mitchell will take Dial's place in the starting line-up.

East coach Allie Sherman will start Charley Johnson of St. Louis Cardinals at quarterback, with Norman Snead of Washington Redskins on the second string.

Sugar Ramos Decisions Argentine

Ramos, 132, outstepped Derado, 133, through most of the televised fight and punished him with right and left counter-punches.

Ramos opened a cut over Derado's left eye in the second round and slowed him down with two savage rights in the fourth to set up the win.

Only official to have it close was referee Tommy Hart, 6-5. Judges Jimmy Wilson and John Thomas scored it 7-4 and 6-2, respectively.

NHL Box Office Appeal Up, So Far

By MARVEN MOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The National Hockey League developed a wider appeal than ever before at the box office in the first half of the current season.

But it could be that the league will fall short of the ultimate attendance record for the full 210-game schedule—set last season—because of a counter-trend evident in Boston since the start of the New Year.

Half - way figures compiled from the attendance announcements each club makes at home games show the Bruins and the three other United States teams ran well ahead of last season while the two Canadian members slipped behind imperceptibly.

Over-all, that produced an increase of 73,200 fans at the gate, the total of paid admissions rising to 1,398,211 from 1,324,911 in 1962-63.

VIRTUAL SATURATION

The total figure for last season was 2,731,609 and NHL president Clarence Campbell said that was 92 per cent of rated seat capacity in the six arenas, virtual saturation.

Comparative mid-season figures:

Home Games	1963-64	1962-63
Chi	18	254,804
NY	18	250,499
Mtl	17	254,447
Tor	16	224,413
Det	18	217,781
Bos	18	216,267
Totals	105	1,398,211

The Black Hawks averaged 14,155 fans for the 9 games best mark this season and showed the biggest increase, drawing in an additional 24,495 fans for their 18 games. They have the biggest arena in the league with accommodations for more than 16,666.

ATTENDANCE SLIPS

At Boston the increase for the Bruins 18 home appearances was 19,446. Average attendance was 12,014. But for the last nine games covered by the statistics the Bruins drew only 7,246 and 6,750.

Only consistency has marked Boston's play the last four seasons. They wound up the schedule in sixth spot the previous three years and the club stands no higher at the moment.

Could it be that the Bruins have finally fallen from favor with the Boston hockey fans who have stuck with the club through thick and thin.

At Detroit, the Red Wings were up 19,049 with an average mark of 12,093 and in New York the Rangers were 16,342 ahead, averaging 13,916.

STANDEE VARY

Season-ticket holders in Montreal and Toronto have long made each home game a virtual sellout and in this instance in the figures for the two teams are apparently the result of variations in the number of standees.

In both cases, the drop might be traced to extra television exposure this year. All 14 Wednesday night games between the two clubs—seven in each city—are being carried on the privately - owned CTV Television Network for the first time. This is in addition to the Saturday night games the government-owned CBC has been broadcasting for some years now.

So far there have been seven games on the private network and attendance at the games has been discernibly lower than average.

The weekend schedule carries five games. Tonight Boston is at Toronto and Detroit at Chicago. Sunday night, Montreal is at Chicago, Toronto at Boston and New York at Detroit.

Olympics Whip W. Germans 4-1

MUNICH, West Germany (CP-AP) — Canada's Olympic hockey team defeated the West German champions, Ev Fuessen, 4-1 in an exhibition hockey game here Friday night.

The winners potted two goals in each of the second and third periods. Ev Fuessen's Koept scored in the second.

Terry Clancy of Ottawa, son of King Clancy, for many years defenceman in the National Hockey League and now a Toronto Maple Leafs official, scored once.

It was the second time the two teams met. Canada walloped Ev Fuessen 9-5 at Fuessen Wednesday night in the first game of their European tour.

Dr. Walter Brunnstein, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, reported the Canadian team has been receiving good press coverage here. He said German sports writers have called Jim Bedard (Canadian squad, "Father Bauer and his Whiz Kids." (Vater Bauer und seine Bilss Buben).

Penalties Spoil Third Period
Picton Shuts Out Juniors 4-0

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Picton Merchants rode the tremendous goal-keeping of young Larry Holmes into first place in the OHA Eastern Junior Hockey League here last night by blanking the Belleville "B"s 4-0.

Picton started the game with only 11 men, including Holmes, who had just returned in the third heat but Holmes' puck-stopping, especially in the first two periods, sparked the team to victory.

Belleville fired 34 shots at Holmes, many of them labelled, but he stopped everything that came his way, robbing the homesters time and again.

The losers' Bobby Moon kept pace during a scoreless first frame but in the second, when Belleville fired 20 shots on the net, Picton moved in front 2-0. They added the other pair in a penalty - studded third period.

The game was fast and clean but Lang Goodfellow and the goalies' stealing the limelight, but it was a different story in the third.

The "B"s drew only, three minor penalties in the first period but Picton drew six. A graceful display in the third, ending up with 18 sentences in all, including one match and game misconducts and three misconducts. Picton drew 11 minors, a major and a misconduct.

Wayne McConnell gave Picton all the goals necessary with a pair in the middle frame. He sunk a quick backhander from 15 feet out at 1.34 to snap the scoreless tie.

After Holmes robbed the "B"s blind while his team was two men short McConnell netted his second goal from Moon's doorstep at 10.34. Again Holmes was called to make an advantage only to be foiled by Holmes.

Picton lost Bob Brown with a misconduct at 6.36 of the third and Harold Haddock when he was injured by a Rowland slap shot at 7.53 but the Merchants kept going with eight skaters — and Holmes.

George Sainsbury, who assisted on the first two goals, sunk the "B"s hopes when, on the sin-bin at 8.51 and Gary Haensell made it 40 with a backhander into the corner at 12.27. Penalties filled the rest of the game with Holmes hanging on to his shutout.

Belleville attacked early with plenty of spark, testing Holmes four times in the game's first 70 seconds. Rutherford, Rowland and Boyle were the Picton goalies' busiest men. He "stoned" them four or five times each and also robbed Lang, Goodfellow and Hagerman at least once each.

Paul Paquin "led" the Belleville backers, with three minors, a major, misconduct and game misconduct. Moon drew two penalties, Rutherford a minor and game misconduct and Bill Lang a misconduct and a game misconduct. Picton drew two minors plus his misconduct. Haensell a major and Billy Hopkins drew a minor for Picton.

PICTON: Holmes. Brown, Gredig, Haddock, Haensell, Hopkins, Thompson, Sainsbury, McConnell, Lemcke, Bulgarelli.

Referees - Tim Williams and Ted Hurst.

Defeat Queens, McGill
McMaster, Western Win

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

McMaster University Marauders and University of Western Ontario Mustangs used different tactics Friday to come up with Senior Intercollegiate basketball victories.

McMaster unveiled a two-platoon system to defeat Queen's University Golden Gaels 60-51. Western counted heavily on captain Tom Williamson to defeat McGill University 72-70.

At Hamilton, McMaster coach Bill Fowler used his starting five men until six minutes to go in the half and then substituted a fresh second-string team. He did the same thing in the second half.

Queen's top scorers were Bog Howes with 14 points, and Pete Fraser and Ted Waring, with 12 each.

At London, Williamson played a little more than half the game and scored 28 points including 11 field goals. He also starred on defence.

Western was tied twice in the early stages of the game but was not behind. They led 30-19 at half time.

McGill, without four regular players, provided a dull game. Bruce Randle and Dave Gilman each with nine points, led the Redmen.

Flags Edge Zephyrs 4-3

PORT HURON (CP) — Port Huron Flags scored three goals in the final period to defeat Muskegon Zephyrs 4-3 in an International Hockey League game here Friday night.

Ken Gribbons fired a pair of goals to pace Port Huron. Other Flags' scorers were Lloyd Maxfield and Bill LeClaire.

Muskegon goaltenders were Lyle Porter, Kenny Campbell and Brian McLay.

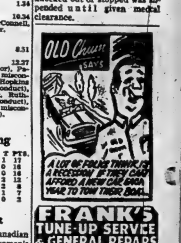
Minor Hockey

A four-goal performance by D. Beecher carried the frontenacs to a 5-2 victory over the Bruins while both of tie other games were tight, one-goal decisions in Peewee hockey league action last night.



Besides Beecher's four tallies, M. Thompson tallied firing the other Frontenac goal, while B. Lorimer earned three assists. T. Bonnetta and P. McKenzie were the hawk marksmen with C. Doyle drawing assists on both goals.

Barons clipped the Bruins 4-3, led by W. Buchanan's two goals. J. Drummond and R. Latimer had one goal apiece and F. Allen helped on one. S. Moore scored in on all Bruins' scoring plays, getting two goals and an assist. Fred Sticks potted the other goal and L Burley had an assist.

Tee Pees shaded the Rangers 5-4 with three players accounting for all the winners' scoring points. J. Vance got two goals and one assist, M. Landry fired two goals and S. Cunningham earned one goal and two assists. Rangers' markers went to McClean, J. Top, D. Beattie and B. White. G. Rogers, D. Hunt and McClean aided on one apiece.

WILL SUSPEND LOSERS

LONDON (AP) — The British Boxing Board of Control ruled Friday that a boxer defeated in any British professional bout will be automatically suspended for 21 days. The new rule tightens up the old regulation under which a bone knocked out or stopped was suspended until given medical clearance.

Has Dempsey Gloves -- 'Not Loaded'

Former Champs' Claim

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Pete Herman, one-time world bantamweight champion, claims he has the gloves Jack Dempsey used when he won the heavyweight title from Jess Willard in 1919—and says they definitely were not loaded for the controversial fight.

The 57-year-old Herman spoke out Friday to challenge the memoirs of the late Jack (Doc) Kearns, Dempsey's manager in 1919. Kearns' story of the his toric bout in Toledo, in a copyrighted article in Sports Illustrated magazine, says the manager used plaster of paris and water in bandaging Dempsey's hands.

But Herman disclaims the story, using as evidence the gloves, which he says he's had for 30 years.

"A seaman, I can't even remember his name now, gave them to me in 20 or 25 years ago," Herman said. "He was a very close friend of Dempsey and such a friend of mine.

"If he knew how close Jack and I were so he promised them to me. I had to wait a long time to get them even after this guy promised them to me, but he finally came across with them. ABSOLUTELY authentic."

The Sports Illustrated story said Kearns shelved Dempsey of any knowledge of the event. Dempsey denied everything, saying "I always taped my own hands."

Herman, who has been blind since his eyes were burned by lye as a child, said he got the gloves in Sioux City, Iowa.

Herman's wife, 78, told New Orleans States-Item sports writer Art Burke that if Dempsey's hands had been taped with plaster of paris the gloves he had would have been broken "and every bone in Willard's face would have been broken, too.

"Dempsey didn't have to resort to that sort of thing back in 1919. He could have licked any fighter who ever lived in that day. He was in great condition."

Herman has the gloves on display in his French Quarter tavern.

Herman said Dempsey knows he has the gloves. In fact, Herman said, Dempsey suggested last fall that he put them in a glass case in his bar.

The old fighter, now vice chairman of the Louisiana Athletic Commission, said he's learned that a plaster of paris solution in the gloves would have left the inside rough and probably broken them across the knuckles.

The gloves Herman has are smooth.

"I just don't believe such a thing could have existed, even in Jones days," he said. "I would rather believe that Kearns wanted some more publicity, even after his death."

Kingston Ties Stars

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ottawa Montagnards lost a chance to take over a share of first place in the Ottawa-St. Lawrence Senior Hockey League Friday, dropping a 4-3 decision to Morrisburg Combines.

The victory for Morrisburg lifted them into sole possession of fourth place behind Hull Volants who defeated the last-place Lancaster Dodgers 7-4.

It was Lancaster's seventh straight loss. Ottawa, meanwhile, remains two points back of league-leading Kingston Aces who played an exhibition game Friday with the Syracuse Stars, battling to a 4-4 tie.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

When I'm carrying the puck on my stick down the ice, I look at it a little. I'm quite sure where it is, but I can't honestly say I'm watching it.

I like to watch what's going on. I happen to be gifted with a wide range of vision. I can see what's going on at both sides of me. Peripheral vision they call it.

Even if the ice is rough and she's bumping a lot, I don't watch it much more. You know where the puck is, feel it on your stick.

Of course, every now and then under these circumstances, you'll see a fellow overstride it.

Another time a fellow can look real silly is when the puck is coming to you. You have the right in line. You put the blade of your stick down to stop the puck.

Then you take a quick peek to see if anybody's running at you. The puck takes a little hop on the ice, goes over your stick.

Then you're standing empty handed and the puck's behind you. This has happened on several occasions.

When I know the ice is rough I try to make sure to stop the puck. I put my foot on it or my glove down to make sure that I stop the puck.

They've been resurfacing the ice between periods in the National Hockey League since 1940, but it has only been in recent years that we started getting on the ice half an hour prior to the game, giving us 15 minutes to warm up, then have 15 minutes to resurface for the first period.

Before they adopted that policy, the puck used to take quite a beating during the first period, because we'd have an inch of snow on the ice before the period was over.

Knights Up Lead Over St. Louis

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Omaha Knights stretched their first-place lead Central Professional Hockey League to 13 points Friday with a 4-2 victory over their nearest contenders, St. Louis Braves.

St. Paul Rangers moved into third place by defeating last-place Cincinnati 3-0 on Marcel Pelletier's two goals.

Knights were led by Gary Peters with two goals and an assist and Len Ronzoni with a goal and three assists. Barclay Plager scored a single. Ray Cullen and Al Caron scored for Braves.

At St. Paul, Pelletier made good on 19 saves compared to 48 for Cincinnati goalie Bob Champoux.

Governor Asks Talks Resumption

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Governor Edmund G. Brown asked Friday for resumption of talks between Santa Anita Park officials and striking race track workers.

Brown entered the dispute after talks collapsed for the second time and hopes for a settlement appeared dim.

Another union tried to interv ene Friday and was told to stay out of the matter.

Santa Anita general manager Fred H. Ryan said a number of stables were planning to leave the track if racing didn't soon resume.

"If these people leave there will be no chance to reopen the meet," he said.

After talks broke down Friday for the second time in four days, W. J. Bassett, executive secretary of the Los Angeles County Federation of Labor said:

Bassett had tried to promote a peaceful settlement of the dispute, which started Jan. 6 when the Building Service Employees International Union established picket lines. The race meeting, scheduled for 55 days, opened Dec. 26.

Boston Track Meet

Canucks May Pull Upsets

BOSTON (CP)—Bruce Kidd, Canada's sensational distance star, won't be around for the three-mile event at the annual Knights of Columbus Games here Saturday, but the Canadian contingent should still steal a few headlines.

Kidd passed up the 38th annual track classic due to a heel injury.

Canadiens, Rangers Tie 1-1

Marlies Down Petes 6-4

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Throughout the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A season, Georgetown Petes and Toronto Marlboro, has been shuffling his personnel to discover the best combination.

Gregory showed last week he played no favorites when he benched Hart Ion and Peter Stemkowski, Wayne Carleton and Ron Ellis—a trio which prior to the change had accounted for 73 goals.

The move paid off Friday night as the Petes were formation of Ellis, Stemkowski and Grant Moore clicked for eight goals in the first seven minutes of the game en route to a 6-4 win over Peterborough Petes.

The victory extended the boros' league lead to nine points over second place Junior Canadiens who battled to a 2-2 deadlock with Kitchener Rangers Friday. Toronto has 35 points.

In the only other scheduled game, Niagara Falls Flyers dumped Hamilton Red Wings 6-2 to take over fourth place in The Flyers, with 34 points, trail third-place Peterborough by two and are one point up on St. Catharines Black Hawks.

Ottawa Generals hold down fifth place with 26 points, followed by Hamilton with 17 and Kitchener with 16.

Stemkowski, the hard - checking centre, paced the Marlboro attack with two goals and two assists. Ellis had a goal and two assists while Moore set up a pair of goals.

League scoring leader Andre Boudrias got the Petes goals in the first three minutes of the final period to give Canadiens a 1-1 draw with the Rangers. Trevor Fahey and John Beecher accounted for the Kitchener goals.

SCORES PERFECT GAME

REGINA (CP)—Red Glasser of Regina won the men's champion 10-pin bowler in 1961, rolled a perfect game during the league's final night when he scored a perfect 300 game in league play. The feat had last been accomplished in Regina in 1944.

Trotting Body Head

Would Expand Sulky Program

TORONTO (CP)—Allen Dickerson of Mount Hope, Ont., newly-elected president of the Canadian Trotting Association, said here Friday he will seek co-operation at all levels to expand a growing harness racing program in Canada.

The 58-year-old exporter of dairy cattle said he will ask for the co-operation of track owners, horsemen, provincial commissions in his efforts to expand the million-dollar industry.

"Harness racing, like any other business, can become successful only when there is co-operation," said Dickerson. He will attempt to instil that same spirit of co-operation in Montreal next week where the United Harness Racing Association is making a bid for more conferences racing days.

After leaving Montreal, Dickerson will go to Edmonton where that province is in the process of establishing its own racing commission.

He said the new commission had indicated it intends to publish its own racing book which, if accepted, will probably result in cash, provincial shooting its own system of rules.

"I'll try to present the CGA's position as a developer and governor, both of sport," he said. "I hope that we can work together to make harness racing a success Canada."

Others named to the 1964 executive were: First vice-president, George Gilpin, Montreal; second vice - president John Thompson, South Mountain, Ont.; and secretary-treasurer, Gord Findley, Toronto.

Among new rule changes are: The elimination of track records set by horses in time trials; horsemen who have their only horse claimed will have 20 days to re-claim the animal on any track in Canada; and requiring veterinarians at extended pari-mutuel meetings must be licensed by the CTA.

Western Hockey

VANCOUVER (CP) — Danny Belisle sprung for two goals in the second period to give Vancouver Canucks a 3-1 victory over the faltering Seattle Totems in Western Hockey League action Friday night.

Belisle fired in the winning goal and the clincher against the Totems, who could not seem to get organized.

George Ford scored the other Vancouver goal.

Juniors Win 99-70

BCI Cagers Sweep PECI

BY ROBERT WILLIAMS

B.C.I.'s Collegians made a clean sweep of a S.C.I. - P.E.C. hoop hook-up.

The Senior collegiates celebrated their Picton counterpart's 70-57 and 61-42 respectively, while the juniors won a closer 99-70 decision.

B.C.I. seniors got off to a fast start in the first quarter, collecting 25 points to Picton's 14 and the first-year squad never let up. The second quarter saw a near repeat of the first with the score 51-31. Throughout the first half B.C.I. completely out rebounded Picton.

Both teams played very shabby pro-basketball ball, especially on defence.

The third quarter was one of poor passing, shooting and rebounding as the games of 13 and 4 for each team proved. The final eight minutes spent host to a wide open affair with both teams making their biggest gains. BCI netted 29 to PECI 10.

M. Swan making successful shots, again led BCI with 29 points, followed by R. Williams and B. Burley with 20 and 10 points. Lobb and Arnaud were high for Picton with 24 and 7 points.

R. Walch had a feast for Junior, pumping in 36 points, followed by D. Hurst with 27 and D. MacCormack with 17. D. Murphy led Picton with 21 points, followed by Bentley and Frederick with 13 and 10 points.

J. McCreary, R. Loynes and P. Lloyd led the Bantams with 12, 10 and 8 points, respectively, while Sharpe and Lavender of Picton, had 8 and 6 points to their credit.

Seniors

BCI—Chick 8; Anderson 4; Schiefer 9; Williams 20; Swan 29; Burley 10; Peacock; Adams 2; Purcell 4; Casselman 4; Gallinger.

PEC—Davidson 2; Smith 4; Lobb 9; Arnaud 7; Sutherland; Whitter 3; Vesterfelt; Ketchenson 1.

Officials—P. Annis and G. Smith.

Hornets Shade Regals

Welland Nips Woodstock

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The unpredictable Welland Buriosks, spurred by a spectacular performance by winger Jimmie Robertson, whipped Woodstock Athletics 8-6 in overtime Friday.

And in the process they helped Gail Hornets into a share of first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series.

Robertson was amazing in Welland's offensive play, scoring four goals and collecting four assists. Before the game he was presented with the league's scoring race—32 points on 13 goals and 19 assists—with Woodstock's Bobby Robinson.

Athletics jumped into a first period lead and then the hot - and - cold Buriosks came right back with three unanswered goals in the second period.

Robertson twice put Welland ahead in the third period but Woodstock Wilson fired his third goal of the night for Woodstock in regular time to send the game into overtime.

The extra period was all that Buriosks seemed to need. They let loose with goals from Sonny Deason, his first of the night, Vance Millar, his third, and the fourth from Robertson. Chester Warchol scored in the second period to complete the scoring.

If was Athletics' first defeat in 11 home games this season. They have a chance to move in front Sunday in a return match with Gail Hornets in first place four points back of the leaders. The only other weekend game has Port Colborne at Oakville.

Woodstock netminder Ron Salcok got 33 Welland drives, 18 in the last period. Welland's goalie Nip O'Hearn faced 30 shots.

Ron Hergott, league scoring leader going into the game, and Woodstock's Wally Horner tied for triumph with two goals each. Jim Dahmer counted a single. Other marksmen were Bert Brown, Jack McIntyre, Keith Worrall and Willy Menard.

Parliamentary Notebook

By KEN. KELLY

Into discard has gone the mob scene in which upwards of 50 reporters fired questions at the prime minister as he walked 35 feet down a second-floor corridor in the east block from the cabinet chamber to his office.

Substituted, temporarily at least, has been a sit-down meeting at which reporters question Prime Minister Pearson in an aide's office near the cabinet room.

So far, Mr. Pearson seems to be just as accessible under the new setup.

This is not his only face-to-face meeting with reporters. Like previous prime ministers, he calls formal press conferences in his office on occasion. Aides say he intends to continue this practice.

FOLLOW PATTERN

Three post-cabinet press conferences under the new system have been held since Parliament prorogued Dec. 21. They follow a pattern.

Mr. Pearson, seated at a desk, makes a statement about anything he has on his mind—about the cabinet meeting or any other subject.

Reporters then question him orally about that or other subjects.

Reporters then question him orally about that or other subjects for about 20 minutes. The proceedings are tape recorded —except when electrical circuits, overloaded by the demands of television lights, blow a fuse, as this has happened twice.

Mr. Pearson's staff figure he's a lot more accessible than most Prime Ministers. Neither the British prime minister nor the American or French president is waylaid by reporters outside cabinet meetings.

CONCERN EXPRESSED

When it was first suggested last spring by Mr. Pearson's staff that the corridor conference be replaced, concern was expressed among the 100-odd reporters that their contact with the prime minister would be reduced or cut off.

Richard O'Hagan, a former newspaper man and advertising executive who is Mr. Pearson's press secretary, said this fear was understood and appreciated by the prime minister and his staff.

He said the present practice is an interim arrangement. The hope is to make a firmer one which will be satisfactory to reporters and the prime minister.

Mr. Pearson felt he ought to be in a position to answer questions and to do so in a dignified atmosphere.

TWO PROBLEMS

The change involved two problems for reporters. One was in posing questions to cabinet ministers, as well as to the prime minister. The other was in finding a way to ask the prime minister a question if he did not invite reporters into Mr. O'Hagan's office for a post-cabinet briefing.

Mr. O'Hagan feels the first difficulty is being met by having Mr. Pearson appear before reporters five or 10 minutes after the cabinet meeting breaks up, instead of immediately.

The short delay also provides Mr. Pearson time for a quick briefing from Mr. O'Hagan on the questions which he might be asked, based on queries to the prime minister's office while cabinet was in session or on Mr. O'Hagan's knowledge of the day's news developments.

HAVE OLD METHOD

Mr. O'Hagan says reporters still have the day-to-day machinery for placing a question through Mr. Pearson's staff, the way they would when cabinet isn't meeting and there is virtually no chance of a face-to-face meeting with the prime minister.

"Of course, there's really no substitute for direct contact, but the very nature of the prime minister's job makes it impossible for all questions to be handled by him personally."

He replied that while the new system will make it easier for Mr. Pearson to duck a difficult question, "nobody can believe we are not, in principle, making it easier for the PM to be pressed on questions."

Anyway there never was an iron-clad guarantee that a reporter would get either a chance to sandwich his question in during the corridor conference or, if he did, get a reply to it.

Conscription Issue Reborn In Britain

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP) — Conscription has become an issue again in Western Europe and neither political party is particularly happy about it.

All the recent crises—Cyprus, Aden and Malaysia—proved that Britain's 180,000-man, all-volunteer army is under considerable strain in terms of resources and manpower.

To begin with, many units themselves are under strength and inadequately equipped with technicians. Despite a massive publicity campaign waged since conscription ended, regular service—ended in 1960, the quality and quantity of recruits have not come up to the old level.

With the conflict against Indonesia in North Borneo threatening to develop into a protracted and debilitating guerilla war, Britain has served notice on NATO that she may be forced to withdraw troops from Germany to meet her Far East commitments.

The British Army of the Rhine already is weaker than NATO strategists would like. Any move to withdraw forces would alarm allies. In the past, it has always been assumed that when military duties ceased troops abroad would be recalled for service in Europe.

REVERSES THINKING

The fact that the reverse may happen has forced Britain to rethink her basic defence policies and brought demands for conscription, or at least selective service, for some quarters.

Certainly some form of conscription will be necessary if Britain is to go on policing such trouble spots as British Guiana, Swaziland and Hong Kong as well as the more explosive areas like Cyprus and North Borneo.

But Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home would be loath to reintroduce such an unpopular measure. The election last year and Labor Leader Harold Wilson is equally opposed to such a move.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Clarence Campbell has never been known as a fellow who rushes into things. He is probably one of the most deliberate officials in sport in North America.

Possessed of a keen, analytical mind, this one-time lawyer who has been president of the National Hockey League for 16 years weighs matters carefully before making statements. He wants everything before him in writing—before taking action against any NHL officials or players who get out of line.

"I haven't seen the films," and "I'm awaiting game officials' reports" are statements he usually makes when action is coming up on a player. Days later, after sorting through all the evidence, he makes his decision.

With this background, it came as a surprise the other day when he slapped an indefinite suspension of defenceman Howie Young of Chicago Black Hawks without a hearing. It was made after an altercation with by Stafford Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs was received by Campbell.

ACCUSED OF SWEARING

Smythe charged that Young swore at spectators from the penalty box during the Chicago-Maple Leaf game in Toronto Saturday, Jan. 4. Within hours the axe fell on Mr. Young.

"What kind of a setup is this when a club executive can go to the head of the league and get you suspended" was the question posed by the indignant Hawk player.

A good question. And Campbell, in an interview later in the week, had an answer.

"Apart from Young's action in hockey games and his treatment of officials, he has an extensive record of, shall I say, irresponsibility as far as the public and constituted authority is concerned."

Campbell said that Young had been insulting and abusive to police in Kitchener, Ont., and in Detroit in the past and "it struck me that an accusation of this kind (from Smythe) was sufficient" to take immediate action against the player.

TO MEET YOUNG

"I haven't made a final decision yet," he added. He declined to say when this would be made. He said he had an "appointment" with Young.

This is only the second time in Campbell's tenure as NHL president that he has suspended a player indefinitely without a hearing and without full and complete written evidence. The first concerned the case of Don Gallinger over a check against that he had bet on the outcome of games in which he had played for Boston Bruins.

He later was given a lifetime expulsion from hockey along with Bill Taylor, then of New York Rangers.

Campbell will visit Chicago and Detroit on his investigation of the Young incident and it is likely the final decision will not be made for about a week.

Wall Shoots A 65 At San Diego

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) Art Wall Jr. shot a five-under-par 65 for a 36-hole total of 136 Friday in the second round of the $30,000 San Diego Open, but once again darkness left the leading pair still 42 players finish the round.

The 40-year-old Wall had a 34-31—65 over the par 36-36 Rancho Bernardo Country Club course for the round, which before two hours late because of frozen greens and ended with Bob Rosburg and Arnold Palmer still on the course in darkness.

Rosburg, who had a 66 Thursday, had a 33 for nine holes and was one under par after 13 before he had to quit.

Tony Lema, who had a 67 in the first round, was even with par after 13. Palmer, who faded back with a 73 Thursday, was one under after 16.

Among the Canadian contingent, Al Balding of Markham, Ont., had 33-35—74 and a two-round total of 145, one back of Al Johnston of Montreal, who shot 39-36 — 75 Friday for 144. Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg, dropped to a 155 total after rounds of 77 and 78. George Knudson, a leader with 68 Thursday, had a 38 on the front half Friday before darkness forced him to postpone play.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Question—I am planning on leaving soon for Florida and do not expect to return before the end of March or early April. I haven't yet received my application for my 1964 driver's licence. In former years, I always got my licence from the licence office before I left, but this year I understand that I have to wait for the application to be mailed to me. Will my 1963 licence be good until I get back?—G. S., Belleville.

Answer—It is expected that all applications for renewal of Driver's Licences will be mailed out by February 8th. No doubt you will be leaving a Florida forwarding address with the Belleville post office before you go. When you receive it, you can mail the application in with the required fee, and your licence will be mailed to you. Your 1963 licence will not be valid after February 28, 1964.

Question—My husband has to make a trip to Sherbrooke, P.Q. on business, and we thought that we might combine it with a short winter vacation. Have you information on what skiing facilities there are in the Eastern Townships area? — Mrs. H., Trenton.

Answer—The city of Sherbrooke has its own municipal area served by a ski lift and lighted for night skiing. Southwest of the city, at North Hatley, is Green Timber Mountain with two lifts and ten trails. To the west is Brompton Lake that features a ski-doo service along woodland trails, and Mt. Orford Provincial Park, north of Magog. Mount Orford, 2,750 feet high, is the site of the annual Canadian ski championships. It provides a double-chair lift, 5,500 feet long.

Question: We are driving to Venice, Florida, and would appreciate it if you could give us little information regarding road travel. We have a half-ton pick-up truck and we would like to know if this type of truck can travel on all four-lane highways, or are they restricted the same as the larger trucks? Also, can you give us the address of the nearest A.A.A. office to Venice? - C. L. Belleville.

Answer: The restrictions on trucks on these highways do not apply to the light pick-up type of truck. They refer to the larger, dual-wheeled types. The nearest A.A.A. office to Venice, Fla., is the Peninsula Motor Club, 711 N. Washington Blvd., Sarasota, Fla.

Whooping Cranes Pose Multiplication Problem

By STEWART McLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — For North American conservationists, few things are more exciting than counting whooping cranes.

For 40 years it has been recognized that the big birds are in danger of extinction. Everyfall, when the flock heads south from its nesting grounds in the Northwest Territories, thousands of field glasses point to the sky to check the latest count. An increase of even two over the previous year will create glee, a decrease gloom.

Dispite complete protection from hunters, the known number of whooping cranes has continued to fluctuate between 15 and 60 over the last 15 years.

Now, says Richard Passmore, executive director of the Canadian Wildlife Federation, it's time something was done about it.

"With complete protection, there has been no significant increase, and I feel we should not forget about them or do something corrective."

OFFERS NEW PLAN

The action Mr. Passmore suggests is this: All the whooping cranes' eggs be gathered through zoos should be brought together, along with additions from the wild, to form a captive incubation program carried out.

It would be a co-operative effort between Canada and the United States, with the birds flying congregated at their breeding grounds and eggs brought to their natural nesting grounds in Wood Buffalo National Park to have their eggs in familiar surroundings.

"I am sure there would be many problems involved but I don't think any would be insolvable.

"If we gather the birds and their eggs every year for experience, and give the birds the right surroundings, I think we can help."

The Regina Natural History Society already has made recommendations to the federal government along these lines.

Three whooping cranes have been reared in captivity at Audubon Park, New Orleans but there also have been many failures—and Mr. Passmore feels the project can be successful if "a good honest effort" is made.

"At least we're doing something besides wishing them well."

The only known breeding ground for the whooping crane is in the Wood Buffalo Park, although the Canadian Audubon magazine suggests there may be another unknown area. Last fall, seven young birds flew to Texas with the flock while earlier surveys in Wood Buffalo Park turned up only three young birds.

"Owing to the size and bright white color of the parent birds and the open terrain on which they nest, it is unlikely that these four would have been missed," says the magazine.

"Is there another breeding ground that has not yet been discovered?"

Mr. Passmore says one of the greatest problems with an incubation program would be introducing the new birds into the wild flock. But he thinks that if they were placed with the flock at the wintering grounds in the fall, they would probably fly back north together in the spring.

"Anyway, it's worth a try. We're not getting very far with the present system."

At the Park

OPENS MONDAY

Ghosts, Crypts, Birds of Prey Haunt 'Blood-Thirsty Fans.

Horror at its most frightening is coming to the Park Theatre on Monday with Boris Karloff starring in "The Terror."

Produced and directed by Roger Corman who has made five Edgar Allan Poe pictures, brings together all the best ingredients for exciting, chilling thrills.

Ghosts that haunt—or are they ghosts? Crypts that yield up their dark secrets — or do they? Pounding seas that swallow up the heroine—or do our eyes deceive us? Birds of prey that swoop and terrorize—or are they birds such as we are familiar with? These and the menace of Boris Karoff should provide the most blood-thirsty moviegoers a perfect evening in the theatre.

Jack Nicholson, who portrayed the romantic lead in a previous Poe film—"The Raven"—which also starred Karloff with Vincent Price and Peter Lorre, is once more teamed with the fine horror star and plays with his wits against the older man.

Lovely Sandra Knight, (Mrs. Jack Nicholson in real life) is the beautiful young girl who lures both men on to their sorrow, leaving behind the frightening old woman living in the forest, and Richard Miller and Jonathan Haze add other ominous-looking rocks.

Musty looking crypts with their vaults desecrated, cobwebby gardens that overlook the sea, lavish sets depicting an old European castle add to the mood of mounting terror as the older man and the younger one search for the girl who eludes them both.

Karloff, with his deep-set dark eyes and his intense, brooding appearance can add "The Terror" to his long list of horror films which should please his many fans who form a loyal group of followers.

The added feature, "Dementia 13", another unusual horror film, is shown on the same program. Complete shows are at 7.00 and 8.40 p.m.

QUESTIONS RULING

WASHINGTON (AP)—United Air Lines questioned Thursday the wisdom, from a safety standpoint, of a proposed U.S. government regulation that would permit jet airliners to operate with up to 220 seats. George N. Keck, president of United, said in a letter to the federal aviation agency that its proposed order "is ill - founded and in the need of revision for the reason that more passengers may be permitted on the aircraft than can be safely evacuated" in event of a crash landing.

Bulletins From Birdland

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

COMING AND GOING

Largely because of the modern method of banding and the great number of people keeping records, we now have a very good idea of when each species of bird may be expected to leave the breeding range or winter quarters (according to season), stop over in any certain district, or arrive at its destination.

The last of the southern flow of migrants may be as late as Christmas, yet by the beginning of the new year some birds wintering in the south are thinking seriously of returning north.

EARLY COURTSHIP

As early as January mallards and black ducks start pairing in their winter homes, and are seen flying north together, the female leading the way and the males meekly following. Other ducks and geese do their courting and mating while making their way up the flyway. All these birds naturally are able to proceed with nest building as soon as they get to their breeding grounds. This is quite unusual, because the large majority of birds do not begin courtship until after their arrival in their summer homes.

Some species are noted for being regular in their irregularity! This applies to purple martins, some of which start from Brazil as the new year begins, actually passing through Florida before the end of January, while others get going so late in the spring that they do not build in an appearance bare until June.

Before the first week of February, many Virginia deer destined for Canada will probably have left their holiday resort in the Old Dominion, although others may be trickling through Pataana having started from their winter range in Argentina. Surely that strikes a hopeful note, June and nesting seem so far away.

By far the great majority of birds do their travelling in easy stages. A few however, always appear as though in a great hurry to get to their destination.

STAYED ALL WINTER

On hearing a crow caw or seeing a robin in mid-winter, do not imagine that they are early migrants. There are always a few hardy individuals belonging to species that ordinarily migrate, which for one reason or another winter with us. Occasionally this is quite unintentional. An odd wren trapped here by stormy weather just when it about to leave in autumn.

Other birds that occasionally are found part of winter have a recorded because Canadian residents. This is true of a few cardinals and mockingbirds which for some years now have decided that southern Ontario is not the only part of Canada where it is possible to live the year round.

REDS AFTER VOTES

NEW YORK (AP)—The Communist party says it is seeking information from officials of the 50 states about "placing Communist candidates on the ballot." The party said Wednesday it has written to secretaries of state and attorneys-general in each state, asking how election laws and specific laws, if any, apply to rights of Communist candidates.

Legend of the Christmas Rose

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Many legends are told which relate to our Christmas plants. The story of the Christmas Rose is one of these. It tells that during the flight to Egypt the mother of Christ heard the tramp of soldiers approaching. She knew not where to hide her infant.

A common wayside shrub opened its branches and Mary placed the Child in the heart of the bush. The branches folded over Him concealing Him completely. When the soldiers had passed the branches unfolded, and Mary picked up her Child.

The branches burst forth in beautiful cup-like blooms. Each year at Christmas time the bush is blessed with blooms in memory of its Kind deed.

Helebore niger praecox is the name of the Christmas rose. There are several other members of the helebore family. At one time a great deal of it was grown for the roots which are a tain poison that is used in insecticides

BLOOMS UNTIL FEBRUARY

The Christmas rose is the earliest to bloom of this family often beginning to flower early and blooming on into February according to weather conditions. It grows well in the shade, finds place in summer with light shade and must have sun in winter to bloom. It needs some protection from strong winds, but will stand sub-zero temperatures with some protection.

Even in the coldest parts of Canada they may be grown with a mulch of leaves or a cold house covering of excelsior when the weather gets down around 10 or 12 degrees.

-Helebore niger praecox is white or pink with a delicate green tinge on the back. The flowers are large and flaring, like a shallow bowl or cup. The foliage is large and leathery and is attractive all year round.

LENTEN ROSE

-H foetidus has delicate green flowers with a purple edge in the spring. H orientalis, the Lenten rose, is a little later, with spotted petals and is the pink of deeper rose. The flowers often have a tinge of delicate green. They like plant and prefer ground cover for shady places.

Still later to bloom is H. lividescens. The lovely blooms are pale cream in color and borne in panicles. They are like H. niger, suitable companions to Hosta, ferns and Pieris.

Helebores like slow growing and rare but a real treasure. It blooms in February and the flowers last for weeks.

Once established these plants last a long time. Nothing seems to mar their wares blooms, be it rain or snow, and the time of bloom makes them doubly welcome. They are difficult to grow from seed and are seldom offered in that form. Garden Guild in Toronto offer one in their annual catalogue Helebore niger and H. atrorubens. a purple Lenten rose.

200 Space Shots Planned By McGill University This Year at Barbados Station

By RUSSELL ELMAN

PARAGON, Barbados (CP)—Sheltered on the ledge of a cliff 100 feet above the Atlantic and on this Caribbean island's airport runway is a 16-inch naval cannon that has fired more than 30 Martlet missiles during the first year of McGill University's High Altitude Research Project.

The HARP project, which has its headquarters at Paragon House, an old sugar plantation residence, will step up its fire this year with some 200 space shots planned.

"We've had a fair amount of success," says Roy Kelly, a design engineer and temporary site manager.

The Martlet rockets, which take their name from the bird on the Canadian university's crest, are fired from the gun's 63-foot-long barrel like a shell, the high velocity giving their trajectory a deadly accuracy. Once in flight, the missile's motor is ignited, giving boosted power.

The relatively low cost and accuracy may provide a cheap way for small nations to put scientific instruments into orbit. And the space shots may also point the way to a method of defending against intercontinental ballistic missiles.

PEACEFUL RESEARCH

However, the McGill project, commissioned a year ago by the principal, Dr. H. Rocke Robertson, is designed primarily for peaceful research.

HARP is directed by Dean Donald Mordell of McGill and is financed by Americans with the work carried out in collaboration with the U.S. Army Research Office and its ballistic research laboratory.

Project scientist is Dr. Charles Bull, McGill professor of engineering sciences. Several retired Canadian army officers are also on the staff at Paragon.

HARP experiments include seeding gases into the highest atmosphere to determine the temperature. So far shots have been fired between 60 and 100 miles up and land about 100 miles southeast of Barbados in the Atlantic.

On the drawing board is a three-stage rocket that may go as high as 1,000 miles.

The rockets are not recovered. Observations are made with camera and radar. However, in new firings scheduled for January the Twin Falls, an American radar ship, will assist in observations. And eventually it probably will be necessary to set up tracking stations in other Caribbean islands.

Alongside the cannon is a four-inch gun that fires small rockets in experiments conducted by Computing Devices of Canada, a firm with headquarters in the Ottawa suburb of Bell's Corners.

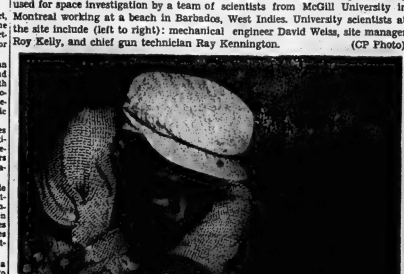
BUILD SOLAR OVEN

About 15 miles away on the west coast of Barbados, McGill has other scientific establishments — the Belleairs Research Institute, a marine biological research station, and the Brace Experiment Station, currently investigating new uses for solar and wind energy.

The Belleairs institute, gift of a retired British naval officer, opened in 1954 and is directed by Dr. John Lewis, 36-year-old native of Ottawa who is associate professor of marine sciences at McGill.

It is the only significant research centre doing fisheries biology in the West Indies and its experiments may have some economic impact.

Work has been done on flying fish, the main species in Barbadian waters, on ocean currents, the movement of fish, and on a sea egg called the sea urchin, which is important in the local diet.



"Our work is designed to help increase productivity in the local fishing industry," says Lewis. "We feel we have a part to play in the development of the community by providing technical skills otherwise not available."

The Brace Experiment Station, part of McGill's engineering faculty, recently developed its solar oven. In a tropical island, with long and regular hours of sunshine the year round, work of this type could have important practical implications in harnessing the sun's energy for heating or cooking.

Experiments on a small scale have also been carried out on the conversion of brackish and salt water for irrigation and drinking.

Points Easy To Maintain; Avoid Neglect

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

No car parts work harder than the distributor points. Their proper operation is vital to economical gas mileage, to good engine performance in starting, during idling, and at low or high speeds. And points are easy to maintain and couldn't be cheaper to replace. Thus, point trouble should be rare — but it isn't.

Apparently most motorists seldom check out distributor points for correct gap (which is so important) — or for the dirty, pitted, burned or discolored appearance which indicates time for replacement. These conditions set up an abnormal resistance . . . prevent delivery of a strong, clean spark at the plugs.

Occasionally, the distributor condenser — which protects points by absorbing current when they open — will fail. This, of course, puts an excessive burden on the points and ruins them. New points plus a new condenser provide the cure.

P. P. asks: "When water mixes in with the engine oil, does this form engine sludge?"

Sludge is a mixture of oil and water and dirt, dust, and carbon, lead compounds or other products of cold engine operation.

From J. L.: "What causes colored crusts to form rapidly on spark plug electrodes or insulator tips?"

These deposits — sometimes reddish, sometimes yellow, brown or white — are usually caused by spark plugs with a heat range too cold for the slow-speed, short-trip type of operation the engine is subjected to.

H. F. writes: "My left front wheel seems to lean or slant inwards at the top. Wouldn't this have something to do with the spring?"

A good guess. This condition is typical of a weak or broken coil spring. Although you certainly should be aware of it, if its broken.

From H. G.: "Is it true that turning on the car heater when the engine is first started in the morning has some effect on engine heat?"

Since the heater draws its heat from the engine, turning it on immediately on starting can slow down engine warm-up.

Children Not Neglected Court Ruling

SUDBURY (CP) — A family court judge ruled Thursday that Marie Hamerynk did not neglect her four children by giving them up to the Children's Aid Society when the city welfare department declined to provide her with cash in place of food vouchers.

The society, forced by law to institute proceedings within 10 days after Mrs. Hamerynk's action, withdrew its action to have the children declared neglected and made wards of the court.

The children were returned to the mother five days after she gave them up—a week before Christmas — when a Sudbury real estate broker collected more than $150 to purchase kitchen appliances and other furnishings for the family.

The city welfare department declined to give Mrs. Hamerynk cash because she used previous welfare funds to purchase a refrigerator. She is still receiving vouchers, but no money.

WIG WEARERS

The wearing of wigs dates back as far as ancient Egypt, and Egyptian mummies have been found wearing them.

'Let Retired Husband Alone' Advises This Wife Who Does

By THOMAS COLLINS

Women keep fussing over what to do with a husband when he retires and comes home to live — for 24 hours a day.

There appeared here recently the lament of a wife who was ready to move some mountains if necessary to snag her retired husband out of the doldrums she saw him sinking into. There were some suggestions, which ranged from pushing him out the front door to mingle with people, to finding something that would make him mad enough to get up out of his chair and move.

Now comes a wife who says that's a lot of nonsense.

"Let the husband alone when he retires," she says. "Let him find his adjustment and his happiness without scolding from the wife."

And then she recounts how she manages her husband, who retired about a year ago with no desire for a job and no interest in hobbies:

LOVES TO SLEEP LATE

"He loves to sleep late. So I let him. If I wake and get up early I do things that are quiet and won't disturb him — dust the furniture, clean the windows, write letters, [illegible] mend. I also make coffee and eat breakfast alone if I feel like it. My husband doesn't mind.

"When he gets up I turn on the TV and get the news and weather report. He likes a fairly brisk walk before he has his breakfast, and while he's gone I do the housework. Usually I go to accompany him on the walks two or three times a week.

"After he has his breakfast he goes out to sit on our jalousied front porch to enjoy the scenery, especially the pine trees, and listen to the birds sing.

"Then it is time to go to the Post Office, and while he's gone I start dinner, which we have about 1 p.m. (This couple, as you have figured by now, is retired deep in Dixie.)

IN THE MOOD

"Meanwhile we do the grocery shopping together. And if there are any chores to be done around the house or yard, including mowing the grass, he does them. But he does them only when he's in the mood, and he takes his time.

"After dinner he takes a brief nap and then heads at TV for an hour. After that he reads the newspaper thoroughly. Then he takes his shower. Then he goes back to sit on the porch some more. He loves that porch.

"When the news programs come on TV we look at them, have a light supper, then enjoy TV and reading until bedtime. My husband loves to study maps of the U.S. and the world, and pores over them from time to time for hours.

"About once a week we play bridge. We go to church on Sunday. We enjoy friends who drop by occasionally.

"All this may sound dull, dismal, and sluggish. But he is happy and well, and so am I."

There you have the "order of the day" of one retired couple, and it differs only in a measure of degree from the schedule of living that countless retired people are following. Though they usually fall into it around 71 instead of at 66.

"... AND THEY WANT IT"

Such a pattern, for a couple who has successfully struggled through to retirement, is certainly their right. If they want it. And one is not inclined to criticize. But as the old fellow said the first time he ever tasted tomato aspic: "There's something better."

The appreciation of the husband and wife for each other is enhanced when each of them can mingle with, and talk to, other people. The interest one holds for the other is increased when information and ideas are brought in from the outside world. But as important as any other consideration is the fact that down through the ages men and women have found their greatest joy in achieving something, winning something, earning something, doing something . . . and collecting the rewards. Too many people past 65 are riding the glory trail to say achievement is out of bounds for retirement.

Sleeping and sitting on the porch are O.K. So is tomato aspic. If you like that sort of thing. But there's something better.

GIVES BOOKS TO NYU

NEW YORK (AP)—The 3,000-volume personal library of the late poet Robert Frost has been given to New York University by Frost Ballantine. She was giving the collection to NYU, Mrs. Ballantine said Thursday, "because I think it is very important to let the world see it than to keep it for myself."

Joint Authority Set Up In Panama

OAS Will Join Groups To Try To Keep Peace

Colombian Ambassador Proposed as Chairman

CP from AP-Reuters

PANAMA CITY, Panama — The United States and Panama agreed today to set up a joint authority with the Organization of American States to try to keep peace along the riot-blooded Canal Zone border, diplomatic sources reported.

The five-man delegation from the OAS arranged for a final meeting, before flying back to Washington today, to settle technical details for the peace authority proposed by Argentina.

Informants said the U.S. and Panama would each have one military man and one civilian on the authority, with a neutral OAS representative as chairman. Alfredo Vasquez Carrizosa, Colombian ambassador to the OAS, has been proposed, they added.

Diplomatic sources said it had not been decided whether the peace-keeping group would be military or civilian forces to police the border area. It was said earlier that troops from both the U.S. and Panama might make up the patrols.

MAKE PROGRESS

Edwin M. Martin, U.S. assistant secretary of state, represented the U.S. in the OAS negotiations and told reporters:

"We have made reasonable progress."

Galileo Solis, Panamanian foreign minister, said as he left the meeting: "Slowly we are marching forward."

The two chief U.S. representatives, Thomas C. Mann, assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, and Sargent Shriver, Cyrus R. Vance, agreed to a Panamanian government request to remain here for a possible meeting today with Panama officials.

There was more violence Sunday at Colon, the Panamanian city on the Caribbean side of the canal. A Panamanian National Guardsman was killed and two others were wounded.

PC's Fail To Agree On Issues

By JAMES NELSON

MONTREAL (CP)—Conservative policy planners sketched the broad outlines of party principles at a two-day meeting which ended here Saturday, but reached no final agreement on the key issues facing the party.

Informants said the closed meeting made no decision on what form a resolution endorsing John Diefenbaker's continued leadership should take, nor how it should be handled at next month's Progressive Conservative Association annual meeting in Ottawa.

The 21-member committee—with 19 present — apparently could not agree on the wording of a number of versions of the resolution. Some said it should not be too offensive, while others said it should be more than just routine.

Some committee members argued that the resolution should be dealt with by a secret ballot at the convention — a course urged by members of the Young Progressive Conservatives in Toronto and Montreal. Older delegates, however, said this had never been done before and would set a precedent which would erect a difficult hurdle for another party leader in the future.

MAY BE READY

At the conclusion of the meeting, Richard Thrasher, national director, said he believes party headquarters will be able to send delegates a set of basic draft resolutions about 10 days or two weeks before the Feb. 3-5 convention. However, some key and controversial resolutions may not be drafted before the resolutions committee meets again in Ottawa Feb. 2.

11 Rescued Off Floe, One Dies

By DAVID SCOTT

LEAMINGTON, Ont. (CP)—One ice fisherman died, but 11 others and their would-be rescuer were plucked to safety by two helicopters Sunday after gale-force winds cracked shore ice and drove floes out into Lake Erie.

John Greenaberg, 79, of Dearborn, Mich., died probably of a heart attack when he learned the fishing party was being swept out into the lake.

The 13 men were on separate ice floes which were carried by the wind from the west side of Point Pelee and lost from sight in the swirling snow. Whitecaps breaking over the edges kept making the floes smaller.

From Mississippi to Ocean, East U. S. Drowns in Snow

CHICAGO (AP)—The winter's worst storm raged from the Mississippi River to the Atlantic today, drowning the northeastern section of the United States in heaving, blowing seas of snow.

Snow drifts up to 10 feet deep blocked roads in central Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania. The huge drifts were the work of winds up to 50 miles an hour working on snow accumulations of up to 10 inches.

The weather bureau described the massive storm as "the current winter season's worst" and advised motorists in the East they faced the possibility of becoming snowbound in zero weather if they ventured far from cities and towns.

In Illinois, some 500 motorists became overnight guests of the 1,200 citizens of Neoga, a farm community which opened up the American Legion Hall and Masonic Temple to accommodate the stranded travellers.

In Indiana and Ohio, hundreds of motorists abandoned autos on snow - clogge highways and sought shelter at service stations, road houses and farms.

Springfield, the capital of Illinois, was virtually isolated with only one main highway into the city open. A few miles south of Springfield 25 Boy Scouts on a weekend camping trip awaited rescue today at their snowbound campsite.

Schools were closed in the suburbs of Washington, D.C., where snow plans which forbid motorists to block traffic on park on main streets being plowed were put into effect.

Death Toll Mounts In Rioting

CP from AP-Reuters

CALCUTTA — Indian Army troops patrolled Calcutta and its suburbs today with shoot-to-kill orders to check Hindu-Moslem violence that has claimed at least 75 lives during the last four days. Most of the dead are Moslems.

Looting and arson were reported in and around Calcutta. The city, India's largest, is in West Bengal state. More than 4,000 persons were arrested.

It was the worst communal outbreak since 1947, when the Indian subcontinent was partitioned and hundreds of thousands were massacred. Refugees from neighboring East Pakistan have reported 29 dead there in attacks of Hindus.

Arab Sultan Overthrown By Insurgents

State of Emergency In Force on Island

CP from AP-Reuters

ZANZIBAR — African nationalists proclaimed a republic Sunday on the African spice island of Zanzibar—once the centre of Arab slave traders—after overthrowing the Arab sultan in an overnight revolt.

A state of emergency was in force in the former British protectorate following a warning from the new government that all foreign ships should stay outside the island's territorial waters.

Several persons, including policemen, were reported killed and many others wounded in heavy fighting that erupted Saturday night and raged into early Sunday around police stations, an armory and the residence of Prime Minister Mohammed Shamte Hamadi.

A radio station, identifying itself as "the Freedom fighters of Zanzibar," said at least two policemen were killed during the successful overthrow of the armory. There were reports another policeman was killed defending the prime minister's home.

TAKE REFUGE

The rebel broadcast said Hamadi and Sultan Seyyid Jamshid Bin Abdulla had taken refuge on a cruise liner in the harbor.

By late Sunday night the rebels were reported to have seized control of all but one strategic buildings in or around Zanzibar Town.

They took over the cable office and halted cable services from the island. They also held the airport, and no planes were allowed to take off or land.

Only faulty telephone communications were open.

The revolt occurred a month and two days after Zanzibar gained independence. It was a British protectorate for 73 years. Britain remained in the Commonwealth, and the rebel broadcasts gave no indication that the ties would be broken.

The rebel station said Sheik Abeid Karume, head of the Afro-Shirazi party, was named president of the new republic. Sheik Abdul Rahman Mohammed Babu, whose leftist Umma party was banned earlier this month for trying to incite a revolt, was named foreign minister. Kassim Hanga was made Prime Minister.

Castro Visits Moscow

By ANDREW WALLER

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Cuban Premier Fidel Castro arrived here today following a surprise announcement Sunday night that he would meet with Soviet Premier Khrushchev to discuss "questions of interest."

Castro stepped from a special jetliner into Moscow's below-freezing temperatures and was greeted warmly by Khrushchev and other Russian leaders.

In a welcoming address, Khrushchev hailed the visitor as the "head of the Cuban nation, the first in America to choose the socialist road."

Chinese Communist Ambassador Pan Tzu-li also was among the dignitaries waiting to meet Castro.

An official statement issued here Sunday night said Castro, who visited Russia last spring, would intersperse his talks with Khrushchev with a rest and some outing in the Russian forests.

Khrushchev assured the Cuban leader in his speech that "no attempts of Cuba's enemies, no economic blockade of the imperialists, can block the grand march of the great Cuban people."

The Soviet premier, who escorted the shivering Castro into a reception room for the speeches, said he was sure the Cuban leader's visit "will contribute to the cause of strengthening the great friendship between our two countries."

KEPT PROMISE

He said he was happy that the Cuban leader had "kept his word" in return to Moscow to see a Russian winter. He laughingly told the Cuban leader, who had clapped his gloveless hands to keep them warm, "it gets much colder."

Thanking the Soviet Union for its aid, Castro said he knew of the difficulties that the Soviet people experienced in their time but are now experiencing. But there can be no comparison because we have the help of the Soviet Union."

Toy Poodle, Austrian Woman Figure in Terminal Opening

TORONTO (CP) — A six-month-old toy poodle, an Austrian woman and a mix-up mix-up shared in the confused opening of the new jet-age terminal at Toronto's International Airport Saturday night.

Trans-Canada Air Lines became the first users of the ultra - modern structure when Flight 88 from Vienna, Zurich, Paris, London, Shannon and Montreal touched down at 10:30 p.m.—1½ hours before the official opening scheduled for midnight.

Anna Schaschinger, as first passenger to step from the plane, was presented with a puppy named TIA, symbol of Toronto International Airport. The presentation was made by the flight's captain, W. A. Lennie.

TCA also boasted the first plane to land at the new aeroquay after the official midnight opening with Flight 62 from Winnipeg landing at 12:28 a.m.

Canadian Pacific Airlines' flight from Rome missed the official honors by 25 minutes, arriving at 11:35 p.m. It was originally thought that the CPA plane would arrive shortly after midnight.

The surprise arrival of Flight 88 also caused excitement for other quarters when persons awaiting its arrival were caught by surprise at the old terminal. A hurried announcement sent them on their way to the new buildings. But no one notified the commissionaire that operations at the new location had begun. So he dutifully stopped cars trying to enter the new terminal and turned several away.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Light and blowing snow will brush southern Ontario this morning. Snowfall amounts are expected to be less than two inches but strong north to northwest winds will cause considerable blowing and drifting. The snow will taper off to a few flurries this afternoon.

Clear, cold weather over central and Northern Ontario will continue today with some cloudiness and a few snowflurries expected tonight and Tuesday. In southern Ontario gradually clearing will occur tonight with mainly sunny skies Tuesday.

U. S. Surgeon-General Will Act

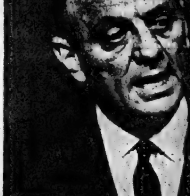
Plans Steps Against Smoking Hazard

WASHINGTON (AP)—Heavy cigarette smoking is the principal cause of cancer of the lungs and the larynx and a health hazard so grave as to call for remedial action, a U.S. science panel has concluded.

The nature of that action was not spelled out in the report, made public Saturday. However, Surgeon-General Luther Terry of the U.S. public health service said his agency will move promptly to recommend specific steps of the kind urged by the science group. Meantime, he told a press conference:

"I would advise anyone to discontinue smoking cigarettes."

The 10-man, special advisory committee on smoking and health took 18 months to evaluate more than 8,000 studies of the effect of smoking on health.



It undertook no fresh research but decided available evidence shows that cigarette smoking far outweighs all other causes of lung cancer and cancer of the larynx—in men and perhaps in women.

It had no such clear-cut indictment of cigarette smoking in the area of heart and blood vessel disease or lesser ailments sometimes associated with smoking.

But, broadly, the panel took the view that the more you smoke the more you risk early death.

The special group was not requested to make specific recommendations for laws or regulations to offset smoking hazards but it concluded:

"Cigarette smoking is a health hazard of sufficient importance in the United States to

SAYS SMOKING IS DANGEROUS — Dr. Luther Terry, U. S. Surgeon General, answers a question during news conference discussion of federal panel's studies of the dangers of smoking on health. He said he would warn his patients against smoking and if they insisted on doing it he would make sure they understood they faced serious health hazards.

After releasing the report, Terry declared that there will be "no foot-dragging" in seeking possible remedial steps.

He said the committee found the committee unanimous in the committee of scientists said:

"In view of the continuing and mounting evidence from many sources, it is the judgment of the committee that cigarette smoking contributes substantially to mortality from certain specific diseases and to the over-all death rate."

The report, which ran to about 150,000 words and several hundred pages, hit hardest at cigarette smoking as being what it termed a significant cause of lung cancer, chronic bronchitis, and cancer of the larynx, or voice box.

The committee was more reserved in linking cigarette smoking with heart disease and circulatory disorders, at least as to any cause-and-effect relationship.

The report said in this respect:

"Male cigarette smokers have a higher death rate from coronary artery disease than non-smoking males, but it is not clear that the association has causal significance."

But it said also that an association has been established between cigarette smoking in men and higher rates of coronary disease, and it asserted:

"It is . . . more prudent to assume that the established association between cigarette smoking and coronary disease has a causative meaning than to suspend judgment until no uncertainty remains."

Randolph Churchill Says Hogg Was Macmillan's Choice for PM

LONDON (CP) — Randolph Churchill has revived the post-mortem on the Tory leadership struggle with a book stating that the former Lord Hailsham was Harold Macmillan's first choice to succeed him as prime minister.

With an election in the offing, Churchill aroused a welter of new speculation with his claim that Macmillan first favored Hailsham to succeed him, over the present premier, Sir Alec-Douglas-Home.

The son of Sir Winston Churchill, an irascible journalist who now does a column for The Weekly Spectator, gives his views in his book The Fight for Tory Leadership, published today.

The book has already caused considerable controversy among political writers. Ian Macleod, the former party co-chairman who was one of the chief actors in the leadership crisis, is scheduled to give his views later this week in The Spectator, of which he now is editor.

Macleod, who supported R. A. Butler, No. 2 man in the government for 10 years, for the premiership, refused to serve in the government formed by the Earl of Home, now Sir Alec, but has never given his reasons publicly.

The leadership struggle erupted with unprecedented drama at the October party conference in Blackpool when Macmillan announced he would retire because of illness.

Correspondents at that time were told freely that members of the Macmillan and Churchill families were telling Hailsham, 56, and he disclaimed his peerage in an emotional speech.

But Hailsham was swept aside when the boom for Home, 60, began and many correspondents came to believe the Scottish nobleman had been Macmillan's choice from the start.

At this time, the powerful secretariat events at Blackpool were designed to defeat Butler and enable Home to emerge from the ensuing deadlock as the only leader acceptable to all sections of the party.

Randolph Churchill was one of Hailsham's most enthusiastic boosters, having written Oct. 13: "Of course, all in-telligent people know that the next prime minister will be Mr. Quintin McGarel Hogg."

SNOW COVERS ENGLAND

LONDON (AP) — Snow covered most of southern England during the night. Roads were reported dangerous in 31 counties.

Dave Brown's Rink Winner Of Sportsmen's Spiel Here

It was cold outside but within the confines of the Quinte Curling Club on Friday night and all day Saturday warmth, good fellowship and hospitality reigned supreme. It was the occasion of the fourth annual Sportsmen's bonspiel for the members and the Flintoft trophy was up for competition. A rink of Jack Diamond, "Bud" Trill, Dick Beare and Dave Brown as skip was the winner of the trophy and accompanying prizes but the rink had to wait for a decision in another game before it could claim the silverware. A single shot separated the rink of Howard Thompson, Dr. J. Nelles, Stan Hart and William Riley as skip from at least tying the top rink. The third three-game high rink was composed of R. Farnharson, Everett Fairman, Bob Alexander and Ron Case as skip.

The high two-game winner was a rink of N. S. Binning, Frank Barrett, Harry Fuke and Steve Bakey as skip. The second place in this category was a rink of Bill Kirsch, Ernie Palmer, Jim Highman and the vice president of the club Roy Ham in a raffle.

The president of the club Everett Black, the directors and the committee in charge of the event are to be congratulated for the smooth running of the spiel. There is a lot of work connected with an event of this kind but not one refusee any task assigned. The ice was in perfect condition. Much of the work of Ron Benn, his committee and the icemaker, Jack Clearsbee, Bill Highman was decorated for the occasion and the draws were conducted by Dr. McConnell, Ev Gowasli and Doug Ashley.

DELICIOUS DINNER

When it comes to putting on a dinner for hungry curlers there is none to compare with the chefs of the curling club. The tables were simply laden with good food and after the blessing was given by Rev. C. W. Coleman, the curlers lined up and did ample justice to the many good things provided.

Behind the table were the chefs, John and Everett Black, in their spotless white uniforms with chef caps perched jauntily on their heads. They carved a 22-pound turkey, a large rib roast of beef, that was delicious, and placed alongside this meat were all the trimmings for a delightful dinner. There were scalloped potatoes, mashed turnips, fillet and every thing else one could think of, including all kinds of dessert. Along with the chefs were willing helpers and Bob Smith, with an apron bearing the inscription "Mother's Little Helper," signified the attitude of all the helpers around the kitchen. It was a grand night and will not be soon forgotten.

But the delicious dinner was not the only food that was available. On Friday night the frying pans were brought out, the hamburg steak was placed on the tables and all the trimmings were on hand. Bob Lanning proved to be an excellent cook and with his helpers, the hamburgers disappeared at an alarming rate.

On Saturday a table was set us with smoked oysters, white and colored cheese, potato chips and other delicacies. In the "it" room Ken Pinder and his committee held forth and good fellowship was seen at every hand. The "club" operated in its usual manner and it is understood a new president has been elected when Bob Alexander gave up the ghost.

The curling was excellent and the interesting games resulted. The second game allowed the vice-skip to move up and the players move down, the skip going to lead, the lead to second and the second to vice. This only added to the enjoyment of the spiel. The donor and sponsor of the trophy, Stan Flintoft, was again able to be present but Bill Gault and Steve Bakey went up to see him to report on the proceedings.

Kiwanis Club Pres. Outlines Year's Work

TRENTON — Dieter Roll, 1964 president of the Trenton Kiwanis Club presided over the annual president's conference last Thursday and outlined his program for the year. Mr. Roll would like to see the membership of the local club increased by adding members, who are willing to work with the club and further community interests and to continue the welfare work of the club. Chief among the projects is the support of the local club of the Roblin Lake camp for underprivileged children. Other welfare cases will be dealt with as they come up.

One year ago, the Trenton club sponsored the start of a high school Key Club and this group is still very active. The club will also work with the Kiwanis division and district executive in the fall conventions of Kiwanis International, and will endeavor to maintain excellent relations with town council and other town bodies, including other service clubs, all in the town.

The education committee, headed by Peter Heid, proposes to nominate a Kiwanian of the Month", and the vocational guidance committee, with Bill Smoulter as chairman, proposes to honor an outstanding town citizen each year. It is proposed to continue the bursary to a deserving student at the high school each year, to have individual committees work here talk to school drop-outs, with a view to persuading them to return to school and to continue sponsorship of the Cobbright 4-H calf club.

St. John Brigade Teaching First Aid

TRENTON — The local St. John Ambulance Brigade, formed last year, has issued an invitation to town residents to join the group. Meetings are held each Wednesday evening in the community centre. A first aid course is being held at the Gardens Monday nights, and taking the course are police officers, leaders, ambulance operators, teen-agers and brigade members.

Last week, brigade members met the new divisional superintendent, Dr. R. Leavitt of Trenton. Other executive members are: Dr. W. A. L. McDonald, Mrs. G. Ellsworth, Mrs. W. McKenzie, Mrs. A. Fritzshaw, M. Verheyen and Mrs. Irene Markvart.

Club Pledges $300

TRENTON — At a meeting in Canterbury Hall last week, the Orion Club of St. George's Anglican Church pledged the rector, Canon K. F. Blachford, $300, to go towards the building fund of the church.

The 1963 executive was unanimously re-elected to serve during 1964. Officers are: Mrs. (Mary) Bedford, president; Mrs. D. V. Crandall, secretary; Mrs. Orval Goodsell, treasurer, and Mrs. J. Benham, social convener.

STRUCK IN REAR

TRENTON — Around 8.40 p.m. Friday, a car owned by Harold W. Hart, 38 Stella Cres., was damaged to the extent of $150 when it was struck in the rear by another car as Mr. Hart waited his vehicle out of a Dufferin Ave. driveway. The driver of the other car failed to stop. The second vehicle is believed to be a 1953 or a 1954 blue Chevrolet.

Passenger Hurt

TRENTON — Friday night, a rear-end collision between a car driven by Lorne Hayes instead of 22 College St. and a parked car, owned by William John Dunphy of 22 College St., resulted in damages estimated by police at $340. The accident occured on Division St. A passenger in the listed car, 17-year old Heather Kemp of Frankford was treated for bruises and facial lacerations following the accident.

Train Hits Auto But Driver Unhurt

TRENTON — Friday afternoon, David Cooke of R.R. 3, Trenton, escaped serious injury when the front end of his car was struck by a Canadian National CNR diesel at the Queen St., Division St. intersection. Damage to the car was set at $250. DeMille told police he heard the train whistle, but failed to see the train, visibility at the intersection is hampered by houses close to the tracks. Train engineer was F. J. Arrowsmith, R.R. 3, Belleville and the conductor was J. K. Boyle, 451 Burton Rd., Belleville.

Despite sales of electric blankets, hot-water bottles are still popular in Britain, with wholesaling sales of about 7,000,000.

J. S. Duncan Heads Mixed Spiel Board

TRENTON — The Bay of Quinte Mixed Bonspiel, hosted this year by the Trenton Country Club, will be held March 6, 7 and 8, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Some of the local rinks will play on Thursday evening, March 5.

General chairman for the event is J. S. Duncan; vice-chairman, Jim Smooth of the Quinte club; second vice-chairman, H. Quantrelle, RCAF; the treasurer is Percy Hetherington of Trenton and bonspiel secretary is Bruce Canty, manager of the Trenton club.

Entry fee for the bonspiel is $18. The events will include playoffs for the Haggarty Transport trophy, the Alexander Motors trophy, the Bowling event and the Fox Cartage trophies.

The annual "do" will tee off officially Friday night with a bonspiel banquet, and dance at RCAF Station Trenton.

Rinks from Cobourg, Peterborough, Ottawa, Perth, Kingston, Downsview, Dixie, Napanee, Picton, Lonsdale, Harwood, Bobcaygeon, Belleville, Trenton and the RCAF at Trenton will compete.

For further information contact Ross Booth at Belleville, WO 8-6400 or Vic Wilson at 964-2166 or call Mr. Cardy at EX 2-3244 or Ex. 2-9976, Trenton.

Woman Falls, Dies on Street Of Heart Attack

TRENTON — Mrs. Emma May Holland, 365 Front Street, died on a Trenton street last Friday afternoon—but she did not die alone and friendless.

The little gray-haired lady—she was in her sixties—had been shopping and in her arms when she collapsed were packages of groceries and sundries from the drug store. In her purse the loaded gun was clutched her black handbag.

She fell, face down, just back of the fire hall on the main square. Someone said she was running to catch a bus which had just left the terminal. The bus driver was first one on the scene. Then a fireman ran out of the hall with his blankets. Someone called the police. A constable ran and covered the little lady with blanket overcoat. A blanket was put under her head.

"Get a car right here, can we take her to the hospital?". That question was asked a number of times.

People in the crowd, men, women and children, stood ready to help in any way. Sympathy was in their faces.

The ambulance arrived and the little lady was lifted tenderly onto a stretcher. She moaned once before the ambulance took off through the crowd for the hospital. The fireman grabbed up the blankets. The constable took the lady's purse and her parcels in the police station. The crowd dispersed.

26 Fatalities Across Canada During Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Weekend accidents across Canada were responsible for at least 26 deaths, including 12 in highway mishaps and nine in fires.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday local times also showed three persons were drowned, one man died when hit by a falling tree branch, and one of frostbite.

Ontario had 10 fatalities, five in fires, three in each of traffic and drowning accidents, the man struck by the falling limb and the frostbite case. Three children died in a fire at Dunbarton, Ont., and two other children were drowned when they fell through thin ice on a creek.

Accidental deaths totalled five in Quebec. Nova Scotia had three highway fatalities. British Columbia had one fire and one highway fatality while New Brunswick, Alberta and Manitoba each had one traffic death.

There were no fatalities reported in Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island or Saskatchewan.

The survey does not include known suicides, natural or industrial deaths.

The Ontario dead:

FRIDAY

Rickey, 7, Douglas, 5, and Mark, 4, children of Clarence Kennedy of Dunbarton, when fire destroyed their home.

SATURDAY

Janet Sloan, 8, Terry Pawlik, 8, both of Lake Nipissing, when they fell through thin ice on a creek.

Ian Dunn and Peter Coultry, 27, both of Toronto, when their car overturned near Bala.

Jacques Gaulbreault, 25, St-Perpetue, Que., when hit by a falling tree that struck Hearst.

SUNDAY

Stephen Melmes, 59, St. Catharines, when fire destroyed his home.

Leslie Bain, 43, Port Loring, when the snowplow he was operating crashed head-on into the ice.

IN MEMORIAM

TINKLE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, John Vinkle, who passed away one day January 13th, 1956.

Those we love don't go away, They're always near, We can't see them, But we know they're here.

Since death, its gloom, its shadow cast,
Within our home, where all seemed bright,
And took from us a shining light,
We make this light shine in His vacant place, there's none to

Down here we mourn, but not in

Up for in heaven, we will meet again.

—Lovingly remembered by wife and family.

NOBLE P. H. DAVIS

Shriners Return P. H. Davis as 1964 President

President Phil H. Davis was named to a second term of office as head of the Belleville Shrine Club by a newly-elected 1964 board of directors.

The board of eleven directors were elected to office at the annual meeting of shareholders of the club held recently.

These include Nobles P. H. Davis, William Dawson, C. F. Way, Jack Allin, George C. (Mickey) MacDonald, Tom C. Lewis, R. C. Sargent, Jack R. Bush, Stu Hubbard, Alex Pierson and James MacDonald.

President Davis was the unanimous choice of the board to guide the destiny of the club for the coming year.

A spokesman for the directors said that president Davis did an excellent job for the Shrine in 1963. He worked hard with the result the club enjoyed a highly successful year.

The president expressed his appreciation to shareholders, directors and members for the "vote of confidence" assuring them he would have the best interest of the club in mind in 1964 as he did in 1963.

A planned visit to the south prevents the immediate holding of a formal reception, president Davis said. However he plans to hold it in March.

Meanwhile an informal get-together has been arranged for Friday night. There will be music, dancing and cards and no admission.

"Just a friendly evening for members and wives" says president Davis and Mrs. Davis.

Arabs Seek Way To Stop Israel Diverting River

CAIRO (AP)—The top leaders of the Arab world gathered in Cairo today seeking united action to block Israel's plan to divert waters of the Jordan River for irrigation of the Negev Desert.

The Arab summit meeting was preceded by suspension of the bitter feud between the United Arab Republic and Jordan, which fell out in 1961 when Jordan recognized the Syrian regime that pulled out of the U.A.R.

Informed sources said President Nasser of the U.A.R. and King Hussein of Jordan agreed to resume diplomatic relations after a two-hour conference.

Nasser called the conference ostensibly to counter Israel's threat to put its 15-year-old irrigation project into operation this summer. But some observers saw the conference as an attempt by Nasser to reassert his leadership of the Arab world.

In the past, Arab leaders have threatened war if Israel goes ahead with the scheme. Israel, Jordan, Syria and Lebanon all draw water from the river.

CEYLON STRIKE ENDS

COLOMBO, Ceylon (Reuters) Strikes by port and mercantile white collar workers ended here Monday after the former had been out 69 days and the latter 5 days. The strikes had crippled the export of tea, rubber and coconut products.

Two Juveniles Held for Beating Of Waitress

MONTREAL (CP)—Police in suburban St. Michel said today two brothers, one 12 and his other 15, are to appear in juvenile court for the savage beating of a waitress, found mode Saturday night in a locked cafeteria.

The letters FLQ were written on her in blood but police said the terrorist organization was not involved in the case.

The girl, Lise St. Maurice, 9, was taken to hospital suffering from broken ribs and a fractu jaw and nose.

A police officer who had earlier denied the arrest of the pair in connection with the beating said he was not aware of it at the time and had confused the case with that of two other teen-agers picked up in connection with a stolen truck-FLQ MOVEMENT

The girl was found in a St. Michel restaurant after police were led there by an anonymous telephone call.

Police Sgt. Marcel Bourque of St. Michel police said, "we're certain it isn't the FLQ."

The FLQ, Front de Liberation Quebecois—claimed responsibility for a 16-week series of bombings in the Montreal area last spring. The organization issued demands for an "independent Quebec."

On arrival at the restaurant Saturday police had to break an outside padlock on the door to gain entrance.

They heard the girl whimpering inside and she was taken to hospital.

Miss St. Maurice had been left to close the restaurant at 2 a.m. The call to police was received later in the night.

A.N.A.F. Weekly News

At last Thursday's general meeting, the 1963 executive sat for the last time. After essential business had been completed, Pres. Cec Brown, postponed further general business to allow the election and installation of the 1964 executive. The various chairmen thanked their committees for the splendid work they had done during the past year and the President thanked his executive as a whole for the grand support that they had given him and hoped that the incoming president would receive the same. He also was appreciative of the way the general body had backed him up. He went on to say that he was delighted to see so many of the comrades out, especially when they had to brave the inclement weather that occurred that day. There was a very good slate of members offering their services for the executive and he did not doubt but what the comrades would have to make some tough decisions for whom to vote.

He then invited Dominion President Jack Lundberg to take the gavel and act as chairman for the election and installation of the new executive.

This was greeted with a round of applause and the Unit was pleased to have such a distinguished officer of the ANAF as chairman.

Comrade Jack said that he was honored to be asked to preside and said he was very proud to belong to Unit 201 and that, in his opinion, the club rooms and members were second to none. However he would like to see a concerted drive for new members as the more members there were, the greater was the power in presenting briefs or representation—they would for the betterment of the ex-servicemen and his dependents to the government. He also offered to put up a prize for the member who brought in the most new members by the end of March. This applies only to active members who join this spring.

NEW PRESIDENT

He then declared all positions vacant and the outgoing executive took their places with the general body. The election then proceeded, when all ballots had been deposited, Comrade Jack introduced Comrade Don Lee and his scrutineer committee who accepted the ballot box and retired to count the results. The following is your new executive:

President: J. P. Boyle, 1st Vice-president: F. B. Kelly, 2nd Vice-president: H. Ford, Executive: Pat Boyle, W. J. Ford, L. McCormick, T. Hickle and R. Bidley; Secretary: A. S. Hoag; Treasurer: J. Trumpour; Alternates: D. Galpin and F. Carmichael. Last but not least, Immediate Past President: C. M. Brown. The Dominion President had the newly elected members paraded to him by Sgt.-At-Arms, Shelley Smith, to the swirl of the Bagpipes, played by Pipers Art Cogdale and Clare Dingman, where he swore them all into office. At this time congratulated the members on their choice but was very sorry the unit was losing the services of the members who were not elected. That is on the executive itself, but was sure that they would still continue to work for the betterment of the club in particular and the A.N.A.F. personnel in general. The evening concluded with the usual repast and refreshments, the pros and cons of the election and a sing-song.

Next week the various chairmen will be named and the 1964 executive will swing into action and look for the support of the general body during the coming year, hoping it will be one of the best years yet.

The members were sorry to hear that Comrade Brenton had to be returned to hospital and sincerely hope that it is not too serious and that he will soon be home again. The following comrades are still in B.G.H.: R. J. Noyes 110, Brenton 220, Scott 233 and Frankish 240. Comrades Crawford and Percy are recuperating at home.

As right now, no chairmen have been appointed, there is nothing to report on sports, entertainment, band etc. But look out for developments in the near future.

1000 CHILDREN ASSISTED

Interesting Item: 1000 Children of Canada's War Dead Assisted To Degrees and Diplomas: - In the 10 years since the Children of the War Dead (Education Assistance) Act came into force, almost 1,000 children of Canada's war dead have been assisted, to obtain university and other advanced education degrees and diplomas.

These graduates include 146 who obtained degrees in arts and science, 138 in education, 63 in engineering and applied science, 56 in social work, 13 in medicine, 10 in law and 55 in other faculties. In non-university courses there were 262 registered nurses, 159 teachers and 99 who received diplomas in administrative and technological fields.

The Act provides monthly living allowances and tuition fees for eligible children to take advanced training for which secondary school graduation, or the equivalent is a requirement for admission. It is ordinarily limited to four academic years or 36 months, whichever comes first. By the end of last September there were 2,300 applications for training under the Act had been approved.

New Chance for Canada ?

Wednesday President Lyndon Johnson told Congress that he plans to cut U.S. production of "enriched" uranium by 25 per cent.

Will this, by any chance, increase Canada's chances of finding a bigger market for the heavy-water nuclear reactors, the development of which she has pioneered?

Frankly, we do not know. The layman, however, can make some interesting deductions. President Johnson's planned reduction of "enriched" uranium output is aimed at cutting the amount of material suitable for use in nuclear weapons, but this same type of "enriched" uranium is, we are told, used in "small specialized reactors." Actually, if our understanding is correct, most U.S.-designed reactors, regardless of size, use this "enriched" uranium. Canadian reactors, on the other hand, use "natural" or "raw" uranium of the 235-isotope variety.

President Johnson has challenged Russia to match the U.S. reduction in the output of "enriched" uranium. If this challenge is accepted, we may see established a strong precedent against any later increase in the production of such uranium, even if it is planned to use it for peaceful purposes. Moreover, it could be argued that nuclear reactors powered by this enriched uranium would provide the countries in which they were established with material from which nuclear weapons could easily be manufactured. It would be a much more difficult and involved task to utilize the natural uranium in Canadian-designed plants for this purpose.

Eventually this may prove a powerful factor in promoting the sale of heavy-water reactors, regarding which Canada leads in "know-how." The latter reactors have the additional advantage that countries which possess uranium deposits could produce their own fuel without establishing the sophisticated processes necessary to "enrich" uranium. To all intents and purposes, a country purchasing an enriched uranium reactor is limiting itself to one fuel supplier, the United States.

No Three-Year Terms, Please

Oh, come now, Charlotte, a two-year term has company, but three could easily be a spree.

Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa is nothing if not ambitious—and not even an Ottawa controller would suggest that Mademoiselle Mayor is not willing.

Not only does she want to remain in office until 1967, Canada's centennial year, but she would like to do it the easy way. She says the Ontario Legislature should be asked to extend the terms of office of the 25 council members to three years from the present two.

Here in Belleville we are just getting ready to make the two-year term universal for elected municipal offices, but in Ottawa they are already seeking a fifty-per-cent bonus.

There are many things to be said in favor of a two-year term, but none of these applies with equal force to a three-year stay.

First thing the harassed ratepayer will know, if councils get three-year terms they will be wanting five years, just like members of the Commons. Now we have nothing against a five-year term for an M.P.—after the recent spate of Federal elections it would be a pleasant novelty to be rated of the spectacle of campaigning politicians for half a decade. But what is good for the country is not necessarily good for the city. Things move a little faster in municipal politics than they do in national affairs. New problems arise, and new citizens of ability move to town and take an interest in the affairs of the community.

An inefficient Member of Commons might be endured for three years—but a similar term for an unprogressive mayor could get a municipality into serious trouble.

Miss Whitton was first elected mayor of Ottawa in 1950, retired in 1956 to enter federal politics and returned to city hall in 1960. If Ottawa citizens want to keep her there until 1967, that's their business. But let them do it without setting any dangerous three-year precedents for the rest of us.

The spoilt and pampered child may know moments of delirious happiness, because all sorts of nice things happen to it—nice in their immediacy. But it is deprived of lasting happiness because it lacks the solid bedrock of security. Security and spoiling are connected because of the dual roles in which the child sees its parents. If they are weak to the child, then they are weak champions of the child, and the child will come to despise them because they have let it down.—Malcolm Hulke.

Ottawa Offbeat

Dief Lure It's Just a Matter Of Time Till He Returns as P.M.

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — This week and next, Conservative Opposition Leader Diefenbaker is doing the thing which, as still very much the nation's most compelling political personality, he perhaps does best.

"Main Streeting," he calls it.

This exercise of meeting and greeting the people where they live — on the West Coast this time — will be repeated at frequent intervals with shorter, possibly weekend excursions in the months ahead, to other sections of the country.

It is a new and different Diefenbaker setting off this time from Parliament Hill to find out, as he likes to phrase it, "what the real people are thinking."

It is a relaxed, affable and serenely confident Diefenbaker.

And this, if you have been watching him these past few years, is a switch.

For in the last couple of his six years as prime minister he was starting to show the wear and tear of the kind of unrelenting pressure that public leadership inevitably brings. Not to give up that unmistakable sparkle of cracking the easy affability of L. B. Pearson.

FRAYING A BIT

In the 16 or so months before his government fell—pushed as much by "friends" from within as by enemies from without—he was often, understandably, an uneasy, unhappy and certainly harried man.

This was the John Diefenbaker you saw on the campaign trail, the one who, when, right with tension and taut with strain, he fought the political war, a Parliamentary one with the forlorn figure, almost single-handed—and nearly won.

Now in Opposition, Prime Minister Pearson, once the amiable amateur and now very much the professional politician, who is fraying a little at the edge. The easy, personal charm, not infrequently has been a one-liner and snap in a crackle of angry words.

It is almost as if when the two men changed jobs, they traded personalities.

With Mr. Diefenbaker—and it is a big, and, just possibly in the Parliament to come, an important one—the old Diefenbaker amiability flows form a deep well-spring of serene self-confidence.

Dief is happy in the job, enjoying every minute of it, relishing the days of Opposition all the more because of his unshakable conviction that he is destined to be called upon again to be the third former Conservative prime minister to recapture the power and the glory.

It is almost a mystique with him—and, astonishingly, it seems compulsive with others, even the members of the Liberal Cabinet whose dislike, perhaps even detest and certainly still fear him.

ADDICTION:

For even now, nine months after the election, and after a full Session with the Cabinet benches they still, to their confusion and dismay, call him "prime minister."

Prime Minister Pearson, on the floor of the Commons, addressed him as "prime minister" and so did External Affairs Minister Paul Martin — that Cabinet as a whole still compelled to set up and follow a contrived formula when speaking for or of Dief.

It was awkward, a clumsy mouthful, but to stop themselves calling him "prime minister," they addressed him, painstakingly, as "The Right Honorable, the Leader of the Official Opposition."

But Dief as prime minister had become such an addicted state of mind with the Liberal Cabinet that, even in the closing week of the recent Session, Acting Prime Minister Lionel Chevrier, to the delight of the House and embarrassment of the Government Front Bench, paid him the prime ministerial honor again.

Perhaps John Diefenbaker is so sure of himself and his political stars because, except for Paul Martin, nobody else in Parliament has literally spent such a lifetime of hoping, planning and yes, training to be prime minister.

You first knew of this inner conviction of political predestination of this man and his deepest determination to realize it back in 1944 at a cocktail party — yes, in those days he smoked the odd cigarette and took an infrequent drink — that he and the late Edna Diefenbaker gave for a few friends from the Parliamentary Press Gallery.

"I am going to be prime minister," he said that afternoon, "and don't ever doubt it."

A CERTAINTY

He meant it. He had a compelling sense of certainty about it that ruled out any doubt or reservations.

And he meant it again when four years later, in 1948, making his second unsuccessful bid for the party leadership, he stood up on a platform in Ottawa and declared: "The years have led me to this day".

What day?

The leadership of a national party today, the leadership of the nation tomorrow.

He didn't make it till eight years later. But in the waiting, he never doubted — and didn't for a moment mind saying so — that he would.

He has this same blood-and-bone belief now.

"I am going to be prime minister again".

Friends say his conviction seems rooted in many things, one of them a deep feeling that even the Liberals are contributing to his certain return.

And in this way:

Let more massive concessions be made to Quebec, like equating Premier Lesage's wife with the other nine provincial leaders in another dinner party, as he has promised which, barring an absolute miracle, couldn't possibly cost less than $40,000, and French Canada, and quite conceivably might manage to outrage each.

Let taxes increase again, as they did, amid such wide-ranging protest, in the Government's "bungled Budget".

Let more Federal executive salaries be doubled like CBC President Alphonse Ouimet's from $30,000 to $60,000, and Government employees' representatives term them "ungrateful".

In short, let things go on as they are, and, Dief obviously believes, he'll be back in business at the old prime ministerial shop in the East Block without half trying.

Claims Esau Was Just Ill

Brantford Expositor

Esau, who sold his birthright for a mess of pottage, has always been regarded as something of a weakling or simpleton. Now he has a champion. A scholarly physician, Dr. Robert Greenblatt, learned in medical research, has examined some Bible characters in the light of modern medical knowledge and come to fresh conclusions.

Genesis 25:29-33 tells of Esau coming from the field "faint" and asking for whither Jacob to give him some red pottage of which bad boiled. Jacob counters with a demand that he sell him his birthright, and Esau, saying he is "at the point to die," and doubting that it is a birthright can do him any good in his state, sells it.

Dr. Greenblatt, while admitting that Jacob was a sly, greedy customer, does not agree that Esau despised his birthright. "In almost certainty," he writes, "Esau, being faint and feeling near to death, was the victim of an illness recognized only in recent times: hypoglycemia or low blood sugar."

If doctors in Esau's time had been more knowledgable, Esau might never have sold his birthright, a state that he was a pushover for the swindling Jacob. And where were the lawyers when Dief's they know enough to upset the deal on the grounds if contractual incapacity?

Earning Their Raise

Ottawa Journal

Before they raised their salaries from $10,000 to $18,000 MPs felt they were not being paid as if they were executives required to give full attention to a job. Now they do get executives' pay and need not be surprised that the taxpayers expect them to act with more efficiency and not keep other executives waiting.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

January 13th, 1944

Bridge Street United Church congregation marked its 128th anniversary, and had as guest speaker the Rev. J. Richmond Craig of St. James' Church at Ottawa. Rev. J. Craig has had a noted career in the ministry; among the pastorates he has filled being in First United Church, Vancouver, B.C., a great social centre, and in Grace Church, Winnipeg, Man., one of the most historic churches in Canada.

Bridge Street United Church had its beginning early in the nineteenth century. In 1815, a class was organized out of which came Pinnacle Street Methodist Church. In 1817, Belleville circuit was organized, Rev. Israel Chamberlain being the first minister. In 1818 the first church was built on the west side of Pinnacle Street, a small frame building. In 1831 this church was removed and a new one erected by Benjamin Ketchenon, J.P. In 1847 the building was enlarged and belfry and spire were added. In 1861, Senator Hon. Billa Flint gave the lot at the corner of Bridge and Church Streets, to the congregation and the cornerstone of the new church (Bridge Street Church), was laid May 24, 1864. The church was dedicated the next year. It was destroyed by fire in January 1886. The church was rebuilt and dedicated in May 1887. Rev. Dr. A. Carman officiating and Rev. John Potts preached the dedicatory sermon.

Men winners were: Sam McErlain, first; Howard Palmer, second; Jack O'Neil, third. After the serving of refreshments dancing was enjoyed; the music was furnished by the Playboys, Orchestra.

Miss Ethel Tice and Police Magistrate W. C. Mikel, K.C., were guest speakers at the meeting of the Women's Canada Club yesterday. Edward Lally expressed the thanks of the club to Miss Tice for her fine address, and Ormonde Butler conveyed the club's appreciation to Magistrate Mikel for his interesting address on the early life in the city.

Mrs. Frederick Gold William Revoy of Marmora, perhaps the youngest trapper in the country, announced that she was not even afraid of the big, bad wolf, proudly entered the city hall yesterday with the pelt of the largest grey wolves captured in this county for a considerable time. She applied at the office of the county treasurer for the $15 standing bounty offered for such a pelt. It will be remembered that young Revoy became lost on the 16th day of December while trapping, and during the course of his wanderings he shot the big wolf near Crowe Lake.

Mr. Goldston Is Tackled

Hamilton Spectator

Ralph Goldston, B.Sc. Ed., Hamilton Tiger-Cats' elusive halfback, sees nothing wrong in competitive sports in schools.

Neither do we.

But it's when he asks for a heavier stress on physical education in schools and more emphasis on athletic scholarships by Canadian universities that we part company.

"Just because you have a brain and I have athletic ability, I don't see why you can go in a university and I can't," Mr. Goldston commented at the Rotary and School association meeting.

We have always had the old-fashioned notion that universities existed to provide facilities for higher learning — a place where scholarship, study and quiet research were of paramount importance.

That means let Canada provide similar opportunities for physical culture, but don't let Canadian universities turn into the muscle factories that often pass for colleges in the United States.

French novelist Emile Zola published a letter 66 years ago today — Jan. 13, 1898— beginning with the words J'accuse, in which he made serious charges against the French government with respect to the Dreyfus affair. Zola was sentenced to a fine and imprisonment, but fled to England, returning a year later when he heard there was to be a revision of the Dreyfus case. The supreme court of appeals cleared Dreyfus in 1906 and he was made a general during the First World War, dying in 1935.

Wide Field of Symptoms Surrounds Allergy Causes

By JOSEPH C. HOLMER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Any information concerning allergies? Who, from dust and pollen would be greatly appreciated. — Mr. B.

That's a big order. It is estimated that 75 percent of us have at least minor allergies, and 25 percent have strong ones, and no two of them are necessarily alike. However, maybe I can give you some helpful clues.

An allergy is a hypersensitivity to something or other which ordinarily is harmless. The symptoms can be a running nose, chronic drainage in the throat, hives, itch, inflamed eyes, sneezes, digestive upsets and a host of other common complaints.

Pairing the hypersensitivity with the symptoms isn't always easy. A careful history of the case is essential. In one instance symptoms occurred only on weekends. A close questioning disclosed that certain cheeses used for snacks when the family visited their cottage was the cause.

Pollen allergy is usually easier to spot because of its seasonal nature, but remember that two or three different types may have an accompanied. Children, at least, are frequently involved in "hay fever." It isn't just a single ragweed.

Dust sensitivities may be harder to identify, and involve many things around the home. Molds, yeast, pollen, animal danders, feathers, fabrics — quite a list.

We may assess from the irritation if a cloud of dust blows in your faces. The allergy sufferer doesn't need a cloud of it. Watch the particles in the air where a sunbeam falls. Or look at particles of the right (or wrong!) material can make an allergic person sneeze.

What can be done? Medical history and skin tests will usually identify at least some of the offending types of dust, and if the symptoms warrant, desensitization therapy may be utilized.

In less severe cases, dust can be reduced by having a minimum of knick-knacks around, and use a damp cloth or mop for cleaning.

Allergies tend to add together. If you are sensitive to several things, you may have symptoms if all affect you at once, but you may escape if you encounter them singly. Or encounter them in small enough concentrations. If you can keep contact with the things that bother you, you may find that the others will give you less trouble because your total exposure is reduced.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is the diocyl sodium sulfosuccinate that you mentioned in your column available without a doctor's prescription? Please send me your booklet on how to stop constipation. I enclose 25 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. — Mrs. H. A.

Yes, the DSS is available in drug stores without a prescription. It is sold under a dozen or so trade names, but any up-to-date druggist can help you select one.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 18 and quite frequently get a bloody nose. I will just be sitting there and it will start to bleed. Sometimes I wake up in the morning and find blood on the pillow. I have had my nose broken three times but don't think that is the cause. — D. B.

At your age I doubt that high blood pressure is involved.

That leaves us with two or three principal possibilities. Some people cause nosebleed by picking their noses, — even unconsciously, while they are asleep. If we can pass that by, it leaves:

B — A small ulcerated spot which bleeds periodically. This is the most likely answer in a case like yours, and it is readily corrected by simple cauterization, which your doctor can do in his office.

Parents Are Conned by Their Children

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"Look at it this way, dad," said my 9-year-old boy to me the week before Christmas. "If you get me that walkie-talkie set, you won't just be making me happy — you'll be making the whole neighborhood happy. How could you pass up a chance like that!"

How could I indeed? I did. Parents fall easily for that kind of smooth con-talk, which children seem to learn as soon as they can toddle. Every child is a born wheedler and with antennae tuned right in to the parent's soft spots and vulnerabilities.

Let's don't kid. We'll, maybe. We'll see. If you're good. Will you take care of it? Promise? Oh, for your birthday. And who walks the dog early in the morning, and lates at night? One guess.

Turtles? Who needs turtles. All right, just two, and feed them properly. Mother doesn't have time to feed turtles. Who feeds the turtles? Mama-ma.

Hospital fund? Conservation. Big bowl, equipment, heating, fresh running water, lights, yo-yo's, even vitamins. Whatcha going on?

Accepts! Absolutely not. Not even in the basement. That's where we draw the line, little friend. I don't care if it's not poisonous. When you're married, buy yourself a python for all I care.

Hunting, fishing, and camping equipment. No, you can't have a Bowie knife — you'll be thrown out of school and put in the reformatory. A tent is too many separate items. You can't pitch it in the patio and sleep there on winter nights. A sleeping bag costs too much. Besides, you'd be running back in the house in 10 minutes. Well, maybe a small one. You have a playroom, and you can practice your fly-casting up there.

An air rifle? Are you out of your skull? Yes, I know it's "educational." Sir Isaac Newton did his best work under the plastic top of the colony, we'd have Zoids guns running around the house. And where have you ever tried to keep help in a house with Zoid guns running around? Why even your mother would move to a hotel.

I have wonderful ideas, too. How about an illuminated globe of the world? It doesn't move, doesn't bark, doesn't have to be taken out, fed, nursed, sweetened, vitaminized, vetted, chained, muzzled or defanged. You've already got a globe? Have another. It's a big world.

I'll probably get a week before Christmas. Things went from bad to worse, and I haven't even mentioned your sweetheart.

One thing they won't ever get me to do is clean up a bird cage! It's all I can do to find the leash. Here, boy, where are you? Here, boy, time to go for a walk. Come, boy, I'm your master, the head of the family!

Wholesale Price Of Sugar up 55 Cents Cwt.

MONTREAL (CP) — The wholesale price of sugar was raised 55 cents to $17 a 100-pound bag by the three major Montreal refineries today.

The price increase brought sugar to its highest level since mid-November of last year.

A refinery spokesman said prices were adjusted to account for a proportionate increase in the price of raw sugar on the world market in London. He said refiners base their wholesale price on London's raw sugar price.

Today's was the fourth price change of the new year. There were three last week — a decrease and two increases — leaving a net increase of 25 cents.

The three refineries—St. Lawrence, Canada and Dominion and Atlantic—changed prices 97 times in 1963—72 increases and 25 decreases.

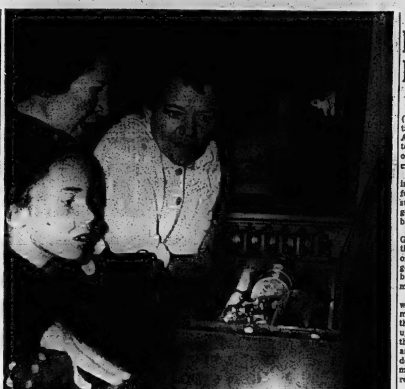
Obituary

MISS SYLVIA C. RICHMOND
Madoc

The funeral of Miss Sylvia C. Richmond of Madoc was held this (Monday) afternoon from the MacKenzie Funeral Home, where service in the chapel was conducted by Rev. Alfred Poulter of Belleville. Interment was in Lakeview cemetery.

The bearers were: John Bristol, Archie Adams, Jess Reid, George Devolin, Roswald Dafoe and Harold Brintnell.

Sunday evening members of Oakdale Rebekah Lodge held a lodge service at the funeral home. The service was well attended by lodge members.



A lifetime resident of Madoc, Miss Richmond died suddenly at her home on Friday. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Byron Richmond and prior to her retirement in 1959 had worked as a bookkeeper at the Dafoe Hardware store in Madoc for 50 years.

She was a member of Trinity United Church and also belonged to Oakdale Rebekah Lodge, No. 34, at Madoc and was well known and highly respected in the Madoc community.

She was predeceased by two sisters, Miss Ethel Richmond and Mrs. Lena Bailey, both of whom had lived at Madoc.

She is survived by two nephews and a niece.

At Least 5 Die As Blast Wrecks Chemical Firm

ATTLEBORO, Mass. (AP) — A series of explosions heard 50 miles away shattered a building of a chemical company plant Sunday night.

At least five persons were killed by the blasts and a subsequent fire that reared out of control for five hours, endangering more than 100 homes.

Eleven other persons were in hospital and three were in critical condition.

Authorities feared some victims might be found in the ruins of the Thompson Chemical Company building. Blackened and weary firefighters had a snow storm to contend with as they began the search.

A total of 40 to 50 persons, including many nearby residents were injured. Many suffered concussions and cuts.

The blasts, heard in towns north of Boston, came shortly before 7 p.m., just 65 hours after a smaller explosion occurred at the same plant, when a safety cap blew off a vaporizer Friday.

Fire Chief Melton Churchill said firemen were held back for 20 minutes because the plant chemist feared another explosion. The delay enabled the fire to gain impetus, Churchill said. Officials said they could not determine what caused the explosions.

Company President Irving Jay Fain said there were only about 10 employees in building V-1 when it blew up in what observers said were two or three explosions. Polyvinyl chloride resin, a plastic used in the manufacture of toys, phonograph records and insulation, was produced in the building.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Tobacco producers eased fractionally in moderate morning trading on the stock market today.

Rothmans and Imperial Tobacco both dipped ¼, the former trading more than 1,000 shares by 11 a.m. A U.S. government medical survey report released over the weekend linked cancer with smoking.

Among other industrials, Harding Carpets fell ½, Canada Cement ⅛ and Steel Company of Canada and Consolidated Mining and Smelting ¼ each.

On the plus side, Du Pont advanced ⅛ and Canada Packers B ⅛.

Vezza advanced two cents to 77 cents and Chimo two cents to $1.20, while Croinor was off two cents to 42 cents in speculative issues.

Canada Southern Petroleum declined 10 cents to $4.80 among western oils.

On index, the Exchange index dipped .10 to 131.46, industrials .10 to 140.65, western oils .17 to 83.96, golds were unchanged at 130.30 and base metals were ahead .05 to 60.08. Volume at 11 a.m. was 1,313,000 shares compared with 1,079,000 at the same time Friday.

Leftist Pressure Mounting In Brazil, May Topple Govt.

By EDGAR MILLER

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP). — Amid talk of revolution and coup d'etat, Latin America's largest country is tottering once again on the edge of deep political and economic crisis.

Widespread strikes, rampant inflation, unrest in the armed forces and mounting leftist pressure on President Joao Goulart's government underline the troubles.

Although many observers feel Goulart will be able to ride out the latest wave of crisis, rumors of an attempt to topple his government are generally a harbinger of increased political turmoil.

More political trouble looms with the expected signing this month of a decree authorizing the government to expropriate up to 5,225 miles of land on either side of federal highways and railways. The measure is designed to get the government's long - planned agrarian reform program under way.

Goulart is reported considering a major revamping of his cabinet to give it a more leftist slant.

And despite official denials, rumors persist in financial circles that the government is considering a new devaluation of the official exchange rate of the cruzeiro.

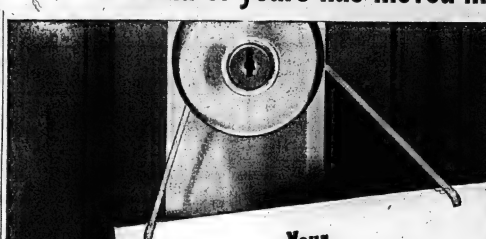
At the same time, the government is being pressed to double the national minimum salary to keep pace with last year's increase in living costs which preliminary government figures show rose about 95 per cent.

Relations between Brazil and the United States have been cool in recent months.

The United States sets aside about $1,000,000 a week in financial aid for Brazil, but such assistance is virtually frozen at present because of Brazil's failure to carry out provisions of a three-year economic recovery plan as a condition to release the funds.

A breakdown of relations with the U.S. and the financial sector conceivably could drive Brazil straight into the arms of the Communist camp....

Missing Man Found in St. Catharines



MOUNT FOREST (CP)—Provincial police investigating the disappearance of a father of five daughters from his home in nearby Holstein, about 40 miles south of Owen Sound, report that he was found alive and well Saturday in St. Catharines.

Charles Irvin, 39, is now home with his wife and children, after disappearing Jan. 6 when he went to his local garbage dump with two cans of trash. OPP officers earlier revealed Mr. Irwin withdrew $11,000 from a Kitchener bank. Mrs. Irvin said she was unaware the bank account existed.

Foul play in the disappearance was suspected when Mr. Irvin's hat, an overshoe with a shoe in it and a length of lead pipe were found near his abandoned car.

Provincial police say Mr. Irvin was found when a car he was driving in St. Catharines was stopped for a spot check on car insurance. Police said he presumably bought the car before he left home.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: Since dips are such a staple at parties, would you enlighten me about the proper etiquette involved in helping oneself to this type of concoction? For example, when one has a long piece of carrot and has bitten a piece off the end, may the remainder of the carrot be re-dipped, or is that considered impolite? — M. E. K. Boston, Mass.

Answer: One dip to a customer, please. Or, rather, one dip at a time. It's rather unsanitary to re-dip a piece of carrot, cucumber or whatever after a section already has been chewed off. The correct way is to dip in and then bite off the part that is coated. Any remaining piece of the dipper should be eaten plain. If one doesn't care to finish the left-over, it should be deposited in a receptacle (not the ash-tray, please) which a considerate hostess will have nearby.

Question: Last Saturday I invited another couple to drop in for a visit about eight o'clock. They finally showed up about 9:30. At that point I had given them up and I had put on slippers and my husband had taken off his tie. When they arrived, they were full of apologies. The wife said she thought it was a party and didn't realize there would be "just us," so they hadn't rushed about arriving. They stayed for coffee and left about 11. My husband brushed the whole thing off as a misunderstanding, but I was taken back by their inconsiderate attitude. Don't you agree their behavior was not only thoughtless but basically rude? — Mrs. T. L. P., Newark, N. J.

Answer: Their behavior could have been interpreted as impolite, to say the least, even if you had had a full-blown party going. Whether a get-together is large or a "just us" gathering, guest should try to be punctual or, at most, fifteen or twenty minutes late. If a guest should find he's going to be delayed for a good reason, then he should call his hostess and let her know so she won't have to play a guessing game. Arriving an hour and a half late without offering any excuse in the meantime is discourteous no matter how large or small the get-together is.

Question: Friends have invited my husband and me to the wedding of their daughter. She's a college student and she and her husband plan to continue their education after marriage. They'll live in a small furnished apartment until graduation. I'd prefer to give them a wedding present now, but my husband thinks we would hold off until they're settled in a home of their own. What usually is done in such a situation? — Mrs. P. C., Peabody, Mass.

Answer: The procedure of sending gifts before the wedding usually is followed as if the couple were about to set up full-scale housekeeping immediately. One difference is that very close friends of the family and relatives often give cheques instead of presents as the couple may buy what they need when they need it, especially since there's to be such a time gap between the wedding and the time they'll start furnishing. Others most often send serving or cooking aids or linens that come in handy in the meantime, or an important decorative accessory that will help personalize the furnished apartment, and then round out the decor of their permanent home later on.

Successful Living

No Doormat, Grandmother Wants Pay for Services

DEAR DORIS — I'm a grandmother. I take care of our two grandchildren during school days and enjoy them very much. It's right handy. We live behind the school.

In November a young couple asked me to look after their kindergarten girl one hour each day from 11 to 12. Then they pick her up. Her dad said: "We will make a deal." So far they haven't offered me anything. I thought one dollar a week wouldn't be too much to ask.

DORIS CLARK

Both parents work and make good money. My husband says that's what happens when you're too friendly with people. I like to be nice to people but I'm — NO DOORMAT.

• • •

DEAR NO DOORMAT — Waste no more time in proving it. A business arrangement calls for a clear understanding from the start. Where you are, you should be getting at least 50 cents an hour, or $2.50 per week.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — My boy friend and I went steady, then broke off, then went steady again. We've been together for two years now. Last month on a date we started fighting and said some pretty nasty things to each other. He went away and did not come back.

He really is a wonderful boy and we have had good times together. I am 19 and he is 21. I am almost sick at my stomach over losing him. I thought writing him a letter but my girl friend says that is the worst thing I could do. — IN DESPAIR.

• • •

DEAR IN DESPAIR — Is it really so hard to apologize? If this is love — and it sounds like it — the worst thing you can do is not try to make amends. Write a letter, not a sloppy, oozy love letter, but one to say you are sorry for the nasty things you said and that you miss him.

If he really cares, he'll respond.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I am 40 and suppose I have reached that certain age where one can become choosy. I have had the opportunity to marry. I guess no one ever wanted me. I had to look after my father for several years and could not go out much. I sing in the choir, have other hobbies, but it's all uphill work.

I get depressed now. Sometimes I feel dizzy. Is it abnormal for me to worry about getting old and being a burden to someone? It's a dreadful feeling. — HATTIE.

• • •

DEAR HATTIE — Most natural thing in the world. But with your interests, the most unlikely.

Youth about that expires with age. Confide in your doctor and get his help with your physical state. And read the leaflet I am sending you about the menopause. You hold it in your own two hands to plan a happier future for yourself.

• • •

TO LETTER WRITER — If you are one of those who love to type personal letters on your typewriter (being better able to keep up with your thoughts that way, and write chattier letters) you could at least sign them by hand. Your friend is right to take exception to a "typed signature" — which is contradiction in terms.

• • •

(Is it a question of etiquette that's troubling you? Ask Doris how it's done in Canada.)

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Albert College Guild Hears Annual Reports

The retiring president, Mrs. Fred Wilson was in the chair for the business portion of the January meeting of Albert College Guild. The major item was the presentation of annual reports, climaxed by that of the recording secretary, Mrs. E. M. Hobbs, which gave the group the pleasure of reliving the year with its friendship and achievement.

On behalf of the members, Mrs. E. Hickey expressed to Mrs. Wilson their appreciation for her contributions to the office and presented her with a small token.

The newly-elected president, Mrs. F. Davidson, introduced the program. Mrs. C. Hyde, the convener, centred the worship service in the memorable lines of faith and courage the late King George VI left in his 1939 Christmas message.

Mrs. W. Somerville introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Arthur Packman, who set before the members some inspiring stones for the new year. One of these, "greater love, greater duty" was an understanding for those around us." The goal is genuine goodness.

Mrs. Packman was invited to the pleasure of the afternoon with two numbers, accompanied by Mrs. E. Bird at the piano.

Mrs. T. F. Townsend voiced thanks to the two guests.

For the social hour Mrs. Townsend and Mrs. Morgan McFarlane presided at the tea table.

Chi Rho Club Elects Officers

On Wednesday, January 8th, the Christ Church Chi Rho Fellowship held its annual election of officers.

Following a short business meeting the nominating chairman, Ald. Gardiner, presented the slate of officers which was accepted by acclamation. The administrative and the organization for the ensuing year will be in the hands of Joanne Cavalier, president; Sandra Gardiner, vice-president; Herb Cavalier, treasurer, and Ted Warriner, secretary.

After the election had concluded the members held a penny auction (untitled) sale. James as auctioneer. The old adage about "a fool and his money" was proved as they happily bid for objects which other members were glad to get out of their household effects!

The trade was brisk, bidding spirited, and several dollars were realized for the new treasurer to practise on before taking over the books for the year.

The meeting was concluded with refreshments.

C. W. Tisdall Will Address Fed. Teachers

Mr. Tisdall, managing director of Tisdall, Clark and Lesly Limited, Toronto, will address the Belleville Association of the Women Teachers' Federation at their dinner meeting to be held at 6.00 p.m., Tuesday evening in Tabernacle United Church.

Mr. Tisdall is the national president of the Canadian Public Relations Society Incorporated and is also active in the arts and welfare field. He is a member of the Board of Directors of the Canadian Opera Company and a governor of the Canadian Welfare Council.

Church Groups

ST. ANNE'S C.W.I.

St. Anne's C.W.I. meeting for January was held in the school with 12 members present, and was opened by the president Mrs. Lucy Walsh. Miss Patsy Whaley read the minutes and the treasurer Olga Devcau gave the financial report. A report on the number of Christmas cards sold and the amount left was given by Mrs. J. Buckley. Glenda Flesch read thank-you notes.

Members are planning to hold a euchre and bake sale in January at the school.

The meeting adjourned and members enjoyed a few games of euchre after which refreshments were served by the hostess.

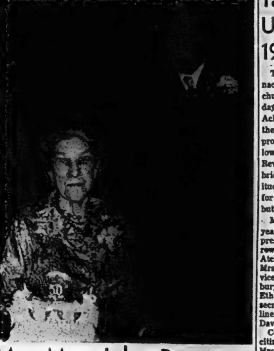
Kum Double Club Elects New Officers

The Kum Double Club of Halloway met on Wednesday evening, January 8th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McMullen.

The worship service based on "The New Year" was led by Mrs. Embury Hough, with Mrs. Mervin Bowers and Mrs. E. Emerson assisting.

Mrs. C. Huffman conducted a brief business period with the treasurer reporting for the year past. There were 18 members in attendance. A letter of thanks from Thomasburg Church was read and it was decided to hold the next meeting on January 29th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Hensey.

The club divided into four groups headed by the four conveners, these to work on program, lunch, howler, etc. as their turn comes up.



The 1964 officers are as follows: presidents — Charlie and Mary Huffman; 1st vice-president — Robert and Reta Hough; 2nd vice-presidents — Earnie and Ferne Hansey; secretaries — Freddie and Irene Wellman; treasurers — Merv and Eileen Bowers; conveners — Embury and Lorna Hough, Gene and Audrey Kelly, Gordon and Ruth Roth, Harry and Edna McMullen; pianist — Verna Townsend.

The flower was read by Gene Kelly and an interesting coin collection was displayed by Mr. and Mrs. E. Hansey.

Lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants and a social time enjoyed.

NURSES' GROUP

The Ontario College of Nurses is the registering body for Ontario's 40,000 nurses and 10,000 nursing assistants.

Mr., Mrs. John Barrett Mark Golden Wedding

On January 12th of 1914, Mr. and Mrs. John Barrett were married in Owen Sound. On Sunday, January 12 of 1964, four children, ten grandchildren and two great-grandchildren later, they celebrated their 50th anniversary, at Point Anne Clubhouse.

Mr. Barrett had come to Owen Sound from Spaniard's Bay, Nfld., at the age of 18. He settled with his parents just a block away from his future wife's home and, being a Newfoundlander, his first job was on ships carrying freight and passengers on the lakes. By 1914, he was working as an engineer.

A sailor spends a lot of time away from home, but the lake sailors see more of their families than deep sea men. Most of the Barrett children remember travelling during the summer, with their mother, from port to port to meet their father's ship. Sometimes, they sailed on the ship with him.

Mr. Barrett retired from the lakes in 1949, and took a job as stationary engineer in a Hamilton factory. Four years ago the couple moved to Carrying Place. Until last year, Mr. Barrett worked in Belleville for the International Hardware Company.

With them Sunday to celebrate their anniversary were their children and children-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Williamson, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Barrett, both of Toronto, and Mr. and Mrs. Allan Cameron and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Barrett, both of Carrying Place.

Send a Rose if You Love Her Like Crazy, About the Worst You Can Get Is a Daisy

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—You love the girl? Then send her a rose.

You're sick of the guy? Then send him a bouquet of Michaelmas daisies.

Want her to marry you? Send her sprigs of ivy.

These and dozens of other sentiments and declarations—which can be expressed in flowers—are the subject of a book published here.

It's called The Language of Flowers.

Explaining it, the publishers (Ward, Lock Limited) said:

"To express gratitude or affection by the gift of flowers is common enough, but nowadays few people make use of the opportunities provided by this pleasant custom to express other and more specific sentiments.

"For instance, how nice and delightfully simple, to be able to express one's constancy with a bunch of bluebells, or to declare war with a sprig of wild tansy."

The book, with illustrations, is 88 pages in length. The author is a Mrs. L. Harris.

WHAT yo RENN

It has two easy indexes. One explains what the various flowers, fruits and plants mean. The other explains numerous sentiments—and what to send to express them.

Here are a few:

Admiration—Amethyst.

Affection beyond the grave—Wall-flower.

Ardor—The cuckoo plant.

Beware—Oleander.

Coldheartedness—Lettuce.

Dangerous pleasures — Tuberose.

Decrease of love—Yellow rose.

Disgust—Frog ophrys.

Durability—Dogwood.

Falsehood—Yellow lily.

Fascination—Fern.

Foolishness—Pomegranate.

Hopeless love—Yellow tulip.

THREE WAYS TO HORROR

There are three ways to express horror—By sending mandrakes, dragonswort and snakeroot.

There are four ways to get over the fact you have hope, or that the other person does: have hope—Flowering almond, hawthorn, snowdrop, and spruce pine.

If you want to say "I'm sorry of you" you send a white rose.

I shall die tomorrow—Gum cistus.

Jealousy — French marigold and yellow rose.

And, should you want to say "my best days are past" send colchicum or meadow saffron.

Should you want to say that someone's absolutely perfect—The pineapple is the answer.

Tabernacle U.C.W. List 1964 Officers

The annual meeting of Tabernacle U.C.W. was held in the church auditorium last Tuesday evening with Mrs. Jack Acheson presiding. Unit 6 of the organization gave an appropriate devotional and following the business session the Rev. M. G. McFarlane spoke briefly and expressed his gratitude to the members not only for a successful financial year but spiritually as well.

Mr. McFarlane installed this year's officers as follows: past president, Mrs. Lewis Andrews; president, Mrs. Jack Acheson; first vice-president, Mrs. W. D. Embury; second vice-president, Mrs. B. D. Sallsbury; recording secretary, Miss Ethel Horton; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Geraldine Goodline; treasurer, Mrs. Frank Davidson.

Committees are: Christian citizenship and social action, Mrs. Gordon Priest; christian friendship and visiting, Mrs. Martin LaRue; finance, Miss Dorothy Mossman; flower committee, Miss Evelyn Thrasher; literature and communications, Mrs. H. C. Barlow; membership, Mrs. Norman Wessels; nominations, Mrs. Herb Burley; press and publicity, Mrs. Neil Bohy; program, Mrs. E. Cornish; social functions, Mrs. Walter Ward; stewardship and remittance, Miss Evelyn Thrasher; literature and communications, Mrs. George Stanton; telephone, Mrs. Ray Lockyer.

Unit leaders will be: Mrs. Percy Kerr, Mrs. R. Mott, Mrs. N. Wessels, Mrs. Ira Whiting, Mrs. J. A. Charleton, Mrs. R. Wood, Mrs. Earle Hagerman, Mrs. Hagerman gave a financial report of the particular unit and outlined the activities by which their money was raised.

Miss Beverley Davies showed slides of her trip last year, this week visit in England in connection with the sojenes fair, after which refreshments were served by Unit 5.

W. I. of Stirling Sponsors Card Party

STIRLING — The eight members of the "Agriculture and Canadian Industries" group of Rive. Valley Women's Institute sponsored a card party Friday evening, January 10th at the school house with 38 adults and several children in attendance. The children enjoyed skating on the ice nearby.

There were nine tables in play and the prizes were in attendance from Bradley Bay, Wellmans and Stirling. The group provided coffee and prizes.

The prize winners were: ladies' high, Mrs. J. R. Donohoe; second, Mrs. J. L. Donohoe; special, Miss Eleanore Bush; men's high, Eric Breau; second, John Kane.

The proceeds of the evening for the Institute treasury were $13.40. Another party was announced for January 17th.

The Magic Of Mushrooms

by Mary Moore

Despite their cost, mushrooms seem to be a popular vegetable at the fruit market and at the produce counter.

When I stood back and surveyed the shoppers at the colorful counter I noticed the mushrooms were unusually large so I bought 1¼ pounds. I had two partyish meals in mind to prepare. One was to be quite exotic for my guests were epicures and expected a 5 star meal. For their meal I planned Creamed Mushrooms and Lobster Thermidor (the lobster for which I brought fresh frozen by plane from Halifax). For the other meal I planned a mixed grill including stuffed mushrooms as a novelty.

The mixture for the grill was smoked sausages, sliced back bacon and the stuffed mushrooms. As the guests were served I kept an eye on each one as they tasted the mushrooms to see how they went down. Eyebrows were raised and exclamations were asked: "Mary, these mushrooms are wonderful. What do you do?" I just had a little thrill of gratification.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Broiled Thick Sliced Back Bacon; Fried Apples; Steam-Fried Sliced Spanish Onions; Creamed Potatoes; Crisp Celery Celery Sticks; Cherry - Cobbler; 10% Cream; Coffee.

GRILLED STUFFED MUSHROOMS

To serve four on a mixed grill, scrub 16 pound largish uniform sized mushrooms. Pull the stems through the grinder, following them with one slice white bread. Add to them ½ cup soft bread crumbs which have been stirred into 2 tablespoons melted butter. Add ¾ teaspoon each salt and MSG and a shake of pepper. You will think you have too much filling but with persistent but gentle handling you can put it into the depressions in the upside-down mushrooms, mounding the filling somewhat. Place on buttered baking dish and bake for 10 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr. Just before serving raise up in oven and broil a little to make filling sizzle. Serve at once. These darken a little but are delicious little nuggets with steaks or chops or mixed grill meats.

CREAMED MUSHROOMS

In large frying pan in 2 tablespoons butter steam-fry, but do not brown, one lb. scrubbed whole mushroops. This takes about 10 minutes, covered, on low heat. Buy a foil package dry cream of mushroom soup mix. To it add 1 cup cold water and stir over heat until quite thick. Pour over steamed mushrooms, bring to boil, gently stirring. Serve. If desired, ½ cup cream may be added to enrich and stretch the sauce.

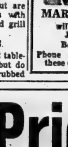
But of Course Nightgowns Cover More

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"It costs more to undress a star than to dress her in movies these days," says veteran Hollywood designer Edith Head.

"Negligees and nightgowns are more expensive than evening gowns. And there are a lot more requirements."

Edith, who's dressed practically every actress in film, had to design lingerie for five in one recent picture. Who'd Been Sleeping in my Bed?

"More and more scripts are calling for some kind of undress," says Edith. "You can't show too much—or too little—and it's got to be in good taste, but with sex appeal."



For Who's Been, she provided undies for Elizabeth Montgomery, Jill St. John, Macha Meril, Yoko Tani and Dianne Foster.

The most expensive negligee Edith's ever whipped up? For Lana Turner in Who's Got the Action? It cost $750.

800,000 Canadians Made Mistakes in Tax Returns

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — Last year 800,000 Canadians made mistakes in their income tax returns.

It was the worst error year on record, so bad at one point that the national revenue department, fearful its new electronic computer had flipped their digits, hired people to check many of the returns the old-fashioned way.

Some tax receipts and refunds were weeks late. Taxpayers who weren't convinced they had made mistakes wrote letters and streamed into district taxation offices for explanations.

What went wrong? The tax forms themselves, that's what.

For the first time, most taxpayers in filling out a federal return were up against the task of calculating the amount of income tax they owed to both the federal and provincial governments. And besides, they had to calculate their old age security tax separately.

SIMPLIFIED SCHEDULE

The guide attached to the tax form used by individuals seemed simple enough. But the calculation was apparently just too much for thousands of kitchen-table mathematicians.

The rate of errors was twice what it normally is.

But this year the department has revised its forms for taxing 1963 incomes in the hope of curbing down mistakes. The guides attached to the forms include a revised table that makes it possible, for the first time, for about 75 per cent of all taxpayers to avoid all but third-grade adding and subtracting.

The forms already are appearing in post offices, though the filing deadline is not until April 30. This year all returns except those for Quebec provincial taxes will go to Ottawa—about 6,000,000 of them.

There will be no need for people in seven provinces, including Ontario,—as estimated 75 per cent of all taxpayers—to make detailed calculations, or even figure out their old age security tax separately. The figures in the table will include the old age security sum.

TABLE WAS SIMILAR

A similar table was on the tax forms last year, too, but it could be used only by those in the seven provinces who had taxable income of $3,000 or less. One problem was that those ands ignored the instruction to use the table, and plowed ahead with the percentages.

Detailed calculations still will be required this year for people with taxable incomes over $3,000—regardless of where they live—as well as for everyone living in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, regardless of the amount of taxable income.

After figuring out their taxable income, they will use the guide attached to the form to figure out their basic federal tax. Next step is to reduce that amount by the 17-per-cent federal abatement.

Then they add their old age security tax. That tax rate—two per cent of taxable income up to a $80 limit for 1963.

Next to be added is the provincial income tax—23 per cent of the basic federal tax in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and 17 per cent in the seven other provinces.

was stranded on an ice floe after he rowed out in a small boat to help the stricken man, was the only Canadian involved.

The 12 fishermen all were from Detroit, or suburbs of that city.

"It was about noon when I saw the ice starting to move out," Mr. Knight said. "One man was lying down on the ice and I thought he must be sick and needing help.

"I took a rowboat out and thought I would be able to row him back. When I set out the gap was only about 50 feet, but when I got there, it was over 100 feet wide, and impossible to handle the boat in that wind," he said.

Mr. Knight said winds were blowing at between 30 and 40 miles an hour, the temperature was eight degrees above zero, and snow made the men difficult to find from the air. It took almost four hours before the last man was safely ashore.

Weston Fisher, 41, of Utica, Mich., said by the time his group noticed they had broken free, there was 30 feet of open water between them and the mainland.

"We started walking in all directions trying to find a place where the ice hadn't parted, but that gap kept getting bigger and bigger and then after a while cops started breaking over the ice and breaking smaller pieces off each time.

"By that time it had started snowing and it looked like a hundred miles of water all around us," he said.

Executive Action Aimed At Changing Smoking Habits

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"Do-something - now forces" and the "more - research - is-needed" camp were drawing battle lines in the United States today in the wake of Saturday's government report calling heavy cigarette smoking a grave menace to life and health.

Which side will prevail—and how decisively — almost certainly depends on still-unerry-tallized public reaction to a blue-ribbon science panel's call for "appropriate remedial action."

The report sparked immediate demands, inside and outside Congress, for federal action to alter U.S. smoking habits.

No one called for any general prohibition against smoking but many anti-smoking spokesmen said the government, by law or by executive edict, should require that cigarette packages carry warnings of health dangers and that advertising should be altered in the light of the panel's report.

A ban on cigarette advertising was announced by radio station KWUN at Concord, Calif., Saturday in the first such reaction to the report.

WILL REVIEW STANDARDS

But the three major U.S. radio and television networks all announced they would re-examine their advertising standards as related to cigarettes.

Because the panel in its 14 months of work undertook no original research but only evaluated some 8,000 earlier studies, pro-tobacco spokesmen insisted that nothing new was put forth and nothing finally proven. So, they said, much more research, by public and private agencies, is needed before any drastic action can be justified.

Industry spokesmen were quick to point out that Surgeon-General Luther L. Terry of the public health service who released Saturday's report, had said that research on smoking and health should continue, and at an increased rate.

The American Cancer Society called for immediate action by government and the medical profession to warn against the reported hazards of smoking.

Since congressional processes almost always are slow—especially on controversial issues affecting a huge industry—it appears that if there is any early federal action it will come from the Federal Trade Commission. The FTC has wide powers to curb what it finds to be deceptive labelling and advertising of goods.

MAKING STUDY

The FTC in a statement said it is studying cigarette labelling and advertising, will examine the panel report carefully and "will move promptly within the scope of its statutory jurisdiction and responsibilities to determine the remedial action which it should take in the public interest."

Governor Terry Sanford of tobacco-growing North Carolina said:

"The answers to the tobacco-health question remain to be provided by basic medical research. The people of North Carolina, to whom tobacco is of the greatest economic importance, have faith that basic health research ultimately will exonerate tobacco, or it will identify and permit removal of any hazardous components."

The American Tobacco Institute, Inc., in a statement called for more research and said it is ready to add to the $7,500,000 it has appropriated in the last 10 years for research.

Additional research was advocated also by Dr. Edward H. Annis, president of the American Medical Association, who declared:

"Despite the strong evidence against smoking which has been amassed in this report, it is unrealistic to assume that the American people are suddenly going to quit smoking.

"Because people will continue to smoke, research efforts should try to find how tobacco smoke affects health and, if possible, to eliminate whatever element in the smoke may induce disease. This is what we hope to do through the AMA research project on tobacco and health."

PRAISE SITTER

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — A baby-sitter who led the three young children of the B.C. Lions general manager, Herb Capozzi, from their blazing home, was described by fire officials as a heroine who made the right decisions at the right time. Olwen Southwarth, 17, saw flames leaping up the drapes in the Capozzi home late Friday. She quickly herded the three children, Paula, 5, Greg, 4, and Sandra 2, outside, went back into the house and telephoned the fire department.

said "martial law without the name" was ordered for 11 areas where the worst violence was reported. He pledged the army and police would show "no mercy" in suppressing the communal attacks which developed into widespread looting and arson Sunday.

"Make no mistake about it," Nanda said. "They are going to do their job. It is more merciful to do the job quickly and well than to have it long and drawn out."

Sunday, 15 persons were killed, six by police or army gunfire and the remainder in violence between Moslems and Hindus.

119 WOUNDED

Firemen handled some 200 cases of arson. More than 110 persons were taken to hospitals after police opened fire on rioters and there was other violence.

A crowd of about 3,000 stopped a train and killed three passengers.

P. S. Sen, chief minister of West Bengal, said "miscreants" threw fireballs made of jute twine soaked in gasoline into Moslem huts... Black smoke swept over the city from a burning jute factory. Police officials said many huts, houses and shops were set afire.

Nanda, one of the two men named to lead the Indian government during the illness of Prime Minister Nehru, said he feared Moslems reprisals against Hindus in East Pakistan.

In Karachi, Pakistan Foreign Minister Z. A. Bhutto said he held Indian authorities "responsible for the anti-Moslem riots" in West Bengal.

The chief spokesman for the West Bengal state government, P. S. Mukherji, said many huts, houses and shops were afire and looted.

The rioting started Thursday in reaction to reports of Hindus being killed in East Pakistan.

The East Pakistan rioting resulted from the disappearance in the disputed state of Kashmir of hair that Moslems believed was that of the Prophet Mohammed. The hair has since been recovered.

But Moslems in East Pakistan refused to permit the disappearance and according to Indian press reports 29 persons, most of them Hindus, were killed.

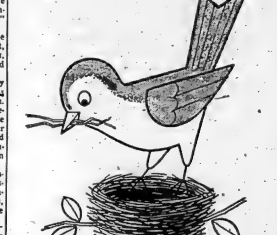
dependent African nations. The Zanzibar Nationalist party, which headed the ousted coalition government, was isolationist and conservative.

Babu was in Dar es Salaam conferring with Tanganyikan President Julius Nyerere when the revolt broke out. He said he predicted a revolt after Hamadi's coalition government refused to invite the opposition parties to talks to solve differences.



Hamadi's Zanzibar Nationalist party, largely run by the island's Arab minority, held 12 seats in the National Assembly. He formed the coalition government with the Pemba party which had six seats. The Afro-Shirazi party, which received 54 per cent of the popular vote in the election, had 13 members.

There has been long-standing animosity between the 50,000 Arabs, traditional rulers of the former slave centre, and the other 240,000 islanders, who are mostly Negroes.

OAS

bringing to 24 the death toll since a flag-raising incident in the Canal Zone last Thursday set off the fighting. Three of the dead were U.S. soldiers.

The U.S. Army said the slain guardsman apparently was caught in a crossfire between snipers and U.S. soldiers. The army said the guardsman was hit by a high velocity bullet while the U.S. troops were using shotguns. Panamanian guardsmen searched border streets on the Colon side for snipers.

NOT SAFE

Informed sources also said no American was safe in Colon—where "plenty of shooting is going on."

While number of Americans killed remained at three the toll of wounded climbed to 89.

Panamanian casualties were put at more than 400.

Working - class Panamanians were reported to have no meat, milk or other perishables in their homes.

Although grocery stores were open while most other businesses were closed during the crisis here, there has been a scarcity of perishable food-stuffs.

Panama City's streets were deserted Sunday night, but earlier in the day as many as 100,000 turned out in the capital to follow the bodies of 14 countrymen killed in the fighting. Most of the 14 were students.

After funeral services in the metropolitan cathedral, the coffins were carried eight miles to the Jardin de Paz (Garden of Peace) cemetery. President Roberto Chiari led the mourners.

The Canal Zone cuts Panama in two, 10 miles wide, 36 miles long coast to coast, running northwest to southeast with 196 of its 558 square miles water. It has a population of 43,122, and the canal zone company and government—both operated by the United States.

ISSUES REMAIN

While the OAS delegation appeared to have set up machinery to keep the peace along the canal, major issues remained unsettled.

Panama broke relations with the U.S. because of the fighting. At the same time it renewed demands for revision of the U.S.-Panamanian treaty under which the U.S. occupies the canal zone. Mann and Vance are expected to arrange for discussions of these problems.

In an effort to remove one sources of friction, President Johnson's administration warned all U.S. citizens in the canal zone that they must abide by a U.S.-Panamanian agreement of last year that wherever flags are flown in the zone, the U.S. and Panamanian flags will be flown side by side.

U.S. high school students in the zone defied this order last week and raised the American flag. Panamanian students retaliated Thursday with a flag-raising of their own in the zone, and the violence mushroomed.

U.S. officials accused Panamanian supporters of Prime Minister Fidel Castro of Cuba of taking a hand in the anti-American demonstrations. President Chiari himself said earlier that Castroites had infiltrated the ranks of anti-American demonstrators.

SAW OPPORTUNITY

State Secretary Dean Rusk said in Washington Sunday night that Castro - Communist elements probably saw in the flag incident "an opportunity to . . . stimulate violence."

Rusk said the U.S. cannot afford to pull out of the Canal Zone and that he has not heard any responsible leader raise that point. He disagreed with any suggestion that the disorders had harmed U.S. Latin American policy.

Rusk made clear the U.S. stands ready to open talks with the Panamanian government on Chiari's demands for revision of the canal treaty. He said when order is restored, the U.S. will be prepared to discuss ways of improving U.S.-Panamanian relations and of bettering conditions in Panama itself.

Huge Shark Rips Legs Of Skindiver

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A huge shark ripped the legs of a 21 - year - old skindiver as he swam in a group of six Saturday off the Farallon Islands, 30 miles west of San Francisco.

His companions, who said they saw other sharks moving in to attack, hid in an underwater cave.

The shark was enormous," said Jack Rochette of Burlingame, Calif., after a coast guard helicopter carried him to a San Francisco hospital for surgery.

"I felt like a mountain hit me. I dived to get out of his way but the shark chased me. I managed to hit him but he kept on coming. Then he started ripping at my legs."

Surgeons removed a tooth of the shark from Rochette's leg, stopped the bleeding and closed the wounds without having to amputate.

Phony Christmas Gifts Put Strain on Friendship

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — It happened for the third time in three years and now I'm completely fed up with this phony friend.

My Christmas gift from her arrived late, as usual. As always it had a price tag tucked underneath — but to a place where I was sure to see it. And, as in the past, the price tag was about triple what the thing was worth. She had taken it off something else.

What really burned me up is that on the outside of the package, as big as life, there appeared a sticker which said: "Sender's Own." This means the gift was not purchased in the store. It's something she had at home and brought to the store for gift wrapping and delivery.

I hate to let her think she is getting away with this same tawdry stunt year after year. What shall I do?—NOT SO DUMB.

* * *

DEAR NOT SO — Don't do anything. You've dissipated most of your anger by writing to me. When you see this letter in print the notion that perhaps she is seeing it, too, will take care of the rest.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — This is not my problem, because I have no children. I believe, however, it is the problem of all American parents.

I've been distressed by the fact that American teen-agers are living on soft drinks, potato chips, pizza, popcorn, candy and ice cream. Such a diet will eventually undermine the health of the nation.

In recent years, parents have been less vigilant about seeing to it that their children have nourishing meals. I've observed many a teen-ager downing a malt and grabbing a hot dog on the run — and that's supposed to be dinner.

Millions of teens read your column daily. Please see if you can get through to them in an area where their parents have failed. — CONCERN.

* * *

DEAR CONCERNED — It may appear that American teen-agers are living on junk but it's not true. By and large Americans are still the best fed people in the world.

Teeth and complexions would be better if teens ate fewer sweets, but my major complaint is not what they eat, but their disgraceful failure to exercise. This is where American kids need the shove.

* * *

DEAR ANN — I married a divorced man recently. Pete and his first wife had no children but they did have a miniature poodle. She asked for custody of "Fifi", which was fine with Pete.

During the first month of our marriage Pete got a phone call from his ex-wife almost every evening — "problems" with "Fifi." He finally told her he didn't want to be bothered and to stop calling.

This made her furious so she decided to make our lives miserable. Now she executes all her time to buttering up Pete's relatives. She calls my mother-in-law daily to ask if she can do any errands for her. She has Pete's sisters eating out of her hand because she bakes for them and sits with their kids.

Every time we go to one of his relatives for dinner she's there. Neither Pete nor I are comfortable in her presence. Does he have the right to ask his family to stop inviting her to their homes? — PAST - IMPERFECT.

* * *

DEAR PAST — No. He can and should tell his family, however, not to invite you two if they plan to invite his former wife the same evening.

* * *

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ontario Intelligencer SPORTS

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Minor Hockey Week in Canada starts Saturday, January 25.

And before long the Golden Voice of the Muppets of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association Minor Division, belonging to Jack Christie, will be echoing the news from the housetops from the rocky ribs of Newfoundland to the sunny vales of Victoria.

Some 150,000 puck-chasing youngsters will lift an ear. Some 10,000 dedicated men will go to their task with renewed vigor.

These men along with the CAHA and provincial organizations feel that money and effort spent on minor hockey is a sound investment. And I do not know of a better investment in the youth of the nation than minor sport in general and hockey in particular.

In Ontario, the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, the greatest organization of its kind in the world, in conjunction with the Ontario Hockey Association is sponsoring the movement.

Its purpose is to focus public attention on the physical and mental benefits of the sport for young Canadians. By drawing public attention to the fact, minor hockey officials hope to develop more support for the valuable work being done by hundreds of coaches, managers, referees and other officials across the country.

Minor hockey develops an understanding and spirit of good sportsmanship. It teaches the value of clean living and thinking, team-work and co-operation. Boys learn that respect for the rules and authority are necessary and desirable to succeed in life. Minor hockey teaches good citizenship.

Hockey is Canada's national winter sport. It extends beyond the perimeter of athletics because it has become an institution. It is a heritage handed down to Canadian youngsters by proud forebears who have written glorious pages in the golden book of the game.

And dedicated men will see to it that the heritage is maintained. By hard work and other effort, sometimes with their own finances, they are seeing to it that Young Canada will get the proper fundamentals and groundwork that not only prepares them for the stern game of life ahead, but perhaps in some cases readies a career.

Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, says that the chances of a boy reaching the NHL is roughly one in a 1,000.

Be that is it may. I believe Young Canada is not so much interested in reaching professional status as he is in playing the game purely for the love and sport of it.

A lot will go on to the higher brackets, such as junior "A" and pro. Senior hockey may be "smouldering in the grave" by the time the present crop of youngsters reaches the age. Others will reach the coveted NHL circle.

Handling a group of blade-shod and stick-armed spirited youngsters is no sinecure. It takes time, patience and sustained effort. And as long as Canada has men blessed with these traits, minor hockey will never die. It will go on as long as Young Canada wants to play the game.

It is to these men that Young Canada Hockey Week is partly dedicated. They come from all walks of life, from city, town, village and hamlet. They have one thing in common, a love of boys and hockey.

This part of Eastern Ontario is blessed with many such men. Under the guidance and supervision of such Ontario Minor Hockey Association executives as Douglas Patterson of Stirling and Albert Watkin of Belleville, enough, minor hockey has mushroomed into a growth not dreamed of twenty years ago. And their work goes on.

In this city under the aegis of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association some 1,200 youngsters are enjoying organized hockey. In the district from Peterborough on the west to Kingston and Gananoque on the east, north to Bancroft and south to Picton, over 4,000 puck-minded boys are being taught rules, regulations and sportsmanship.

As the late President John Kennedy of the United States said: "All of us must consider our own responsibilities for the physical vigor of our citizens. We do not want our children to become a generation of spectators. Rather we want them to be a participant in the vigorous life."

Defeat German Team 13-0

Olympics Get Third Win

MANNHEIM, West Germany (CP) — Canada's young Olympic hockey team flashed to a 13-0 victory Saturday over Erc Mannheim in an exhibition game.

The victory was the third straight for the Canadians in a five game pre - Olympics European tour. They led 6-0 after the first period and 7-0 after the second.

The Canadians — dubbed by the German press "Father Bauer and his Whiz Kids"—had vocal support from more than 500 Canadians—servicemen and their families—among the capacity crowd estimated at 11,000 persons. The servicemen travelled from Baden Baden to watch their countrymen play in the Mannheim open-air arena.

The winners — coached by Rev. David Bauer — showed superior puck control and their fast, clean play drew loud applause from the fans.

Only one penalty was handed out to each team.

Hull Scores Four In Chicago Split

Leafs, Habs Fail To Cut Margin ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 30 for sure, probably 40, possibly 50 and—according to past performance — maybe even 60.

That's the trend of guesswork these days among National Hockey League fans who have started to speculate on how many goals Chicago's Bobby Hull will score this season.

BOBBY HULL

His most avid admirers are convinced their blonde hero will pass 50 and break the record he shares with Bernie Geoffrion and Maurice Richard. When he reached that milestone in 1961-62, he had only scored 13 goals in the first 35 games and forged a whirlwind finish to do it.

This season he passed the 21-goal mark midway through the season and that's why his boosters believe he will establish a new record for most goals in a season.

FOUR-GOAL WEEKEND

Hull needed 37 goals in his last 35 games two years ago to do it and this weekend embarked on another race to the wire with a four-goal performance in two games. The second half of the schedule is only six games and he has seven goals, giving him a total of 28 in 41 games.

Hull scored three times Saturday night to erase a 1-0 Detroit lead and rocket the Hawks to a 5-4 victory over the Wings. He scored again Sunday night but in a losing cause as Montreal edged Chicago 2-1.

Toronto missed a chance to gain ground on the Hawks when they split a home-and-home series with Boston, winning 3-1 at home but losing 6-3 at Boston. In the other game played, Detroit beat New York 5-3.

The action left the standing almost unchanged. Only the Rangers failed to advance as the other five teams picked up two points apiece. Chicago remained on top with 51 points, three more than Toronto and Montreal.

FIRST WIN IN CHICAGO

Bernie Geoffrion's 11th goal of the season gave the Canadiens their first victory on Chicago ice, but only their second win against the Hawks in nine games this season.

Ron Murphy scored for the Hawks moments after Geoffrion had notched the winner midway through the second period but referee Art Skov disallowed the Hawk goal, ruling Murphy had knocked the puck in with his stick above shoulder height.

Gilles Tremblay opened the scoring at the six-minute mark of the first period while Pierre Pilote was in the penalty box for Chicago. But Hull tied it up minutes later through a frantic final session as Charlie Hodge made 12 saves and Glenn Hall 11 before a disappointed crowd of 15,382.

HULL RAPS IN THREE

But a Chicago audience of 15,514 wasn't let down Saturday as Hull popped home three goals between 2:14 and 8:35 of the second period to deflate the Wings. Dick Mikita, Murphy and Kenny Wharram were the other Hawks marksmen.

Floyd Smith gave the Wings a 1-0 lead but Detroit buckled under Chicago's 45-shot assault and third-period goals by Pit Martin and Alex Delvecchio came too late.

The Wings came from behind twice Sunday night and fired 53 shots at New York's Jacques Plante for their 5-3 victory. Gordie Howe scored twice and set up Red Kelly's game-winner.

The Rangers took the lead on Andy Bathgate's first - period goal but Howe tied it up moments later. New York went ahead on goals by Rod Gilbert and Earl Ingarfield but Parker MacDonald and Martin knitted the count.

UNLEASH 22 SHOTS

Joyal got his seventh of the season and Howe his 14th and the Wings unleashed 22 shots in the final frame. Terry Sawchuk made 28 saves to Plante's 48.

Bernie Geoffrion, who notched his 11th goal of the season midway through the game to give Montreal an important 2-1 win over Chicago. Gordie Howe, who scored twice and assisted once as Detroit defeated New York 5-3.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stan Mikita of Chicago increased his lead to three points over Montreal's Jean Beliveau during the weekend but it was Gordie Howe of Detroit, who holds two games in hand, earned two assists for an outpost big producer during the league in assists with 35.

Gordie Howe of Detroit was another big producer during the weekend, picking up two goals and an assist to move into a tie with New York's Phil Goyette for the last position in the league's Big Seven at 28 points. Toronto's Frank Mahovlich was held to a single point and dropped behind.

Hec Gervais Shades Richardson

CALGARY (CP) — Hec Gervais of Edmonton scored a thrilling 8-7 verdict over archrival Ernie Richardson of Regina to win the second annual Masters curling championship here Saturday night.

Gervais, 1961 Canadian and World champion, drew his last rock around a guard fully to the button and took possession of four compact cars when Richardson nudged a guard with his last stone.

Defeat was a bitter disappointment for Richardson, the defending champion. It was his first loss of the bonspiel after 4 consecutive victories—compared to Gervais' record of 5-3.

Unitas Passes West To Victory

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Baltimore's Johnny Unitas hurled two touchdown passes to lead the West to a 31-17 victory over the East Sunday in the 11th annual U.S. Pro Bowl football game.

The victory gave the West a clean sweep of the National Football League's three post-season games. Chicago earlier defeated New York 14-10 for the NFL title and Green Bay of the West beat Cleveland 40-23 in the Playoff Bowl.

Unitas, player of the game since before this game, completed eight of 18 passes for 92 yards.

The game drew a crowd of 67,242, second largest in the series.

Jim Taylor, who scored the day's first touchdown on a 37-yard run, gained 96 yards in 15 carries for the West. Ray Berry got the second, on a pass from Unitas in the second quarter. Sam Baker of Dallas booted a 30-yard field goal for the West in the first quarter.

Leading 14-3 at the half, the West scored only 49 seconds after the third-quarter kickoff, when Jesse Whittenton of Green Bay intercepted a pass from Washington's Norm Snead and ran the ball back 26 yards for a touchdown.

On the ensuing kickoff, Bobby Mitchell of Washington fumbled. Four plays later, Unitas passed to Gail Cogdill of Detroit for a touchdown. A conversion by Tom Davis of San Francisco put the West in front 28-3.

Davis kicked a 31-yard field goal in addition to four conversions.

Two-Games Sweep Gives Aces Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Revitalized Quebec Aces put together two weekend victories to burst into the lead of the eastern division of the American Hockey League.

Aces were the only club in the nine-team league to sweep both scheduled games, 6-3 over Springfield Saturday and 5-3 over Providence Reds Sunday.

Cleveland Barons dumped Hershey Bears 5-2 Sunday to take over the lead in the western division.

Quebec's four weekend points brought their total of 42, one ahead of Bears who managed a 2-1 victory over Rochester Americans Saturday.

Barons moved two points in front of Pittsburgh Hornets in the west on a 3-3 overtime tie with Buffalo Bisons Saturday and their win over Hershey. Hornets tied Baltimore Clippers 4-4 in overtime Saturday and were edged 4-3 by Buffalo Sunday.

Baltimore was defeated 5-1 by Rochester Sunday.

LEADS ACES

Leon Rochefort sparked Aces in Quebec with two goals while a single came from Cleland Mortson, Don Sutherland and Ed Hoekstra. Pierre Brillant, Stan Baluik and George Ranieri scored for Reds.

Ray Brunel, Ron Attwell, Joe Szuszan and Bob Blidet counted goals in Cleveland's Sunday win. Hershey marksmen were Keith McCreary and Bruce Cline.

Bill Crothers, Hoffman Win At Boston

Williamson Second

BOSTON (CP-AP) — Bill Crothers, hard-running Toronto pharmacist, won the 1,000-yard run for the third consecutive year as Canadians finished one-two in the event at the Boston Knights of Columbus games Saturday night.

BILL CROTHERS

Crothers, 22, had to stave off a late rush by Ergas Leps, also of Toronto, to win in two minutes, 10.7 seconds, disappointingly slow in view of Crothers' record-setting 2:08.5 last year. Leps, Big Ten champion while attending University of Michigan, was timed in 2:10.8.

The games, opening the eastern U.S. indoor season, attracted numerous U.S. Olympic team hopefuls. A U.S. indoor record was set by Wendell Mottley of Yale in the 500-yard run. Mottley, a native of Trinidad, ran the distance in 55.5 seconds, trimming a full second off the listed mark.

High jumper John Thomas soared 6 feet seven feet, two inches in the high jump, a meet record.

Abigail (Abby) Hoffman of Toronto breezed to a 2:14.8 triumph in the special invitational girls' 800. The seven national youngster turned on her speed with two laps to go for an easy victory. Runner-up Sandra Knott of Cleveland was caught in 2:19.2.

WILLIAMSON IS 2ND

Chris Williamson, fine-looking young runner from University of New Brunswick, occupied the spotlight in the three-mile run after injuries forced out Bruce Kidd of Toronto. But Williamson could manage only a second to Bob Schul of Oxford, Ohio.

Williamson, 19, was never worse than a close third in the tedious grind but Schul, 28, was too strong down the stretch. Williamson lost the lead with 1¼ laps to go. Schul's winning time was 13:31.4.

Jim Irons of Brampton could manage only a sixth-place finish in the mile, and the East York Track Club team finished third in the varsity two-mile relay.

Frail-looking Tom O'Hara of Chicago Loyola won the mile easily in 4:06.3, with a margin of about 30 yards over Jean Mc-Neal of Manhattan. O'Hara has bettered four minutes outdoors on two occasions and is looked on as a sure bet for a gold medal at the Olympics this summer.

IRONS HAS TROUBLE

Irons had trouble in this seven-man field and lired badly near the end. His race hit a sour note on the second lap when McNeal, who eventually finished second, apparently cut too sharply in front of Irons. The latter gave him a mighty shove and McNeal appeared to prosper from the added momentum.

The two-mile relay was won by Villanova in 7:32.8 with Georgetown University second. The third-place East York team consisted of Dave McClure, George Shepherd, Stan Worfold and the scholarly-looking Crothers.

In the 1,000-yard run, Crothers went into the lead as the gun sounded for the final lap, but Leps was pouring it on at the tape and finished only a strike behind. Crothers holds the U.S. indoor mark for the half-mile, a 1:50.2 clocking at San Francisco last Dec. 27.

The pole vault, in which world record-holder John Pennel competed, was a mild disappointment. John Uelses, the first to clear 16 feet, won at 16 feet, 1½ inches, then failed three times at 16-4. Pennel, who has cleared 17 feet, went out at 15, good for second. He said he had a virus attack.

Minor Hockey Results

Following are results of games played in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association over the weekend.

PEEWEE

Generals blanked the Wings 3-0 with R. Wilkinson scoring two goals. J. Albert potted the other one. P. Peschken and Lamoth each getting one assist.

Maroons copped a 4-1 victory over the Browns. J. Cochrane fired two goals and helped on another. D. Bailey and G. Keller had a goal each and T. Meagher got an assist. S. Mac sele tallied for the Browns and G. Andrews claimed one assist.

Mare topped Quinte 6-3. D. MacCormick tallied twice, F. Hay, M. Geegan, D. Burshaw and C. Jewell once apiece for the winners. Powell also had an assist. D. Fobert and C. Adams were the Quinte marker men and Nobile got an assist.

Canadiens nipped the Leafs in a tight affair, 4-3. W. Dawkins fired the game's lone goal, aided by R. Woodley.

BANTAM

Leafs edged the Royals 3-2 with Cal Wilson scoring the winning goal and helping on another. Don Bland and Tim Doran also scored and Fred Martin got an assist. John Holgate had a goal and assist. David Loder a goal and Ted Sullivan an assist for the Royals.

A terrific performance by Terry Meagher of the Peewee All-Stars was wasted when Barons nipped the Stars 5-4. Meagher scored all four All-Star goals. D. Demers helping on three and Steve Moore on two. Bruce LaRue paced the winning Barons with two goals, fully decked their marker Rob MacIntosh, Wally Zinck and Terry Young potting the others. Steve Elmy got one assist.

Wings shaded the Tee Pees 4-3. Greg Burkitt, Mike Calvert and Norm Taylor scored for Wings—the other Wings goal was credited to a player listed as "Rick," with Anderson drawing an assist. Brian James potted two and Ted Waite one for the Tee Pees. Allen Ray, Waite and Steve Hatfield drew assists.

Frontenacs thumped the Canadiens 5-1. Ted Shaw spearheaded the victors' attack with three goals, Peter Fleming notched one and Ron Mitchell one. Mitchell, Fleming and Allen Jones had assists. John Hill saved the Canadiens from a shutout.

Hawks squeezed past the Macs 3-2 with Ron Fuller tri-gering all three goals and David Cass earning as many assists. Lorne Blatchford and Doug Thompson were the Mac marksmen. Clifford Scott and Blatchford each drew one assist.

Browns outlasted Quinte 8-3 behind the high scoring effort of Tom Boulter. Boulter scored seven of the Brown's goals. Charlie Kempf had the other goal and three assists. Brian Melborne and Ron Yome got one assist each. Garry Burnette and Wayne Muir each claimed a goal and assist for Quinte. Bill Sergeant scored the other goal and Paul Barrett helped on one.

Bruins took a 5-2 decision over the Rangers. Wayne Brown hit for two Bruins' goals, Doug Welbanks got a goal and assist, Robert Hall and Dennis Richardson a goal each. Garry Sero, with a goal and assist, Steven Sharpe, with a goal, and Mark Aquafreddo, with two assists, looked after the Ranger scoring.

No results were turned in for Sunday's Juvenile and Midget games, nor for the exhibition tilts on Saturday night when Belleville Squirts, Peewees, Bantams and Midgets Quilted Napanee.

Bird Champs Win At Niagara

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Dorothy Tinline and John Holehouse, both of Toronto, successfully defended their men's and women's singles titles at the three-day annual Niagara Falls invitational badminton tournament which ended Sunday.

Ethel Marshall and Bea Massman of Niagara Falls defeated Nancy Vincent of Gravenhurst and Kay Hopkins of Oshawa, 15-0, 15-5 to win the women's doubles crown.

Miss Marshall teamed with Jim Lynch, also of Niagara Falls, to win the mixed doubles title 15-8, 15-4 over Pan Beadon and St. Clair Smith of Toronto.

Lynch and clubmate Bob Willett won the men's doubles titles, defeating Bun Brewster and George Thorpe of Woodstock 15-12, 18-16.

Cleveland Coach Is Suspended

CLEVELAND (AP) — Fred Glover, Cleveland Barons player-coach who is tied for the American Hockey League scoring lead, has been suspended indefinitely by league president James G. Balmer, it was announced Sunday.

The announcement was made before the game between Cleveland and Hershey.

The suspension was because of an incident Saturday after an offside call was made against Cleveland. The Barons were playing Buffalo. Referee Bill Friday said Glover fired the puck at him.

Glover was given a 10-minute misconduct penalty, but Glover saying he hadn't shot the puck at the official, followed Friday around the ice, arguing. Friday finally called a game misconduct penalty on Glover.

Part of the reason for the suspension, Balmer said, was Glover's abusive language.

Two Bettors Split Take Of $75,000

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Two unidentified men split a $75,000 twin double at Tropical Park Saturday, and the parimutuel handle of more than $1,500,000 was the biggest since the track opened in 1931.

The program included 10 races and the exotic twin double, inaugurated in Florida this season.

The men who took the twin double—second largest payoff in U.S. racing history — said they spent $300 between them trying for it.

They connected for $75,002.30 on the winners of the fifth race, Bonnie Pat, $11.60; Wave Burst, $16.20, in the sixth; You Look Cute, $27.60, in the eighth and Sophia's Boy, $10.80 in the ninth.

Sophia's Boy sped to a two-length victory over the favored entry of Geology and Ice Jam in the $18,250 Gold Coast Handicap feature.

Under a masterful ride by Johnny Sellers, Sophia's "Boy pulled away in the stretch after battling Geology in the first test for defeated colts in 1964. Time for the 1-16 miles on a fast track was one minute, 45 2-5 seconds.

King of the Hill

Ron Saylor rolled the highest five-game total in the history of the contest while relaxing his King of the Hill crown for the sixth consecutive week on Saturday.

Saylor had a grand total of 1483 to pace the field in the qualifying round. Thus no roll-off was necessary. Saylor had singles of 255, 351, 264, 301 and 312, elaping Jim Begley's old total of 1478.

Second high man was Cec Hardwick, with 1260, followed by Les St. Louis 1253, Bob Kisner, 1196, Jim Begley, 1152, and Jim Scriven, 1125.

Besides Saylor's three "300" games, St. Louis had 311 and Scriven and Hardwick rolled a 312.

In the "Pot of Gold" battle, Saylor had strings of seven and six. Ron Kiser also had six in a row, St. Louis, Begley and Harry DeKnuble five.

If Montreal Junior Canadiens have any hopes of catching the high-flying Toronto Marlboros they'll have to hustle—time is running short.

The second-place Canadiens fell 11 points back of Toronto Sunday when defeated 4-2 by league - leaders on Marlboros' home ice. It marked Toronto's 26th victory in 35 starts and the league is approaching the three-quarter mark of the 56-game schedule.

The win gave Marlboros 57 points but Montreal, with 46, can cut the margin to nine points again when they visit St. Catharines Black Hawks Tuesday night.

Niagara Falls Flyers jumped into a third-place tie with the Peterborough Petes Sunday with a 4-0 shutout over the slumping Black Hawks. Niagara Falls and Peterborough show 38 points each with St. Catharines three points behind.

Unpredictable Kitchener Rangers filled Oshawa's net with goals Sunday to register a 7-3 home-ice win over the Generals. The last-place Rangers erupted for their biggest single-game output of the season and moved to within two points of the idle Hamilton Red Wings.

The Rangers go at it again with the Generals in Oshawa Tuesday night while Peterborough plays host to Hamilton.

The largest crowd of the season—3,126—watched the Marlboros grab a 2-1 lead at the end of the first period and dominate the Canadiens throughout the game.

Ron Ellis paced the Toronto attack with a pair of goals while Mike Walton and Peter Stemkowski added singles. Rod Seiling, who will join the Canadian team in the Winter Olympics later this month, picked up three assists.

Yvan Cournoyer, the league's leading goalscorer, fired a pair for the visitors. They were his 38th and 39th of the season.

Marauders Dump Gaels

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

McMaster University Marauders dumped Queen's University Golden Gaels 6-4 in Kingston Saturday to snap a two-way tie for first and move two points in front in the Senior Intercollegiate Hockey League.

McMaster's victory gave them seven points while the idle Redmen of Toronto Blues have five.

In other Saturday action, Universities of Ottawa and Waterloo Warriors 8-5 to jump into a third-place deadlock with Laval University of Quebec, each with four points.

McGill University holds down fifth spot with two points while Queen's and Waterloo are tied for last place without a point.

Bob Appa fired three goals to pace Marauder while two more goals were credited to John Savage, Gary Spear and Peter Randle.

LEADS WITH 2

Bill Colvin led the winners with a pair and Peter Weston and Frank Jodoin added one each.

The Gaels pulled goalie Alwin Derbyshire and the Marauders responded with a goal into the open net with one second left.

Wall Wins At San Diego

◆ SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Steady Art Wall Jr. won the $30,000 San Diego Open golf tournament Sunday, scoring his first major victory since the 1960 Canadian Open. He shot a par-70 for a 72-hole score of 278.

Playing in bright sunshine over the rolling par-35-35 Rancho Bernardo Country Club course, the 40-year-old former Masters and PGA Golfer-of-the-Year in 1959 shot a 34 on the first nine and finished with a 36 as he went one over par on the final hole.

Tony Lema got on a big drive, making birdies on six of the last 10 holes and a 30 on the back nine. He tied for second place with Bob Rosburg who closed with a 70.

Dave Palmer signed a belated rally with a 66 after shaking off a flu bug, but it left him alone in fifth place.

Gene Littler faded to a 73 and a tie at 280. Julius Boros had a 70 for 278 and a tie with Ray Floyd, who shot a 68 Sunday.

George Knudson of Toronto with 68-76-71-69 for a 284 total won $362.50. Further down the list each got the money was Al Johnston of Montreal with 75-69-76-71—291.

Woodstock Leads Senior Race

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Woodstock Athletics, who last week were battling Galt Hornets for first place, now find themselves with a six-point lead atop the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A standings.

The Athletics were deadlocked with Galt going into weekend action, both with 21 points. A 5-2 victory over Welland Buriloaks in Welland Sunday accounted for two points. Then came the announcement that two protested games involving Galt, Port Colborne Sailors and Guelph Regals had been set aside by the OHA and will be played later.

Galt, idle during the weekend, dropped back into a tie for second spot with Welland, each with 27 points.

In other Sunday action, the Oakville Provincials gave them 20 points, three up on Guelph. Port Colborne is buried deep in the cellar with eight.

Banff May Get 1968 Olympics

The international Olympic Committee meets here Jan. 28, three days before the winter Games open. A secret vote Jan. 29 will determine the locale of the 1968 Games.

Informants give the Banff application the best chances because Canada, a ranking winter sports country, never has had the Games while all other competing countries have had either the Olympics or world ski championships.

Other centres mentioned as in the running were Grenoble, France; Lahti, Finland; Oslo, Norway, and Sapporo, Japan.

Banff and Calgary sportsmen have been campaigning since the first mention of Canada as the site for the 1968 winter Games. The Alberta and Canadian governments support the bid.

Signs Contract For 3 Years

TORONTO (CP)—Bill Simpson, described as "one of Canada's best informed soccer men" was signed to a three-year contract as technical manager of the Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League at its annual meeting Sunday.

His salary was not disclosed. Harold Ballard was re-elected president for a one-year term.

Television Concentrated On Birth Control, Smoking

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Television's special efforts during the weekend concentrated on birth control and the U.S. surgeon general's report on smoking and health.

All three U.S. networks handled the big tobacco story Saturday on a competitive news basis with special programs in the early evening. They also announced the planned to study the report in connection with television advertising policies.

NBC's Birth Control: How? Sunday night centered on Dr. John Rock, the Roman Catholic physician whose clinic in Brookline, Mass., has developed an effective oral contraceptive.

Considerable time also was given to Rev. John A. O'Brien of Notre Dame who presented the view of the Roman Catholic Church, which opposes use of artificial or chemical contraceptives.

David Brinkley was commentator and interviewer of the program—and for one evening he abandoned his wry, humorous approach.

FRANK, UNHEATED

It was a frank, enlightening and unheated treatment of a controversial subject.

CBC' One of a Kind series started Sunday afternoon with a most unusual travelogue—a leisurely helicopter tour of the United States. The photography and effects of the program were stunning. A camera - carrying chopper—ore more likely a fleet of them—flew over great cities on both coasts and across deserts, plains and rivers.

The commentary was often brief—it would have been nice to know the location of a quiet canal or a windswept corn field —but it was low key and sort of right for late Sunday afternoon.

Show Biz Whiz

Las Vegas Gets Down To Bare, Bare Facts!

By DAVID FARMER

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Three bare-breasted showgirls descended from the ceiling on small, suspended discs.

They didn't know it, but they were pushing a trend that might one day force Las Vegas to compete with Broadway in the show field.

Down on the stage, the curtain rose and dozens more girls—some clad elegantly, some almost invisibly—threaded in and through intricate manoeuvres amid flashing lights and crashing music.

It was the spectacular and opulent opening of the newest edition of the Stardust Hotel's Lido de Paris French revue.

The three bare show girls revolved slowly on their platforms in a bath of light. Then the discs silently ascended to become part of the opening scene.

EVEN HAS DOVES

On the stage, the size of a basketball court, the show moved massively through its two hours. It was studded by such unexpected touches as:

—The startling, whirring flight of a covey of doves from a spotlight booth to the stage.

—A tropical island destroyed by fire and a hurricane.

—A live white horse and rider, galloping in the basement and reflected to the audience by a huge mirror.

—A circus with performing seals and flimsily caged tigers.

—An ice duet, and a grand finale featuring costumed and half-costumed girls perched in the backdrop while fireworks sprayed sparks behind them.

Stardust installed the new show, with a cast of 70, even though the previous edition was playing to persons twice nightly—three times on some days—every day of the year.

Stardust's show is good, in fact, that the half-clad showgirls are forcing a transformation of the Las Vegas show philosophy.

OTHERS MAY FOLLOW

Other hotels are hinting that they may go the spectacle route blazed by the Stardust and the Tropicana. The Thunderbird has already switched to a stripped-down Broadway show theme.

The Dunes, after a half-year flirtation with Guys and Dolls, is installing a French revue.

The Sahara Hotel is getting ready to enlarge its showroom so it can stage full-size Broadway productions — or originals that may one day challenge the Great White Way.

The Desert Inn, sister hotel of the Stardust, will shortly enlarge its showroom—another stage so that it can produce Broadway shows.

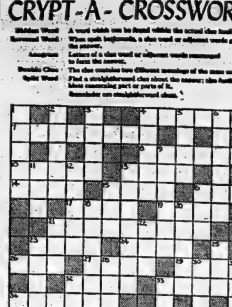
Las Vegas is already famous as the place where the lounges feature stars who would headline elsewhere else.

COSTS LOW

Even with the stars crammed into every available showcase, entertainment is surprisingly inexpensive in Las Vegas. That's if you don't count gambling losses in the casinos.

Cost of a dinner show in one of the strip hotels can run as high as $7.00 or as $8.50, excluding drinks. There's a $5 minimum (for drinks) at the 11 p.m. show.

In the lounges, it's all free—the fancy hors d'oeuvres the sizzling cocktail waitresses pass around.



It should come as no shock that the stars' bodies and comics are on the marquee to lure gamblers. Strip hotel officials Zack Entratter, president of the Sands Hotel, and Barney Dreyfus, vice-president and general manager of the Riviera, puts it another way:

"It gets the bodies in."

Brockville Wins S. S. Cage Title

BROCKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Thousand Islands High School of Brockville won the Eastern Ontario Secondary School Association's post-Christmas basketball tournament during the weekend, dumping rival Belleville Collegiate 61-42 in the senior championship fight.

The pitiful junior team, however, lost 53-22 to St. Lawrence High School of Cornwall in the junior championship game.

Thousand Islands entered the senior finals by defeating Kingston High School 59-32 in the semi-final round while Brockville Collegiate won a 77-67 win over Smiths Falls.

In the junior consolation champion ship, St. Lawrence High School of Cornwall romped to an 81-37 win over Queen Elizabeth High School of Kingston.

St. Lawrence had little trouble reaching the junior finals, handing Cornwall High School a 61-36 decision in the semi-finals. Thousand Islands subdued queen Elizabeth of Kingston 31-18 in the senior junior semi-final.

Brockville Collegiate won the junior consolation championship with a 52-29 win over Loyalist High School of Kingston.

TAKES TITLE

CLEVELAND (AP) — Scott Ethan Allen, 14, of Smoke Rise, N.J., edged defending champion Tommy Litz of Hershey, Pa., Sunday to capture the senior men's crown in the U.S. national figure skating championships. Allen is the first ever to win the senior's crown without first having been junior national champion. Peggy Fleming, a freckle-faced 15-year-old from Pasadena, Calif., won the senior women's title and an Olympic berth Saturday.

Fort Wayne Ups Margin

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fort Wayne Komets, who took a back seat to Toledo Blades for the better part of the first half of the season, now hold a commanding lead in the International Hockey League standings.

Komets emerged from a home-and-home series with Fort Wayne Flags to pocket richer an 11-4 triumph in Fort Wayne Saturday and a 9-7 victory on Flags' home ice Sunday.

Fort Wayne now has 48 points, a solid seven-point lead over Toledo.

Blades took a split in weekend action, edging Muskegon Zephyrs 4-2 in Muskegon Saturday and bowing 5-1 to Chatham Maroons Sunday in Chatham.

Windsor Bulldogs spent the weekend in Des Moines and left for home still tied with Oak Leafs after a split in games. Oak Leafs triumphed 7-2 Saturday but took a 5-3 defeat the following night.

CHANGES RULE

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The football rules committee of the U.S. National Collegiate Athletic Association replaced its controversial substitution rule Sunday with one which almost returns the college game to unlimited substitution. Only a single restriction was left in the way of this goal. A team must sacrifice a time-out when it sends in a platoon during a period when the clock is running.

Movie Column

Frank Frankovich Is Prime Example of New Executives

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Forty years ago, a Los Angeles boy used to be taken by his father to do gymnastics on Santa Monica boulevard.

One day they got the attention they were seeking. Douglas Fairbanks saw the boy and hired him to teach tumbling to Doug Jr. The youthful coach was working out at the movie lot when director Ernst Lubitsch tabbed him to play a choir boy in Rosita, with Mary Pickford.

That was Mike Frankovich's first movie job. Today he occupies the office of the late potentate Harry Cohn as chief of Columbia Pictures' worldwide film making.

In the intervening years, Mike has done about everything in the film industry, from writing serials to acting as bodyguard for J. H. Warner during a movie strike. So it's only natural that he would slide easily behind the desk he assumed at the first of the year.

"I'm optimistic about the film business," he said between long-distance phone calls. "I feel sure we're going to get our heads above water again."

COSTS HIGH

"The problem is not getting people to go to movies; they're doing that now. The main difficulty is that pictures cost too darned much. Can't do anything for a good story, and I don't mind paying the truly creative people what they're worth. But some of the others have got to realize their prices more realistic. They've got to share some of the risk with us."

Frankovich is a prime example of the new era of movie executives. He was one of the first to use frozen money for financing films. "Besides producing the picture, I sell the shoes from Milan for oil from Spain for cotton from Egypt," he said.

In 1955 he became head of Columbia's European operation and helped oversee such projects as The Guns of Navarone and Lawrence of Arabia. Then came the call to return to Hollywood.

It was a tough decision for him and his wife, actress Binnie Barnes, he admitted. They were influenced by the fact that their married daughter and grandchild live here. They also have a son studying in Oregon and another as assistant director on Lord Jim in Cambodia.

AT THE PARK — A gossamer myth, created by a mad man's chisel, is destroyed . . . that's the description of Sandra Knight in "The Terror" opening tonight at the Paris Theatre, starring Boris Karloff. On the same program the second horrifying attraction "Dementia 13" stars William Campbell and Luana Anders. Both horrors are first showings. Complete shows are at 7.00 and 8.40 p.m.

AT THE BELLE — A happy romantic comedy combination are Doris Day and James Garner, seen with Arlene Francis on a scene in Universal's "The Thrill Of It All". The laugh riot in color is playing tonight, and Tuesday, matinee and evening.

Singing Nun

"A Happy View Of Christianity"

By FRED CHEVAL

BRUSSELS (AP)—Two years ago a smiling but somewhat frightened nun walked into a Brussels recording studio, sat down with a second-hand guitar on her lap, and captured the hearts of two continents.

All Sister Luc Gabrielle wanted to do was have a few records made to send to some of the young girls who came to her nearby convent of Fichermont for yearly retreats. She had amused them on their last visit with her sprightly, joyful, sometimes mischievously irreverent but always deeply spiritual songs, and the girls wanted mementoes.

When the manager of the Philips Recording Studio heard the first tape of Sister Luc Gabrielle's music he rushed her to ask if she would do a full-blown album, to be distributed commercially.

The record became an immediate best seller in Europe, and soon "The Singing Nun's" fame leaped the Atlantic. Her album became the top seller for more than a month, and one of her songs, Dominique, became the No. 1 tune in the United States, adding a delightful freshness to disc jockey shows.

FILMED AT CONVENT

She appeared on Ed Sullivan's television show Jan. 5. It was filmed at the convent of Fichermont.

To get permission for her enormously successful commercial venture, Sister Luc Gabrielle had to go to the Archbishop of Malines, head of the Roman Catholic Church in Belgium.

The convent receives the proceeds, which will help finance the sister Luc Gabrielle's order of Dominican nuns which is engaged chiefly in foreign missionary work.

Personal publicity for her has been sparse—her name is not even mentioned on the record! Instead she is nicknamed Soeur Sourire—Sister Smile.

She is a former high school art teacher who decided in 1959 to enter the convent. She abandoned her art studies in favor of becoming a missionary.

"I would like to go to Asia," she said. "Africa also would be fine."

She now is attending Louvain University in Brussels. She will graduate in two years and, presumably, enter the missionary field. She is 30.

Referring to herself as "unbrained bear, with a turned-up nose, eyeglasses, and a poor sense of humor," she has a quite plain face, rosy cheeks and, most important, a crisp, clear and extremely refreshing voice.

SINGS HER STORY

Referring to her own vocation and of her acquisition of the guitar in one of her songs.

Referring to herself as "a silly girl," she says she spotted the guitar in a Brussels shop window. She "just had to." She bought it, and named it Adele. "In answer to the divine voice which invited her to the harvest, the silly girl—that's me—left town for a neighboring convent, came with her guitar, went with the luggage and began her novitiate, singing God's praise joyfully and with all her voice."

Sister Smile sings joyfully of her love for God, often adding a delightful freshness to plain disc jockey shows.

FILMED AT CONVENT

In one song, about the last judgment, she recites a litany of historical figures who will be on hand. "Installed on his border, Jacob will judge from on high—above the famous Diolen trees, walking around in his barrel." And "blessed Dominic and St. Francis will sip their benedictine to celebrate their friendship."

What does she suppose her patron, St. Dominic would think of her songs if he came back to earth?

"I hope he would be pleased," she said. "Maybe we could sing a duet."

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) New Moon highlights journeys, chance to gain added knowledge. Fine for reading, pursuing creative endeavors. Spotlight on printed matter, higher education.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Push forth with extra effort. New Moon stresses handling of details. You can no longer put off unpleasant tasks. Get them out of the way! Make effort to help family member.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) New Moon corresponds to dealings with public. You should come "out in open" with plans, intentions. Be constructive. Stress diplomacy, not criticism.

Leo (July 22 to August 21) Follow through on work projects. Catch up on assignments. Get more order and method into activities. Stress discipline; finish assignments. Keep recent resolutions.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) New Moon highlights breakthrough. You can fulfill major ambition - - applies especially to romance, creative activity. Make necessary changes. Say yes to challenge.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Find out what loved ones really investigate, probe. Overcome restless feeling. Be ready for surprises. Display strength, sincerity. Good to spend time renewing friendships.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) New Moon encourages visits, short journeys, communication. Catch up on family activities. Find out what loved one really desire. Keep mind and heart open.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Position of New Moon highlights finances, income, opportunity to gain prestige. Take a chance on personal abilities. Set fine example. Exude confidence.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Now your intuition seems as reliable guide. Be independent. Heed your own counsel. Associates may be well-meaning but misleading. Time to spread influence.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be aware of behind-the-scenes activity. Listen, observe - - don't voice bits of information. Being alert, perceptive can save the day. Be a leader, not a follower.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) New Moon highlights friendships, wishes, fulfillment of dreams. Don't be afraid to break away from usual patterns. Stress creativity, change, travel. Finish what you start.

If today is your birthday you have great talent for finding hidden facts. Would make excellent lawyer, teacher or detective.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: New Moon spotlights false pride. Nations and individuals may be trapped by desire to "save face."

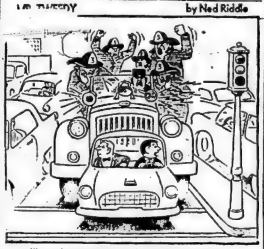
Gaels Bow To Lancers, RedmenLose

By THE CANADIAN PRESS



University of Windsor Lancers and University of Waterloo Warriors posted emphatic wins in Senior Intercollegiate Basketball League action Saturday, Windsor, sparked by Bob Horvath's 22 - point performance, trounced visiting Queen's University Golden Gaels 97-65 and Warriors dumped McGill University Redmen 96-39 at Waterloo.

In other Saturday action, Toronto Varsity Blues, a member of the senior league, edged Florida Southern College Moccassins 91-82 in an exhibition match in Toronto and Royal Military College Redmen defeated MacDonald College of Montreal, 75-74 in Ottawa. St. Lawrence Intercollegiate League play.

Bill Brown registered 13 points as Lancers claimed their second consecutive victory. Ed Petryshyn got 12 and Bernie Friesmuth got 11 for Windsor.

Doug Fraser was high for Gaels with 14 points while teammate Doug Howes counted 13.

I'M TICKLED by Ned Riddle

"I can hear them but I sure can't see them."

NORTHERN FANS

Some 2,000 fans attended northern Norway's first jazz festival at Bardu in October, 1963.

YOUR NUMBER'S COMING UP — The federal government plans to issue numbered indentification cards to all employed Canadians starting April 1. Jean Swallow of Toronto holds three-unit printer's proof showing what they will look like. The left-hand portion which will have owner's name and a nine-digit number — is to be carried by the owner. It will fold to wallet size. Centre portion is a duplicate for the owner's record and right-hand unit is for employer. Numbers will be known as social insurance numbers and more than 6,000,000 persons are expected to be registered in the biggest program of its kind since the Second World War. The registration will be handled by the unemployment insurance commission and opens up many possibilities for government use — from keeping tax records to setting up a permanent voting list. Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Babcock Married 55 Years Today

PICTON (Staff) — On Monday January 13th, 1909, Pearl Tomkins and Charlie Babcock stood in the living room of a home in Rednersville and were pronounced man and wife by Rev. W. Howard, then the minister of the Rednersville Methodist Church.

On Saturday afternoon, 55 years later, all but two days, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Babcock stood in the same living room, on the identical spot for the Ontario Intelligencer photographer to take their picture. They have lived most of their lives in the same home.

Miss Annie Shears was the bridesmaid and Ernest Redner, the best man.

In 1910 the couple moved to Trenton where Mr. Babcock drove a horse drawn stage from Trenton to Belleville and also delivered mail to rural routes.

Later they lived in Chatham, Smiths Falls and in Northern Ontario before returning to Rednersville, in 1926 where they have lived ever since.

Mrs. Babcock worked for a number of years in the store in Rednersville, only about 100 feet from her home. Mr. Babcock worked with Ralph Stafford, threshing, grinding grain, and sawing lumber, until his retirement in 1950.

In 1910, he fired the "Verona" a boat that made daily trips from Trenton to Picton, carrying passengers and freight. It had a load capacity of 275 passengers and made several stops en route.

On Saturday, this cheerful couple are already looking forward to their Diamond Jubilee and it is a safe bet they will both make it.

"Young Bucks" Are Making Good Progress

PICTON (Staff) — The parents of the kiddies who play Minor hockey on Saturday morning, are turning out better these days. On Saturday last the parents came - - and saw - - and could not help but be impressed with the progress their "young bucks" are making.

With Minor Hockey Week in Canada only a short time away, every parent should make the effort to see these future greats of the hockey world, do their stuff.

There is nothing that any athlete be he the finest in the world or the lowliest scrub, would rather hear than the shouts of the crowd; it spurs them to an even greater effort.

These youngsters on Saturday mornings don't need much prodding to do a job. They are out there giving everything they have, and win, lose or draw, they are learning to be good sportsmen.

On Saturday in the Pee Wee League, the Bobcats dropped the Bisons 2-0; the Bears and the Barons played to a one-all draw; the Aces edged the Indians 2-1 and the Beavers dropped Milford by a 3-1 score.

In the Atom League, Wasons dropped the Quakers 3-1; Caducks overwhelmed the Bears 7-0 and Royals kept up their winning ways by whitewashing Milford 4-0.

In the Bantam League, the Terepees defeated the Black Hawks by 4-1; the Bruins mauled the Maple Leafs 7-2; Rangers maintained their undefeated streak when Jim McConnell's boys dropped Len Tripp's Maple Leafs by a 4-1 margin; in the last game of the night, Canadiens dropped Milford 2-0.

Pearson Starts to Spell Out New Kind of Politics

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Time for a new kind of politics to emerge . . .

With those words a week ago, Prime Minister Pearson began to spell out publicly his views on the approach he intends his administration to take in governing.

Informants say he will develop it in the months to come as a deliberate plea for public support against his political opponents and doubters among his political friends.

He calls it the new politics and those with whom he has discussed it say idealism is its chief element.

It seeks to bend party interest to the public interest. The new kind of politics in action has at times first horrified, then won temperate support, from old-school politicians to whom sacrificing party advantage is rankest heresy.

Mr. Pearson spoke of the new politics in a recorded CBC television interview Jan. 5. He said Canadians must rise above regional and partisan interest to rally to the common good if they want to preserve the Canadian federation.

TIME TO EMERGE

"It will require in my view a new kind of politics and it is time for the new kind of politics to emerge."

What are the elements of this new kind of politics?

One is a conscious effort to nurture the power of the House of Commons as a check on executive authority—even his own as prime minister—and as a better forum of the public's aims and aspirations.

Mr. Pearson is said to feel the work of the Commons defence committee at the last session was a graphic reflection of this feature of the new kind of politics.

The object was to have a Commons committee make an intensive study of the factors which shape government policy on defence, the single costliest activity of the federal government.

But policy-making is a sacrosanct preserve of the cabinet. His suggestion that a Commons committee more even slightly into that preserve met with genuine horror in his own party.

MADE YEAR ISSUE

His suggestion was made while he was opposition leader, just over a year ago. So the full heresy of it didn't strike some of his colleagues until he became prime minister.

Nevertheless the committee was established and turned loose in fields from which parliament had hitherto been almost completely cut off. Political opponents have expressed enthusiasm for the study made by the committee.

Informants say Mr. Pearson is determined its findings form the basis of future government policy.

Another example is just beginning to take shape—the Commons committee, headed by Speaker Alan Macnaughton, set up to study Commons procedure and organization.

Generally such committees have made studies of Commons rules, trying to find better rules for the Commons to deal with the matters placed before it.

BROADER STUDY

But this Speaker's committee has mapped out a far broader study—a non-partisan reform of Parliament as an institution of government, based on a study of Parliament's functions and purposes in today's world.

The idea of a study of Parliament in such depth met with resistance and resentment in some quarters, including the Liberal party.

But Mr. Pearson is said to be determined to support those who want the committee to continue the wide-ranging examination it had barely started to map out when Parliament was prorogued.

The much - publicized revolt of Liberal backbenchers provided another illustration of the new kind of politics in action.

It was written and spoken of as a revolt of the backbench MPs against the cabinet. This picture of internal dissension might easily have stampeded Mr. Pearson into calling a halt to the demands of the backbenchers.

Participants say he first backed them — even as some of his ministers—in their desire to have liaison groups established which could keep an eye on the steps being taken by ministers to shape government policy.

But he left it to the backbenchers themselves to make the liaison system work once it was established. Members say it has, but only with some of the ministers, not with all of them.

Observers here figure Mr. Pearson is ready to step up his efforts to bring a new ideal-ism into day-to-day politics. They say he has begun a campaign to appeal to the public to support him in it.

Scores Dead In Howling Snowstorm

Many Marooned On Highways, Schools Closed

Blizzard Dumps 2 Feet Of Snow in Some Areas

NEW YORK (AP)—The howling snowstorm that blasted the northeast dumped more than two feet of snow in some sections. Gale force winds whipped the snow into drifts, some 20 ft. high.

Many school systems, including those in New York City and Philadelphia, closed today.

About 3,000 travellers spent the night at Kennedy International Airport in New York after all flights were cancelled because of drifts on the runways. In Pennsylvania, 250 pupils were marooned overnight at a high school.

Although the snowfall tapered off, winds with gusts up to 60 m.p.h. were continued and a near-zero cold was expected as far south as Tennessee.

The Eastchester half of the storm battered Illinois, Indiana and Ohio Monday, leaving thousands snowbound.

Youngstown, Ohio, with 18 inches of snow, called it the worst snowstorm in 13 years.

FLORIDA ALSO SUFFERS

The southern half of the storm brought Florida its first snow in six years. It melted quickly, but plunging temperatures were the main concern with below-freezing temperatures recorded in central Florida.

Washington's nine inches was the heaviest snowfall in nearly six years. Morgantown, W. Va., had 16 inches.

New York City and environs were hit by a foot or more of snow that slowed homebound commuters. The principal suburban highways on Long Island were virtually impassable for several hours.

Train service late and some 6,000 to 8,000 commuters double-and tripled-up in city hotel

Four Killed In Crash At Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Four persons were killed and a fifth was seriously injured Monday night when two cars collided at an intersection on Highway 2, about 17 miles east of here.

Dead are: Vincent Damphouse, 30, and Clarence Duplessie, 42, both of Tilbury; Harry Hunter, 43, and Mrs. Betty Gillett, 35, both of Chatham.

All the dead were married. Nine children left parents in the crash. Mr. Hunter was the father of three children, and each of the other three was the parent of two children.

Donald Moynhan, 30, of St. Joachim, was the fifth person involved in the accident. He was reported in serious condition in Windsor's Metropolitan Hospital suffering head injuries.

Hospital officials said he has "a good chance of survival" and placed him on the serious list.

The crash happened at the intersection of Highway 2 and the Belle River side road, only a few feet beyond where Highway 2 crosses a narrow bridge with high concrete sides which impair visibility of the side road.

Police said one of the cars was east-bound on Highway 2, and the other was either northbound or south-bound on the sideroad. Highway 2 traffic has the right-of-way, and side road traffic is required to come to a stop. It was not known which car did not observe the stop sign.

Police said when the accident happened both roads were bare and dry and visibility was excellent.

After the crash, the cars landed on their wheels in a field beside the highway.

Robarts Delays Pensions

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts announced today he has decided in postpone the implementation of Ontario's provincial pension plan by one year because of the delay in learning details of the federal plan.

Mr. Robarts said the effective date of the province's Pension Benefits Act enacted by the Legislature last April will be put back until Jan. 1, 1966, from Jan. 1, 1965.

The premier said in a statement:

"This action will make room for a federal pension plan and will enable a conflict to be avoided if the federal plan is established while the postponement is in effect."

The Ontario Legislature begins the first working session of the 27th Parliament Wednesday with the government of Premier Robarts enjoying a 6-seat majority over the combined opposition.

Mr. Robarts' Progressive Conservative government was returned with 77 seats in the 108-seat House in the Sept. 25 provincial election compared to 34 seats for the Liberals and seven for the New Democrats.

Redistribution within Metropolitan Toronto added 10 seats to the old 98-seat House. At dissolution last August the Conservatives had 63 seats, the Liberals 34 and the NDP five. Six seats were vacant.

Mr. Roberts met with his cabinets Monday preparing the final draft of the Speech from the Throne—the government's outline of legislation it plans to introduce during the session.

Although this session will be regarded as the 27th Parliament's second, the first session in October lasted only two days and in fact was a special session called to pass a single piece of legislation.

This was the municipal works assistance program, giving the province authority to allocate to 11 area municipalities money from the federal government's municipal loan fund.

Of the federal fund of $400,000,000 more than $136,000,000 was set aside for municipal development projects in Ontario.

TV COVERAGE

The pomp surrounding the opening of the Legislature Wednesday will be shown on television. For the first time in Ontario history, CBC television cameras will be allowed into the House chamber to record the ceremonies and delivery of the Speech from the Throne by Lieutenant-Governor Rowe.

The two hour program also will include scenes on the grounds of Queen's Park. Premier Robarts and the Lieutenant Governor are to ride in an open landau, accompanied by the Governor-General's Horse Guards, from the Royal York Hotel along University Avenue north to the Legislature buildings.

Mr. Rowe will inspect the guard of honor before entering the House. Chilly weather is forecast.

LENGTHY SPEECH

After the Speech From the Throne—likely more than 4,000 words long—is read by Mr. Rowe, the government will introduce a single bill to get the session rolling. Then the House will adjourn for the day.

Mr. Robarts, who turned 47 Saturday, already has let it be known that Ontario will be face with increased taxes this year. However, details of where the tax muscle will be exercised will not be known until the government brings down its budget later in the session.

One face that will be missing from the new House is that of John Wintermeyer, the former Liberal leader who lost his seat in the Robarts sweep last September. Fulgence Oliver will serve as interim leader.

Canada and U.S. Near Agreement on Columbia R.

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada and the United States are on the verge of agreeing once again on how to harness the mighty Columbia River, their negotiators announced Monday.

Quick government approval of the draft agreement is expected shortly, spokesmen said after a day-long bargaining session in a series dating to Prime Minister Pearson's meeting last May at Hyannis Port with the late President Kennedy.

But if the Columbia River hydro and flood control project really is set at long last, it will mark completion of efforts launched in the mid-1940s.

No details will be made public at this last stage in negotiations until the signatures are fixed to the documents—a ceremony that perhaps will be part of the Jan. 22 meeting in Washington between Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson.

External Affairs Minister Martin said Monday that he doubted the papers would be ready for signing before Jan 22. But asked whether Jan. 22 itself was a good date, he said: "That could be."

The Columbia River project would mean a gigantic construction program in British Columbia lasting nine years. Three dams costing at least $380,000,000 would be built.

These dams will level out the wild seasonal fluctuations of the Toll of Revolt in Zanzibar Put at Six Dead, 200 Hurt

ZANZIBAR (Reuters) — Six persons died and at least 200 were injured in this Indian Ocean island's outbreak of violence and overthrow of the ruling government, it was learned today.

Officials said that up to midnight Sunday three were three dead and 114 injured in hospital. Three more dead and 86 wounded were brought in Monday afternoon.

All but two of the 63 Americans on Zanzibar were believed aboard the U.S. destroyer Manley today after bands of Africans were reported roaming the streets, shooting and looting.

State department officials in Washington termed the situation on the spice island off the east with shouting Africans sped

German Says Air Pollution, Not Smoking, Causes Cancer

DUESSELDORF, West Germany (AP)—A German scientist says a detailed study soon to be published will prove that air pollution—not smoking — is the chief cause of lung cancer.

Professor Reinhard Poche of the Duesseldorf Medical Academy said the study is based on findings from pathological institutes in the Ruhr state of North Rhine Westphalia.

"On the basis of our examinations covering many years I am obliged to state that the importance of smoking is causing lung cancer is certainly not as great as has been suggested," he said in an interview.

"Of course, tobacco contains substances which cause cancer, but these tiny quantities play a subordinate role compared with the great masses of cancer-causing agents in polluted air."

Poche said the seven institutes examined 1,229 cases of acute lung cancer during the last five years and also analyzed more than 26,000 official autopsy reports filed since 1908.

The professor said analysis of the findings showed that during the last 50 years the overall percentage of cancer among death cases has not increased, although lung cancer has replaced stomach cancer as the most frequent cancerous disease.

He said among all cases examined lung cancer reached its highest frequency between the ages of 55 and 60-both for smok-

Chevrier London Envoy

OTTAWA (CP)—Appointment of Justice Minister Lionel Chevrier as Canadian High Commissioner to Britain, effective Feb. 1, was announced today by Prime Minister Lester Pearson.

At a press conference after a morning cabinet meeting, the prime minister said the justice minister will replace Hon. George Drew, who has filled the London post since August, 1958, and agreed last April after the change of government to remain there throughout 1963.

Mr. Chevrier, 60, attended the press conference with Mr. Pearson and said he was "very happy to be able to take on this post."

The prime minister said tribute to Mr. Chevrier for his long service in the House of Commons and in various cabinet capacities.

"For many years now he has been my political colleague and my personal friend," Mr. Pearson said in a prepared statement.

"I owe him in both capacities more than I can ever acknowledge."

The prime minister said the cabinet changes he originally had expected to make before leaving for Paris tonight will not be announced until his return next Monday.

Mr. Pearson announced earlier the resignation as MPs of Justice Minister Chevrier and Postmaster-General Denis. They have been continuing in their cabinet posts pending selection of their successors in the ministry.

When he announced the resignations from Parliament and the Feb. 10 elections to fill vacancies in their Montreal constituencies of Laurier and St. Denis, Mr. Pearson said he hoped to appoint successors to Mr. Chevrier and Mr. Denis before the 11th of Feb.

Mr. Pearson leaves Ottawa with External Affairs Minister Martin at 7:30 p.m. EST to confer with President de Gaulle and to visit Canadian battlefields of the First and Second World Wars. They will return next Sunday.

Speculation on successors to Mr. Chevrier and Mr. Denis—who has been named to the Senate—still is concentrated on the addition of two Quebec MPs to the ministry. Most frequently mentioned are John Turner (Montreal St. Lawrence - St. George), Maurice Sauve (Ile-de-la-Madeleine) and Guy Rouleau (Montreal Dollard).

Several ministers are reported to be shifting their portfolios.

Combat Roles Discontinued In Five Years

Predicted It Will Be Transport Force

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCAF will be withdrawn from all its combat roles, with the possible exception of one submarine patrol work, within five years, authorities forecast Monday.

They predicted that the service will become an almost exclusively transport force and that its present roles in home air defence and in nuclear bombing in Europe will be eliminated by 1968 or earlier.

Plans are already being made to expand the RCAF base at Trenton, Ont., headquarters for Transport Command.

The lessening emphasis on the role of combat jet planes is already causing considerable embarrassment in the RCAF because it is just in the process of introducing all-jet training. By the time this training program is in full swing there may be few if any jets for the air force to fly—except the jet trainers.

Defence Minister Hellyer has announced rejection of the RCAF's requests for more CF-101B Voodoo jet interceptors and CF-104 nuclear jet bombers. The air force has 64 Voodoos and 200 CF-104s.

The CF-104 base at Gros Temquin, France, is expected to be closed and the CF-104s at Marville, France, converted to a photo-reconnaissance role.

DISBAND SQUADRONS

Associate Defence Minister Cardin announced Friday disbandment of two Voodoo squadrons, leaving three.

Previously it was announced that the western sector of the Mid-Canada Warning Line will be dismantled and that plans for installation of more radars to detect low - flying bombers have been scrapped.

The U.S. is junking the B-47 bomber and available intelligence reports indicate Russia isn't building any new types of bombers.

Officials said it is obvious that the Canadian government at least no longer considers North American air defence a vital military role.

Meanwhile, there is some discontent in the armed forces about some of the reasons the government is giving for the defence reductions.

CRITICAL OF REASONS

Sources said the current economy drive in the defence department makes good sense but that they feel the government shouldn't attach extraneous or irrelevant reasons to announcements concerning defence cuts.

They criticized, for example, one from Friday's announcement of Peace Talks In Panama Deadlocked

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP)—Negotiations between the United States and Panama were deadlocked today after the United States rejected a Panamanian demand that its promise to review the Panama Canal Treaty as a condition for resuming relations.

Diplomatic sources said the United States refused to make such a pledge under pressure.

The peace committee of the Organization of American States scheduled another meeting with the U.S. and Panamanian negotiators. The committee postponed its departure for Washington in an effort to help restore diplomatic relations between the United States and Panama.

But Panamanian Foreign Minister Galileo Solis said his government would decide within 24 hours on a country to take over Panamanian affairs in Washington—the final step in severance of diplomatic relations.

U.S. REMAINS FIRM

In Washington, the White House said the United States has an obligation to operate the Panama Canada "efficiently and securely" and cannot allow the security of the Panama Canal to be imperilled."

"The United States continues to believe that when order is finally restored, it should be possible to have direct and candid discussions between the two governments," said the statement, issued after Assistant State Secretary Thomas C. Mann returned from Panama and conferred with President Johnson.

There were no outbreaks of violence Monday, although anti-U.S. sentiment still was apparent. Signs guarding "avenue of the martyrs" appeared on President Kennedy Avenue, the building and dividing the Canal Zone from Panama City, where some of the fiercest rioting occurred last week. Kennedy Avenue itself is a 10-mile wide strip that divides Panama.

In Panama City, business houses reopened and American personnel returned to the U.S. embassy for the first time since they evacuated the building Friday.

U-tan paid a farewell call on Panama President Robert Chiari before leaving for Washington.

Last Three Lancaster Bombers Being Taken Out of Service

OTTAWA (CP)—Out of the evening damps of East Anglia and Yorkshire they rose, unsainly as bats, bound for Berlin or Hamburg or Munich.

Aboard were Blockbuster, Cookie, Tall Boy or Grand Slam bombs and seven frightened men who would deliver the deadly cargo and fly home or fall prey to orange flak, spitting fighters or other terrors of those flaming nights over Western Europe.

The Lancaster bomber, which dropped 608,612 tons of bombs during 156,620 sorties during the Second World War—one RCAF CF-104 nuclear jet bomber now could accomplish the same destruction in 30 minutes—is finally being retired.

Today's Chuckle

One reason we can love our enemies: they don't borrow anything.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis—A weak disturbance northwest of Lake Superior will move southeastward today reaching the lower Great Lakes Wednesday morning, moderating temperatures slightly today and tonight. Wednesday will see variable cloudiness and slightly colder temperatures.

RCAF headquarters announced Monday that its last three Lancasters will be taken out of service April 1 and turned over to Crown Assets Corporation for disposal.

The final trio has been serving with 408 Photo Reconnaissance Squadron at Rockcliffe Station here.

Lancasters were taken off anti-submarine duties in 1950 and off search and rescue operations last year. They have been flown by 408 squadron for 14 years.

The temporary replacement for the Lancaster in the squadron is even older—the Dakota.

The Lancaster was developed by A.V. Roe Aircraft Company of England almost as a fluke. Avro had produced the twin-engine Manchester, which turned out a flop. So the company added two engines and turned it into the Lancaster, toter of the world's biggest bomb—22,000 pounder—until the Americans developed the first atomic bomb to Hiroshima in 1945.

All told, 7,366 Lancasters were built, 430 of them in Canada.

The Lanc first went operational on the night of March 3, 1942, and a few weeks later, on April 17, Nos. 44 and 97 Squadrons, RAF, made a daylight raid on the diesel engine factory at Augsburg.

Same Old, Sad Story in British, Little Snow Produces Much Chaos

LONDON (CP)—Winter's first storm almost worthy of the name has proved once again that, in Britain, a little snow goes a long way on spreading chaos.

The snow over 36 counties, ranging from an inch or so in London to eight inches along the southeast coast, caused a total ...lation of dozens of commuter trains Monday and delayed countless more on the railways.

Bus and subway schedules also became snarled and by night had been thrown out last flake had fallen, British Railways admitted the situation hadn't improved much. During the evening rush-hour, it was announced that 24 trains outbound from London's Waterloo Station had been cancelled.

Early - morning travellers at Brighton, 50 miles south of London, were informed at 9 a.m.: "We have no information on trains to London. Unless it is really necessary, passengers are advised not to travel."

So many rushed to telephone that within minutes the telephone company imposed a two minute time limit on calls to London. The public in general, and the press in particular, were outraged. As oft-repeated quote from the British Railways last October when it announced "operation anti-freeze" to make sure that "come what may, we never stop."

"Incredibly, it has happened again," writes Vincent Mulchrone indignantly in The Daily Mail. "A couple of inches of snow on our railroad and our transport services start acting up like Tahitians caught unaware by the second Ice Age."

"So much for the boasts of railway planners," scoffs The Evening Standard. "However brave they may be in the autumn, winter finds them unready, unhappy, overwhelmed."

Council Tables Discussion On Capital Works Budget

Belleville city council at a special two hours session Monday afternoon tabled until next week its decision on its proposed five year capital works budget.

Decision on the matter was laid over until the regular meeting of council next Monday, following which the proposed budget will be submitted to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval.

Council discussed this and other matters in caucus for nearly an hour before going into open discussion.

Decision on the capital works project was laid over on the recommendation of city manager J. R. Reynolds and after observance by Alderman Joseph Raycroft, chairman of the committee of the whole, that discussions were "getting no place fast."

The proposed capital works budget for 1964-68 called for an expenditure of $9,816,000 of which $3,838,000 would have been earmarked for 1964.

WORK FOR THIS YEAR

Included in this year's proposed expenditure was an amount of $2,900,000 as the city's share of the cost of the planned new wing at Belleville General Hospital.

Also for this year was an amount of $450,000 for the Belleville Public Utilities for extension of watermains and hydro distribution facilities; $270,000 for a new public school; $221,000 for local improvements; $55,000 for the proposed purchase of the old YMCA on Campbell Street as a police headquarters and $25,000 for re-surfacing of North Front Street from the new overhead railway bridge to 401 highway.

Planned for 1965 is the renovation of the building at a cost of $100,000 and also preliminary work leading to the construction of the five-year capital works budget and also the possible appointment of members to the city's industrial commission.

The industrial commission matter apparently failed to get out of caucus, however, as there was no mention of the matter in open council later.

Council did, however, appoint a six-man committee to investigate the formation of a welfare council in the city, the purpose of which would be to co-ordinate all welfare activities.

COUNCIL RECOMMENDED

Mayor Jack Ellis recommended the new city council in his inaugural address.

Appointments to the investigating committee of social services at Belleville General Hospital, David Aitken, city welfare administrator, Ernest Gurnett, United Appeals chairman and Mr. Cunningham, representing the trades and labor council.

RECEIVES PLAQUE

OTTAWA (CP)—C. E. Carson, director of Imperial Oil Limited, Toronto, was presented with a plaque here in recognition of outstanding service to road safety. The award came from the Canadian Highway Safety Council of which he was general chairman for two years before last September. John Atkinson of Toronto, was elected to succeed the council's general chairman, made the presentation.

Madoc Youth Pays Fine For Speeding

A 19-year-old Madoc student-minister who drives a Mercury was not guilty, today was assessed $20 fines and costs for speeding.

Glenn William Sinclair told Magistrate T. Y. Wills as a minister his sense of moral and personal duty does not preclude his civic duty.

"Had it not I was guilty I wouldn't have taken time and expense to come down here," he added.

The magistrate said he appreciated the young student might experience financial and moral difficulties with yourself if you knowingly or intentionally did break the law.

However, added Magistrate Wills, he could only be concerned with the facts of the case.

The facts charged Sinclair with driving at 40 miles an hour on Pinnacle Street, December 31st.

He was fined $5, $3.50 court costs and $12 witness fees.

Do Not Leave Money in Milk Bottles

Like money for instance.

Purchase of milk tickets have been in vogue for years. Many people, however, persist in the old-fashioned procedure of leaving ready cash with their milk bottles. Many others also persist in the old-fashioned procedure of picking up any money left lying around — milk bottles.

"I saw a bottle left on a doorstep the other day with a $10-bill in it," said one police sergeant.

Thefts are spasmodic. But once they start they seem to be a veritable rash. The pattern has started to repeat itself in recent days in Belleville.

They've started pilfering the bottles again. Police now are asking all residents (at least, those who drink milk) to start buying tickets or tokens available from all city dairies.

E. Kneisel to Speak To Hotel Convention

Quinte Hotel Sales Manager Ernst Kneisel will address the Ontario Hotel and Motel Association's convention in Toronto, January 22, the third day of the three-day convention. Not a member of the association, Mr. Kneisel was invited in recognition of his position as vice president of the Hotel Sales Managers' Association for the past year.

The address will be in connection with a panel discussion on "Food Merchandising in a Changing Market." Mr. Kneisel will speak of changes in the economic structure of the hotel market in recent years. Among the points he intends to make is the coming decline of the old style beverage room, in favor of the more modern and more comfortable cocktail lounge. Higher income and a higher standard of living will bring the change, Mr. Kneisel believes.

Will Present Modern Version Of Greek Play

This year, the drama club of Nicholson Catholic College, under the direction of Sister Mary Fleurette, is offering a different type of production — a modern day play in place of a group of three related tragedies written by the Greek playwright Sophocles, as has been the case for many years ago. During World War II, Jean Anouilh molded the three tragedies into prose and Lewis Galantiere adapted the play for the English theatre. The play is one of original was written in 500 B.C. "Antigone," like all truly Greek tragedies, has a message for the modern theatre-goer. It is the modern version of the Sophocles play that has the students of Nicholson Catholic College will present on Jan. 31 and Feb. 1, 2 & 3, 1964, in St. Michael's Academy auditorium.

Close Streets For Last Week Of January

Although city council has already passed the necessary by-laws, the Grier and St. Charles Street level crossings over the CNR double tracks will not be closed until the last week in January.

This was the word today from City Engineer Wilbur Purcell, who said that the work was still engaged in installation of new protection services on the two streets, which are to remain open.

Plans call for Geddes and Moira Streets to remain open for traffic, while the Grier and St. Charles Street crossings will be closed both to vehicular and pedestrian traffic.

Crossing gates are to be erected at the two streets remaining open at the two mentioned crossing lights at all four crossings are interconnected and the railway still has to do some work on the protection services for Geddes and Moira Streets.

Mr. Purcell said it would be the last week in January before all work was completed and the barricades were placed blocking off Grier and St. Charles Streets.

Credit Union Chapter Meets

The Quinte and District Credit Union Chapter's first meeting of the year was held at the Club Canara on January 8th.

Credit Unions represented included: Norieeto, Frankford and District, Wilson's Concrete, CNR, and Ontario Service Protection. Two guests John Black of CUNA Mutual and Jim Stoppelbein of CUNA Mutual Union League were introduced.

The main program for the evening was a question and answer period on the duties of credit union officers. This informative session was conducted by George Currie, area field representative.

Ray Scott announced that the next meeting, on February 5th, would be the annual meeting for election of chapter officers.

Flying Hunter Being Sought In Sault Area

TRENTON — Two Dakota aircraft and an Albatross from Trenton have joined with an RCAF Dakota and two Expeditors from Downsview RCAF Station to search for an American moose hunter in the Sault Ste. Marie area.

Thomas J. Sanderson, 49, of Portage, Wisconsin, set out in his CESSNA 170 on wheels from Portage on Dec. 31. At Leigh's Bay, south of Sault Ste. Marie, he changed to skis and took off again. After his hunting licence expired on Jan. 10, authorities checked and found that he was not at Portage and not at Sault Ste. Marie or in the White River area where he had intended to hunt. The RCAF was then called in for the search.

An RCAF spokesman said today that he was optimistic about the search. Sanderson has a tent, a stove, food and other emergency supplies aboard the aircraft. The RCAF has issued 22,200 square miles in the search since last Friday.

Family Taken To Hospital

TRENTON — A Wooler Road resident, Lorne Westfall, 34, and his family, are in Trenton Memorial Hospital, suffering from lack of oxygen in the home. It is understood plastic was used to cover the windows and the furnace used up the oxygen in the dwelling. Taken to the hospital by Trenton ambulance around 3 a.m. today were Mr. Westfall and his wife, Phyllis, Lorne Russell, Sheila, 17, Patricia, nine and Margaret, 22 months and all were treated and released in hospital.

Although details are sketchy, Mr. Westfall is reported to have been suffering from a sore shoulder last night and was at the home of the night. He realized that something was wrong and called for ambulance assistance. Called to the home, Dr. John Farley called for the ambulance to have some of the children 40 the hospital in his own car. Provincial police from the Belleville detachment are investigating.

Sixteen Rinks In Bonspiel

Gardens Ends Year With $5,300 Deficit

TRENTON — Although the Trenton Community Gardens did $3,000 more business last year than in 1963, the Gardens ended the year with a deficit of $5,300 and this is due, gardens commission chairman Daniel Senik said today to "subsidizing," of community services.

"You can't measure these services in dollars and cents," said Mr. Senik. "The gardens was put up to serve the people of the town and that's the service we're providing."

The service clubs which sponsor the Minor Hockey teams, pay the commission $6 an hour for ice time. The regular charge is $12 an hour. The Trenton Figure Skating Club is also given the ice at half rental. "In other words," said Mr. Senik, "the commission lost $6 an hour last year on these two operations.

The commission, meeting last night, authorized the construction of an outdoor rink area adjacent to the gardens, subject to an agreement being drawn up by the town solicitor in which it will be agreed that the Trenton Lions Midget hockey team have sufficient funds on hand to complete each phase of construction before the next phase is started. Each phase must be completed and paid for and have been approved by the town of Trenton (with no obligation to the town either during or on the completion of construction) before another phase is begun. Three phases are proposed, the building of additional dressing rooms, the installation of an additional compressor and the construction of three completed in that order. The agreement must be signed by the Lions Midget Club executive and the gardens commission. The outdoor rink was first proposed by Jack Bonn, and he has been given the promised moral and financial support of the Lions' Midget club.

NHL Oldtimers To Play RCAF

TRENTON — National Hockey League Oldtimers will play the RCAF Oldtimers in an exhibition game at the Trenton Community Gardens, Wednesday night, Jan. 29. The main event will start at 8 p.m. From 7 p.m. to 8 p.m., the Rotary Squirts will demonstrate their hockey ability. The evening is being sponsored by the Trenton Rotary Club.

General arrangements are being made by Rotarian Daniel Senik, who is also chairman of the Community Gardens Board. John Trigg is in charge of tickets and posters. Willy Reid will supervise the cashiers and Mrs. Max Gallagher the ticket takers and Ian Darling in charge of advertising and program.

IN MEMORIAM

WATERHOUSE — In loving memory of my dear husband Wilbur Waterhouse, who passed away January 14th, 1961.

Love's memory is a treasure that no one can steal.

For memories are with me only one,
And I call its own,
—Always remembered by his wife
Mary Waterhouse.

RICE — In loving memory of Morley Rice, who passed away January 14th, 1962.

God knew that he was tired,
And the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed his weary eyelids,
And whispered, "Rest awhile."
—Never remembered by wife, children and grandchildren.

CARDS OF THANKS

We, the family of the late Mr. and Mrs. Orville Cronk, wish to express our sincere thanks to all who called, sent cards, gifts and flowers or helped in any way at the time of the passing of each of our parents, taking place only a few days apart. To all of these we are indeed deeply indebted.

—Irene, James and Reginald Regina.

We would like to convey our heartfelt thanks to all our friends, kind neighbors and relatives, for the beautiful floral tributes, cards, letters and many acts of kindness extended to us during our recent bereavement in the sudden passing of a beloved wife and mother, Special thanks to Dr. McMullen, Rev. Rowe, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Gallagher, Rowe Funeral Home.

—Mrs. R. O. Moran and family.

Former PUC Worker Sues For $17,102

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — A former Peterborough Public Utilities Commission employee who was dismissed after 19 years on the job is suing the commission for $17,102 for wrongful dismissal, arrears of salary, loss of annuity and compensation in lieu of vacation.

Arthur Francis Crossman said in county court Monday he was told it was none of his business when he reported theft of PUC equipment. Graduate of a course in detective work, Mr. Crossman said he believed some equipment was being stolen and one employee was selling watchbands he believed were also stolen.

He said, under examination by Commission Counsel Alex Alliott, he had not set himself up as the chief of police of the PUC.

The commission maintained Mr. Crossman was dismissed for conduct which caused friction among his fellow employees to the injury of his employers' interests."

Unemployed for 13 months after his dismissal, Mr. Crossman said he now was working for the department of transport.

The case continues today.

PIPE ORGAN IN HOME — S. Alec Gordon, organist at Bridge Street United Church for more than quarter of a century, is seen at keyboard of new pipe organ in his home. Inset shows organ cabinet containing 243 pipes in end of living room.

Pipe Organ Installed In Home of Church Organist

A lifetime dream for S. Alec Gordon, organist at Bridge St. United Church for more than a quarter of a century, has been realized this winter.

Already the owner of an electronic organ, a piano, as well as a hi-fi, Mr. Gordon a month ago had a new pipe organ installed in his home at 39 Burton St.

"I have been dreaming about a pipe organ of my own nearly all my life," said Mr. Gordon, as he ran over the keys of his new organ. "I am going to have a lot of fun with it."

The new organ, custom built by Cassavant at St. Hyacinthe, in Quebec, has 243 pipes but with special "in-built" combinations has a range close to that of a large church organ with up to 2,000 pipes.

ONLY ONE IN AREA

As far as Mr. Gordon knows his is the only actual pipe organ in the Central Ontario area installed in a private home.

There are lots of home electronic organs (Mr. Gordon has one himself), but few homes today have the room for even a junior sized pipe organ.

The voice box with its 243 pipes sits in one end of the Gordon living room in space formerly occupied by a kitchen pantry, the cabinet containing the pipes, taking up an eight by four foot floor area. Both the organ and the voice cabinet are built of light grained oak and would enhance any living room—providing the room had the size.

Modern electronic organs have fine tones but in the opinion of Mr. Gordon, who has lived with organ for most of his life, they cannot compare with the actual pipe organ.

Although small in size compared with a large church organ, Mr. Gordon's instrument has identical controls and keyboards with that at Bridge Street Church.

"I'll be able to practise my Sunday church music right in my own home," he says.

The new Gordon organ has created big excitement among the music minded residents of the city, but their enthusiasm naturally is far unmatched by that of the owner.

For Mr. Gordon the organ is a lifetime dream come true. His enthusiasm is summed up in his words: "I am tickled with it."

Thomas Bata Named University Governor

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—The election of three new members to the eight-man board of governors of Trent University was announced today by Board Chairman Charles Fraser.

They are:

Thomas J. Bata, chief executive officer of the Bata shoe organization; John J. Robinette, QC, a distinguished member of the Ontario bar and a past treasurer of the Law Society of Upper Canada and Hugh F. Waddell, who has a long record of service to Peterborough and resigned last month from the Peterborough Police Commission.

Export Forum Will Be Held at Peterborough

PETERBOROUGH—The first regional industrial and export forum of 1964 will be held here Wednesday.

Conducted jointly by the Ontario Department of Economics and Development and the Lake Ontario Development Association, the forum is aimed at increasing exports by district manufacturers.

Chairman of the one-day session will be David M. Ferguson, senior consultant of the marketing division of Woods, Gordon and Company, Toronto.

One panel discussion will deal with "Additional Business in the Export Field" with J. J. Graham, chief of the Ontario government's marketing division; Angus Livingston, president of Glosta Manufacturing Company Limited, Port Hope, and Bruce L. Payne, vice president of Outboard Marine Corporation of Canada Limited, Peterborough.

The second panel discussion will deal with "Additional Business by License and Contract Arrangement", with H. R. Clark, industrial development officer of the Department's Trade and Industry Branch; G. G. Petterson, manager of product planning, Westelcos Canada Limited, and C. F. McKinnon, manager of marketing for De Laval Company Limited, Peterborough.

At the dinner session a guest speaker will be Dr. A. D. Misener, director of industrial research services with the Ontario Research Foundation.

$27,600 Cost of Track Removal With $7,000 Back in Salvage

The city's share of the cost of removing the railway tracks from Pinnacle Street will be $36,700, of which approximately $7,000 is expected to come back through salvage.

At yesterday's special meeting of council, the city fathers formally accepted the $36,700 figure as its share of the cost of track removal, but it is not expected that the work will be done this year.

The reason is that it is not expected the money for re-paving of Pinnacle Street will be available for the capital works project until 1965.

Total estimated cost of the Pinnacle Street project, including track removal and re-paving is given as $145,000.

Belleville city council has been working for the removal of the downtown Pinnacle St. tracks for several years with former Mayor A. M. Hall taking a leading role in negotiations with the railway.

Completion of the negotiations was announced by then Mayor Haig prior to the end of 1963.

Youth Ordered To Pay $16 Witness Fees

A 20-year-old youth was ordered to pay $16 in witness fees or have an assault charge promptly heard against him in magistrate's court today.

Carl Ronson Haines charged with kicking another youth had his case set for today before Magistrate T. Y. Wills. This morning, however, Haines said his father was still "making arrangements" and sought another remand.

Crown Attorney John Pringle said four witnesses already had been called. Custom ary witness fee is $4.

Obviously annoyed, the magistrate told Haines the case had been set for today.

"The case is going to be heard unless you pay the $16 in 30 minutes or half-an-hour," he snapped.

Jagan Urges Caribbean Leaders to Take Firm Stand

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP)—British Guiana's Premier Cheddi Jagan Monday urged Caribbean Commonwealth leaders to take a stand against "neocolonialism and imperialists" who, he said, are working against real democracy in the world.

Jagan also took an indirect swipe at the U.S. refusal to give his aid plane clearance. He spoke at the opening session of the annual conference of Commonwealth Caribbean countries.

His words made it clear that he intends to make the independence of his country one of the major issues at the week-long conference here which brought together the premiers of four countries—Alexander Bustamante of Jamaica, Eric Williams of Trinidad and Tobago, Errol Barrow of Barbados and Jagan.

With his American wife, Home Affairs Minister Janet Jgan, at his side, the British Guiana premier accused world statesmen of insincerity, saying the foreign aid they offer is tied with political, military and economic strings.

He said:

"We must tell those who proclaim the necessity for reforms that change cannot come about under these imperialist and colonialist conditions; that if they are really interested in the world peace and the abolition of hunger they must not seek by force and by threats to those who genuinely are working for the betterment of the masses."

CLAIMS PRESSURE

Jagan has claimed that both British and United States interests are pressing for his removal.

Bustamante and Barrow lined their remarks at the opening meeting to brief expressions of welcome and hopes for the success of the conference.

Williams said the conference was called in recognition by the two countries of an urgent need to present as far as possible a united front of the Commonwealth Caribbean countries to increasing world pressures.

The terrorist campaign in Venezuela and "nationalist democratizations" in Panama added, emphasized Latin America's instability, while the Cuban situation was "crying more than ever for some rational rapprochement that will abate, if not eliminate, cold war tensions in the Western Hemisphere."

He also mentioned "increasing conflict of interests" which he said poses a challenge to the effectiveness of the Organization of American States.

Meeting privately, the premiers will go over a 13-item agenda on which the top items include the future of the West Indies' sugar industry, review of the foreign policies of the territories, and the attitude of the United Kingdom government to the West Indian in the United Kingdom.

Construction Roundup

BLACK DIAMOND ADDITION

Steel is partly up at the addition to the Black Diamond plant, but cold weather is slowing the job. Foreman Archie Miron of Welland, (Standard Steel Construction Co.), has five men on the job now, two of them local. He hopes to hire three more in the next few days. A total of 60 tons of structural steel, 10-tons of joists in the job. About half done now. It might be finished some time next week if better weather comes along.

Job superintendent Slim Yuzwak has stopped all other work until the steel is finished. He plans to cover the job with transparent plastic when the steel is finished.

MAURICE ROLLINS CONSTRUCTION

Four houses are closed in now and four footings will be ready for blocking when the next thaw comes, at the Bay Ridges development, according to John Rollins. The houses are all custom jobs. Total of Maurice Rollins jobs in the city is about 30 houses in progress — all planned for completion before the end of March.

CITY SEWER JOB

The city is running 15-inch storm sewers up Gordon St. now, from a point just north of Harriet St. to Earl. Then a 12-inch line goes along Earl to cut into the old North Front St. line and take some of the load off the lower end of the old line. A total of about 480 feet of 15-inch and 330 feet of 12-inch. Art Babcock, city sewer foreman is supervising the job, which might be done in a month if things go well.

NEW LIBRARY

Work is temporarily stopped on the new library building at Farley and Victoria, but will restart as soon as the weather permits. Sheathing is on the framework, storm doors and glazing has been delivered to the site. There's a hole punched through one of the panels of the sheathing — apparently by vandals.

HAGGARTY TRANSPORT

Footings are in for the new Haggarty Transport building, near 401 and the Wallbridge Road, but the building won't be erected for a while. It will be a pre-fab and the supplier doesn't want to erect anything until the weather warms up a bit. That might mean about March.

The building will be a terminal for the combined forces of Haggarty Transport, Lafferty Transport and Lafferty-Smith, all under Haggarty ownership now and due to be amalgamated under the name of Lafferty-Smith Express Lines. The Belleville city name will probably be retained for some construction work, but the new name will handle all the firm's main line trucking between Belleville and Toronto and throughout Ontario, according to John Rollins. For the time being, operations are being carried out from the Lafferty terminal in Trenton and the Lafferty-Smith property in Belleville. Haggarty's Belleville terminal is closed down.

EDGAR BELL

Edgar Bell poured footings yesterday morning, for the new shop-and-office building he's putting up for himself on Harriet St. Five yards poured, shielded from the wind with buildings on both sides and a foot of straw over the top. Calcium Chloride in the mix. Front end of the building will be an office, back end will be a shop to make cupboards, doorframes and so on, for Bell's own building jobs. Total size of the building is 32 by 46 feet.

ELLIOTT MOTORS

Prestressed concrete is all in place at Elliott Motors job, according to Roy Brooks, Roofing material is going on now. About one-an-a-half days' work left on the structural up. Roy is also hoping for some steel window frames to arrive soon. Basement under the building under the showroom area, is closed in, temporarily heated and almost finished now. Pipions are going for furnace room, parts department etc. Stairways are in, concreting the various levels of the structure. With luck, Roy still thinks he might have it closed in by the end of next week.

CARD PURCHASES

In some British supermarkets the shopper picks up punched cards, instead of the actual item on display, and her shopping list is filled at the cash register by an automatic copy to the packaging system.

Woman Given 14 Days for Drunk Driving

A Belleville woman, involved in a three-car accident, was jailed for 14 days for drunk driving charges.

Jessie May Maracle told Magistrate T. Y. Wills she had a job looking after two small children, whose mother had died.

"There is no one to look after them really," she said.

"You should have thought of that when you were driving the car," commented the magistrate.

Police testified the accident occurred on Front Street where the Maracle automobile rammed a parked car into a third vehicle.

"Anything might have happened," he commented.

Says Indians Need Food Instead of Pity

TORONTO (CP) — Northern Ontario's starving Indians need food, not condolences from dignitaries, Ojibway Indian Peter Jackson, a Toronto clothier, said Monday.

He was commenting in a statement on a report from Kelso Roberts, minister of forests minister, that Mr. Roberts was shocked by the poverty of the Indians during a visit to the James Bay area.

"The government sends a cabinet minister each year to get shocked but never does anything about the conditions that shock him," said Mr. Jackson.

He suggested the government should organize a "peace corps" to live in the reserves and teach Indians to live properly and make use of existing facilities.

Should Foreigners Be Barred?

The Pearson Government is considering the possibility of enacting legislation which would prevent Canadian newspapers being controlled by foreigners. Would such legislation be wise?

Many Canadian publishers appear to have no difficulty making up their minds about this. The trouble is that their views are opposed. Roy Thomson, for instance, is convinced such a policy would be deplorable. "It's a damn lot of nonsense" says Beaverbrook portege Michael Wardell of the Fredericton Gleaner. Max Bell of the Bell-Sifton chain says "I hate to see more government control of anything." The Toronto Telegram is also opposed, but the Toronto Star approves. So does John McConnell of the Montreal Star. The Southam chain favors the proposed curbs.

Which side is right?

First, we might profit from a glance at the antagonists. Roy Thomson's view, we suggest, is suspect; he has vested interests. The new baron, while he was a Canadian, bought newspapers in other lands. Consequently, with a law against foreign ownership of Canadian papers, these countries might consider it a tip to pass a law against Canadian ownership of papers in their territory. Moreover, now that he is a baron and a British citizen, Thomson might conceivably be barred from owning papers in his native Canada. Michael Wardell of the Gleaner is similarly situated; he worked for a Canadian who owned English papers and is himself now an Englishman owning a Canadian paper.

The Toronto Telegram and the Toronto Star are on opposite sides of the argument. "Naturally," some may say, "politics." But the Telegram, which has been for within recent months, given evidence of a considerable degree of political independence and even in the days when politics alone apparently determined the majority of their opinions an issue like this directly affecting their vital interests might be expected to shake them loose from their natural allegiance. So we suggest that their views may be considered to be based on principle.

Speaking of principles, Max Bell of the Calgary Albertan voices one we favor, "I hate to see more government control of anything." But, marching alongside of that is an equal dislike of seeing any more foreign control of things Canadian.

Is there any pressing necessity for such a law? The facts suggest a prompt answer in the negative. There has been no big U.S. invasion of the newspaper business in Canada. A much bigger danger than foreign control would appear to be monopoly control, such as that threatened by the ever-growing Thomson chain. It is true that Thomson papers let the local publishers decide editorial policy. But what guarantee is there that a successor would be as wise? The independent publisher is no more likely to be right than the head of a chain of newspapers—perhaps less so—but when he voices an incorrect opinion error is more localized, as would be an error embraced by the publisher of a chain of newspapers which enforced a uniform editorial policy. Moreover, the bigger the chain, the less likely there would be a Canadian purchaser if it were ever put up for sale.

Potentially dangerous though Canadian owned chains may be, there are sound reasons why legislation forbidding them should not be considered. Foreign control does not seem to be a present danger. The government's intentions may be good but generally it is best not to cross bridges until one comes to them.

To this the reply may be that, if the road to hell is paved with good intentions, it is maintained and repaired by people who let generalities decide policies, rather than dealing with each specific problem.

Sometimes to let sleeping dogs lie is, to toss a few more metaphors into the mixmaster, merely to postpone the day of reckoning when we will be weighed in the balance and found wanting.

Legislating against foreign control would be relatively simple today, much more difficult after foreign capital had acquired a number of influential papers.

What should the government do?

To expose one's face to a camera may be in fact to lose all secrets, to give away far more than one ever intended, yet something compels the sitter willingly into the web. I do not think it is altogether or always vanity, maybe more deep and painful curiosity, which can never be satisfied, to see oneself, however briefly and shockingly, through someone else's eyes.—Photographer Sirioi Hugh-Jones.

A Time of Opportunity

Montreal Gazette

"Who knows where the love of Christ may not lead us?"

With these words Pope Paul VI set out on his visit to the Holy Land. His journey was a break with the precedents of nearly 2,000 years. It meant that the Bridge himself had become a pilgrim. And a pilgrim is one who goes in search. For him, this is a search for the greatest blessing of all — a world that may be healed, be unity and dwell in the bonds of peace.

A visit to the Holy Land is dramatic, and was intended to be so. But the drama comes not simply from doing what is novel; the drama, far more deeply, lies in this act of going out to the world.

Every age has its own interpretation of the unchanging truth, its own leadings of the spirit. There are contrasts, always in differences of emphasis, with differing needs. This pilgrimage is made possible to men in a new way, and partly because a new way is opening. "We are living" says Pope Paul, "in a time of special opportunity, when ancient quarrels are being resolved and old wounds healed."

Such a pilgrimage as this would most certainly have the blessing of Pope John, XXIII. For Pope Paul is clearly his rightful successor. He has succeeded not only to the office but to the spirit.

It is easy to imagine that Pope John would have set out on such a journey, but his years and strength and time been his. Even as it was, though coming to the Papacy in his aged and even a dying man, he was the first of the Popes, in the fuller sense, to step out of the "Prisoner of the Vatican." He moved out into the city, and journeyed even to Milan and to Italy to visit the shrines of Loreto and Assisi. He expressed the hope that one day he might travel abroad.

In these gestures he was reaching out to all mankind. And there was in the brief years of his Papacy the world felt his grace in its heart and blessed his name.

• • •

In this farther pilgrimage his successor is taking up the work that age and death prevented Pope John from doing. As Pope Paul asked of himself and others, in paying tribute to his predecessor: "Can we deviate from the path which he blazed with such boldness to religious history in the making, the path of the universality of the Catholic faith? That of ecumenicalism? Pope John he personified and so expressed this essential character of the Catholic Church in such a way that he released its latent energies."

In these last few days Pope Paul has made his way along the paths of sacred history, visiting the palace where jesting Pilate asked "What is truth?" and would not wash for an answer, down the Via Dolorosa, to the shrines, and the altars and the places made holy by the Prayers of centuries.

He has journeyed in the land of the Arabs, the enemies of old who crossed swords with Christendom in the fury of the Crusades. He has journeyed in the land of the Jews, for centuries the victims of unjust prejudice. And on the shores of Olivet, he has met the Patriarch of Constantinople, the leader of the Orthodox Church, that has been separated from Rome by a thousand years of schism.

• • •

Such a journey at such a time has the most profound of purposes: to move onward on the whole vast process of reconciliation.

The world may seem today as bewildered and torn as it has never been, yet there is activity and puzzled by power, deep in its doubts and determined in its errors. And yet there is hope after all, as there has never been before, a yearning after peace, a readiness to respond to the generosities of understanding, a weariness with old errors, an awareness of contemporary problems in a world being drawn together by triumphs over distance.

The troubles of the world are as they have ever been; it is the unbedding of its hopes that is the limits of the past, that is new. It is at such a time that Pope Paul has begun his journey, starting, as he goes, "we undertake our task with reserved hope, for a spirit of understanding is abroad."

It is in this spirit that he made his pilgrimage in the Holy Land, where the hope was born.

Jean Valjean Hits Jackpot

Toronto Globe and Mail

Les Miserables has become less miserable. The classic novel of Victor Hugo has been published in digest form with a happy ending and French traditionalists are extremely unhappy about it. They have gone to the courts to demand that the whole edition be confiscated.

In the new, condensed version the hero Jean Valjean, does not die- neither does his relentless policeman-pursuer, Javert, commit suicide. Those horrifying descriptions of the sewers of Paris are omitted.

One is reminded of Ilia, the heroine of Jules Dassin's Never on Sunday, who insisted on own happy endings in the Greek tragedies. As Ilia interpreted it, Medea did not kill her children, she merely hid them to tease her husband. Medea was a fine lad, exceptionally good to his mother. And in the end, "they all went to the seashore!"

The notion might suit a world which puts increasing stock in happiness. A new version of Moby Dick might be prepared in which Captain Ahab is not carried to his death by the white whale; rather does the Pequod go down with all hands save one. Rather, Ahab establishes a Walt Disney type of relationship with the whale, tows him back to New Bedford, and sets him up in a highly profitable aquarium.

In the new version of Romeo and Juliet, he is a member of Lesslie Council, while she sits on the Toronto one. Clearly, any sort of amalgamation is impossible. But all is resolved when they are both beaten in the December elections, get married, and set up house in Chinguacousy Township.

As for the Brothers Karamazov, they patch up their differences, emigrate to Hollywood, and enter TV. The new version of the Dostoievsky novel jells- the story behind their Sunday evening smash hit, The Sereniki Hillbillies.

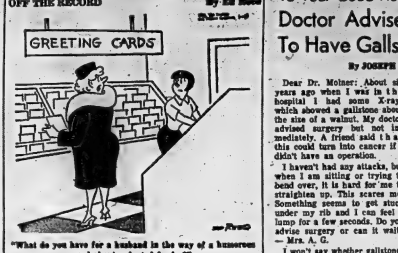
Snow-Blower Status Sign

Welland Tribune

Much has been made in recent days of the plight of Southern communities in the United States visited by rare, heavy snowfalls and, without equipment to battle the white stuff, being forced to wait the return of normal temperatures and wash it away.

New York City has also had problems in keeping thoroughfares open for traffic in the metropolitan area, but in the suburbs the snow has actually been welcomed by a great new horde of owners of the newest labor-saver, the powered snowblower.



These rather fearful-looking contraptions their blades belts and conveyers suggested that to accidentally tumble into the works is an invitation to be transformed into hamburger meat — nevertheless clear the snow in half the time and with half the effort required in the shovelling process.

They've become almost a status symbol in the New York suburbs and their particularly appealing to those advanced beyond middle age because of the heart of heart strain in ordinary snow shovelling.

In some cases where the cost of the devices presents a formidable problem, six, seven and eight neighbors have pooled resources to purchase a single machine and then operate on a schedule for running the blower.

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

30 YEARS AGO

January 14th, 1914.

It has been announced to the people of Tweed that a new factory for the processing of mica was to be established there, and the ground floor of the I.O.O.F. community hall had been leased for the site. If present plans mature, it is anticipated that one hundred people will be employed. The Marston Minerals Limited of Toronto is the name of the firm. The Muscovite mica deposit is located at the north end of Mazinaw Lake with an unlimited amount in sight. This type of mica is in very great demand at the present time in the United States and will be in great demand after the war also in both Canada and other countries. Very little machinery will be used as it will nearly be all hand work by women and girls.

Post-war rehabilitation planning, education, health and job opportunities for young men and women, were the topics of discussion at the two-day Ontario Farm Conference held over the weekend, it is reported by Miss Marion Dennis, one of the three delegate representatives of Belleville attending the convention. Representing the district young people's union at the conference were Miss Dunkels and Miss Alberta Vermilyea, while representing the Bay of Quinte Conference was Mr. Don Williams of this city.

A meeting of the Property Owners' Association will be held tomorrow evening in the city hall. Matters of interest to owners of property will be discussed and officers elected for the ensuing year.

The Rev. R. S. Laidlaw of Knox Church, Winnipeg, formerly minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here, has been invited to become pastor of High Park Presbyterian Church in Toronto. The stipend offered is $5,000 a year.

Mr. S. J. Fisher has returned home from Marmora where he spent several days on business.

A party of young people from Hathaway Street Methodist Church enjoyed a sleigh drive to Trenton last evening and spent a jolly time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison.

50 YEARS AGO

January 14th, 1914.

The Schuster Block at the corner of Bridge and Pinnacle Streets, was destroyed by fire last evening; the fire was discovered about 7.30 o'clock. As a result of the fire the following business places were destroyed: Belleville Conveyancing office; Canadian Northern Ticket and Express office; Canadian Pacific Telegraph Office; Sam Domenico's fruit store; Canadian Pacific Railway Grill and Engineers' quarters on first floor; also the following lodge rooms; Mizpah lodge, No. 127, I.O.O.F.; Quinte Encampment, No. 19, I.O.O.F., and Quintena Lodge, Daughter of Rebekah. The cause of the fire is as yet unknown. The street offices were not burned but were ruined with the deluge of water which from hoses deep upon the floors. The desks and papers were rescued from the Schuster office, the C.N.R. ticket office and the C.P.R. telegraph office. The telegraph instruments were saved early during the fire. Nothing remains of the beautiful Mizpah lodge room, the regalia and robes of the I.O.O.F. and brand new Rebekah garments. The latter was not insured and the loss is keen indeed. An effort was made to rescue the time honored charters of Mizpah Lodge and Quinteana Rebekah Encampment and the recent charter of Quinteana Lodge but the smoke was found impenetrable. The Mizpah and Quinte Encampment regalia was valued at about $2,000. The walls of the building are strong and unshaken. A new building will be erected as soon as possible.

'Brain Drain' Irks Britain

Hamilton Spectator

Following a custom established in the last several years, a selection board representing the British civil service and government - owned bodies will interview British scientists taking fellowships at Canadian universities.

The object is not to argue the scientists out of Canada, but to coax all they should wish to do so, but rather to ease their way home and find a job.

Keeping top brain power at home is more of a problem in Britain than it is in Canada. In spite of a steady intake of scientists from the Commonwealth and elsewhere in the world Britain still has a net loss every year.

In medicine the loss has been severe. A survey by the British Medical Journal estimated that 1,071 doctors emigrated to Canada in the brain which would account for the aphasia.

• • •

Higher pay is usually the reason given for professional emigration. We hear it often enough to explain the exodus of scientists and engineers from Canada to the United States. This may be one of the factors, but it would be degrading to scientists to make it the chief.

More important is opportunity. There have been many complaints, notably from the British Society, that British scientists get the feeling that original research is not encouraged and that in some industries it is not given the status it deserves in a modern country.

The same complaint is heard often enough in Canada. What the Royal Society discovered, was this: far too many British scientists went abroad to take doctorates and far too few of them decided to return home.

A survey made in Ottawa some time ago confirmed this in the opposite direction. Among doctors of science and philosophy who had obtained their degrees here there was quite a number who decided to stay. In these circumstances the anxiety of the British government to smooth the path homeward is understandable.

Doctor Advises Operation To Have Gallstone Removed

By JOSEPH C. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: About six years ago when I was in the hospital I had some X-rays which showed a gallstone about the size of a walnut. My doctor advised surgery but not immediately. A friend said that this could turn into cancer if I didn't have an operation.

I haven't had any attacks, but when I am sitting or trying to bend over, it is hard for me to straighten up. This scares me. Something seems to get stuck under my rib and I can feel a lump for a few seconds. Do you advise surgery or can it wait? — Mrs. A. G.

I won't say whether gallstones "turn into cancer," or cause cancer, but we do know that cancer of the gall bladder is more frequent among patients who have had gallstones which have been allowed to remain. This includes the "silent" gallstones, or stones which do not cause any discomfort to the patient.

Therefore, to my mind, the answer is obvious: If you know you have a stone, don't just let it stay there unless there is some good reason otherwise for doing so.

You say that your walnut-sized stone was discovered when you were in the hospital and had X-rays. I presume this means that you were hospitalized for some other ailment, and the stone was discovered incidentally.

Your doctor "advised surgery" but not immediately." Evidently he was primarily concerned with whatever caused you to be in the hospital. That makes good sense. He wanted that — what ever else it was — cleared up first.

But when he said the gallstones should be removed, I don't think he meant that you should wait six years. Do you?

Whether your present discomfort is from the gallstone (this is possible) or from some muscular or other disorder (also possible) I can't say without having the results of some other tests and observations. Maybe if couldn't tell then. It's not always easy to know just what causes which symptoms.

But if I had a walnut-sized stone in my gall bladder, I'd have it out.

Yes, as a physician I'd be reluctant to operate for a newly-discovered gallstone in a person aged, say, 75, on the assumption that if it was causing no trouble whatever you'd be better off if there wouldn't be much chance that it would have time to incite trouble.

But in the 40-to-60-age bracket, I would go ahead and have surgery. Why wait?

Believe me, even without cancer, an acute gall bladder attack can be a mighty painful experience.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Please write about aphasia. Can it be detected by brain-wave tests? — Mrs. J. M.

Aphasia is the inability either to understand or to speak words. It implies either disease or injury to the part of the brain which governs speech, usually the left side.

Generally speaking, a brain-wave test wouldn't show that a person had aphasia. You would not need a test to show that! But if the aphasia existed, a brain-wave test would, or might, disclose a tumor or other lesion in the brain which would account for the aphasia.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 23, very overweight, have low thyroid, and have not menstruated for over a year. I have been to two doctors. They told me my weight was probably the cause. What is your opinion? — M. S.

Both factors, overweight and low thyroid activity, are known to affect menstruation. Instead of going to two doctors and doubting what they like told you, why don't you go to just one, and do something about the trouble? The doctor can treat you for the thyroid condition which, in turn, may make it easier for you to lose weight, which is your part of the job.

There Are Two Main Reasons' Causing War

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

There are two main reasons for war: one is external, and the other is internal. One is in the world, the other is in the mind.

The external reason is "gain," of one sort or another — land, minerals, property, slaves, gold, and all the familiar fruits of conquest.

The internal reason is "fear" of one sort or another — fear of being attacked, of being out-stripped or outdone, of being dishonored, or simply the animal fear of the stranger, the different, the unfamiliar.

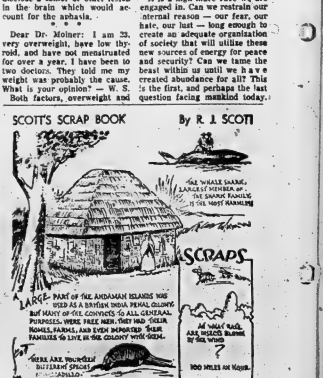
When these external and internal reasons converge — as they do with periodic regularity in human history — a war is inevitably set off. They represent an irresistible combination of explosive factors.

All this has changed today, but we still do not know it. The external reason is fast disappearing from the world's conscience as science has begun to conquer the secret of energy.

In the past, the national drive for slaves, for coal, for oil, for arable land, has been the desire for increased energy which can then be translated into wealth. It required an immense amount of hard work to attain and harness this energy effectively.

We are now on the threshold of liberating thermonuclear energy. By discovering the principle of magnetic heat insulation that within our lifetime the thermonuclear generators of electricity could be in global use.

What this means, of course, is that the material wealth of everybody everywhere could be raised to a reasonable level. Poverty would no longer be "under - developed" countries; the vast inequities of wealth and poverty in many parts of the world would be equalized — not in the communist way of taking away from the rich, but by giving to the poor from this unprecedented surplus of thermonuclear energy.



This is not a dream. It is not a Utopian mirage. The very technological advances that make the next war so horribly frightening and so incredibly profitable are valid for removing the material causes of war.

What this is the supreme irony of our time: we are so close to man's perennial hope of well-being, and are never before so close to extinction.

It is a nightmare race we are engaged in, the race of mind over internal reason — our fear, our hate, our lust — long enough to create an adequate organization of society that will utilize these new sources of energy for peace and security! Can we tame the beast within us until we have created abundance for all? This is the first, and perhaps the last question facing mankind today.

Changes to Make Men Shake In Their Pants

MONTREAL (CP) — Rene Levesque, Quebec natural resources minister, says Quebec must be guaranteed something that we can feel as a national state for the French-Canadian people."

Mr. Levesque told a meeting of Rasal B'rith Monday night that changes are forthcoming in Canada that will make men, whether young or old, shake in their trousers."

Speaking in English, he said Confederation has been turned into a sort of disguised unitary government."

He criticized what he called federal participation in municipal affairs.

That is poisonous. Bad or good, that's our jurisdiction," the Liberal cabinet minister said.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market edged higher during active morning trading today, with a smattering of industrial stocks touching new highs.

Simpsons reached a high of 41¼ with a gain of 2¼ during heavy trading, but later declined to 40⅞, ahead ⅛. Also reaching a high was Union Gas, up ¼ to 23¼.

Papers were strong, with Great Lakes, MacMillan Bloedel and Consolidated Paper all gaining as much as ¼. Banks were also strong, Montreal and Royal both ahead ¼.

Speculative trading was light, with Candore down one cent to 38 cents, and Croinor off two cents to 39 cents. Consolidated Mogul dropped 20 cents to 94.75.

Among senior base metals, Hudson Bay, Noranda, Geco, Rio Algom and Denison all rose as much as ½.

Trading in oils was light. Canada Southern dropped five cents to $4.50 while Home Oil A rose ⅛.

On Index, The Exchange index gained .35 to 104.80, golds 1.65 to 122.15, base metals .07 to 60.65 and industrials .31 to 131.65. Western oils dropped .10 to 84.00. Volume was 855,000 shares at 11 a.m. compared with 1,313,000 shares at the same time Monday.

Industrial prices eased Monday as observers speculated on whether or not the stock market is headed into a consolidated period.

Tobacco stocks were not unduly affected by the U.S. government report linking smoking and cancer. Rothmans rose ¾ while Imperial Tobacco dipped ¼ on moderately active trading.

Elsewhere on the industrial board, Abitibi and Toronto-Dominion Bank both declined ⅛ and Harding Carpets and Bank of Montreal ⅛ each.

Dominion Textiles advanced ¼ and Bathurst Paper ½ among gainers.

Hudson Bay Mining rose ⅛ and Noranda and Labrador Mining ¼ each in senior base metals. Dome gained ¼ in senior golds.

The exchange index was down .22 to 131.34, industrials .30 to 140.45, western oils .08 to 84.10, golds and wnts .20 to 130.50 and base metals .60 to 60.63. Volume for the day was 4,128, shares compared with 4,734,000 Friday.

TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices were unchanged today.

Butter prices: Canada first grade: Ontario tenderable 51-52; non-tenderable 51½-52 off truck; in light trading; western 52½ (nominal).

Mrs. Donald I. MacKinnon Tells Rotary About Ballet

As the National Ballet Company will be visiting Belleville later this month, members of the Rotary Club were told about "ballet" at their luncheon meeting on Monday by Miss Dorothy Batcheller or as she is more commonly known locally, Mrs. Donald I. MacKinnon.

MRS. DON McKINNON

Mrs. MacKinnon is local director of the National Ballet Guild.

"When Canada was growing up," said Mrs. MacKinnon, "everyone was too busy digging their way out of the wilderness, trying to make a living, to be able to spend much time or money developing and enjoying artistic pursuits."

"However," she continued, "we have reached a spot in our development when we have one of the highest standards of living in the world and, with automation taking over and shorter work weeks, we are going to have more and more leisure time at our disposal.

"I don't mean to imply," Mrs. MacKinnon added, "that every one is going to rush out and buy tickets to symphony concerts and art exhibits or ballet performances — but I do feel that much of the suspicion with which many Canadians regard these things will die as they are more exposed to them.

URGES "OPEN MIND"

"Some people like progressive jazz—some prefer Bach—some like wrestling matches and others prefer drama," Mrs. MacKinnon stated, "but whatever our interest, it never hurts to have an open mind and let ourselves at least see what other sports and artistic endeavors are like."

Mrs. MacKinnon went on to tell her audience that "the Belleville Ballet Guild was formed in 1955 and set an example—as a newspaper release at the time said—to small cities and many large ones."

Continuing, Mrs. MacKinnon said "that the National Ballet Guild of Canada was established in 1951, the object being to develop a truly Canadian ballet company and give Canadian talent an opportunity to develop.

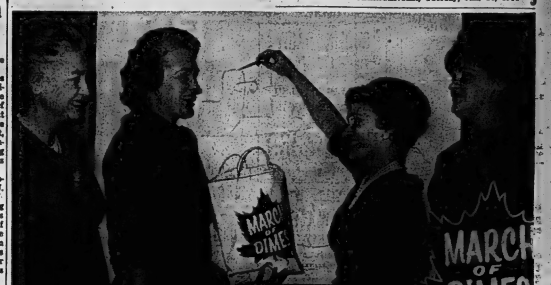
"Miss Celia Franka," she stated, "was then approached to come to Canada as artistic director and worked doggedly against many adversities to bring the company to its present peak where it is recognized internationally as one of the finest young companies performing today."

HERE JAN. 29

The National Ballet Company will be coming to Belleville on January 29th to B.C.I. and V.S.

In closing Mrs. MacKinnon said, "I am honored that you have accepted me as fill in and I might say that having spoken to Rotary Clubs in several cities, I have always found them a receptive audience."

Mrs. MacKinnon was pinch hitting for Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds who was unable to attend due to ill health. Gen. Simonds was to have spoken on "Why You Should Support the National Ballet."



"Let me say that ballet does not have to be taken so seriously," she added. "It can be fun and in the repetoire of the company are what might be called fun ballets. There are different forms of ballet, the traditional, modern, contemporary; there is something for every taste, the same as we have in music."

Mrs. MacKinnon was introduced by Rotarian Allan J. Sprague.

Dorothy Batcheller (using her professional name) is Home Economist Director of the Poultry Products Institute of Canada, and travels from coast to coast. She appears every Friday afternoon over CFTO-TV on "Our House," as guest home economist.

She is also past president of the Belleville Canadian Club, and former regional director of Eastern Ontario.

Rotarians G. Freeman and Dr. J. Marshall, for long years of service with Rotary, were given recognition on Monday on becoming Senior Active Members. Guests and visiting Rotarians were introduced by Rotarian Donald I. MacKinnon.

MAPPING COURSE of 1964 March of Dimes are Mrs. Joyce Badgley, Mrs. Elgie Meyers, Mrs. Eileen Geegan and Mrs. Jack Botley. They will help organize more than 500 Marching Mothers for February 3rd blitz for disabled.

Supreme Court Assizes Open With a Crime-Free Docket

White gloves, symbol of a crime-free court docket, were presented Ontario Supreme Court Justice D. P. J. Kelly at the assizes in Belleville yesterday.

It is a matter in which the citizens of this county of Hastings should be commended," stated His Lordship after the presentation was made by Crown Attorney John Pringle, "in the fact they have no serious crime before the court."

"I would like to see more counties in the province of Ontario with that record."

The current assizes, in fact, may be fairly brief — despite a lengthy docket prepared earlier. Only one of 15 civil actions appear slated for hearing before His Lordship, along with 14 divorce cases.

Many of the remaining civil actions have been deferred until the next assizes, some time in June.

Consequently, Justice Kelly yesterday dismissed the men and women called for petit jury duty.

Even the grand jury's task is light at these assizes. With no criminal indictments to investigate, the jurymen also found His Lordship did not require them to inspect county buildings.

WILL INSPECT JAIL

Noting there had been a grand jury inspection last September for all buildings overseen by the county, Justice Kelly suggested the present panel merely tour the county jail.

However, he added, they should scrutinize the report of the previous grand jury and ascertain if any recommendations made at that time had been fulfilled.

He also urged them to speak to all prisoners in the jail to find out complaints and why they are there.

His Lordship was formally welcomed on behalf of the County Bar Association by barrister Ronald Cass, who recalled the last time Justice Kelly presided in Belleville the present court house was being built and construction noises had halted proceedings.

"We couldn't hear ourselves in court. I had to stop them," His Lordship recollected, smiling.

500 Marching Mothers Needed For City Blitz

The March of Dimes — that tread measured in aid to the disabled — is underway.

Target date this year is February 3rd, when over 500 marching mothers are needed to canvass the city in a one-hour blitz.

Heading up the organization this year is Mrs. Joan Bennett who, as chief marching mother, hopes to recruit the services of the 500 volunteers needed.

Actually, each volunteer is asked to call on only 10 of her neighbors the night of February 3rd. Willing volunteers can contact Mrs. Bennett at WO 8-7551.

You may not be the 1 in 4 who will lose time from work because of illness or injury this year

But if you are off work for more than a month ...Canada Life's new Disability Income Plan can guarantee you a regular income until you're back at work

You've probably insured just about everything else: your life, your home, your car and even, perhaps, any possible medical expenses you might incur. But what about your income? Have you insured that?

If you're off work because of a serious illness or injury, where will the money come from to pay the mortgage or the rent, your installment obligations, or any additional expenses involved as a result of your disability?

Usually it has to come from savings or borrowing. But what happens when these sources are exhausted? Well, now, it can come from another source which won't upset your financial housekeeping in any way. A source that will keep you free from debt and worry no matter how long you're laid up. It can comes from Canada Life's new Disability Income Plan that can guarantee you a regular monthly income for as long as you are disabled.

These benefits, either built-in or "made-to-measure", make Canada Life's new Disability Income Plan the best of its kind:

- It cannot be cancelled by the Company and is guaranteed renewable to age 65.
- No medical is required upon renewal.
- Your personal premiums cannot be increased to offset your personal claims.
- Disability Income payments are not subject to income tax.
- And half payments may be continued for up to six months should you return to work part-time.

Isn't it just plain good sense to be certain that despite illness or injury, the money you need will be there when you want it? See your experienced Canada Life representative soon. He'll tailor a Disability Income Plan to meet your particular requirements.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

— PATRICIA LEWIS —

WHAT'S YOUR E. Q.?

The great say host or hostess' love to invite to a party is the type that is dependable, meaning he's pleasant agreeable and can be counted on to help keep the party on an easy-going basis. A "yes" answer to each of the following basic, but all-important, questions, will prove you possess this very desirable trait. To proceed, do you:

1. Answer an invitation promptly?
2. Arrive on time and dressed properly?
3. Mingle with other guests instead of standing off on the sidelines?
4. Avoid argumentative discussions and calm down anyone who tends to get steamed up?
5. Enter into the evening's entertainment with enthusiasm and good humor?
6. Share a conversation, not dominate it?
7. Encourage quiet guests to join the group?
8. Leave when it's time to go and before the hostess starts hinting?

River Valley Women's Institute Hears Talk on Mental Health

STIRLING—On January 8, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wilhelm opened their home at Rainbow Fishing Lodge along the Trent River for the January meeting of River Valley Women's Institute. There were nine members, 12 visitors and several children in attendance. Mrs. Vernon Harry welcomed the gathering.

The new brief case recently purchased for the secretary Mrs. Ernest Carr was displayed. Mrs. Percy MacMullen read a letter of thanks from Abenaki Leigh W.I. in Bristol, England for the crocheted book marks which they had received at Christmas. Mrs. Coombs wrote that this group celebrated their silver anniversary, it being 25 years since their organization in 1938. A supper for 80 members was enjoyed.

PUBLIC RELATIONS

For public relations Mrs. MacMullen called tribute to the memory of Mrs. Samuel Lloyd, first president of Hastings West District. She read many pages of thanks for the English gifts and the displays included a servette from the International Peace Gardens and an advertisement about Canada published in an English newspaper. Mrs. Kenneth Myers read an item on agriculture and Mrs. Jack Bush read some items on health. Mrs. Roy Tucker brought a message re A.C.W.W. and said the yearly parcels of knitting wool sent by C.W.A. members in Victoria, Australia to women in Papua and New Guinea have resulted in 24 adoptions of babies. Many of the high land districts of the territories it is freezing cold and the people have inadequate clothes and warm clothing. The women are anxious to learn to knit so Australia sent 50 lbs of wool and wool and materials, several machines and over 80 serving kits. At Telfer the women built a log Club House with native materials and installed a small kitchen stove. The gift of the wool officer has taught them the art of bread making.

The Brownie Fairy Friendship Jar was passed around the room, while the roll call gave various blue birds pertaining to sewing, mending or knitting.

GUEST MESSAGE

Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave a brief message on the theme "What Does Your Valley Stand For" and she invited the visitors to join with the group and pay their one dollar membership fee in April at the annual meeting.

When a Woman Joins River Valley W.I. she is automatically a member of Hastings West District, Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario with headquarters at 29 Spadina Road, Toronto, the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada with national offices at Ottawa and the Associated Countrywomen of the World in London, England. The F.W.I.O. have 1,443 branches in Ontario and a membership of almost 30,000 women. A.C.W.W. is the largest organization in the world with almost six million women representing many countries.

On February 19th, 1897 Adelaide Hoodless organized the first branch Institute at Stoney Creek in Wentworth County and now 67 years later Mrs. Keith Rand area vice chairman for Canada says "Institute women unite the world and what is at our door step and we must have the understanding of the needs of other people who live in underprivileged countries."

Among other things institutes are asked to support the North West Fund Unesco Coupon Plan No. 307 to help people in Canada. In the Arctic area there are tiny settlements with over 10,000 people and this expansion program in Northern Canada will benefit Indian, Eskimo and white women.

SCHOLARSHIP

The international scholarship is also in need of assistance in order to send trained people to help where help is needed. All the profits from the sale of Ethel Chapman's book "From a Roadside Window" will go to this fund. The need of these people in other countries is great and both religious and government leaders are agreed that this is the best approach and the "Good Samaritan" idea is just as necessary in this 20th century.

The program centred on health, was in charge of Mrs. George Heasman and following a sing-song of old favorites she introduced Mrs. Josephine Reddick Reg. N. of Belleville and her friend Miss Olive Pryce; also Mr. George Mossey.

Mrs. Reddick gave a most informative message dealing with the work of Canadian Mental Health Association which was founded in 1920 and is sponsored by the Government of National Health and Welfare. She outlined what has been accomplished to date and the many possibilities for research.

MENTAL HEALTH CLINIC

The clinic situated in Belleville covers the County of Hastings. A mental health program is needed because there are problem children, discontented workers in factory and office, unhappy wives, lonely and frustrated individuals, moody and irritable personalities, all these and many more are often signs of, often signs of, weaknesses in mental health.

The White Cross volunteers visit patients in Ontario hospitals and make sure that each one receives a gift at Christmas. The mental health clinics are staffed by a team of experts who have specialized training.

Several leaflets were displayed and this was followed by an informative film in charge of Mr. George Measer of Belleville. This part was given to show how thought as it showed the great waste of human life. It also pictured the work that is being done to improve the situation.

Mrs. Jack Bush voiced thanks to the Belleville group and the voluntary offering amounted to $8.85 which was given to this project. Interesting readings were given by Mrs. Roy Tucker and Mrs. Jack Bush.

Mrs. Ken Myers expressed thanks for the hospitality, program and lunch.

The members held a brief business meeting following the social hour. The correspondence included messages of thanks for cash donations from Mrs. Ed Kent. The course on "Copper Tooling" by Miss Alice Hamilton of Belleville "The Milky Way" will be held at Moira Secondary School on February 24th. The annual membership fee will be $1. due at the annual meeting of the branch in April 1964.

The Agricultural and Canadian Industries Institute are planning two card parties and a pot-luck supper for January.

SINGING INDIAN PRINCESS — Princess Alanis O'Bomsawin of the Abenaki Indian nation sings her people's folk songs and tells their tales in public performances to help preserve their native culture. The Abenakis formerly lived in the New England states before moving to the Odanac reserve near Sorel, Que.

Indian Princess Sings Favorite Songs of Tribe

MONTREAL (CP) — Princess Alanis O'Bomsawin of Trois-Rivieres, Que., is a Canadian Indian who sings folksongs and legends of her people, the Abenaki nation, to help preserve their culture.

Born on the Odanac Indian reserve near Sorel, 30 miles east of Montreal, she was named Ko-li-la-wato, meaning "she who gave us pleasure."

An Indian princess, she explained, is given an appropriate name by the tribe when she is a few years old.

Her father was chief of the Abenaki nation — a group of tribes that lived in the New England states before moving to the Odanac reserve.

Dressed in deerskin, Princess Alanis sings without accompaniment, or with only a tom-tom or rattle.

She left the Sorel reserve when she was eight to live in Trois-Rivieres, but returned often to see "the old people." There she learned her songs and became concerned about the loss of Indian cultures.

"The language is dying and it is very sad. But my songs and legends are ones that children can learn."

Princess Alanis represented Canada's Indians in a festival in New York in October, 1963.

"Before that I sang only for groups of friends and the old people," she says. She feels that education given children about the Indians in schools is largely to blame for the treatment and attitude towards Indians.

"It was hard to be an Indian when I was a child," she admitted. I don't like to think about it. It is difficult to realize how cruel other children can be."

She said there has been a marked growth of interest in Indian culture lately, but it is difficult to recapture what has been lost over the years.

"When the missionaries came here, they forbade us to sing our songs. They did not like our dances. Instead, they taught us hymns set to the popular French tunes of the times."

Her favorite song is the most modern in her collection. It was written 110 years ago, and gives advice to the Indians on the Odanac reserve.

Club Activities

B.B.C. CLUB

Warner and Phyllis McFaul entertained the B.B.C. Club at their home January 8th with an attendance of 26.

Mr. McFaul as president called on Don and Mildred Parks for the devotion. He also thanked all for the co-operation shown at the New Year's Eve party and a special thanks to Don Parks for the hi-fi and Leonard Root for the delivery of it. A bowling party was planned for January 22.

Mel and Muriel Wager were welcomed as new members of the club. Jean Root read a letter of thanks from the Salvation Army. The regular meeting is to be held at Earle and Marie Caughey's on February 5th with Clifford and Ruth Morris, Leon and Marguerite Caughey responsible for devotion, program and refreshments. Each member is to bring a salad.

Secretary Rena Cunningham conducted an interesting quiz and lunch was served.

Mid-Winter Oven Dinner

by Mary Moore

When I asked the butcher for a 1¼-lb.-thick steak from the red brand beef he did not bat an eyelash. He retired to the back cutting room and returned with what I asked for. The blade roasts were advertised at 89c per lb. and that was what gave me this idea for an economical steak dinner.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Creamed Chicken on Waffles (or Toast); Fresh Frozen Green Peas; Mixed Greens with Strips of Swiss Cheese; French Dressing; Citrus Fruit Cup; Christmas Cookies; Tea.

BRAISED BLADE STEAK (serves 4):

Cut a little piece of the fat from the edge of a 1¼-inch thick slice of blade red brand beef. Try it out in a large heavy frying pan. Dredge the steak on both sides with flour and sear until brown on both sides in fat in pan. Transfer steak to shallow baking dish. (Note: If desired this steak may be simmered, covered, on top of stove for 3 hours.) Sprinkle steak with ½ teaspoon salt and add 1-3 cup each chopped onion, celery and carrot and 1½ cups hot water to pan. Cover and bake at 250 deg. Fahr. for 3 hours.

If you want to use the oven to capacity bake 3 small washed acorn squashes at the same time and temperature. Split, remove pith and seeds, and add butter, salt and nutmeg to hollow section. Good green vegetables with this are Brussels sprouts, or broccoli or spinach.

For dessert serve

OLD-FASHIONED BAKED RICE PUDDING:

4 cups milk, ½ cup granulated sugar, ¼ cup raw white rice, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Combine all ingredients and pour into a buttered two-quart large baking dish. Bake uncovered, at 325 deg. Fahr. for 2½ hours, or until rice is tender, stirring frequently. (Note: Rice Pudding may be baked at same temperature in blade steak but milk should be preheated when added.) Chill until slightly thickened, and serve with or without cream. Serves 4 to 6. If you like this pudding becomes deliciously creamy. For a thicker pudding, the rice may be increased to 3 tablespoons. Also ½ cup of seedless raisins may be stirred in 1½ hours before pudding is done.

Joint Y. P. U. Lists Officers

The first meeting of the New Year, of Trinity - Halloway Y.P.U. was held on January 6th at Roxboro United Church Hall with a good attendance of young people from the three appointments of Roxboro, Marsh Hill and Halloway.

Rev. Robt. Reid presided at the piano for a lively sing-song. A brief worship service on the theme of commitment was conducted by Margaret Hulfman and Ann Emerson.

A film "The Uncommitted" was shown by Mr. Reid who also led in the discussion which followed. The film told the story of a young man who contrasted the Communist's devotion to his party with the Christian's half-hearted loyalty to Christ.

President Ray Stephens took charge of the business sessions. The planning committee were to meet January 7 to draw up a rotating schedule for meetings. Shirley Hulfman led the film and cost of a new record book were p·id. Members of the Y.P.U. Choir team discussed their need of a coach. Proceeds from the Christmas Eve service amounted to $23. Correspondence included a bulletin announcing Shower Shenanigans to be held at Peterborough on February 8th and 9th.

The secretary was asked to report meetings to the press.

Everyone enjoyed the period of recreation conducted by Ray Finkle.

NEW OFFICERS

Officers of the Y.P.U. for 1964 are: president, Ray Stephens; secretary, Mrs. Elsie Beth Finkle; secretary, Ann Emerson; and treasurer, Ted Arthurs.

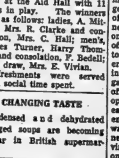
NEIGHBORS' AID

2nd THURLOW — A recent meeting of the Neighbors' Aid was held at the home of the president, Mrs. S. Ray, in charge and opened in the usual manner by Mrs. M. Mitchell president at the piano.

The president welcomed everyone present and expressed appreciation to Mrs. Mitchell for her hospitality. Minutes and correspondence were read by the secretary, Mrs. M. Dent. During the business it was decided to hold the next meeting at the home of Mrs. T. Weaver, and various committees for this meeting were appointed. An amount of $10 was donated for a recent tragedy fund. Past president Mrs. E. Parliament presented with a gift on behalf of the members, by the president.

Mrs. Harry Grills arranged and conducted the program which opened with a prayer. She introduced the Rev. T. Fleming and Mrs. Townsend at which time the latter gave a most interesting talk. An appropriate duet was then rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Townsend to conclude the program.

Refreshments were served by Mesdames M. Mitchell, T. Bellamy, C. Stratton and a social time was enjoyed.



EUCHRE PARTY

Mrs. J. Chumbley, Mrs. A. Thomson convenors of the Neighbors' Aid euchre last Friday night at the Aid Hall with 11 tables in play. The winners were as follows: ladies, Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. R. Clarke and consolation, Mrs. C. Hall; men's Charles Turner, Harry Thomson, and consolation, F. Bedell. Lucky draw, Mrs. E. Wirian.

Refreshments were served and a social time spent.

CANADIAN FASHION AND FAD'S TRIBUTES FOR 1963

This is the time to look back and appraise 1963. A special award should go to all those readers who took the time and trouble to answer the questionnaire which evaluated items during the past year. As you will recall, the questionnaire concerned the fashion budget and dealt with Canadian fashions. This took in wardrobe planning and the Canadian woman. The answers were thorough, thoughtful and revealing.

Generally, the Canadian manufacturer of fashions has made noticeably progress during the last year. He has speeded up the transmission of high-styled silhouettes into good middle-market Canadian adaptations. He has been daring in his purchases of new fabrics; he has been imaginative in his use of these fabrics. For the most part, he has extended the best out of the newest fashion trends, such as the sportive look. He is to be commended for restraining himself from the wilder flights of fancy, which might lead him to make up a line of sportive half-sizes.

DESERVES AWARD

Many stores, both large and small, deserve an award for their thorough store training programs. Such programs cost time, money, but they pay off in customer loyalty.

Further cheers should go to the fashion groups in both Toronto and Montreal for their devoted work in the name of Canadian fashion. There are many large companies who, through industrial associations, help to direct the course of Canadian fashion into channels of characteristic original.

All in all, it has been a good year for Canadian fashion.

Have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers care of this paper.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Layne, Trenton, announce the engagement of their daughter Jo Anne Gwendolyn to Allan Roscoe Russell of Consecon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Russell. The wedding will take place January 25th at 3 p.m. at the Church of Jesus Christ Latter Day Saints, Trenton.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. William Edmondson, 455 Donlands Avenue, Toronto 8, former residents of Belleville, will be 25 years married on Sunday, January 19. Mrs. Ray Dafoe will be spending the weekend with her parents.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. Max Fargey and daughter Karen have moved to Winnipeg where Mr. Fargey will be supervisor for a food company in Manitoba.

• • •

Mr. George Glover of Madoc is still a patient in the Belleville General Hospital following major surgery but is now progressing favorably.

Charles Rosen, Pianist, Gives Daring Program

By EUGENE LANG

Despite the bitter cold weather a large crowd was in attendance at the Belleville Collegiate Auditorium for the second of this season's Community Concert presentations to hear Charles Rosen, young American pianist. Having studied at the Juliard School of Music for five years he latterly studied with the renowned pianist Moritz Rosenthal and Mme. Rosenthal. He has to his credit many non-musical distinctions such as M.A., and Ph.D. Degrees in French Literature and is a Phi Beta Kappa "summa cum laude" graduate of Princeton University. He has been also awarded a Fulbright scholarship, which has been renewed for a second year, to continue research in Medieval French Musicology.

Mr. Rosen has made the first complete recording of the Debussy Etudes for piano, and in numerous appearances on discs he has recorded works by Stockhausen, Schoenberg, Havel, Debussy, Elliott Carter, Chopin, Schubert and Mozart.

In his initial recital here he played works by five giants of the keyboard—Bartok, Beethoven, Debussy, Chopin and Liszt. His was a daring program in three ways. First, for the incision of his Bartok "Improvisation on Hungarian Folk Tunes," a work so heterogeneously jarring that it was exasperated and exacerbated the polite but pained listeners on hearing it. Then in the opening of the Beethoven Sonata in A Major, Op. 101 which Bellows-Brenner program notes heard played before at local recitals. This lovely work demands many markings for one to fully appreciate its inherent beauties. Thirdly, his daring also of the profound applause for his attempting the tortuously difficult "Don Giovanni" Fantasy of Liszt — proof that decibel response can usually be measured in visual rather than aural terms.

Bela Bartok has written a great deal of piano music, but the one chosen for last evening's introductory selection, which was containing moments of varied complexities, seemed to be a crisis cross of Debussy, Stravinsky, Prokofieff and Schoenberg all thrown into one melting piano pot. An inspired performance of the piece was sharply etched by the soloist but the meaning of this work just did not seem through to the audience, not because of the interpreter, but because the material simply failed in its message.

SELDOM HEARD

The second offering was the seldom heard Sonata in A Major Op. 101 of Beethoven. This abstruse work which is considered one of the finest of all the 32 Beethoven sonatas. From the opening contemplative first movement through the Schumannesque brittle humor of the second and the perfect theject despair of the short slow movement this gorgeous piano work unfolded in a crescendo of grandeur and persuasiveness that carried the listener on the quicksilver currents of its final fugal development to its denouement in the powerful climax of the opening tonic chords. Mr. Rosen gave a very individual reading of this transcendental opus, opening new meanings to these ears hitherto unrevealed. Even though this was performed was most enlightening it would need many hearings to convince that this was the correct one. The fugue at times was a bit blurry, but otherwise carried its impetus of rhythmic impact throughout. Repeats were left out in the work, both in the second and fourth movements, a decided error of omission on the part of the pianist. No composer in history was more exact as to the punctuation of his compositions than Beethoven thus, to leave these demanded repeats out was to leave the full effects of the sonata unbalanced.

In the Chopin Sonata in B Flat Minor Op. 34, however, the repeats were taken and by doing so gave to this large pianistic canvas its full balance and unification, this massive sonata was given a very subjective concept, with moments of tenderness, such as the tonal shadings of the scherzo, the heading "racing triplets of the left hand and the trio of the funeral march. The phrasing of the opening measures of the first movement were down right sloppy (excluding the first three bars) and the second theme of this movement was drastically retarded in its appearance. Maybe the pianist does it this way to give it more contrast to the rest of the movement, but it did drag overly.

The Debussy "L'Isle Joyeuse" was given an excellent interpretation, demonstrating to a marked degree this man's affinity to the great French Impressionist. A sterling performance.

The final scheduled item was the technical difficulties that studded the "Don Giovanni" Fantasy of Liszt from beginning to end. A great war horse in the last century, it is seldom heard now because of its tremendous demands on the pianist. But here Mr. Rosen proved once again his great pianistic talent, but a virtuoso as well, in his handing of this tour, de force of technical difficulties. He created the poor executant absolutely nothing in a work loud of fiendish pianistic pitfalls and Mr. Rosen hurdled them all with apparent ease and affluence. This was the climax of the hands together in solid approval by the entire body of listeners and the stage watchers.

Many encores were added on to the response of the audience, both charmingly played. The first was a delightful one of Chopin Nocturne in F Sharp major were beautifully caressed by the soloist and then Debussy's "The Mistrels" caprichously captured.

All in all, this was an excellent program, even though a bit strange to local listeners and Mr. Rosen can come back any time to give us more of his fine performances. Next time though, we hope he has a better instrument to play on, as this one was harsh in the far upper registers.

Successful Living

Mother Was Never Married, Father Habitual Drunkard

DEAR DORIS — My mother never married and I am partly handicapped, so life has been very tough at times. My father is a drunkard. That's why my mother never married him.

In one club I'm a member of, I meet some very nice boys but I just panic when they talk to me. I know I should trust people but when your own father puts you through what mine did me it's a hard thing to do. I should like to marry some day but with my handicap I could not have any family. If I meet some nice young man, should I tell him what I told you? I mean about my background. I am 20 years old.

Please help me, Doris. I'm scared. — PANICKY.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR PANICKY — You could either:

(1) Retire into your shell and clam up; or

(2) remember that one swallow does not make a summer (nor one boozer a drunken world) and begin showing confidence in those very nice boys. Right now your self-pity is painting the world black.

Don't discuss your past with the boys nor your handicap until you find that special one whose serious interest deserves the truth about your future — and his.

* * *

DEAR DORIS —Could you kindly give us a definition of second class citizens?

We always read your colmn and respect your viewpoint and opinion of others. Thank you for everyday common sense — CONSTANT READER.

DEAR CONSTANT READER — It's not a legal term. Merely a status-prejudice description of a person who is thought of as secondary in importance to some of his more fortunate contemporaries.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I am turning to you in a last hopeful desperation. I like this boy very much, and I know he likes me. My parents won't allow me to go out until I am 16 (I'm 14 now).

Most of the kids in my crowd are allowed to date. It is usually agreed between their parents that one date or two at the most is perfectly all right over the weekend. I either figure out a way to get this problem across to my parents, or I am afraid we well have a big quarrel! — DESPERATE.

DEAR DESPERATE — Dating at 14 is a bit previous in my books. Try to settle for the occasional party with a group of boys and girls. After all, Mom and Dad have the say right now.

Snow depths in New England ranged around 12 inches with some drifts up to five feet high.

At Ashland, N.Y., 35 miles from Albany, the snow was 30 inches deep. In Albany, where 14 inches fell, cots were set up in state capitol corridors for legislators.

CONDITIONS IN A NUTSHELL

Here's 'a state-by-state rundown:

New York—More than two feet of snow in some sections, with 10 to 13 inches in the New York City area. Drifts three and four feet high. Airports closed overnight.

Pennsylvania—Snow seven to 24 inches deep. Most schools closed. State employees given day off. Many industries closed. Philadelphia got seven inches. Scranton 20.

New Jersey—More than a foot of snow at Newark, which declared snow emergency, as did Trenton. Some flooding at high tide in south and central Jersey towns on the Atlantic.

New England States—One-foot of snow drifted into five-foot drifts in spots. Nantucket got 13 inches, Boston nine. Major ski resorts, however, got only a few inches of snow.

Maryland—Drifts up to four feet deep in western sections. Snowfall ranged from four to 12 inches total.

Maryland — Baltimore got about eight inches of snow with more than three-that in western parts of state.

West Virginia—Deepest snow recorded was 18 inches at Morgantown. One report of 27 inches at Thomas, Tucker County. Drifts up to 6 feet deep.

Georgia—Two to four inches snow northern portions. Cold in teens and single digits.

Tennessee — Eight inches of snow in the Smokey Mountains. Knoxville schools closed Monday because icy streets.

Florida—First snow in six years. Freezing temperatures on tap for central Florida and readings in the 40s in Miami.

Ohio—Gusty winds pile snow 20 feet deep in some areas. Hundreds stranded. Most schools closed.

Indiana—Hundreds of schools closed. Traffic jam in northwest strands 2,000.

$32,500 Said Damage to Fraser's Store

PICTON (Staff) — Insurance officials told Fire Chief J. Nelson Bell on Monday that, the total damage in Fraser's Gray Room from last Saturday morning's fire would come to about $32,500.

They said this would be a very rough estimate but would include about $7,500 damage to the building and about $25,000 damage to the contents.

The building housed Fraser's Gray Room, an exclusive ladies' clothing store, and on the second floor are the offices of the Industrial Acceptance Corporation. There is also a small ground floor office where Belle Cleaners operate a pick up and delivery depot for their Belleville plant.

The contents estimate would include all smoke damage to the interior of the building, including the two firms mentioned.

It is not known at this time if there will be a fire sale or not. The building and contents were covered by insurance.

There is just no substitute for experience, Chief Bell says when it comes to fire fighting.

Those who braved the stern weather to attend this fire at 1.45 a.m. on Saturday, could not help but be impressed with the manner in which the newly-appointed Fire Chief J. Nelson Bell, tackled the situation.

When the department arrived, smoke could be seen inside the store and could be clearly seen coming from a large door in a room at the rear of the building.

ORDERED DOOR OPEN

Not knowing just where the fire was, Chief Bell, took a minute to study the situation and then, knowing he was right, ordered the door open-ed by George Fraser, store owner. Then and not until then did the Chief order water, in the meantime, however, he had two lines attached to adjacent fire hydrants, in case they would need a lot of water in a hurry.

It was noticeable that the Chief was the first one into the burning building with a face mask. When he came out, he was covered with water, smoke and dirt, but he had found the fire and directed his men, where to apply the water.

"We were lucky on this one. There was no wind, no internal drafts and the manner in which the building was built helped our work," Chief Bell told the Ontario Intelligencer on Monday morning.

The Fire Insurance officials and Chief Bell ascertained that the fire started in a fluorescent light fixture. In the fixture now at the fire hall, it can easily be seen that faulty installation of the cover of the ture, caused a short, setting fire to the ceiling.

First Stones Curl Down Ice As Women Open New Rink

PICTON (Staff) — "Blood, sweat and tears," may have been coined by Sir Winston Churchill, but the expression, nevertheless, fits the new Prince Edward Curling Club.

After a lot of hard work by a lot of people, and in particular by the womens section, the curling rink was opened on Monday at 1.30 p.m. as the ladies held their opening bonspiel.

The club is not actually ready yet, but it will be by Sunday afternoon when the official opening ceremonies will be held.

Curling is said to be for those who like to be part of a sport in which the word cooperation is very important. It is one of the very few four-man teams in which every play by every member is for the good of the team.

Co-operation is what the club officials received when they sent out word that help was wanted. So it the actual digging out the space for the chairs, the 4x4's that support the plastic pipes'—be it the enormous task of sweeping out the entire building—the building of cupboards in the kitchen—fastening the viewers' chairs down—any one of a hundreds tasks was done by the members.

SPLENDID ICE

The girls were determined to curl by this week, and when a group of women get together and decide to get something done, woe betide the mere male that gets in the way.

On Sunday afternoon, the girls were hard at it making sure they had the dishes and coffee pots over from the arena, cleaned up the kitchen equipment, and—they curled on Monday, as they said they would.

From all reports, the four lanes are in wonderful condition, thanks to Amos Hicks and his desire to see that the curling rink had fine ice.

Something has been added—the ice surface between the hog lines is painted a light green, between the hog and the back the ice is white, over which is painted red and blue circles, making a very lovely effect. The 100 special lights suspended from the roof, gives a beautifully lighted four lane curling rink.

In the Ladies' Division draw on Monday afternoon, Eleanor Kotchapaw skipped her rink to a 10-2 win over Carol Colden; Teressa Fletcher skipped her rink to an 8-2 win over Pat Pariel McArthur; Pat Turpel skipped her rink to a close 7-6 win over Agnes Lederman, and Betty Evans skipped her rink to an 8-3 win over Carol Riddell.

2 Biggest Stock Exchange Gives Views on Taxation

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's two biggest stock exchanges presented separate briefs Monday to the royal commission on taxation outlining their ideas on how to get more Canadians to invest in equity stocks.

In some respects, the Toronto and Montreal stock exchanges shared the same views. For instance, they thought a large portion of the dividends paid to Canadian shareholders should be free of income tax.

President Howard D. Graham of the Toronto exchange said Canadian shareholders should be given "complete or substantial income tax exemptions" on dividends from Canadian corporations.

Board Chairman P. B. Reid of the Montreal exchange suggested the dividend exemption be five times the basic personal exemption of $1,000.

WOULD END TAX

The Toronto brief said the 15-per-cent withholding tax, now applied to dividends paid to foreign shareholders, should be eliminated from interest and debt securities. This would be a positive step toward steering foreign investments into a certain field without discouraging the over-all inflow of capital.

The Montreal brief said that apart from tax encouragement for shareholders, corporations should be encouraged to buy equity stocks, and it suggested that corporation taxes be reduced and incentives offered for greater distribution of earnings.

As an initial step, the present top federal rate of 50 per cent should be reduced seven percentage points for distributed income, while remaining at the present figure for undistributed earnings. Over a period of 10 years, the rate should be chopped down to 43 per cent on undistributed and 36 per cent on distributed profits.

Earlier Monday, the Investment Dealers' Association of Canada said the Income Tax Act is full of "ambiguities, conflicts and contradictions."

Murney Parks New Chairman H.S. Board

PICTON — Murney Parks, R.R. 2, Ameliasburg, was appointed chairman of the Prince Edward County High School Board at their inagural meeting for 1964 held last night at the collegiate.

The most important motion passed at the meeting showed that the board is in favor of investigating the possibility of having a secretary-treasurer-administrator.

The standing committees are as follows, with the first named chairman — finance, H. M. Hicks, George Walmsley, Earl Smith, Clifford Wilson, Alex Williams and H. E. Robinson; grounds committee, Dr. E. D. Fyffe, J. Colliver, Earl Smith, Mrs. Ruth Heart and Jerry Bond; transportation, Alex Williams, E. J. Oliver, H. M. Hicks, Clifford Wilson, Clarence Hicks, Wrexford Hicks, H. E. Robinson, Gordon Bell; agriculture, Wrexford Hicks, Clarence Hicks, Clifford Watson, Jarry Bond, Alex Williams; salary, negotiations and placement, H. J. Colliver, Earl Smith, Dr. E. D. Fyffe, Gordon Bell, Dr. E. D. Fyffe, Mrs. Ruth Heart, Gordon Bell, H. J. Colliver; supply, H. Robinson, Gordon Bell, Dr. E. D. Fyffe, Earl Smith, H. E. Robinson, Wrexford Hicks, cafeteria, Earl Smith, Gordon Bell, William Hicks, Jerry Bond, John Syrett; athletic, recreation committee from the board, Gordon Bell, Mrs. Ruth Heart, Jerry Bond, Earl Smith, H. E. Robinson, Dr. E. D. Fyffe, Gordon Walmsley; industrial, Hutton Martin, H. E. Robinson, Gary Harris, Fred Cohrs, Hugh Fulhard, Don Keeler; vice-chairman of the board, H. J. Colliver.

NICK MIKA

Local silk screen printer Nick Mika has been in the news lately, in his own trade at least. During November and December he was the subject of a two-part feature series in "Canadian Printer and Publisher", one of the country's top trade magazines. In December, "Screen Process Magazine" printed in Cincinnati, devoted nearly a page to some direct mailing pieces Mika designed and printed to push his trade. The U.S. magazine described the mailer as "one of the most intriguing mailing pieces to cross our desk in a long time". Mika knows more than the readers though, how well the magazine was impressed with the mailer. He now has an order, from the magazine, for a lot of the mailers with the magazine's name replacing his own. Seems the mailers are doing a good job of selling silk screen work!

New products coming out at Mika Studios include another series of wall plaques — this one with six different pictures of antique handguns available, and a series of six ashtrays with pictures of cars on the bottom. The plaques will be sold through gift shops and the like, the ashtrays were ordered by two auto manufacturers. If these ashtrays prove as popular as the plaques have, Mika is thinking of a series of ashtrays with Canadian soldiers, wearing all the uniforms used by the first hundred years of Confederation, to be ready for the Centennial year.

STEPHENS-ADAMSON

Six Queen's University students — the final year mining class — and Professor Tomkin of the University toured the Stephens-Adamson plant here last week. The students were introduced to the sort of materials handling equipment they will be expected to know, when they get to the mines. The students were also introduced, via working models and films, to some of the big installations for which the Belleville firm is famous.

Handling the tour for Stephens-Adamson were executive vice-president V. L. Lewis, sales manager J. C. Young and assistant sales manager R. H. Reid.

New appointment at Stephens-Adamson, Alf Evans, former General Purchasing Agent and Manager of Foundry Sales is now officially Manager of the Foundry Division. Filling his old position as General Purchasing Agent is Peter Stalker, formerly purchasing for Toronto Iron Works, in Toronto.

A count of last year's sales shows that S-A exported to nine countries last year. British Guiana, Jamaica, Mauritania, New Zealand, U.S.A., Nicaragua, Trinidad, Singapore and England are all on the list.

DUSSEK BROS.

An error in a previous column wasn't really an error. About the time Montreal harbor was freezing up, we mentioned the B. V. E. Walton of Dussek Bros. Ltd. assumed that a big shipment of cable oil from Belleville to Peru had cleared Montreal before the ice hit. The shipment was due to go Nov. 27, and he figured the ship lines would have told him if it didn't. It didn't, and they didn't tell him. He found out about the delay when the people in Peru started phoning up with questions. Turned out the shipment had left Dec. 6th on the last boat of the season so everything was all right after all. New market might be opening for the product now — Mr. Walton is working on a quote for delivery to Venezuela.

More news of the firm's newest product, Concretol. A new distributor for industrial sales on the west coast, a B.C. firm. Two orders from Ottawa and Nfld., total between 2,000 and 3,000 gallons, now hanging fire pending the results of tests now being conducted by the National Research Council. Results of the tests should come through within a week.

Politics in Trinidad

Grass Roots Under Palm Trees

Sixteen months after becoming independent, Trinidad is making gradual progress toward economic strength. In this story a Canada Press reporter describes the prime minister's efforts to shake his people from their apathy.

By RUSSELL ELMAN

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (CP)—The Doctor, a small, vital man with a cigarette drooping from his lips, cast a glance of disappointment over the several hundred farmers, housewives and children gathered to meet him at the village school.

"Don't pass the buck to he prime minister," he shouted. "Everyone tries to put their burdens on me. My shoulders are not so big."

The speaker was Eric Williams, 51-year-old former university professor and now the first prime minister of Trinidad and Tobago, who is conducting a novel experiment in grass-roots democracy through an intensive meet-the - people campaign.

The people, many of them wearing red, white and black ties—the national colors of the newly independent Commonwealth nation in the Caribbean—stirred uneasily on the hard wooden benches as he spoke.

A few minutes earlier, one of their representatives had read to The Doctor a long set of demands. They included demands for an investigation of alleged malpractices in land distribution, better postal service, new street lamps and a dental and health clinic.

FIGHTS APATHY

"We will pay attention to what has been said and will do what we can within the limits of our resources," Dr. Doctor had promised. But he added:

"There's too much reliance on the central government. You have no right to bypass your local authorities in dealing with your problems."

Several days a week Dr. Williams visits towns and villages, hears representations from people, takes notes and then replies to points raised, usually adding a pep talk aimed at ridding the country of apathy and promoting a spirit of self-help.

This direct approach appears to have given the prime minister — a historian and political scientist with an incredible capacity for work—a unique first-hand glimpse of the needs and aspirations of the people of a developing country.

It has also enabled him to try to educate them and create the right psychological climate for acceptance of a comprehensive five-year development plan he was instrumental in drafting.

His critics say, however, the campaign gives Dr. Williams a distinct political advantage and is a manifestation of the gradual transformation of Trinidad's government into one-man rule by an egotist who brooks no opposition.

LEFT FOR TOBAGO

After hurricane Flora ravaged Tobago, the prime minister spent the best part of a month in the smaller island. This led to opposition complaints that important affairs in Trinidad itself were being neglected.

It also argues that Dr. Williams, who heads the People's National Movement, takes on far too much trivial work that could easily be delegated.

Meanwhile, the opposition Democratic Labor Party's own leader has been absent in Britain on a university teaching assignment, giving support to the view that the opposition itself is lacking in leadership and carries only a feeble voice.

Criticism also stems from a change in the economic climate following the end of a big boom in the years immediately prior to the granting of independence Aug. 31, 1962.

Since then there has been a business recession coupled with cautious attitude by would-be foreign investors waiting to see how the political winds would blow after independence. The Tobago rehabilitation program after the hurricane added new financial burdens.

Unemployment and lack of enough new jobs still seem the most challenging problems, followed by housing, sanitation and food production.

UNIONS PUSH DEMANDS

There have also been serious strikes and growing friction between the government and certain trade unions, whose demands are continually being stepped up.

So far the government has not achieved many startling improvements, and some of its measures, especially a big increase in taxes, have been unpalatable to many.

However, the five-year plan has been prepared, new industries are being attracted to Trinidad's huge oil industry, and more emphasis is being placed on agriculture and the sale of local goods, giving rise to hopes that the current period of readjustment will soon lead to renewed economic expansion, though perhaps not at such a giddy pace as before.

A potential danger is that discontent may become channelled along racial lines with politicians fanning division between the African majority and the East Indian minority.

Although Trinidad's 900,000 people live in comparative multi-racial harmony, there appears to be a tendency for the opposition to a government led by Dr. Williams, crystallize along racial lines, with East Indians generally supporting the DLP.

Wednesday: Tobago rebuilds after hurricane Flora.

Toll of Revolt

Jamahid Bin Abdulla and Prime Minister Mohammed Shamte Hamadi were reported still putting up a fight.

U.S. Consul Frederick P. Picard, one of the two Americans remaining behind, reported in a telephone conversation with the A.S. embassy in Dar es Salaam, Tanganyika, there was sporadic shooting and looting. Before his connection was cut, he described the situation as extremely delicate.

The new regime gave permission for the Manley, which was on a goodwill visit to nearby Kenya, to enter Zanzibar harbor and remove the Americans. Most of them are connected with a tracking station for the Project Mercury satellite program.

Zanzibar radio, taken over by the rebels, had warned all ships and aircraft to keep away from the island. A rebel "field marshal" threatened to shoot anyone who tried to land on Zanzibar.

The rebel command also threatened stern measures against Africans who mistreated Arabs, the island's traditional rulers who overthrew the ruling Zanzibar National Party of ousted Prime Minister Hamadi. There were reports the homes of Arabs were searched for arms and their occupants herded into the streets.

A British resident in Zanzibar reported by telephone that people were being allowed outside provided they wore green armbands and gave a V for victory sign at all checkpoints.

SULTAN HOMELESS

Meanwhile, Abdulla, ousted Sunday and barred Monday from landing in Kenya, was a man without a country today.

It was reported from Mombasa, Kenya, that the steamship Seyyid Khalifa, with the sultan aboard, sailed from there Monday after Kenya refused to let him land.

The ship's captain refused to disclose the vessel's destination.

ers and non-smokers. This, he said, has not changed since 1908.

"If one assumes that inhaling of tobacco is responsible for lung cancer, one should also expect that heavy smokers would suffer from bronchial carcinomas at an earlier age than light or non - smokers," he stated. "This is not the case."

Poche said the highest rate of lung cancer was among people particularly exposed to car exhausts, including travelling salesmen, traffic policemen and other people who spend much time on the roads.

Office workers and other people least exposed to polluted air had the lowest rate of lung cancer, although these were known to be among the heaviest smokers, Poche said.

NAMED DEPUTY

OTTAWA (CP) — Sqdn. Ldr. J. A. Connolly, 42, of Ottawa, has been appointed deputy director of public relations at RCAF headquarters here, it was announced Monday. He had served previously as assistant director of public information at NORAD headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Chrome, Steel Hearse Created Says Doctors

KINGSTON (CP)—Dr. William Ghent, chief of surgery at Hotel Dieu hospital here, says today's automobile designers have sacrificed safety to create a "chrome and steel hearse."

He told a service club meeting more emphasis should be placed on standardizing instrumentation, bells, controls and padded dashboard for safety.

"What seems one of the most glaring sacrifices of safety on the altar of style is the tail light.

"Have you ever noticed the varying sizes, shapes, heights and intensities of these lights? How in hell can you judge distance at night if you can't have at least one common denominator?"

Dr. Ghent said we have been lured up the garden path of horsepower and have bought cylinders rather than safety."

the disbandment of two Voodoo squadrons.

The announcement said planes from the disbanded squadrons at Ottawa and North Bay would be moved to the squadrons at Chatham, N.B., and Bagotville, Que., "to improve operational efficiency and promote economy."

Ottawa sources said there will be economy. But the decision flew in the face of established NORAD policy of dispersing interceptors as much as possible to try to avoid their total destruction on the ground with two or three long - range missiles.

The announcement also said removal of the 10 Voodoos from Ottawa would reduce the density of air traffic at Uplands Airport. But the defence department had announced previously that the electronic warfare squadron at St. Hubert, Que., will be moved to Uplands. It has 18 CF-100 jets.

jade-green Columbia that rises in southeastern B.C. and eventually flows into the U.S. near Trail.

Water would be stored to boost year-round power generation in U.S. power stations. Flood control would be provided.

The U.S. is crediting Canada with half the extra power generated because of Canadian river control plus more than $60,000,000 for flood control.

Under revisions sought by B.C. the power credited to Canada will be left in the U.S. for a lump sum advance payment of more than $400,000,000 which will be used to build the three dams.

The power would be sold for more than 20 years. This power capacity would amount to some 1,300,000 kilowatts or more than half the electric capacity of the whole province right now.

PCs MADE START

The last push to get the Columbia settled started under the Progressive Conservative government and finished under the Liberals.

A 60-year treaty with the U.S. was signed in Washington Jan. 17, 1961, but the federal and B.C. governments drifted apart at that point on power disposal and financing. The U.S. had speedily ratified the treaty.

The Canadian Parliament now must ratify both the treaty and the protocol fashioned in negotiations since last May—but only after a study by the House of Commons external affairs committee that promises to be long and spirited as a result of opposition from various sources.

CONGRESS MUST ACT

The U.S. Congress will have to ratify the protocol drafted in the latest negotiations, covering power price, handling of the finances and some treaty clarifications.

All hands expressed satisfaction Monday night. Mr. Martin as chief Canadian negotiator said it was an example of good Canadian-U.S. relations and also of co-operative federalism in federal-provincial relations.

Resources Minister Williston said it illustrated action on three levels of government and that Canada and B.C. had been in accord throughout.

Ivan White, U.S. minister at the embassy here, said he wanted to pay tribute to the statesmanship of Mr. Martin and Premier Bennett of B.C.—regarded as the man who really pulled the strings in much of the B.C. negotiation, although he took no direct part.

SHOULD GIVE MORE

TORONTO (CP) — Mayor Philip Givens said Monday Canadian millionaires are not as generous as their American counterparts and he suggested the city's St. Lawrence Centre for the Arts project would be a good place for them to start. He told a business club luncheon he was impressed how rich men in American cities have been giving gifts to those cities where they made their money. "It's about time some of our people started thinking in those terms," he said.

One of the best sportsmen's calory-collecting functions of the year is slated for the Club Canara on Tuesday, January 21st. It is the annual business-foodfest of the Belleville District Fish and Game Club.

Banquet-wise it is tops in the city's roundup of sports weight-collecting. Business-wise it perkaroes an activities year of an association that is riding the crest of a high wave of success.

The club boasts of upwards of 400 members, senior and junior, and it is expected that at least 200 adults with their good ladies will tuck away a repast that only the good ladies of the Canara Auxiliary can table.

The mushrooming of the club membership and its activities over the past few years is directly attributable to the efficiency of the executive and the wholehearted cooperation of membership.

The club has sponsored a number of projects during its years of existence, one of its outstanding efforts being "Operation Greenhead," the breeding and raising of mallard ducks on areas acquired by the club. A tip of the chapeau to member George Woodhouse in this respect.

Currently, a foresight ed executive has under discussion the establishment of a game sanctuary in Thurlow township for the benefit of the general public.

Plans, I understand, have reached the point where members will be asked to authorize the executive to enter into an agreement with the Moira River Conservation Authority for permission to lease certain properties.

The request for authorization will be presented to the membership at the annual meeting next Tuesday.

Another highlight of the banquet meeting will be the presentation of the minnow-to-whale and the moose-to-deer-to-wolf awards. There is no "Liars Award," but I am told the boys' word will be taken although a picture of the trophy of the chase and nod of agreement of a buddy will help no end.

If you have forgotten to enter that piscatorial monster, grizzly, bruin, or Red Riding Hood playmate, don't worry. You can enter them next Tuesday before you pull the table napkin over your knees and assault the Club Canara turkey.

Secretary Ken Yorke tells me the guest speaker for the function is Ralph Bice of Kearney, Ontario, the only deer hunter in Ontario who shot a buck while on crutches. A car accident did not prevent Mr. Bice from hunting. He will speak on "Wolves," a subject on which he is an acknowledged authority.

There will be all kinds of door-prizes for the trigger-ticklers and the tackle-tinkerers. The "special" is an 8-transistor radio complete with case. Two 20-minute sports films will be shown. Tickets may be obtained from any club director.

HE FOUND OUT:

They came to blows in the second period and Bobby Hull was "all muscles." Now he believes it.

The pair tangled in Sunday night's game at Chicago. Harper said both got in good punches but he felt Hull had a slight edge.

They came to blows in the second period and both drew major penalties.

Did you get in any good punches? Harper was asked.

"Yes, but he did too," the Canadien said. "His first punch knocked me back about three feet."

Tops In 'Sin' And Scoring ★ ★ ★ ★

Hawks Could Set Penalty-Nest Mark

MONTREAL (CP)—All those team records for scoring punch in the National Hockey League seem to have slipped well beyond the reach of Chicago's slump-racked Black Hawks.
Apart from Bobby Hull, Ken Wharram and Stan Mikita, none of the Black Hawks are doing much with the puck these days.
But as a whole the club is still running well ahead of the pace for one NHL record. It has to do with belligerency, though, not scoring.
The team has piled up a total of 739 minutes in penalties for 41 games, official NHL statistics showed today, and at that rate the league mark the Chicago club set in 1960-61 should fall easy.
So far the Chicago team averages is slightly more than 18 minutes a game. That would produce a total of 1,260 minutes at the end of the 70-game schedule. The record is 1,072.
MONTREAL SECOND
In fact, the clubs collectively have drawn far more minutes in penalties this season and Montreal Canadiens are also running at a record-breaking clip, though—considerably behind.
The league total for 119 games so far is 3,176 minutes. That is something around 700 minutes more than in the comparable span of 1962-63.
Is play getting rougher? Are there more blowups? Or is it that the officials are calling them tighter?
Probably a combination of all three.
Mikita and that two-man Chicago gang, Reg Fleming and Howie Young, account for more than 300 minutes in Chicago penalties between them. Fleming tops the league with 110 minutes. Mikita has 101 and the suspended Young, 97.
Only one other player around the league has reached the 100-minute plateau and that's New York's Vic Hadfield with 102.
Canadiens have averaged 15.8 minutes a game for a total of 619 and at that pace the mark for the club would be 1,106 at the end of the season.
Toronto Maple Leafs have a total of 571 minutes, Detroit Red Wings 427, New York 417 and Boston Bruins 402.
MIKITA LEADING
Mikita collected a goal and an assist during the week to boost his production to 23 goals and 35 assists for 56 points, increasing his lead to three points over Montreal's Jean Beliveau in the individual point-gathering competition. Beliveau was contained to a pair of assists in the week's play and heads the NHL in that department with 53.
A five-goal spurt by Hull meanwhile pushed his league-leading total to 28, leaving him 10 goals ahead of his 1961-62 pace when he tied the NHL record of 50 goals in one season.

Hull Ankle Not Broken, Bruised

CHICAGO (AP) — X-ray examination of the ankle of Bobby Hull, Chicago Black Hawk scoring ace, disclosed only a painful bruise, club doctors said Monday.

Hull was hit on the ankle by a puck during a 2-1 loss to Montreal Canadiens here Sunday. There was fear at first that a bone had been broken.

Hull, who leads all National Hockey League marksmen with 28 goals, said he expects to be ready to play in Montreal Thursday.

Rudy Pilous Bud Poile Draw Fines

SEATTLE (AP)—Bud Poile, coach of San Francisco Seals, was fined $150 Monday and Rudy Pilous, Denver coach, $50 by Al Leader, president of the Western Hockey League.

Poile was slapped with his second heavy fine of the season for a ruckus in last Thursday's game in Los Angeles.

The goal judge was pushed against the goal light switch accidentally by a fan and when the referee ruled no goal Poile stepped onto the ice to argue.

This drew an automatic $25 fine. He was nicked another $25 for refusing to shut the gate to the Seals' bench and $100 for hitting the referee with the puck later in the game.

Poile paid a $100 fine earlier in the season for threats to a referee.

Pilous' fine was for "using profane language" in an argument with officials after Denver's defeat in Vancouver last Tuesday. Loring Doolittle, the referee, filed a formal report of the incident.

Mantle Gets $100,000

Yankee Infield Worth $105,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Ralph Houk's $5,600,000 infield is worth $105,000.

The recession began the day Houk stepped up from manager to general manager of New York Yankees.

And the market hit bottom Monday when Houk and the Yankees decided to mail out contracts to the American League baseball champions. The entire payroll figures to come to an estimated $800,000.

As for the four men Houk valued at $5,000,000 in a word battle with Baltimore manager Billy Hitchcock last year, here's the way the salaries go, from first to third:

1B—Joe Pepitone, $15,000.
2B—Bobby Richardson, $30,000.
SS—Tony Kubek, $35,000.
3B—Clete Boyer, $25,000.

The left side — Kubek and Boyer—stands about the same as last year. The gains were made on the right side. Pepitone gets a hefty raise from $8,000 after hitting 271 with 27 homers and 89 runs batted in—high for the club. Richardson, a .265 hitter and a team leader, gets about a $5,000 increase to $30,000.

The big hunk of the $800,000 payroll, one-eighth of it to be exact, goes to Mickey Mantle, who played in only 65 games last season because of a broken left foot and a damaged knee cartilage that had to be operated on this winter.

Mantle had said he would have accepted a cut but Houk said:

"You don't penalize a man because of injuries sustained in the line of duty. He means a great deal to this club and I expect him to bounce back and have a great year."

Houk already has signed two players—outfielder Roger Maris and pitcher Whitey Ford. Maris took a cut of about $5,000 to $62,000 while Ford signed for a $12,000 raise to the $60,000 neighborhood for his 24 victories and added stature as a pitching coach.

Also in for a hefty raise is catcher Elston Howard, the American League's most valuable player, expected to get a contract calling for close to $60,000. Most of the other increases go to the young players.

Campbell Ends Young Probe

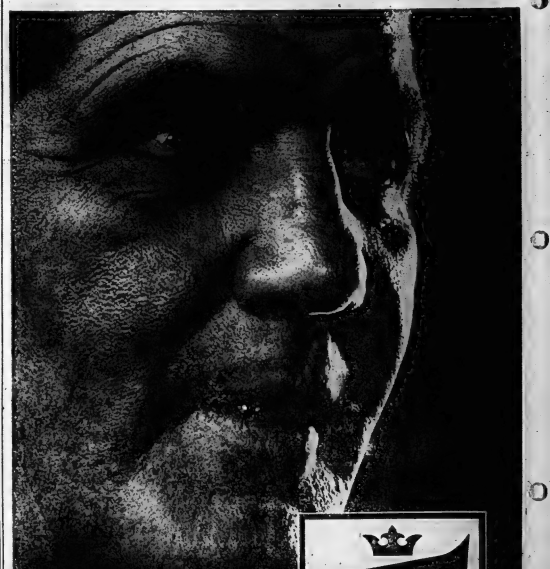
Expect Decision Shortly

MONTREAL (CP)—Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, plans to announce a decision today in the case of Howie Young and Reg Fleming of the Chicago Black Hawks.

Young was placed under indefinite suspension by Campbell last Tuesday pending investigation of his conduct during a Jan. 4 game in Toronto between the Hawks and Maple Leafs.

The Toronto club claims that Young used intemperate language and spat while in the penalty box.

In the same game, Fleming received a game misconduct penalty which is automatically reviewed by the NHL president.



Campbell returned to Montreal Monday after a weekend of gathering evidence in Toronto and Chicago.

"I talked to all the witnesses concerned, including Young and Fleming," he said Monday..."I hope to be able to announce my decision on Tuesday."

Campbell said last week that Young, perennial bad man of the NHL who was traded by Detroit Red Wings to Chicago this season, could be banished from the game for life.

ANNOUNCE TRADE

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League have announced a five-player trade with Denver Bears of the Pacific Coast League. The Leafs obtained Federico Olivo, a left-handed pitcher, and second baseman Lee Tate in exchange for third baseman Steve Demeter, outfielder Bubba Morton and right-handed pitcher Carl Greene.

Pilote Top Blueliner At Half-Way

Beliveau MVP

By MARVEN MOSS

MONTREAL (CP) — Muscular Tim Horton of Toronto, the No. 1 payoff man in the National Hockey League through the first half of the schedule, was beaten out by Chicago's Pierre Pilote in the mid-season balloting announced today for the league's top all-round defenceman.

The decisiveness of Pilote's selection over the man who led the NHL in winning goals with six made it even more a surprise twist.

First-year men with Montreal Canadiens meanwhile placed 1-2-3 in the voting for the rookie performers.

In the other trophy competitions, Montreal's Jean Beliveau was a walkaway leader as the most valuable player and the voting for the performer best combining sportsmanship and ability was so tight a mere 18 points separated the four players in front.

As in last season, the individual awards carry a total of $2,000 in prize money for each competition.

LEAD WORTH $250

This year the mid-season lead in each competition is worth $250. Another similar sum will go to the second-half leader. The over-all winner at the end of the season gets $1,000 and $200 goes to the runnerup.

Points are awarded on a 5-3-1 basis by those covering the hockey beat in the league's six member cities, as in past seasons.

The attack-minded Pilote polled 72 points against a surprisingly-low 43 for Horton, whose eight goals gave him twice as many as Pilote in the first 36 games, apart from the timeliness of six of them.

Beliveau covering more ice than anyone else around the league and perhaps as principal reason for Montreal's strong showing, came closest to the maximum 90-point potential by attracting 82.

A full 30 points behind him in the balloting for the Hart Memorial Trophy was Chicago's 25-goal Bobby Hull and then came goalie Glenn Hall of the Black Hawks with 19.

TOPS ROOKIES

Jacques Laperriere led the Montreal rookie contingent in the Calder Trophy competition, with 51 points. The defenceman was followed by his left-wing teammate John Ferguson with 43 and another mate, Terry Harper, with 28.

Chicago's hustle - guy Ken Wharram, a 30-goal man for the first half, topped the Lady Byng Trophy voting with 40 points. His penalty total: 10 minutes.

A two - minute man, New York's Camille Henry, was eight points back. One more behind was Dave Keon, Toronto's two-time winner of the trophy. At 25 points in fourth spot was Hull of Chicago. Keon had four minutes in penalties and Hull 5.

CANADIANS PLAY JUST AMONG THEMSELVES — Here's some spirited action in Geneva, Switzerland, last night, as Canada's National Hockey team, which will play in the Olympics, meets team made up of Canadian professionals playing with European clubs. Roger Bourbannais, right, of the National team, tries for goal in first period as goalie Rigolet, only Swiss member of the professional team, blocks. He is assisted by M. Vachon of the pro team. Game watched by 9,000 persons, ended in a 4-4 tie.

'Tired Of Being Crucified'

Finley Tells 'My Side'

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Owner Charles Finley of Kansas City Athletics said Monday he was "tired of being crucified" and had "taken it on the chin from the American League long enough."

Finley told Ernest Mehl, sports editor of the Kansas City Star, he thought "it is time I told my side of the story," and then related how in prior years he had made trips to Dallas and to Oakland, Calif., with league approval seeking a new site for the Athletics.

"If the league pulls the rug out from beneath me the league is going out with me," Finley said.

Finley's latest effort to shift his baseball club, this time to Louisville, will come before league directors and owners in New York Thursday. He has signed a contract to move the club to the Kentucky city, subject to approval of league owners, after he had failed to negotiate a new contract for use of Municipal Stadium here.

Finley said Monday there is not the slightest chance of the league taking my franchise away from me."

Finley said he had been "backed into a corner" and had been "receiving much of the blame for what has happened, although I am going to prove that I have violated any league rule."

He added he had been taking brunt of these accusations long enough.

"I am a tired man and I am tired of being crucified. Not one time, has president Joe Cronin picked up the phone to call me and ask me, "what is your problem in Kansas City. Can I help?"

"As a result things have gotten completely out of hand.

Lightfoots Defeated By Flyers

Trenton RCAF Flyers climbed to the top rung in the Bay of Quinte Basketball League last night by turning back the Belleville Lightfoots—67-52 at the air station.

The Flyers, sparked by Wilf Borden at the lineup, were never headed in this one. They took a seven-point lead in the first half, 25-18, and increased that margin in the second half.

Borden, after missing most of the club's games this season, dropped in 20 points to pace the RCAF attack. His fine jump shot from outside gave Borden most of his points. Mac McNichol, with 12, A. Burleigh and Wickyk, each with 11, were other high scores for the winners.

Doug Rose carried most of the scoring power for Lightfoots, collecting 24 points. The next high man was Gord Smith with eight.

Belleville lost the services of Larry "Soup" Campbell in the first half when he fell to the floor, injuring an elbow. Terry McCabe was also missing from the Belleville lineup.

RCAF Flyers (67): W. Borden 20, M. McNichol 12, A. Burleigh 11, E. Clarke 7, Cooke 2, Wilmets 2, Butterfield 2, Widzyk 11, McLean, Slade, Nelson, Foyle.

Belleville Lightfoots (52): L. Campbell 4, R. Donovan 5, D. Smith 4, G. Reynolds 1, G. Dugard, T. Ewing 3, D. Rose 24, I. Houchin 2, G. Smith 8, B. Smith 1.

Olympics Tie 'Old Pros'

CP from AP-Reuters

GENEVA—A last-minute rally gave the youthful Canadian Olympic hockey team a 4-4 tie Monday night with a team made up of Canadian professionals performing with European clubs.

More than 9,000 spectators saw the spirited match at Vernet Ice Stadium in this Swiss city.

Defeat seemed certain for the Olympic squad, down 4-3 with a minute left in the game. Then Roger Bourbonnais, a forward from Riviere qui Barre, Alta., broke free and went in alone to score the tying marker.

The Olympic squad gained a 2-1 lead in the first period and was ahead 3-2 after two.

Brian Wilkinson, who once played in Regina, had three goals for the European squad, opened the scoring after eight minutes of the first period. Ray Cadieux, a right winger from St. Addis, Que., tied it up a few seconds later. Gary Dineen, from Montreal, gave the Olympians a 2-1 lead in the 12th minute.

WERE AHEAD 3-1

The Olympians went ahead 3-1 after two minutes of the second period. Dave Merrifield of Port Arthur getting the marker. Whittal got his second for the European squad 15 minutes later.

The European Canadians tied up the match in the third minute of the third period, Martini being the scorer, and Whittal put them ahead with just two minutes left in the game. That set the stage for the last-ditch drive by he Olympians in which Bourbonnais came through.

Earlier in their pre-Olympics tour of Europe, the Olympians, coached by Rev. David Bauer, had defeated three European teams rather easily. In two games against E. V. Fussen in Germany, the Canadians won 9-3 and 4-1, and they defeated ERC Mannheim 12-0 Saturday in Mannheim, West Germany.

SEES POTENTIAL

MONTREAL (CP)—Sweden's Per-Olof Brogren, rounding out a 21-day tour of Canada to promote speed-skating, said Monday Canada's potential in the sport appears to be "unlimited."

"The talent is here but somebody will have to concentrate on maturing the kids so they can measure up against the world's best," he said in an interview.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

It is an unwritten rule in hockey that you should have your shooting hand low on the stick. You can get more weight and more power behind your shot.

Young Henri Richard of Montreal is an exception. If you watch, you'll find he practically has his hands together. Yet he can get a shot away very accurately and very fast, which is contrary to the rule.

The positions of the hands on the stick varies with the lie of the stick. They vary from N. 4 to 7, the lie determining the angle of the stick to the blade.

In my case, I have a very high lie so I am standing practically right over the top of the stick. The majority of players with high lies carry their hands close together.

For the most part, I shoot right-handed. So my right hand is the lower hand on the stick. The thumb of my left hand is close to fairly close to the little finger of the right hand.

Bobby Hull, Red Kelly and Frank Mahovlich all have real long sticks. I think they must use a lower lie. Therefore they can widen out the spread of their hands and get a little more leverage on their shot.

But the boys who use a high lie, as a rule saw a little off the handle of their sticks. Therefore they take a lot of flick shots, or wrist shots, which come with the hands a little closer together.

For the most part, you should have both hands on the stick. There are times when you cannot. Forwards, especially while checking should have two hands on the stick.

However, when you're trying to poke check or sweep check you'll use one hand because of the longer reach. That's why a young fellow should work to strengthen both his hands. In my case, because I'm fortunate enough to be ambidexterous, I throw the stick from side to side on either hand to give me the longer reach.

British Golf Pros

Will Use Larger Ball

LONDON (AP)—The British Professional Golfers' Association decided Monday to use the larger American-sized ball in all major tournaments this season.

"It is purely an experiment," said the secretary, Col. Harry Reed, after a meeting of the executive committee.

"The use of the ball will be reviewed at the end of the season. We do not intend to be dictatorial, but it is hoped that the result of this experiment will help to solve the problems of which ball to use."

The British normally use a ball 1.62 inches in diameter. The American ball measures 1.68 inches.

The smaller ball will still be used in the British Open championship at St. Andrew's, Scotland, in July. The Open is run by the Royal and Ancient Club.

HEADS BOMBERS

WINNIPEG (CP)—Dr. Neville Winograd, a 41-year-old dentist, was installed as president of the Winnipeg Football Club at the club's annual dinner Monday night. He succeeds Karl F. Winestone, during whose two-year term Winnipeg Blue Bombers slipped out of the Western Conference playoffs for the first time in 14 years after winning the Grey Cup in 1962.

Kiniski Once Made $89,000 A Year

Says 'Rasslin' Good Business

By STEPHEN SCOTT

VANCOUVER (CP)—By anybody's standards he is a successful businessman.

He looked the part as he sat, conservatively dressed, in the restaurant of Vancouver's most fashionable hotel.

Smoking a fat cigar, he addressed the waitress as "dear" and left a good tip.

After an interview, in which he confided he once earned $89,000 in a year, he drove away in an expensive car.

His business: "Rasslin'".

"It's a good business," said Gene Kiniski, 33, one of the bad guys of professional wrestling in Canada and the United States.

"In what other business do you need nothing more than a pair of wool trunks?"

As an afterthought he admits it's not quite that simple. There's promotion — keeping one's name in front of the public—and image.

He accepts as his lot the image of a big (six-foot-four, 272 pounds) rough, tough bad-guy fighter.

"With my pushed in nose, flattened ears . . . my face, nobody is going to like me. I give them what they want. If I do only one thing wrong in a fight people are going to say 'that rat Kiniski'."

IT'S A BORE

But while notoriety may be good business, it's also "a bore."

There are the insults—sometimes so bad he has a hard time containing himself.

He has been stabbed, mostly with hairpins but once with a knife, and burned with cigarettes and cigars as he walked away from the ring.

"You've got to build up a crust," Kiniski says, adding that he has had lots of practice. "When I was a kid I used to be called a bohunk although I was born in Canada."

And it can be difficult for his son, such as the time another boy said: "Ah, your old man is a dirty wrestler."

Fortunately, the reputation doesn't seem to affect his life outside the ring much.

"They treat me well here, don't they?" he remarked when asked about it.

As he travels Kiniski runs into the same questions over and over. How much does he earn? Is wrestling fixed?

"The wrestling is rehearsed. But if a wrestler comes 1,000 miles in one direction to meet a wrestler who comes 1,000 miles in another, how can the fight be rehearsed?"

Kiniski says he really isn't concerned about what people think of wrestling as long as they continue to pack arenas and watch it on television. Those who criticize wrestling are probably jealous of its popularity, he says.

PLAYED FOOTBALL

Kiniski, whose mother is an Edmonton alderman, was born in the Alberta capital and graduated from high school there.

He was working in the Edmonton thermal electric plant when someone suggested he apply for an athletic scholarship at the University of Arizona. He went to Tucson, got the scholarship and played for the football team, taking mechanical engineering and later physical education.

Rod Fenton, now a wrestling promoter in Vancouver, caught him sneaking into a match in Tucson and threw him out. A couple of weeks later he was working for Denton as an usher.

He later accepted Fenton's invitation to wrestle professionally. Edmonton Eskimos football team hired him in 1952 but he left two years later over a salary dispute and became a full-time wrestler.

He has held just about every title except the world championship.

Kiniski says he made $89,000 in 1957 but has reduced the number of bouts he accepts now—he averages about three a week—for income tax purposes.

He emphasizes that wrestling is not necessarily a good business for all.

"A lot of guys are living on hamburgers, . . . When I eat hamburgers it's because I like them."

Won't Trade Bathgate, This Year

TORONTO (CP)—New York Rangers will not trade star right winger Andy Bathgate this year, coach Red Sullivan said Monday.

"Any and all deals we had pending have fallen through," Sullivan said after the Rangers practised at Maple Leaf Gardens for Wednesday's game against Toronto.

He said Bathgate, in addition to scoring the first goal, "played one of his best games of the season" Saturday night when New York lost 5-2 to the Red Wings in Detroit.

Published reports last week said Bathgate was heading for the Maple Leafs for two National Hockey League players and one from Rochester of the American League. The reports were denied by the Rangers' executive.

Missing Trotter Turns Up

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP)—Portherhouse, one of the Yankee American trotters slated to race in the rich Prix de Amerique Slaker Jan. 26 in Paris, has been found.

For a few hours Monday, Roosevelt Raceway officials wondered whether the horse had been lost in a snowstorm. But at 3:27 p.m. his van rolled into Roosevelt after taking 12 hours to cover the last 25 miles.

Blake Rodney, one of the three who will race in France, hasn't left Washington, Pa. Weather permitting, he is due here in time to leave with Porterhouse Wednesday. The third member of the trio, Elaine Rodney, already is in Paris.

Hadley of Porterhouse said they didn't notify the press because they were so near and kept thinking they would be able to roll along at faster speed, and then stalled by snowdrifts. The horse is Pinehurst, N.C., around noon Sunday.

'Joe, Hank' Share Tops Honors

BALTIMORE (AP)—Joe DiMaggio and Hank Aaron, slugging baseball stars of different eras, shared the honors Monday at the annual Tops in Sports banquet.

Aaron, Milwaukee Braves outfielder who tied with Willie McCovey of San Francisco for home run honors in the majors last season, was presented the Sultan of Swat crown. Each hit 44 during the season.

Junior 'A' Score Lead Unchanged

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Six goals and four assists in three games last week pulled Pete Stemkowski of Toronto Marlboros up to third from fifth place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A scoring race, but the two leaders remained unchanged.

Andre Boudrias of Montreal Canadiens held his 15-point lead with 90 points from 23 goals and 63 assists in 34 games. Linemate Yvan Cournoyer is second with 75 points from 39 goals—the highest in the league—and 32 assists in 32 games.

Stemkowski, who had 57 points the previous week, now has 67 from 27 goals and 40 assists in 30 games.

Chuck Goddard leads the regular goaltenders with 104 goals against in 32 games, an average of 3.25. He also leads in shutouts with four.

RoyEmerson Wins Title

BRISBANE, Australia (AP)—Roy Emerson won his third Australian national singles championship Monday with an easy 80 minute victory over his Australian Davis Cup teammate, Fred Stolle, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2.

The tall, stylish Stolle, runner-up at Wimbledon last year to Chuck McKinley of the United States, had no answer for Emerson's booming serve.

Emerson, individual standout in the recent Davis Cup challenge round with the United States, thus took the early lead in the battle for No. 1 world amateur honors, although a cloud shrouded his future plans. As winner of the Australian title he is the only player with a chance to gain a grand slam that is, capture the Australian, French, Wimbledon and U.S. crowns in a single year.

However, he is involved in a letter dispute with the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia over restrictions on overseas play and is threatening to turn professional.

Petes Edge Wings 6-5

HAMILTON (CP)—Jim Paterson scored goal of the night gave Peterborough Petes a 6-5 victory over Hamilton Red Wings in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A action Monday.

The victory put Petes in sole possession of third place, two points ahead of Niagara Falls Flyers. Hamiltons was left in sixth place, nine points back of Oshawa Generals.

Davey Sharpe also collected two goals for the Petes and single goals were notched by George Godson and Bob Jamieson as the Peterborough team from a 3-1 deficit at the end of the third period to take the game.

Bryan Campbell, Jim Mair, Nick Libett, Real Lemieux and Jim Peters got the Hamilton goals.

Sharpe's two goals in 20 seconds early in the third period tied the score and bounced Peterborough right back into contention. Hamilton took the lead on two later occasions but each time the visitors knotted the count to set the stage for Paterson's winner.

Head-Scratching Statistics

Teen Girls Favor Bowling?

NEW YORK (AP)—What's your guess on the favorite sport of teen-age American girls?

Telephoning? Parking?

All wrong.

It's bowling. At least that's what it says in Seventeen News, a newsletter issued by guess which magazine.

The magazine made a survey of the 1,125,000 U.S. teenagers and came up with the figure that 83.8 per cent of them bowl.

Anybody who would believe that would believe anything.

Actually, there were some pretty strange statements in the survey.

The typical U.S. teen-ager who emerges must live where there is lots of ice and snow, beaches and horses.

THEY RIDE HORSES

For example, the survey said 54.1 per cent ride horses. And 52.8 per cent ride bicycles.

That is pretty good, since only 56.7 per cent own bikes. It didn't say how many own horses.

Some 70.7 per cent ice skate and 54.1 per cent roller skate. One fool at a time, apparently, since only 53.5 per cent own ice skates. Only 22.8 per cent own roller skates.

This stack of statistics was compiled by asking 1,418 teenage girls what sports they like. Apparently their answers were multiplied by 7,816 to make 11,000,000. Statistics like that made Tom Dewey president, for a little while.

Shelley Winters Returns To Old Stamping Grounds

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"It sure doesn't look the same," said Shelley Winters as she returned to her old stamping grounds, Universal studios.

It sure doesn't. The old lot has come a distance from the days when Shelley was starring there in such epics as South Sea Sinner and Saskatchewan. Symbol of the new era is the seven-story addition to the administration building which rises 16 storeys above the clump of bugalows from which the studio was long ruled.

But then, Shelley isn't the same girl. Universal tried unsuccessfully to turn into a sex symbol. She has struggled successfully to establish herself as an actress—her Oscar in 1959 didn't hurt. The result is that she is one of the busiest players in the business.

Shelley just returned from film-making in Italy to do drama for the Bob Hope Chrysler Theatre. She was made up for "Frankenstein."

"I'm playing the same girl I played in A Place in the Sun, only older," she remarked. "How come I have to come to the studio at 6:30 in the morning to look like this? Now if they were going to make me look glamorous, I could understand it."

Shelley is one of the busiest and most travelled actresses, and the situation rankles her somewhat.

"I've got to have an apartment here and an apartment in New York, as well as one in Rome," she said. "Why, oh why don't I have to live the 3,000 miles between the centres of films and of the stage? That's not so in England or Italy or any other country."

Even though she does the major portion of her work in Hollywood, she prefers to make New York her permanent base.

"I've had a lot of concern about being cast too much in the same vein. Having played a bum in the film version of Jean Genet's The Balcony, she is up for the role of the late Isadora Duncan in a film version of the 1920-30 era. The film would be based on the Adler autobiography. A House is Not a Home.

"Genet sent me a letter calling me 'the Dementia 13' of sex," Shelley commented. "I suppose I shouldn't let that talent go to waste."

East Side, West Side One Of Best TV Dramatic Series

BY CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—CBS' East Side, West Side is one of the most interesting of the new television dramatic series. But despite its winning ways, it also is one of the least satisfactory.

It is invariably well acted particularly by George C. Scott, the star. He plays an idealistic social worker with such bite that he often is an episode's most unsympathetic character.

The scripts are thoughtful, usually hard-hitting. Week after week, the writers try to say something meaningful.

Therein, I suspect lies the program's weakness. It is so message-prone that it suffers as a drama.

Monday night's program was typical. It centred on the mother of three young children forced on public relief because her husband, a narcotics addict couldn't hold a job.

Her weekly relief cheque was inadequate and she got a job to supplement it. That led to charges that she was a relief cheater. But, it was hard to make a sympathetic case for the woman because she had lied about working.

NO NEAT ENDING

The other aspect of the program was concerned with the husband. The problem simply had to duck any kind of a neatly tied - up ending of this drama.

We hit the closing commercial, therefore, without knowing whether anybody would go to prison or whether daddy would sign himself into a hospital for the cure. And that's not a satisfactory way to end a dramatic program.

East Side, West Side is among the many programs somewhere between hit and miss whose future will be decided within the next few weeks by the networks, already concentrating on next season's shows.

It looks as if this season will have an extraordinarily high TV death rate. But as usual there are plenty of candidates for replacements around.

Placements around.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For January 15

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Emphasis on social encounters, activity in connection with friends, new and old. Evaluate hopes, wishes. Turn on charm. Show your independence.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Be willing to battle for beliefs. Stand up and be counted. Display energy, confidence - - - permit Taurus determination to show. You are best judge of yourself.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Key is perceiving future. Stress advancement. Don't allow friends to hold you back. Stick to your principles. Good time for contact with public - - engaging in group activities.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) Important that you are firm. Maintain composure - - be true to own beliefs. Ignore one who suggests "easy money" scheme. Take time to be thorough.

Leo (July 23 to August 21) Hold back on committing yourself. Examine potential, various possibilities. Best course is one of deliberation. Resist temptation to rush into controversy. Require reasons.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Pay heed to advice from one who cares about your welfare. Obtain proper rest. Best to stick close to home. Be aware of family requirements. And don't neglect yourself.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Exciting discoveries possible. Be alert, willing to change your mind. Impulsive move by member of opposite sex could catch you off guard. Be ready.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Practical matters may need immediate attention. Permitting things to "slide" will create loss of time, energy and money. Make necessary adjustments, purchases. Act now.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Watch for errors connected with correspondence, meetings, telephone appointments. Best to check twice. Applies also to understanding what people say. Be analytical.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Accept opinion only of qualified individuals. Don't be afraid to ask questions. Seek out all facts then judge for yourself. Exercise caution in spending, agreeing to purchases.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be high. Display initiative and confidence in your abilities, goals. Avoid one who "sings the blues." Fine for shopping, renewing contacts. A night to be seen - - and heard.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) You can now get what you go after. Make sure you are aware of real needs. Avoid being superficial - - - look deep within. Be true to your basic convictions, principles.

If today is your birthday you are musically inclined, possess unusual speaking voice, and can gain much through diplomacy and understanding.

GENERAL TENDENCIES:— Moon-Mars conjunction in Aquarius highlights international news. Hands stretch across the sea - - and reach up into space - - - for historic agreements.

Departmental Hockey

The Police Department and Public Works chalked up victories in Belleville interdepartmental Hockey League games played last night.

Police came from behind to beat the Ontario Intelligencer Inkspots 6-5. The undefeated Public Works team clipped the Public Utilities by an 8-2 score. Spencer, Wood and McLinton potted two goals apiece for the victorious arm of the law. Other Police goals went to Lillie and Skinner.

Jeff Walling hit the hemp twice for the Inkspots with singletons going to Don Wood, Gary Wood and Merv Thompson.

Bradley Lee was the lone two-goal man for Public Works. The loop-leaders also got a goal each from Doug Murray, Gary Reid, Rock Davis, B. Daloe, Semark and Gordie Green.

Barbara, Bob Still Tops In 'Pairs'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Barbara Wagner and Bob Paul, the Toronto figure-skating pair, are still perfecting the art that won four world championships and one Olympic pairs title for Canada.

On Sunday, Barbara and Bob became the first skaters in Canada to achieve the honor of capturing the Canadian bronze, silver and golden pairs medals in proficiency tests at the Kerrisdale Figure Skating Club.

In a marathon exhibition that lasted three-quarters of an hour, they passed all three tests, scoring substantially over the minimum passing marks.

Last Wednesday, Barbara, 25, and Bob, 26, won their American gold test in Seattle, where they were performing as headliners with the Ice Capades professional show.

Writers Around World Find Censor Hard at Work On All Outgoing Dispatches

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The man with the blue pencil still wields away in many parts of the world.

In an annual survey The Associated Press asked its correspondents around the world to report on censorship conditions affecting the free flow of news across International boundaries.

They found the censor hard at work on outgoing dispatches of the world's hotspots in many places on the domestic press, radio and television outlets.

The most reported gains in the constant battle to maintain the flow of information. Others chalked up losses.

In some of the newly independent countries of Africa freedom of the press as known in the Western world became a fine target of fledgling governments. In the turbulent Middle East, governments changed hands but the censor stayed on the job.

But the traditional censor is not the only foe of a free flow of information. Just as effective is censorship at the source by reporters responsible officials to talk to newspaper men — and even to make themselves available to answer questions.

Still another foe is the ideological weapon is "responsibility censorship." This entails reporters demands to reporters for stories after they appear in print. Sometimes there is expulsion or the threat of expulsion from the country.

Overall, these are the findings of the AP correspondents:

SOVIET BLOC

Since 1961 there has been no direct censorship of news from the Soviet Union, but difficulty in getting at news sources remains a major handicap. Requests for interviews may go unanswered for months. Rarely can a correspondent get a telephone call through to a news source—and if he succeeds he often is often rebuked for his efforts.

The entire industrial area of Soviet Russia is off limits to reporters, as are certain parts of Siberia. Even in Moscow there is a long list of subjects which may not be photographed, including public buildings, all bridges and the Lubyanka prison. The area in and around the Kremlin may be photographed.

Correspondents receive frequent to warnings from the press department about certain lines of reporting and the treatment of the press by name for criticism. This is especially the case now in connection with food difficulties.

In Warsaw correspondents find official censorship largely controlled effectively by keeping trusted Communists in key posts. Visas are rarely withdrawn than in the past, but a visa is required if a reporter wants to go beyond the capital into the countryside. Officials are more approachable than in the past but remain the source is carefully weighted in the Communist favor.

Government agencies exercise heavy censorship on newspapers in Poland, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria and Rumania. The bright spot is the growing number of independent magazines which poke fun at officialdom, bureaucracy and holier-than-thou attitudes of Red leadership.

NON - COMMUNIST EUROPE

Portugal exercises no overt censorship but a variety of dispatches, but the authorities receive copies and subtle pressure is applied. Reporters who have voiced criticism of Portuguese policies in Africa have been refused visas to Portugal's African territories.

Spain imposes no censorship on outgoing news but the ministry of information gets copies and at-times expresses irritation. Censorship of the source has eased in the last year. A modified censorship prevails over the domestic press.

Italy is free of direct censorship. The Vatican continues light control as to matters of news but this was relaxed considerably for the ecumenical council.

In France censorship continues at the source. There is a sense of relaxation in the aftermath of the Algerian conflict.

West Germany exercises no press censorship. In West Berlin, news controls can be imposed at any time under the military occupation.

In other West European countries and Scandinavia there is no news censorship.

The situation in Britain remains unchanged, with no censorship or other restrictions.

AFRICA

Newly independent Kenya moved swiftly to put disseminators of news under government control. An official news agency is being operated with the help of Communist-supplied equipment and personnel.

Tanganyika has signed an agreement with Czechoslovakia to aid in establishing an official news agency.

Tight censorship remains in Ghana—no dispatch can be sent out of the country without the censor's stamp. In the case of newspapers considered by the government to be unfriendly, dispatches are rejected without being read.

The situation is entirely different in Nigeria, where there is no censorship of any kind.

In Dahomey there is no direct censorship but three copies of each dispatch must be submitted at the cable office.

In Algeria, at odds with its newly independent neighbors over racial segregation issues, imposes no censorship on outgoing dispatches. But the government has the power to refuse visas to correspondents or withhold work permits. Suspected dispatches are opened by reporters and permits to visit them are seldom granted.

There was no formal censorship of outgoing news in Central Africa in 1963 but because of governmental pressure on reporters, correspondents were forced to curb the day-by-day coverage, the outside world received a considered picture of events.

In Algeria such pressure reduced drastically the free flow of news. Two correspondents were expelled on vague charges of being "a danger to public security." Correspondents in Morocco and Tunisia, but in both countries they are often pressured to withhold before or after filing dispatches.

In general foreign correspondents can file outgoing reports without French-speaking African officials, but local correspondents are subject to constant pressure and control.

MIDDLE EAST

Governments continue to erect blocks against the free flow of news from the Middle East. In the United Arab Republic (Egypt) a constant battle against secrecy and threats.

Dispatches and news from Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Kuwait, Jordan and Lebanon.

The United Arab Republic censorship of outgoing news has been lifted, but censorship at the source is severe. Correspondents are minimal and contacts with foreign newspaper representatives are under pressure on the correspondents has eased considerably. The local press, radio and TV are controlled.

Foreign correspondents in Israel still subject to censorship for deletion of anything affecting the military or security.

The briefing of news has worsened in 1963 with the attempted coup in May. Martial law prevails in Jordan and Ankara. Foreign correspondents can send their dispatches unimpeded but new remains bottled up tightly at the source.

Restraints have eased in Iran. Correspondents have opened offices by a previous regime have been removed. A special board gives advice to editors, however.

ASIA

Communist China exercises no direct censorship on the few Western correspondents permitted to remain. But they are controlled effectively and their travels kept within strict bounds, and most other news sources closed to them. Chinese press and radio are under complete control.

In the wake of deterioration of relations with the United States censorship of news sources became tighter than ever in Cambodia.

South Viet Nam there has been no censorship of outgoing dispatches since martial law was lifted after the Nov. 1 coup. But information from official sources is difficult to get. Most of the serious restrictions on news-gathering imposed by the secret police under the regime of Ngo Dinh Diem now are abolished. Conditions are improved in general.

Hong Kong exercises no direct censorship over local newspapers or foreign correspondents.

In India, dispatches of foreign correspondents are subject to government study after they are sent out. There have been no known instances of cables being held up for scrutiny except in the case of guided visits to forward areas in the China-India border zone, where full military censorship has been applied, often heavily.

Some correspondents have been warned that their stories contained information considered classified.

Foreign correspondents in Burma who cable so-called unofficial reports are under warning they do so at their own risk. Burmese newspapers print only what they get from government.

Malaysia has no censorship of outgoing news. Newspapers operate on year-to-year licenses issued by the government.

Pakistan exercises no censorship of outgoing dispatches but the local press operates with a considerable measure of self-restraint.

Nationalist China does not censor outgoing dispatches but newspapers on Formosa do not criticize government policy.

Japan is free of censorship as to both outgoing dispatches and what appears in newspapers.

Pakistani officials complain privately that often cables of foreign correspondents are read before the U.S. Embassy officials sends them. A number of correspondents have complained that censorship of their cables is mutilated, delayed or lost. But there is no avowed censorship of outgoing news. The Pakistani press operates under a code of don'ts.

In 1962 the Ceylon government imposed censorship on two occasions but lifted it early in 1963. Top officials are difficult to approach.

Indirect censorship has slackened considerably in Indonesia since the end of martial law in May.

Restraints popped up at times in Venezuela during 1963, but on the whole situation is showing improvement.

Brazil is relatively free of censorship.

Outgoing dispatches were free from censorship in Argentina. Censorship was applied on local media under state-of-siege regulations passed under the coup. Also other provisions of the 1853 Constitution.

Stiff censorship was imposed on outgoing news in Ecuador at the time of the July army coup but the free flow of news by transmission abroad was restored.

Foreign reporters in Chile are still subject to censorship responsibility censorship during 1963. Freedom of the press was maintained.

Peru, Mexico, Colombia and Bolivia were among other Latin American nations where the free flow of news was not obstructed.

The situation in Cuba is pretty much the same—restrictions are LEGION BRANCH INSTALLS OFFICERS

The regular monthly meeting of Tweed Branch of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Royal Canadian Legion, No. 428, was held in the Legion Hall on Thursday night. The meeting was presided over by the president, Miss Golde Godfrey. After the opening ceremonies, members were welcomed the Zone Commander, Mrs. Grace Delyea of Bancroft, and two other visitors from Bancroft. After the business part of the meeting Zone Commander Mrs. Delyea installed the officers for 1964 as follows:

Past president, Miss Golde Godfrey; president, Mrs. Betty Long; first vice-president, Mrs. Pauline Courneyea; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Ila McConnachie; secretary, Mrs. Norma Whalen; treasurer, Mrs. Ruth Bonter; executive, Mrs. Edna Blake; executive officers, Mrs. Grace Parks, Mrs. Gladys Austin and Mrs. Helena LaVallee.

After the installation Mrs. Long thanked the Zone Commander for her fine work. Miss Godfrey presented Mrs. Delyea with a small gift in appreciation. The draw prize was won by Mrs. Fletcher of Bancroft. After the meeting a lunch was served and a social hour enjoyed.

The next meeting will be placed on communications from time to time, and foreign correspondents are usually restricted in Havana.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids . . . and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

One hemorrhoidal case reports after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these same sufferers were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that the hemorrhoids were maintained over a period of

The substance is now available in suppositories or ointment form with the name Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with special applicator).

Troops Surrendering Care of Alaska Highway

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—On April 1, 1946, the Canadian Army took over the U.S. Army responsibility for year-round maintenance of the 1,221.6 miles of Alaska Highway that lie in Canadian territory.

This spring the army will turn over this task to the federal works department. For northerners, the significance may be that the army can't ask for money to pave roads—but the works department can.

On March 17-18, 1943, Canada and the U.S. signed an agreement for construction of a highway from Dawson Creek, B.C., to Fairbanks, Alaska, a distance of 1,523.4 miles through some of the most rugged territory in North America.

The highway — officially, the Northwest Highway System — was built and used strictly for military purposes during the war.

It now has immeasurably more importance as a road to resources and settlement, communications link and tourist attraction. In an average summer, some 30,000 vehicles now pass through Mile 917 (Whitehorse, Y.T.) where the system has its headquarters. Some 5,000 vehicles pass through the custom post at the Yukon-Alaska border.

In addition to the main highway, the army maintains seven access roads to the emergency landing fields of the Northwest Staging route, 172 miles in all, and the 117 Canadian miles of the Haines cut-off from Haines Junction, Y.T., to Haines, Alaska.

Some sections of the highway are paved, the main one being between Dawson Creek and Fort St. John, B.C., a distance of 51 miles. More and more pavement is expected to be laid as time goes on.

There are 185 bridges, 72 of them permanent, on the highway and 29 on the Haines cut-off.

One of the most dramatic incidents in the history of the highway was the collapse of the suspension bridge across the Peace River at Taylor, B.C., Oct. 17, 1957, because of a landslide on the north shore of the river. The new trestle bridge was opened in 1960.

The army lists at least 60 stops where the traveller can obtain food, gas or lodging and ditch all three. It adds in its brochure: "Travellers should note that not all highway lodges and motels remain open during the winter months."

Elopements Not Invited By Doing Household Chores

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — In your book, "Teen-Agers and Sex," you suggest that young girls should scrub floors, wash dishes and do other household chores to take their minds off boys. It's your theory that they can work off excess energy by "helping mother."

A few weeks ago I heard a psychologist lecture on the motivation for teen-age marriages. He said most teen-age marriages are sanctified by mothers who impose household duties on their daughters. He said it is permissable for a mother to ask her daughter to help on the maid's day out, but the teen-age girl who must repeatedly perform a mother's job finally says, "Well, if I can do it for her I can do it for myself."

The result is a speedy marriage, a fast pregnancy and a quick divorce. What do you have to say now, Ann Landers? — POINT OF CLARITY.

DEAR POINT — You didn't hear correctly or you misunderstood the speaker.

No psychologist would assume that a maid is built in to the average family household. This is absurd.

And no psychologist would discourage children from helping around the house since this is how children develop a sense of responsibility.

The mother who is domineering may find herself with a rebellious daughter who runs off to escape her mother's demands. But children who are taught early to pitch in and not merely serve as ornaments grow up to be self-respecting, responsible individuals. And they are not likely to elope if they are asked to vacuum the living room rug.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — A friend of mine is an extremely attractive brunette. She was born and raised in Europe but has spent the last 10 years in the United States.

This woman has beautiful taste in clothes, a lovely figure, is well-groomed in every respect, except one. She has more hair on her legs than my husband has on his.

I've heard several people make unkind comments about this and it makes me feel guilty because I haven't the nerve to tell her to do somthing about it.

If you say "Go ahead" I will. What's your advice? — FRAIDY CAT.

DEAR FRAIDY — You didn't say your friend was blind so I assume her vision is all right. Surely she has observed the difference between her legs and those of her friends. Apparently, what is considered an essential part of good grooming to most women does not matter to her.

Each of us is responsible for two legs — our own. So Fraidy, keep quiet.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I went steady with Sylvester for almost two years. We were engaged seven months ago. The understanding was that I would marry him if he would stop drinking.

Well, he hasn't stopped. All that has changed is that he comes to the house smelling of candy mints, mouth wash — anything he can think of to try to fool me.

I told Sylvester Sunday that our engagement is off. His only comment was, "Give me back the ring."

I said I wanted to keep the ring because I had earned it. He answered, "When a girl breaks the engagement she is supposed to return the ring."

The engagement is off because of him. He didn't keep his promise about drinking, so therefore I should keep the ring. Right? — ENTITLED.

DEAR ENTITLED — which you are not — You broke the engagement because Sylvester failed to live up to his promise. Return the ring and consider yourself lucky to have unwound from the situation. It had all the ingredients for Big Trouble.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Rambler doesn't have what it takes to make a rattle

EXCLUSIVE ALL-WELDED SINGLE UNIT CONSTRUCTION ELIMINATES BODY BOLTS THAT LOOSEN UP WITH TIME

In the old method of car construction the body is bolted to a frame. In time, body-bolts work loose, causing the squeaks and rattles that are the bane of every motorist.

Twenty-three years ago, we pioneered a new method of building cars. We welded the entire car into one solid unit. Without body-bolts, squeaks and rattles were virtually eliminated. Called Single-Unit construction, it offered a stronger, longer-wearing car. The rest of the automotive industry is just beginning to adopt this superior method. But even when they do, Rambler will still be ahead.

Two years ago we introduced Uniside, an improvement on Single-Unit construction. Now the entire sides of a Rambler are stamped out of single sheets of steel. By reducing the number of welds and cutting down the possibility of error, it provides a more perfect door fit and an even more rugged car body.

Exceptional and exclusive features like this provide Rambler with everything it takes to make Canada's best car value. Visit your Rambler dealer soon and see what we mean.

P. M. In France To Meet De Gaulle

Many Issues On Agenda In Official Visit

Canadian Air Bases To Be Inspected

PARIS (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson flew into Paris today for talks with President de Gaulle and expressed the wish that France remain a strong and clear voice in NATO.

Pearson, accompanied by External Affairs Minister Martin, was greeted on arrival by Prime Minister Georges Pompidou who said he hopes the four-day visit of the Canadian prime minister will strengthen economic and cultural ties between Canada and France.

The state visit to France almost certainly marks the beginning of a new emphasis on Franco-Canadian links.

One impulse in that direction is Canada's increasing awareness of her bicultural nature. When Pearson visited London last summer, he promised that before long he would be going to Canada's "other" mother country, France.

The visit also underlines the changing pattern of power relationships in Europe. France, slow to recover from her 1940 defeat, is rapidly recovering her old self - confidence and de Gaulle's aggressive policies make her an important, if often awkward, ally.

Diplomats in Paris say Quebec is "reaching out" increasingly to France as part of its current ferment. During his stay here Pearson will visit the official Quebec provincial government office, headed by Charles Lussier. The office is known as "la delegation generale." Offi-

Wants Hike In Basic Exemptions

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Farmers Union suggested today that the basic exemptions for personal income tax should be raised by 50 per cent.

The NFU, representing 85,000 farm families, told the royal commission on taxation that basic exemptions haven't risen since 1949 and in the meantime the cost of living has continued to climb. The present rate of $1,000 for a single person should be boosted to $1,500 and the exemption for a married couple should be increased to $3,000 from $2,000.

At the same time, it was rec-

Liz' Lawyer Unhappy About Proceedings for Her Divorce

PUERTO VALLARTA, Mexico (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor's suit to divorce Eddie Fisher surely will not be settled" in time for her to marry Richard Burton in Mexico, "one of her lawyers said today.

Miss Taylor filed for divorce in Puerto Vallarta Tuesday, charging that Fisher abandoned our legal domicile more than a year ago and we have lived separated since without his having started any action to dissolve our marriage." "

Burton must leave Puerto Vallarta by Jan. 23 for Toronto to begin rehearsing stage production of Hamlet. Miss Taylor is to go with him, and they had hoped to marry before leaving Mexico.

But Antonio Valenuela, one of her lawyers, said the divorce surely will not be settled before Mr. Burton's departure."

Judge Arnaldo Ochoa, with whom the suit was filed, gave Fisher 21 days to reply, Valenuela said he would fly to Mexico City today with the papers calling on Fisher to reply and airmail them to another lawyer for Miss Taylor, Milton Rudin of Los Angeles. Rudin is to deliver them to Clark County, Nev., sheriff's office for delivery to Fisher, filling a singing engagement in Las Vegas.

Fisher had no comment on his wife's action, although he said Monday he was not "contemplating any difficulties" for Miss Taylor.

Miss Taylor and Burton, secluded in the cliffside home they rented in Puerto Vallarta since September, declined to talk to reporters.

If Fisher files no answer to Miss Taylor's suit, a decree could not be granted until after the 21-day period. If he contests the divorce, Clark's jurisdiction would follow, Valenuela said.

The lawyer added that if Fisher filed an answer quickly consenting to the divorce, that would expedite Miss Taylor's decree. But he apparently thought this could not transpire before Burton's scheduled departure date.

Miss Taylor's suit said she and Fisher own community property to dispose of "because we never acquired any." But Rudin said in Los Angeles negotiations still were in progress to settle division of her profits from the movie Cleopatra.

Before Burton came on the scene, Miss Taylor and Fisher formed a small Swiss firm to handle her 10-per-cent end of the film's gross. There are estimates that her assets will run between $2,000,000 and $7,000,000.

While making the movie, Miss Taylor and Burton carried their screen roles as lovers into real life and Fisher left her in Rome.

In her suit Miss Taylor asked custody of her daughter by the late Mike Todd, Liza, whom Fisher legally adopted. The suit did not mention her two sons by actor Michael Wilding, whom Fisher did not adopt, nor the German girl Maria that she and Fisher adopted.

Relations Resumed In Zone

PANAMA CITY, Panama (Reuters) — The United States and Panama agreed early today to resume diplomatic relations as quickly as possible" and then review the whole problem of the canal.

A Panamanian source said formal discussions on the 50-year-old canal treaty would begin 30 days after relations were restored.

Panama broke off relations with the U.S. last week, charging the United States with aggression" after three American soldiers and 21 Panamanians were killed in a night of mob violence. Hundreds of Americans and Panamanians were wounded.

Panamanian students rioted and stormed into the Canal Zone in protest against violation of an agreement between the two countries to fly their flags side by side. U.S. troops were called out to restore order.

A communique issued by the Inter-American Peace Committee, a mission of the Organization of American States, said discussions on the Canal Treaty would cover all existing matters of any nature which may affect the relations between Panama and the U.S."

Wide latitude

The wording of the communique did not specify that the Canal Treaty was a subject to be discussed. But Panama has insisted on a review which would appear to cross within the meaning of all existing matters."

The communique said the committee noted with satisfaction the re-establishment of the peace which is an indispensable condition for understanding and negotiation between the parties."

It said that as a consequence, the committee, invited the parties to resume relations as quickly as possible," and the parties agreed to accept the invitation.

WILL STAND FAT

Panamanian President Roberto Chiari's press officer, Fabio Arosemena, said his government would wait awhile, perhaps a week, to let things cool off" before resuming relations with the United States.

He said Panama then would ask a third government to advise Washington of its desire to restore relations. The intermediary is expected to be Costa Rica, named to handle Panama's affairs in Washington during the crisis.

The agreement was reached by the two governments through the Organization of the peace mission. Both countries sent special representatives to the committee.

Observers said Panama would surely seek a larger cash annuity from canal revenue in any review of the treaty. The present annuity is $1,930,000.

But they said this would make it necessary to raise the present toll for ships.

Though all operating costs have risen greatly since the canal opened to commerce 50 years ago, the toll rates never have increased.

Naming of three new select committees — on youth affairs, problems of the aged, and mineral resources.

Gross Provincial Product Up Six Per Cent Last Year

TORONTO (CP) — A period of economic prosperity for Ontario that began in 1961 has been the longest since the end of the Second World War, the government said today.

The speech from the throne read at the opening of the Ontario legislature said the gross provincial product in Ontario rose by six per cent in 1963 to $18,000,000,000.

Unemployment in the province throughout the year averaged 3.8 per cent compared to a national average of 5.6 per cent. And personal income rose 5% per cent.

The over-all growth of the economy continued at a rapid pace in 1963 and this is expected to continue in 1964," the speech said.

The government applauded the results of its Ontario trade mission, saying it was one of the most successful programs ever adopted by government." Export of merchandise from Ontario were almost nine per cent higher in 1963 than in the previous year. Imports, by comparison, were up only slightly.

The speech said the government plans to further intensify its trade promotion efforts, instituting a new program of taking part in national and international trade shows. This would be done in co-operation with the federal government.

The provincial government also wold sponsor a series of community clinics for trade expansion and hold a seminar for municipal industrial commissioners.

The Ontario Economic Council would broaden its work, "especially in the field of long-range planning to ensure consistent economic growth for Ontario over the long term." The Ontario Development Agency, which provides advisory services to smaller firms in the provinces, would extend its services during the fiscal year.

The speech said Ontario would resist attempts to divide us through economic competition among the provinces. . . Every Canadian has a stake in maintaining the national market and the benefits from industrial specialization."

Unemployment Number Cut By 68,000 From Year Ago

OTTAWA (CP)—An estimated 346,000 persons in Canada were unemployed in mid-December, 68,000 fewer than a year earlier, the labor department and bureau of statistics said today in a joint report.

The report said four-fifths of the decrease was among men aged 25 to 64.

The December figure was 43,000 higher than in mid-November, but the report described this as "an unusually small increase for the time of year." The rise was entirely among men.

As a percentage of the estimated labor force, the December jobless rate was 5.1 percent compared with 6.3 per cent a year earlier, and 6.4 per cent two years earlier. The mid-November rate was 4.5 per cent.

The job picture in brief, with estimates in thousands:

	Dec. Nov.	Dec.	Dec.
	1963	1963	1962
Labor Force	6,774	6,709	6,674
Employed	6,428	6,496	6,360
Unemployed	346	303	414

The monthly report is based on a survey of 35,000 households across Canada for the week

Blizzard Kills 140 In U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — Bitter cold added woe to misery today as the eastern half of the United States continued to dig out of its worst snowstorm of the winter.

Thousands of motorists and others were stranded and more than 140 deaths were blamed on the blizzard-like onslaught.

New York City sanitation men, 8,000 strong, were bolstered by 3,000 extras hired at $2 an hour to shovel snow from streets.

Manhattan's Great White Way was just that.

In the south, Florida citrus growers prepared heaters for the lowest temperatures—23 in Jacksonville and 42 in Miami Beach—since the crop - killing freeze 13 months ago.

Temperatures dropped elsewhere also — to 11 below zero early today in Albany, N.Y. Biting winds made it seem even colder.

Scores died from overexertion or exposure as they shovelled snow, tried to dig out stuck autos or trudged through the deep expanse of white.

On a Raleigh, N.C., street, Michael N. Sumney, 6, was killed when his sled ran under a truck.

Among thousands marooned by the storm were hundreds of motorists in Indiana, Illinois and on New York City's Belt Parkway. Buses rescued the latter group. The others began to move again as conditions eased.

Also stranded were 3,000 persons including many Canadians at New York's Kennedy International Airport, which delayed, cancelled or diverted 775 flights.

Youngstown, Ohio, got 16 inches of snow, heaviest in six years; Albany, N.Y., got 15 inches, heaviest 24-hour fall for any January on record; Washington, D.C., received nine inches, heaviest in more than five years.

The cold weather covered nearly all sections of the country, with temperatures generally freezing except in southern Florida, southern Texas, the extreme southwestern areas and along the Pacific Coast.

Sub-zero cold hit sections in New England and upstate New York and in scattered parts of the midwest and in the mountain areas in the west. One of the lowest marks was 20 below zero in Lebanon, N.H. The temperature edged to near freezing in Phoenix, Ariz.

New Portfolios Announced At House Opening

Financial Assistance Given to Universities

TORONTO (CP) — A shake-up involving the establishment of two new departments and re-organization of several others was announced today by the Ontario government.

One of the new departments will be a department of university affairs, set up to act as a liaison between the provincial government and the universities of Ontario.

The Progressive Conservative government will also establish a Crown corporation to help universities finance development programs. A University of Guelph will be established with a new arts college.

The other new department will be known as the department of energy and resources management, to include the existing department of energy and a conservation branch of the department of lands and forests.

The changes were announced in the speech from the throne read at the opening of the second session of the 27th legislature by Lieutenant - Governor Earl Rowe.

TV LIVE COVERAGE

The opening ceremonies were televised throughout Ontario by the CBC, marking the first time TV cameras were allowed inside the legislative chamber.

Premier Robarts's shake - up will likely necessitate the appointment of two new ministers. A cabinet shuffle seemed likely.

The speech also disclosed that the department of travel and publicity will be renamed the department of tourism and in-

Jobless At New Low In Feb.

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has been told that unemployment in February — generally the worst month in the year —will likely be lower than in any other February since 1957, reliable sources said Tuesday.

This bright outlook for the unemployment situation, continuing a trend that began some months ago, is reported to have been made in a confidential forecast prepared by government economists.

It says unemployment next month may be around 310,000. This would be 35,000 lower than last February and 209,000 under the post-war winter peak of unemployment in February, 1961.

If the forecast proves true, sources say, it could mean a seasonally - adjusted unemployment rate of 5.1 per cent in February.

This would put February unemployment at the same level as in November, when the seasonally-adjusted rate of 5.1 per cent continued a downward trend from its mid-summer high point.

This rate is the number of unemployed expressed as a percentage of the labor force, then adjusted to compensate for seasonal factors. Since June, this percentage has shown a steady decline from six per cent.

Ghana Runs Into Deep Troubles On Marxist Road Nkrumah Picks

ACCRA, Ghana (AP) — Along the road to Marxism the country Kwame Nkrumah is running into trouble.

Repeated attempts to kill "the redeemer" help build up an atmosphere of crisis. So do the lists of political prisoners. The economy is in trouble, too.

Thousands of extra police have been called in since a bomb assassin tried to kill Nkrumah with a bomb in August, 1962. Last month grenades in Accra are searched at roadblocks.

The government reported another attempt on Nkrumah two weeks ago. The removal of Police Commissioner Erans in Madjitey and eight other senior officers followed.

An opposition member said in parliament last year that there were more than 1,000 political prisoners in the country. No one on the benches of the ruling Convention People's Party disputed it. The latest attack on Nkrumah has added to the number behind bars.

The doctrine of class struggle is stressed almost daily in newspaper editorials using such phrases as "revolutionary proletariat" and "national bourgeoisie."

"Kwame Nkrumah is to Africa today what Lenin meant to the Soviet Union in 1917," Defence Minister Kofi Baako has told reporters.

The dynamic son of a village goldsmith wields virtually dictatorial power over some 7,000,000 countrymen. His plans for social, political and economic progress are occasionally have met opposition. He sees in such opposition a justification for "emergency measures of a totalitarian kind," including a Preventive Detention Act.

The ruling party promotes militant socialism. Much domestic conflict seems to have resulted from attempts to fit it by intellectuals, businessmen and members of tribal elements.

The Kwame Nkrumah Institute for Economics and Politics has been created Kwame Nkrumah Ideological Institute, ostensibly is being revamped to train party cadres under one-party rule.

The economy, sailing smoothly just six months ago, has sprung a leak.

Prices rose 20 per cent in 18 months. Wage ceilings have allowed no pay increases for two years. There have been brief shortages in Accra of such commodities as flour and sugar.

The $700,000,000 new egg Ghana inherited from Britain on gaining independence in 1957, is down to $140,000,000.

"About everything that could go wrong has gone wrong," says one businessman in this West African capital.

Teachers Heart of System Federation Is Advised

Your most immediate, vital public relations job is to create your own identity, determine the direction you want to follow, follow it, and find your own fulfillment as a person, Mr. Charles W. Tisdall, managing director of Tisdall, Clarke and Lesly Limited, Toronto, one of the leading public relations counselling organizations in Canada, told the members of Belleville Association of the Women Teachers' Federation and their guests on Tuesday evening at Tabernacle United Church.

A French buffet supper was enjoyed by the teachers and representatives from the school board, rural schools. Separate schools, Secondary schools, and the nurses' registry.

"You know as well as I do that the teacher has traditionally lived in a community fishbowl where her personal life was severely limited by regulations and every departure from accepted action was ammunition for the town gossip. This has affected you in your approach to responsibility and to public relations. Today while the more onerous restrictions of personal life have largely disappeared, have a feeling that true prestige still eludes you.

"The public relations of Federation, of the profession and of teachers begins with you. You are the heart of the educational system and my ideals for my children can be realized only if you are well-informed, enthusiastic and dedicated to your work.

TEACHER SETS SPARK

"I believe that members of the profession, conscious of their social responsibility, can be leaders of the biggest importance and a better educated Canada. If a pupil's mind catches fire it is almost invariably the teacher who sets the spark.

"When you accept your role as leaders, and followers in education, in a mature articulate fashion, then the public relations of the profession are in turn enhanced and strengthened.

"Our vital need is for each of us to learn to face up more realistically to change. Consider some of the newer developments on the educational horizon; such things as television and team teaching, or programmed instruction, or even attempts to pay truly outstanding classroom teachers the exceptional salaries which they deserve.

"The other vital need which you must face up to is that there has never been a more education conscious country than we have in Canada today. Education is a peculiarly public profession, and major decisions affecting schools are made public through their legislatures and through their school boards.

"You must think and speak more clearly and more forcefully in seeking needed public understanding and support for your work."

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Dorothy Blakely and appreciation was expressed by Mrs. June Sine. Miss Alice Hanahan presented Mr. Tisdale with a gift from the association.

Mrs. Helen Calnan, president of the Belleville Association in-troduced the guests at the head table.

GIVEN CERTIFICATES

Six retired teachers who had taught for 40 years or more received certificates lettered in gold. Miss Lillian Hart, Miss Fay Young, Miss Grace Tucker and Miss Jane South were presented to receive their certificates.

Miss K. MacPherson and Miss Ethel Nourse of the O.S.D. were given their certificates in absentia. Mrs. Laura Ragsdale read the inscription, and Miss Daisy Young made the presentations to each of them.

Miss Elaine Bronson of Queen Alexandra school was selected to attend the Federation conference in Toronto. Miss Sue anne Palmer was given the award for public relations.

Mrs. Dorothy Reynolds contributed two piano solos to the program.

Thanks to all who had contributed to the evening were expressed by Miss Naomi Hoard.

Y Basketball

Quinte Teachers and Holloway both staged comebacks to rack up wins in Men's League basketball action at the YMCA last night.

The Teachers, behind until the dying moments, pulled out a 51-49 decision over Pollocks. Holloway, trailing 24-19 at half time, topped the C.N.R. 49-45.

Pollocks, playing five men to the Teachers' eight, led 24-19 at half time, and were never behind until the final minutes. The victory was king pin in the Teacher's attack with 22 points. Brydson had eight, Dave Bell seven, Bruce four, Gord Mutle, five, Urbyshuk three, Jack Sisson two and Ian Houchin one.

Ian Houchin led Pollocks with 18 points and Graham Pollard left for 12. Terry Parker hooped seven, George Campbell and Don MacPherson six each.

Ron Denyes sparked the Holloway comeback with 21 points. Don Wilson bagged eight, Ross Clarke six, Larry Gerow and John Emerson four each and Larry Campbell two.

Larry Campbell was top man for the C.N.R. with 12 points. Bob Doxtator got nine, Ken Thompson eight, Mike Vigrass four and Ed Sherwin a pair.

The second league games will be played on Tuesday, January 28.

Reason Behind the Decision To Alter Canada's Defence Policy Outlined by Temple

The reasoning behind the government's decision to change its defence policy was to contribute to the best and most effective means of collective defence for the free world and the maintenance of peace in the years ahead Hastings South Member of Parliament, Robert Temple, told gatherings of international newsmen and Public Relations executives in New York this week.

Mr. Temple, Liberal member of Canada's All Party Defence Steering Committee, spoke to the American Public Relations Society and the International Reporting Seminar of the Columbia University School of Journalism on Wednesday. Thursday he took part in discussions with widely-known political pollsters Lou Harris and Samuel Lubell before the winter meeting of the Graduate School of Journalism, Columbia University Alumni.

RELATIVELY STABLE

Mr. Temple speaking from a prepared text said: "The size of Canada's defence budget has been relatively stable over the past six years. However, military manpower increased to 124,000 and the quantity of equipment programs were initiated.

A study of defence budgets of other nations, suggests that if adequate forces are to be maintained, Canada's defence budget should, over the long term, provide 2-2.5 % for the purchase of new equipment.

However, insofar as Canada is concerned, there has been an important change in the pattern of defence spending. In 1952-53, (the peak year for defence operations and maintenance) represented 45% of the total — by 1962 this had dropped to 31% Allowing for the effect of increased prices, in terms of real purchasing power, the figure five dollars available in 1952-53, only three were available in 1962-63. This has resulted in the postponement of certain major equipment programs from year to year, particularly in the case of the Navy and Army. If this trend continues it is obvious that the navy is not too far off when there will be no funds available for equipment.

This has led to the urgent need for review of all aspects of Canada's defence. The aim is to find ways and means of reducing overhead costs in both operations and maintenance costs so that a redirection of expenditures can be achieved to improve Canada's defensive capability. This is not a simple task. It requires a searching study of various ways to achieve the purposes and a careful cost-effectiveness analysis of the components of the defence program. The end objective is to get the best return for each defence dollar spent.

REVIEW POLICY

To do this it is essential to examine critically each element of the defence program in terms of its cost and its contribution to collective defence.

For this reason, the Minister of National Defence has undertaken a review of defence policy and commitments in order to determine the best and most effective contribution which can be made to the collective defence of the free world and the maintenance of peace in the years ahead.

This review is covering a vast spectrum of studies — possible areas of integration — operation and maintenance activities — and it is hoped that when the final results are known, every Canadian will know that the decisions taken represent the best advice available on the methods that Canada should adopt in the next few years to meet her commitments.

Certain reports in the press it would appear that the U.S. Secretary of Defence, Mr. McNamara, is faced with similar problems. Although everyone is anxious to see the defence budget reduced, to individual Member of Parliament in Canada, or Member of Congress in the United States, wishes it to happen in his particular area, especially if it results in closing out of established bases and the loss of income to families residing there.

Another aspect of the review was the setting up of the Parliamentary Special Committee on Defence which was given power to consider matters relating to defence and to report, from time to time, to Parliament its observations and recommendations.

The committee was made up of 24 members with all parties in the House being represented and it was to call for persons, witnesses, papers and records and to examine witnesses.

It is interesting to note that this committee was given the power to hear briefs from the various Chiefs of Staff and to question them in much the same way as the Congressional Committee on Defence in the United States.

This committee, of which I was fortunate enough to be a member, commenced sitting June 18, 1963, and met regularly to hear in addition to the Chiefs of Staff, former officers of the services, scientists and others. It also visited the Canadian forces in Europe, NORAD headquarters, the Canadian forces in Canada and was able, through its Chairman, Hon. Paul Hellyer, to report on December 20, 1963, before the House adjourned, on several major recommendations.

I think this was a very worthwhile effort and although the committee was made up of members from all parties, the House of Commons the conclusions and recommendations reached were unanimous. This House will have one, felt I learned a great deal about Canada's defence problems and the many difficult issues not only the Service Chiefs but the Minister and the Government have to face when it comes to determining what Canada's contribution should be to the collective security of the free world. For a country of your size, the problem is much more complex, I realize.

WILL PRESENT PAPER

The Minister of National Defence intends to present his White Paper—the name given to the Government's statement submitted to the House of Commons, and the public—in the Spring. This paper will probably February, when the next session of Parliament reconvenes. This Paper will reflect the decisions taken on the various studies now under way, and those that have already been taken, as well as the options available. It will set out the roles and tasks Canada feels she can and must play in world affairs and her economic ability to meet these commitments in the years ahead.

As a Canadian I say again what a pleasure it has been to be asked to speak to you today and I can only hope that I have given you an insight into Canada's defence problems. For a country that is geographically larger than the United States but with less than 10% of the populations, I feel that Canada is playing her part on the team.

Obituary

MRS. EVANS WEESE
Carrying Place - Michigan

The funeral of Mrs. Anne Weese of Carrying Place, was held on Monday afternoon from St. John's Anglican Church, Carrying Place, conducted by Rev. A. Semple.

Interment was in Carrying Place cemetery.

Bearers were: George Lavour, Vernon Westfall, William Hendricks, William Hanthorne, Scottie Campbell and Elmer Bonter.

In failing health for the past two years, Mrs. Weese died at her residence in Carrying Place, on Thursday, January 9. She was in her 78th year.

Born in Carrying Place, she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Fitzgerald. He had spent her entire lifetime living at her residence in Carrying Place and that of her son in Highland Park, Detroit, Michigan. She was predeceased by her husband, Evans Weese.

She was a member of St. John's Anglican Church, Carrying Place, and a member of the Anglican Guild of St. John's. She was also a member member of the Order of the Eastern Star, Highland Park, Michigan. She was well known and highly respected in the Carrying Place community.

Also surviving is a niece, Mrs. Fitzgerald (Violet) Wilson.

Funeral arrangement were under the direction of the Weaver Funeral Home, Trenton.

Jaycees Hope To Form Branch At Trenton

The members of the Kingston Junior Chamber of Commerce recovered the charter the Jaycees sign last night. It was presented by Jaycee Jim Bryce from the Kingston Jaycee office during the District Board meeting in Kingston last November, and somehow the sign was discovered in Belleville. District President Gerald Adams of Belleville, returned the sign to Jerry Baker, Bob Smith and Glen Morrow all of Kingston, at last night's "Past Presidents' Night" dinner meeting.

A Jaycee junior says provides that when one Jaycee club folds itself with another Jaycee Club's property, the club that lost it is notified and must send a delegate to attend a regular meeting of the club in possession of the missing property. If the folded Jaycees are missing anything this morning, they have to attend a Kingston meeting to get it back.

Plans were settled last night for a move to open a branch in the Jaycees in Trenton. A Belleville Jaycee committees consisting of Zeke Kvarda, Barry Crew, Don Bayne and Ray Bate has written industries and merchants in Trenton, asking that interested persons and members turn out to an orientation meeting Jan. 27 in Trenton. The Belleville group will meet in Trenton that evening, and Zeke has been taken to form a Trenton branch.

Speaker of the evening was Group Captain Ernest M. Butcher, Commanding Officer of Air Station Trenton. Group Captain Butcher outlined the function, activities and equipment of Air Transport Command.

Teachers Heart of System Federation Is Advised

Your most immediate, vital public relations job is to create your own identity, determine the direction you want to follow, follow it, and find your own fulfillment as a person, Mr. Charles W. Tisdall, managing director of Tisdall, Clarke and Lesly Limited, Toronto, one of the leading public relations counselling organizations in Canada, told the members of Belleville Association of the Women Teachers' Federation and their guests on Tuesday evening at Tabernacle United Church.

A French buffet supper was enjoyed by the teachers and representatives from the school board, rural schools. Separate schools, Secondary schools, and the nurses' registry.

"You know as well as I do that the teacher has traditionally lived in a community fishbowl where her personal life was severely limited by regulations and every departure from accepted action was ammunition for the town gossip. This has affected you in your approach to responsibility and to public relations. Today while the more onerous restrictions of personal life have largely disappeared, have a feeling that true prestige still eludes you.

"The public relations of Federation, of the profession and of teachers begins with you. You are the heart of the educational system and my ideals for my children can be realized only if you are well-informed, enthusiastic and dedicated to your work.

TEACHER SETS SPARK

"I believe that members of the profession, conscious of their social responsibility, can be leaders of the biggest importance and a better educated Canada. If a pupil's mind catches fire it is almost invariably the teacher who sets the spark.

"When you accept your role as leaders, and followers in education, in a mature articulate fashion, then the public relations of the profession are in turn enhanced and strengthened.

"Our vital need is for each of us to learn to face up more realistically to change. Consider some of the newer developments on the educational horizon; such things as television and team teaching, or programmed instruction, or even attempts to pay truly outstanding classroom teachers the exceptional salaries which they deserve.

"The other vital need which you must face up to is that there has never been a more education conscious country than we have in Canada today. Education is a peculiarly public profession, and major decisions affecting schools are made public through their legislatures and through their school boards.

"You must think and speak more clearly and more forcefully in seeking needed public understanding and support for your work."

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Dorothy Blakely and appreciation was expressed by Mrs. June Sine. Miss Alice Hanahan presented Mr. Tisdale with a gift from the association.

Mrs. Helen Calnan, president of the Belleville Association introduced the guests at the head table.

GIVEN CERTIFICATES

Six retired teachers who had taught for 40 years or more received certificates lettered in gold. Miss Lillian Hart, Miss Fay Young, Miss Grace Tucker and Miss Jane South were presented to receive their certificates.

Miss K. MacPherson and Miss Ethel Nourse of the O.S.D. were given their certificates in absentia. Mrs. Laura Ragsdale read the inscription, and Miss Daisy Young made the presentations to each of them.

Miss Elaine Bronson of Queen Alexandra school was selected to attend the Federation conference in Toronto. Miss Sue anne Palmer was given the award for public relations.

Mrs. Dorothy Reynolds contributed two piano solos to the program.

Thanks to all who had contributed to the evening were expressed by Miss Naomi Hoard.

Contractor Unaware of Law Governing Ditch Excavation Safety, Coroner's Jury Told

Belleville contractor Jack Lambert told a coroner's inquest Tuesday he was aware of a law governing trench excavation safety.

Witnesses of that law were quoted this morning relating to a cave-in at the Tops Chocolate plant which occurred, took the lives December 11 of Douglas Cronkright, 33, and 20-year-old Patrick Black.

Cited before coroner Dr. J. Russell Scott and his jury was the Trench Excavators' Protection Act.

City trenching inspector Ronald Dafoe, referring to the law, said he had not been informed of the sewer project.

Mr. Lambert, metal contractor on the fatal sewer ditch excavation, told Crown Attorney John Farrell he was not acquainted with the provisions of the act.

Until the day of the accident I didn't know the Trench Excavators' Act was in existence," he said.

Mr. Lambert was the last witness called before the inquest adjourned at noon until 1:30 p.m. His was also the lengthiest testimony given the inquest to that time.

PROTECTED BY COURT

Before he began his evidence Dr. Scott declared: "I might add that Mr. Lambert has now have the protection of this court . . . This is a fact-finding inquest and all we are interested in is the facts".

At the end of his testimony, after questioning from the Crown Attorney and various members of the jury, the coroner told him: "Thank you very much. We appreciate your straightforwardness".

Mr. Lambert outlined his position, undertaking the entire job" for the sum of $1,000.

"And you were going to supply the labor, materials, and equipment to do this job?"

"That's right — yes."

Under cross-examination by the charge of the project he replied: "As plumbing contractor I was in charge. I was in charge. The actual working arrangement was that Douglas Cronkright was in charge. I was the foreman."

Mr. Cronkright was not a sub-contractor of yourself?"

"No, he was not."

"He was an employee of yours?"

"That's correct".

The actual job was undertaken by Mr. Lambert subcontracting of which Mr. Lambert was president. Cronkright was not a shareholder. Black also was an employee

NO REQUEST FOR HELP

"Did you directed your two employees to excavate and lay this pipe?" asked the Crown Attorney.

"That's correct."

He said he received no request for additional help on the job.

"Had they required further assistance, would you send them another plumber or laborer as the occasion called for — but we did not get that request."

Asked who would make the decision about shoring (using an excavation with timber) the ditch, Mr. Lambert replied: "They knew what to do. They would say would be responsible for looking after shoring."

He said there were occasions when that person would feel shoring was not necessary.

He agreed with Mr. Farrell he had sufficient regard for Mr. Cronkright's experience to leave the job to him.

Later he was queried by Mr. Farrell whether "you felt that Mr. Cronkright had enough experience to go ahead and do the job without your boling on the job?"

"Yes I did."

Cronkright had been working for his company since about November 8th. Black had been employed since last May.

The excavation at the Tops was started December 9th.

REPORTED SEEPAGE

On December 10th Cronkright had reported water seepage in the trench.

"That was the topic of one telephone conversation. I was not in the office and was unable to go up and determine myself what the trouble was."

Mrs. Lambert said he told the men to check and make sure they had not struck a drain. He ordered them to pump the water out.

About an hour later Cronkright phoned back and reported the flow had stopped "... so I felt then that any emergency was over."

Want Teachers Barred From Trustee Post

The Bay of Quinte District High School Board will request the Ontario government to revise existing legislation which allows a school teacher to sit as member of a school board.

At its inaugural meeting of the year held Tuesday night, the Quinte district board passed a resolution asking revision of present regulations to prohibit a teacher from being a member of any school board.

The resolution was from Gerald W.hart, 1964 chairman of the Quinte district board.

The point made by the resolution was that when a teacher sits as member of a school board there could be a conflict of interest which would not be in the best interests of the public.

Induct Five New Members

Five new members were officially inducted into the Junior Chamber of Commerce at their regular monthly meeting held at the Shrine Club on Tuesday evening.

Those inducted were: Peter Cale, Steve Davidge, Gary Nicholson, John Baliotis and Frank Sager.

Sports show committee chairman Don Dafoe, reported that plans for the second annual Quinte District Home and Sport Show are well under way. The show will be officially opened on March 11 by "Miss Canada." Carol Balmer, and Gary Schrieder of the Ottawa Roughriders, and will run for four days.

He also reported that most of the entertainment had been arranged for and it is hoped that the show WTll be bigger and better than last year.

'Policing Record' of Local Force Praised by Magistrate

TRENTON — Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville, the senior member of the Trenton Police Commission, has called for an "exchange of information" between the commission and the members of town council. At the proposed meeting points of dissention between the two bodies in the past would be discussed and Judge Anderson said at a commission meeting yesterday that the press should be invited to such a meeting as he felt "the public would benefit", by having both sides of the issues made public.

At yesterday's meeting, Magistrate W. R. Philp of Peterborough, making his first appearance following his appointment to the Trenton commission, said that he was "amazed" at the policing record of the local force. The magistrate was told by Police Chief F. J. Taylor that only 26 break-ins occurred in Trenton last year, and that those were, for the most part, minor occurrences.

"That's remarkable," said Magistrate Philp, "that's better than average."

Magistrate Philp was also amazed at council's action in passing the police budget two years in a row, (the budget included each year a $500 car allowance for the police chief and Inspector R. J. Rutherford) and then forbidding the mayor, by resolution, to sign the car allowance cheques.

"It's a sorry state of affairs," said Judge Anderson.

However, the judge stressed the point that the commission would wish to maintain good relations with council.

"We have more important things to do than engage in controversy with council," said the judge, "such as policing the town."

Mayor James MacDonald, the third member of the commission, was nominated as commission chairman for 1964 by Judge Anderson. Magistrate Philp seconded the appointment "with every sincerity."

COUNCIL OPPOSES HIRING

At the proposed meeting with council, the addition of one man to the 18-man police force will be discussed. The commission has recommended in the past that one man be added to the force when the department was put on a 40-hour week, according to an agreement with the Trenton Police Assoc.. Council thus far, has said that it is opposed to the hiring of another man.

Chief Taylor told the commission yesterday that a schedule could be worked out with the 19 men, but that the public would suffer because the town, including the recently annexed areas, would not be covered as efficiently as in the past, when the men have worked 42-hour weekly shifts.

Chief Taylor said that with annexation, his men would have 21 more businesses to patrol and a population jump of 550 to contend with. Men must be on patrol duty, (foot and cruiser), traffic duty, court duty, do a certain amount of meter supervision, take holidays, have sick leave, engage in motor cycle patrol, desk duty, and put in some time on radar patrol of the streets. Each year, one man must be sent to police college and officers must take trips to and from Belleville with prisoners. At any given time, two men only are available for duty out and around the town. "This system works very well," said the chief, "provided everything is going according to routine. If an unexpected crisis arises, chaos is likely to result." "Crime prevention work would be reduced to a minimum," said the chief, "if he is asked to carry on with 19 men, including himself and the inspector, and change over to a 40-hour week.

"It's within the realm of possibility that the city councillors don't understand how much the service would be reduced if the 40-hour week is implemented with only 19 men on the force," suggested Magistrate Philp.

WILL RENT CRUISERS

The commission will also recommend to council that the police department continue to rent cruisers, rather than buy new vehicles this year. Chief Taylor said that the rental service had proved to be very satisfactory in the past two years. "The 45,000 mile guarantee on new cars," he said, "didn't cover many of the parts which were liable to need repair, and the rental firm, for $190 a month, did all repairs and supplied a car for the department while the repairs were being effected". Some members of council have suggested that it might be more economical to buy cars than to rent them. Two years ago, the council of the day was convinced that it was more economical to rent the cruisers.

Last year's police budget, passed by the 1963 council, was for $129,323.79. Chief Taylor said yesterday that $126,818.79 had been spent; putting the department $2,500 "in the black".

Contractor

Mr. Lambert also told the inquest a city employee who was working nearby on North Front Street had assisted Cronkright in finding proper levels to connect the trench to the city sewer. However, this was done as "a favor I would say" since Cronkright knew the man. The worker was not acting in any official capacity.

Mr. Lambert last spoke to both men the morning of December 11th. Later he left for Toronto and returned about 8 p.m. — passing by the excavation where he saw the backhoe used by the men still at the trench.

"It was unlighted and I felt the job had closed down normally and I didn't stop. There was no need to stop normally."

NO COMPLAINTS

Recalled briefly before the noon adjournment, Mr. Lambert said he had never heard of an earlier cave-in.

"Was there any complaint made to you by Mr. Black or Mr. Cronkright?" asked Mr. Pringle.

"No, there wasn't."

"To your knowledge there wasn't one?"

"No there wasn't."

He reiterated that Cronkright was the senior man on the job through experience.

"Cronkright would have more to say than Black would?" queried juror James Matthews.

"Yes."

Inspector Dix said he had no knowledge of the project.

"To your knowledge did Mr. Black or Mr. Cronkright or Mr. John Lambert ever attend at your office to advise you of this trenching operation?" asked Mr. Pringle.

"No sir," said Mr. Dix, adding that he had received no written notification either.

"Did you know anything about the job at all?"

"No sir."

He then quoted sections of the Act which he alleged had been violated.

These included responsibility of the contractor to notify that persons working in the trench be inspected every eight hours.

Excavation four feet or more deep must be shored; excavated dirt to be kept two feet away from the edge of the trench.

Inspector Dix said he found no shoring in the trench when he arrived on the scene of the cave-in shortly after it was discovered December 11th.

Wants Hike

ommended that the basic exemption under the Estate Tax Act—now $60,000—should be increased to $100,000. It was pointed out that the size of farms is increasing and a greater investment is involved, an increase in the exemption would help prevent farms being broken up on the death of the owner.

WANTS NO CHANGE

The NFU asked the commission to recommend no change in the existing taxing structure around co - operatives. Co-ops, which can deduct patronage dividends from taxable income, are not given an undue advantage, said the brief and private business continues to flourish.

"The business of farming today requires large capital investment. The co-operative way of buying and selling simply means that the farmer is investing some of his capital into off-farm enterprises and so controlling his costs"

Bldg. Permits In 1963 Total $1,366,359

TRENTON — During 1963, 109 building permits were issued by building inspector William Anderson and the total value of this building stood at $1,366,359.

In 1962, 153 permits were issued, valued at $2,368,544.

Mr. Anderson pointed out in his annual report, released yesterday, that the million dollar addition to Trenton High School was included in the 1962 total.

In 1963, 57 new homes were built; total value, $738,820. In 1962, 44 new homes were built; value $494,880.

On the year, 46 more permits were issued last year than in 1962. There were 13 more dwelling permits issued in 1963 than in 1962 and the values in this phase of building were $243,940 over the previous year.

FOUR CHARGED

Four district men have been charged with theft and the possession of stolen goods by Trenton police and will appear in court at Belleville on Thursday.

Charged with theft of car parts from parked cars, are Clare Gerald Whiteman, 20, of 40 College St., Trenton; Robert Roland Foster, 19, of King St., Frankford and Leverne Clifton Brown, 18, of Hillier.

Charged with the possession of stolen goods is Albert Lindsay, 42, of 31 College St., Trenton.

Too Expensive

A "war against poverty" planned by U.S. President Johnson would cost about five billion dollars, over a period of about five years, according to the Associated Press. That's a lot of money. So much money, in fact, that one can predict a tremendous outcry against the program, on the pretext that the U.S. cannot afford it.

But the money could be raised, if the reason were convincing enough. If Russia were to orbit a manned space station, for example, capable of mounting an attack on the U.S., five billion dollars could be provided in days to buy a defence against such an attack.

With all the money available to defend the U.S., there is still a shortage of money to defend the principles for which the U.S. stands. Five billion dollars is nothing when it comes to maintaining defence; it's an awful amount when it is to be used to maintain the qualities that make the country worth defending.

And before Canadians start feeling virtuous and holier-than-the-U.S., as Canadians are wont to do, they might have a look at their own record. In Belleville, for instance, the United Appeal campaign has never achieved its objective; the Red Cross has not for several years collected as much blood in the city as it has supplied through the hospital, and almost everyone in town had developed the habit of ignoring conditions in one section of Belleville that have been described by one Toronto-based welfare worker as "the worst in Ontario." Admittedly, this description was applied three years ago, but the houses in question haven't changed much. They are just three years older, that's all.

Five billion dollars for the U.S.A. or a few thousand for Belleville, the attitude is the same. The money can be raised with no trouble if the purpose is to preserve the status quo, but not to change it.

Lamp-Eating Sheep

Down Under, in Australia, Miss Millie Urquart is the owner of two living question marks. They are sheep which eat lamp chops.

The idea of a cannibal sheep is so off-beat that the mind reels with surprise, rather than horror.

These sheep have an excuse. They think they are dogs. Mothered by a sheepdog when still a lamb, the first cannibal learned a dog's life, feeding on meat and dog biscuits and wagging its tail when happy. Not surprising, then, that a second lamb which joined the "kennel" easily fell into the same evil ways.

But are they evil? Is their violent misapprehension of the true facts not an excuse for these sheep feeding on lamb chops? If so, does the same type of excuse remain valid for people? There are a lot of sheepish people who think they are gay dogs or lions of society? Can they be forgiven their posing, on the grounds that it is an honest mistake, arising from their environment?

Someone in the back of the mind lurks the memory of a novel—could it be "If Winter Comes" by A. S. M. Hutchinson—which posed something of the same problem. In this case, though, our recollection is that the story was about a weak and selfish man who, knowing and recognizing his weakness and selfishness, always made an effort to be self-unselfish and strong, until acting that way became second nature. The question the author asked in the concluding chapters was whether such a man was really weak, or actually very strong. Are those lamb-eating Australian sheep really sheep acting like dogs, or have they a dog's nature disguised in the body of a sheep? Who amongst us knows what he really is, which of his habits spring from his true nature and which have merely been assumed as a disguise?

We have got into the habit of talking about "science" as though it were one big thing that you are inside of or out of, but this is a mistake: there are sciences, and branches of the same science, and experts in one may have at most nodding acquaintance with the work of the others. Your scientists in different disciplines, unless themselves very narrow men, do think it worth while to have a little understanding of other scientists' work. So why not others? . . . The knowledge that most of us have of the Middle Ages would be regarded as shallow and inadequate by an undergraduate specializing in that period; our knowledge of the history of art, by an art-historian; of music, by a musicologist; yet those bits of knowledge, giving us some general sense of how things go in those areas, are worth having.—Bernard Williams, lecturer in philosophy at University College, London.

Girl Who Has Everything Admits She Too Has a Dream

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — You might almost think that among Canada's 9,000,000 or so women, Judy LaMarsh just possibly could be considered the leading candidate for nomination as "The Girl Who Has Everything."

There she is, a member of the Federal Cabinet, and so, one of the 25 most politically influential people in the land.

Certainly she's the nation's most highly paid woman at an annual $35,000.

Her status in High Places and the prestige of salary get her many things — trips to Europe . . . the special privileges of the political "Power Elite" . . . use of a Government-owned Viscount for sky-hopping . . . the heady feeling of self-satisfaction and personal fulfillment in being in on the big national decision-making.

She has a warm, winning personality . . . and a white Thunderbird. Judy's Woman-of-the-Year, too.

On paper, truly she could be classified in terms of position, prestige and power as "The Girl Who Has Everything."

But she has what she has publicly revealed with astonishing candor, is "a dream."

FEELING THE YEARS?

"Every girl's dream," she called it.

She wants to get married and have children "before I become too old."

It was somewhat an astounding admission to make right out there in the — as everybody to hear, but she made it with admirable composure as if it were a not secret heart wasn't a private sort of thing at all.

But she is not only in her "middle thirties," wasn't she, and so there yet would be plenty of time for that dream to become reality, wouldn't there?

"Middle thirties?" smiled Judy wistfully, "at 39?"

She had another rather surprising confession . . . she had been putting on "far too much weight" since she quit smoking last June. And she was honest enough to admit that the personal real way she knew of reducing was to eat less, quite a lot less.

Funny thing about Judy as for such a supposedly hardboiled gal, she is really a soft touch.

Sure, she can slang Ontario's Premier Robarts and get under Conservative Leader Diefenbaker's skin . . . but suggests to her, that as health minister she ought to kick cigarette smoking habit and set an example for young people . . . and bang, that's just what she does.

It happened last June that way. A newsman — this one, it happened — was straining for some live copy, put the proposition, not really seriously, up to Miss Judy.

"If I say I'm quitting, or even think of quitting," she fumed at him, "I'll be trapped. Stuck with it. Everybody in the country would be watching and listening: 'Couldn't even sneak a smoke, could I?'"

No, she couldn't and that was certain.

GLAD TO HELP

"Okay, if it might have even the slightest influence on the kids," answered Judy gamely, "then I quit."

And she did.

Still "quitting" with it, too. Probably for keeps.

Judy's just naturally got a big heart.

Like the time one of the Ottawa newspapers asked her if she would speak at the paper's "Students' Day."

The paper had been harpooning her from time to time editorially needling her for her political sins real and imagined.

She said she was happy to appear on behalf of the paper before the students.

And when the date rolled around some weeks later, she had to fly all the way back from Vancouver to keep it. Didn't mind a bit, she said.

That business of the "Truth Squad" in last fall's Federal election campaign wasn't Judy's idea, although she took the political rap for it.

National party campaign organizer Keith Davey dreamed it up. Would be a good idea to have a woman for the lead role because it was apparent that John Diefenbaker, out of the goodness of his heart and chivalry's sake, couldn't deal with such a crude gimmick as the word if deserved to be dealt with.

So Judy got the nod. And game as always, she found herself "it."

It was an exceedingly uncomfortable spot, for Dief from the platform gave her an unmerciful, if good-natured kidding. But she stuck it out for three days until Prime Minister Pearson, angry and perhaps even slightly horrified at this political gaff — he hadn't been consulted about the "Truth Squad" — rescued her, disbanding the embarrassing little group.

Points Out Jury Recommended Mercy

Editor
Ontario Intelligencer

In reply to your recent editorial "Time to End This Farce" I must agree that the commutation of the death sentence by the Cabinet would, at first blush, tend to make one believe that the Cabinet had decided that, notwithstanding the law, Canada will not retain the death penalty. However, as the assistant defence counsel for Leonard Coombs, whose sentence was recently commuted, I believe the public should be informed of one important fact not understood in your article. This fact is that the jury in the Coombs case recommended mercy.

Section 642 of the Criminal Code of Canada states that where a jury finds the accused guilty of an offence punishable by death, the judge who presides at the trial shall, before discharging the jury, put to them the following question: "You have found the accused guilty and the law requires that I now pronounce the sentence of death against him. Do you wish to make any recommendations as to whether or not to make any recommendation, not he should be granted clemency? You are not required but if you do make a recommendation either in favor or clemency or against it, your recommendation will be considered in the report that I am required to make of this case to the Minister of Justice before he be given due consideration".

As long as this Section is part of the Criminal Law of Canada, I feel that the Cabinet should commute when a jury recommends clemency. If the Cabinet does not heed the jury's wishes, of what use is the above Section?

Thomas Lally.

Yesteryear's Footwear

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

The array of footwear which is available to children today is a far cry from that which rural youngsters wore as recently as a generation ago.

In the old days, there were, as a rule, two types which were generally popular. One was the lumberman's rubber. The other was a larrigan.

The larrigan was a form of moccasin usually fashioned from greasy leather. They were worn by fishermen and others of the road through the thin sole.

There is no denying that the larrigans were comfortable, indeed they were indispensable for such activities as snowshoeing. But when they were worn to school, the result always was perspiring feet and considerable discomfort when one went again into the cold outdoors.

The lumberman's rubber had the advantage of firmness; it was more substantial and consequently gave greater support to the feet. Outdoors, however, it was cold comfort several pairs of warm socks offered little enough of insulation.

Home again, both types of footwear had to be removed, for mothers seldom had much use for grease spots or rubber scars on cleanly scrubbed floors. No zipper or clasp made removal simple. Laces became fouled with snow and ice until frozen knots were undone by cold and suffering fingers.

Finish of cheese shown at the British Empire Dairy Show in Belleville during the past number of years, has shown a marked improvement with each passing exhibition, it was declared by T. J. Rieck, Senior Dairy Produce Grader, as he commented on the show at the concluding session of the Central Cheesemakers' Association convention.

In giving statistics of the result of the cheese grading at the Belleville show, Mr. Rieck indicated that of the 243 cheese on exhibition, 19 scored 43 points or over in flavor, while in texture 47 scored 24.9 or over out of a possible 25. Nineteen scored perfect 50 in texture. In finish 68 cheese scored perfect.

Complaints that mischievous boys were responsible for the breaking of window glass at the rear of the dwelling house at 301 Pinnacle St. were investigated by police Thursday morning. Following this investigation when police warned neighborhood children to refrain from throwing stones, police found a tricycle left abandoned on Pahey St.

The big new stone grist mill at Marmora owned by the Fraece Company and occupied by G. B. Aurhart at present, was totally destroyed by fire, which broke out in the basement shortly after three o'clock this morning. The cause of the fire is as yet unknown. The mill was one of the landmarks of the village and has been in use for many years. Power to operate the mill was by water and wheel.

Extra debentures to the amount of $9,000, in addition to the $40,000 authorized at the meeting held today.

Transients to the Number of 5,064 were registered at the local police station during the year 1933. This is an increase of nearly five hundred per cent over the last nine months of 1932, when from 1,091 1th to December 31st, 1932, there were but 2,580 transients given shelter over the police station. However, there has been a general falling off of transients observing the shelter since last November and Chief of Police Alex Kidd stated that the reason for this is that a soup kitchen has not been operated here since late last spring when the Red Cross canteen closed.

Iron and Calcium in Water Do Not Make It Unsafe

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Our well water has shown a lot of iron and calcium. Is this safe for drinking and cooking? Will it destroy the vitamins in food? Do certain minerals settle in the body and harden, or will they be digested? Could constant use of this water be harmful to us now or later? — Mrs. C. J.

No, the water won't harm you. The minerals will not "settle in the body and harden." They will wash away the same way they entered the body — in the water — through the kidneys and by sweating.

The only bad thing about hard water is that it isn't as effective in washing. You can't work up as good a lather or suds.

Dear Doctor: We recently had a water softener installed. Now our friends and neighbors have informed us that this device takes away certain minerals and vitamins which are necessary to the body. What is your opinion? — H. W. B.

My opinion is that your "helpful" friends and neighbors ought to mind their own business, and learn the facts before they try to worry you with such nonsense. Chances are they are jealous.

There are no vitamins in water, whether hard or soft.

There are minerals in hard water. That's what makes the water "hard." But they are not in a form which can be used by the body.

Softening, by various processes, involves substituting salts for the calcium and magnesium in the hard water.

The one thing to watch out for, with softened water, is this: People on a low-salt (low sodium) diet should not drink water because of the sodium it contains. It is not, however, harmful to the rest of us.

Some individuals prefer the taste of hard water, and have a separate faucet leading directly from the water main, instead of going through the softener.

It's purely a matter of taste, however, so drink whichever you prefer.

Dear Doctor: Please settle a heated argument among four housewives. The issue is: that unless a woman reaches a climax, she cannot become pregnant. — Mrs. E. C.

Are you trying to kid me, or each other. Climax has nothing to do with pregnancy. What about artificial insemination?

Dear Dr. Molner: This may be unimportant to you but it is of grave concern to me. Please explain the term, idiopathic grand mal epilepsy, in words understandable to a layman. — E. W.

It it's important to you, it is to me. Let's go at this backward. Epilepsy is a "convulsive disorder." That is, the parts of the brain which control muscular activity are affected. Involuntarily you find the muscles going into an abrupt tightening or paralysis or "convulsion."

There are two principal forms of this, the "grand mal," or severe convulsion which may last for several minutes. The patient will lose consciousness, may thrash about, bite his tongue.

The other common form, is the "petit mal," which may occur very frequently in some cases, sometimes many times a day. But the attacks are mild and very brief. Often they amount to no more than a momentary pause between words or in the middle of a word, after which the person goes right on talking as though nothing had happened.

If the cause of the epilepsy is known, an injury of some sort, it is called traumatic. If no such injury can be ascertained, the case is called idiopathic.

Hence idiopathic grand mal epilepsy means a convulsant disorder, cause not known, with convulsions of a severe form.

The majority of such cases can be treated with harmless drugs which prevent most and sometimes virtually all of the attacks.

Balloons Malevolent

Montreal Star

"Balloon" is one of those evocative words.

Kids at a fair. . . birthday parties. . . midnight on New Year's Eve. . . weather stations the swaying wicker basket in "Around the World in 80 Days" . . . the wartime barrage balloons which, Churchill and American cousins insisted, alone kept a rainsoaked England from sinking into the sea.

It takes a balloon coming out of Siberia and floating along the DEW Line to remind people that it can also be active and, indeed, downright malevolent.

Accounting to one report from Alaska, the giant creatures have been "thrown into a panic."

Some in the North, perhaps, are suddenly recalling World War II and the extraordinary balloons the Japanese despatched down the jet stream against British Columbia, Washington and Oregon — beautifully made parchment bags carrying a timing device which dropped at intervals first a succession of ballast bags and finally a bomb.

That nearly 1,000 of them reached North America was one of the best-kept secrets of the war, and the silence caused the Japanese to give up the idea.

There was only one casualty — a child on a picnic — but there was a very lively fear indeed that the woods of the Northwest might be set on fire.

About that DEW Line balloon, though: So many weather balloons have been admitted for flying saucers that perhaps this time a flying saucer is being mistaken for a balloon.

Child Regards Metaphors as CommonTruths

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I think it was James Thurber who once recounted the image he had, as a boy, of his father bound to the chair of his office on a stormy night, strange and unable to free himself from the knots until late.

For when his father did not show up for dinner some nights, his mother told young Thurber that "Daddy is tied up at the office." To a vividly fanciful mind such as his, Daddy was tied with huge ropes.

This recollection of Thurber's occurred to me the other evening, when my 6-year-old daughter asked to see my "chains."

I thought she meant for the tires on my car, and told her I have none.

"But you must have," she insisted. "I heard Mommy tell someone you were a chain-smoker, and I've only seen you smoke cigarettes. Where do you keep the chains?"

We adults have very little notion of the strange minds of children work overtime to construct (and often misconstrue) what they hear. Commonplace idioms and stale metaphors we take for granted and scarcely think about, as we say them are sometimes taken as literal truths by children—who may worry secretly for years about their true meaning and import.

We forget that all children are natural worriers, for growing up in a family, as well as a joyous process. The world is large, strange, changing, filled with a seemingly capricious commandments and prohibitions, and permeated with a language that the child regards, in part, as mysterious and evasive.

When President Kennedy was shot, a little girl I know asked her mother who would take his place. She was told that the vice-president had already assumed the office. "That's nice," said the little girl. "I think every child should have a daddy in case she loses her own."

Through the oblique medium of the parent's reassurance, she was able to express her meaning of disaster and tragedy — a father was gone, for good. This is a fear (or sometimes a wish, or both together) that all children have, but are not able to convey verbally. When parents quarrel, and say thoughtlessly angry things to one another, the children quite often take such remarks literally, and brood about their fulfillment.

What is said in front of a child may have psychic repercussions the parents are quite unaware of, for the child has an immense capacity for distorting reality, for treating the metaphor as real, for taking the word for the deed. Nevertheless memory of pain, we forget how the world can reem a labyrinth of arcane dangers to the mind of a child.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—The stock market reversed an early-morning weak trend and moved ahead with almost all segments of the industrial board assisting in the climb.

Papers, banks, pipe lines and steels all contributed to the rise. Among papers, Price Brothers, MacMillan Bloedel, and Abitibi all gained ⅛, while Great Lakes rose ¼ and Fraser Companies ⅛.

Banks were led higher by Montreal, up ⅛. Nova Scotia rose ¼ and Imperial Bank of Commerce ⅛. Royal, however, dropped ⅛. Among steels, Page-Hersey, Algoma and Dominion Foundries all gained ⅛. Aluminium gained ⅛ to reach a new high of 30¾ with volume of 7,133 shares.

Senior base metals action was brisk. McIntyre Porcupine was the heaviest trader, turning over 10,634 shares at 37½, unchanged. Noranda and Hollinger both rose ⅛, while Rio Algom dropped ⅛.

Trading in golds and western oils was light and sporadic. Among golds, Giant Yellowknife fell ¼ and Hollinger gained ⅛. In oils, Dome rose ¼.

Speculative action was generally dull. Consolidated Mosher dropped 15 cents to 84.75 while Cl. ⁷o's fell 1⁷ cents to 37 cents and Crodon ½ cent to 40¼ cents. Consolidated Rambler gained three cents to $1.63.

The Exchange index reached another new high by rising .36 to 132.17, while industrials gained .24 to 141.42. Golds fell .72 to 131.97, base metals .34 to 99.25 and western oils .03 to 84.19. Volume was 1,969,600 shares compared with 856,000 at the same time Tuesday.

The 77-stock industrial index closed the day ahead .63 to reach a new high of 141.08, while the 108-stock exchange index rose .37 to a new high of 131.91. Volume was 3,797,000 shares compared with 4,126,000 Monday.

The base metals index dropped .04 to 60.50, while golds gained an impressive 1.89 to 132.39 and western oils a slight .12 to 84.22.

Financial issues helped in the markets rise. Guaranty Trust gained one point to 63½. Industrial Acceptance and National Trust rose ⅝ and ¼, respectively. Steels also contributed, Algoma and Dominion Foundries rising ⅛ and ⅛, respectively.

Among papers, Consolidated, Great Lakes and MacMillan Bloedel all rose as much as ⅛. B.C. Forest, however, dropped ⅛. Banks were generally strong, Imperial Bank of Commerce ahead ¼ and Royal up ⅛.

Trading among senior base metals was brisk during the morning session but reversed during the afternoon. International Nickel rose ⅛. Dome gained one point to 29 in senior dealings.

Trading in western oils was light and sporadic.

Iso Mines gained 28 cents to $3.15 with volume of 107,305 shares. New Senator, Candore and Croinor all traded between 78,800 shares and 143,600 shares. Candore eased 2½ cents and Croinor dropped one cent. New Senator gained 3½ cents.

Gerald Wishart Is Chosen District High School Board Chairman for This Year

Mr. Gerald Wishart, named to the board in January, 1960, was elected chairman of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board at its inaugural meeting held in the College Street board rooms on Tuesday night.

Mr. Wishart succeeds Bruce Portt of Tyendinaga township who headed the board in 1963. Mr. Portt was named board vice chairman for this year.

Standing committee chairmen are as follows: Dr. Peter Loder, management; Raymond Rowe, sites and accommodation; Gordon Lee, property and supply; Norman Moore, finance and Clifford Barber, transportation.

There are 17 members on the Quinte district high school board, six from Belleville - Gerald Wishart, Dr. John S. Barlow, Dr. Peter Loder, Gordon F. Lee; Norman Moore and Rev. Richard Flemings. Other members are - Tyendinaga, Bruce Portt; Ameliasburg, Clifford Barber and Harmon Montgomery; Sidney, Ross Marshall and Allyn Finkle; Thurlow, Grant Kerr and Douglas S. McLean; Frankford, C. Raymond Rowe; Hastings county, Harleigh Hamilton; Public School Board, Ben Safe; Separate School Board, John J. Trudeau.

With respect to school enrolments, the Bay of Quinte District High School Board is in no different position from other school boards in the city district which this year are planning new construction.

Mr. Wishart in his inaugural address to the board said the big problem again this year would be preparing for the construction of another high school.

Enrolment at the three Bay of Quinte District high schools in Belleville stood at 3370 at the beginning of the school term last September with the annual increase in the number of students in the past ten years, averaging just over 200.

Property for the fourth high school has been purchased by the board in the west end of the city on Marshall Road and plans for the school will get underway this year.

Dr. John S. Barlow, as chairman of the board planning committee, asked for a projection of high school enrolment figures to present to city council in support of the board's request for a new school.

SEEK SUPERINTENDENT

The board decided to advertise again this year for a superintendent of secondary schools.

The above position has been discussed by the board for the past two years but although the position was advertised it was not filled.

The board last night decided to take out liability insurance for the class of nursing assistants at Quinte Secondary School members of which visit the hospital for two half-days per week.

A new system of identifying school buses will be adopted by the board. The system to be adopted is all probability will be by numbering.

Kiwanis Told About Welfare By Mayor Ellis

The Mayor and his fellow city officials paid their official visit to the Kiwanis Club at their regular dinner meeting on Tuesday at the Kiwanis Centre, with President R. Freestone in the chair.

The Mayor, Jack R. Ellis was introduced to the members by ex-mayor A. M Haig, and (the mayor) in turn introduced the city fathers and other civic officials.

The mayor gave an interesting and informative talk concerning the problem of "welfare" confronting the city, referring directly to the situation as it is in the city today.

This was the second service club meeting to be visited by city council.

Co-operative Library Planned For Central Ontario Region

The establishment of a regional library co-operative taking in eight counties in Central Ontario, has been authorized by the Ontario Minister of Education.

Boundaries of the regional library area will be set by the counties of Frontenac, Haliburton, Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Northumberland and Durham, Peterborough, Prince Edward and Victoria.

Peterborough, Belleville and Kingston will each appoint a member to the regional board, while the smaller libraries in the area will nominate and elect one-half of their card. The board is expected to be set up by the spring of 1964.

BRANCHING OUT

Membership in the Belleville library is branching well out into the Bay of Quinte area, it is revealed by the report of Librarian Miss Olive Delaney for the month of December.

During the month 1,169 adults were enrolled with a number of these being non-residents from Tweed, Trenton, Marysville, Foxboro, Point Anne, Shannonville, Plainfield and Brighton. Twenty-seven boys and girls joining the library during the month, with several of these also being non-residents.

During January there was a total circulation of 18,980 books including 10,808 adult books, 2,196 boys' and girls' books and 184 periodicals.

Circulation of boys' and girls' books was down during December, but film and projector bookings were up with 235 films being loaned to borrowers.

Unemployment

ended Dec. 14. Since figures are based on a sample cross-section of the population, they are estimates and not precise totals.

PICTURE IMPROVES

The year-to-year drop in Canadian unemployment was shared by all regions.

Following are the December unemployment figures for each region, with December, 1962, figures bracketed:

Atlantic region 50,000 (70,000); Quebec 130,000 (154,000); Ontario 98,000 (120,000); Prairies 37,000 (51,000); British Columbia 40,000 (46,000).

Atlantic 8.5 per cent (11.6); Quebec 6.8 (8.6); Ontario 3.8 (3.9); Prairies 3.2 (4.5); British Columbia 6.5 (7.7).

SELL SHARES

Shares of more than 1,100 companies are sold daily on the Toronto Stock Exchange's trading floor, about the size of a hockey rink.

FILM INDUSTRY

Films costing more than $7,000,000 were produced in South Africa during 1963, a record the industry hopes to increase by about $14,000,000 in 1964.

Successful Living

Says Boyfriend Shouldn't Bring Along Young Sister

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I love Joe and he loves me, but he takes a funny way of showing it.

When I get an afternoon off and we plan to go somewhere he comes to pick me up with his 15-year-old sister and her girl friend. The few times we are together I don't want them in the back seat!

He even picks up every little word they say to each other and I don't think he even knows I'm in the car sometimes. Occasionally he'll look my way and say "What's wrong, darling?" then he forgets about me again. — FORGOTTEN.

* * *

DEAR FORGOTTEN (?) — If Joe likes his little sister well enough to take her and her friend for a ride, this tells me he's a good family man. If he is comfortable enough with you to bring her along, it's a compliment to you.

Add to this that when you marry a man you do marry the family, to all intents (and I'd judge from your long letter that it's only the afternoon dates you share) and I'd say there's the makings of a good marriage here.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — In the past year I have learned I have an incurable disease. If I take care I can live for many years. The doctor says I can only work half time and must cut down social activities.

The financial part is O.K., but if I have to give up work, friends and so on, what's the use of living? I feel hopeless about it, yet I am just 52. — DOLEFUL.

* * *

DEAR DOLEFUL — So you'd settle for a short life and a merry one? I know the feeling.

Isn't it a matter of getting geared down? Here's your opportunity to take time out; think over what really matters to you — be it your church, your work, a special hobby — and schedule it into your day, allowing the rest periods you need.

One doctor I know says the way to a ripe old age is to get yourself an incurable disease and take care of it. Life is precious, however you look at it.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Do you think it is all right for a boy to come to a girl's house and just talk outside for a while? The age of the girl is 13 years.

Also, what do you think about a boy phoning a girl at the same age?

Regarding dating, do you think it is proper to double date at 14 and single date at 16? — WONDERING.

* * *

DEAR WONDERING — What time of day? How long? How often? It's one thing for a neighbor to sit on the front steps with you after school for a few minutes; another to make a date of it out there in the evening. Far better then to invite him in to meet the folks.

As for the phone calls — again I say why, and how long? A brief enquiry about school work may be O.K., at 13; but not one of those long, speechless conversations which seems to happen so often a little later on.

Dating in groups at 14 — yes; single at closer to 16.

New Fashion House to Open In Paris

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters) Antonio del Castillo, the dynamic Spanish fashion designer, will open his own Paris couture house Feb. 3.

Unlike most new fashion houses, Castillo's name is already known as one of the leading talents in the international dressmaking world. For just as the young Yves St. Laurent established his name at Christian Dior before opening his own house a year ago, Castillo's clothes have made headlines at Jeanne Lanvin for the last 11 years.

Peak interest of the forthcoming spring fashion showings will be the inauguration of Castillo's house in the Faubourg St. Honore, diagonally across the street from Pierre Cardin.

Castillo is reputed to be the highest - paid fashion designer ever employed in Paris. It is rumored that he earned 46,-00,000 old francs (about 112,-000) a year at Lanvin. The firm also officially changed its name to Lanvin-Castillo.

In contrast to the luxurious furnishings and super abundance of crystal chandeliers in the designer's private homes in Paris and Madrid, the decor of the couture salon will be ultra-simple. Curtains, carpets and draperies will be neutral, he said, in an "invisible blue," a shade just off-white.

Antonio Canovas del Castillo's blonde hair, fair skin and pale grey eyes belie his Spanish ancestry, which shows up, however, in his penchant for Goya-inspired evening gowns and the dramatic colors and embroideries which he uses after dark.

For daytime, Castillo thinks women should be dressed as unostentatiously as possible, "even if they do their shopping in a Rolls Royce".

"THEY'LL NEVER GUESS YOU PAID SO LITTLE"

Speaking Personally

By Gladys Ward

EXPRESSION OF OPINION

Several people commented on the column about raising money for charitable purposes with bazaars, suppers and teas. Most of them agreed that this was an involved way to raise money, but one woman had an opposing viewpoint and with her permission, I am printing a portion of her letter.

"The church of which I am a member does not hold bazaars or teas. I imagine it is because we feel it would be making a marketplace of the church.

"However we do attend the bazaars and teas in other churches and enjoy them very much. In fact we look forward to them.

"I suppose by now you wonder how we keep up our churches. Well, the answer is by voluntary giving. Now that is the lazy way out and we do not derive much pleasure from it.

"The giving of money alone isn't giving of our talents.

"Many of our church women are excellent cooks, interior decorators, do lovely needlework, can create beautiful flower arrangements. Some are even fair artists.

"In my opinion that is hiding your talent. We should be proud of our talents and want all to see them, instead of just a few friends we invite into our homes.

"I realize the immense amount of work involved in the planning and holding of bazaars and teas, but again, think of the pleasure so many get out of it. It makes for better, happier social contacts. It gives others ideas. It develops your own talent, creates ideas. If we do not use our talents we soon lose them.

"So please do not discontinue the bazaars and teas. I love them, because I am not involved in all the labor connected with them.

Sincerely,
Lazy Daisy.

WRAP IT UP

Packaging has become an important industry, and becomes more so each year. According to Pack Facts, the housewife can open a can of food, use part of it and replace it in the refrigerator in the same can. This was not possible a few years ago, and is possible now only because new coatings on the inside of the can have been discovered which inhibit discoloration and decomposition. Today's packaging, because it has national distribution must offer equal protection against winter cold and summer heat, against humidity and extreme dryness.

Sixty years ago the grocery store stocked about 300 to 800 items, mainly dispensed in paper bags. Today in a modern super-market six to eight thousand items compete for the consumers' attention. This makes the packaging of the product an important factor in attracting attention on a shelf loaded with competitive products. The shopper may scoff at the fancy packaging and the care that is lavished on this part of merchandising, but their purchases show that they prefer well-dressed products.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Terrence Beer are pictured following their recent wedding in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville. The bride is the former Linda Marie Semark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Semark, Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Beer, Toronto.

BEER — SEMARK

Bouquets of white Commercial 'mums centred with red tinted pom 'mums formed the background setting in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, for the recent wedding of Linda Marie Semark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Semark, Belleville and Roger Terrence Beer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Beer, Toronto. Msgr. J. P. Sullivan officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

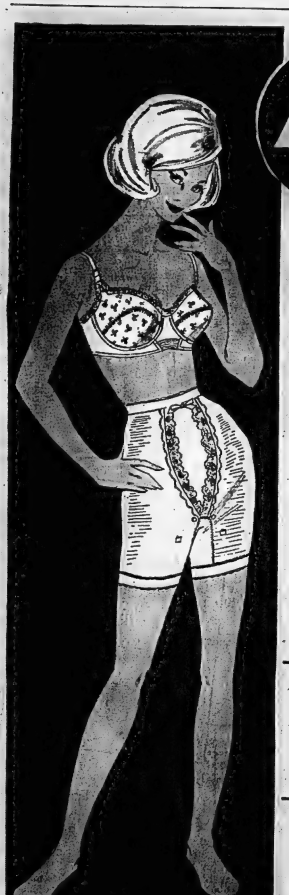
Miss Dorothy Grant presided at the organ and accompanied the soloist Mr. Robert Burke in two vocal selections.

The bride, given in marriage by her grandfather, Mr. Joseph Roth, Belleville, was dressed in a white satin peau de soie gown featuring a scoop neckline and long sleeves. The bodice was enhanced with cut-out lace appliques at top with a fitted waistline accented with a bouffant skirt caught up on both sides with self bows. Her shoulder-length veil flowed from a coronet of boreatis crystals and seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of Yuletide red roses with streamers and lace.

Miss Darlene Goulah of Rossmore as maid of honour and the bridesmaids Miss Vicky Semark, sister of the bride, Miss Barbara Roth, cousin of the bride and Miss Nancy Robinson, Kingston were identically attired in red taffeta brocade dresses featuring scoop necklines and three-quarter length sleeves. All dresses were designed in sheath style with three quarter length overskirts fastened in front with three self bows giving a full skirt affect. Their double rose headdresses were in matching peau de soie with self illusion veils. The maid of honor carried a bouquet of white carnations centred with three Yuletide roses, while the other attendants carried bouquets of white carnations.

Mr. Donald Sergeour of Pembroke was groomsman, and Mr. Dale Beer and Mr. Lance Beer, brothers of the bridegroom, of Toronto and Mr. William Ashman of Belleville were the ushers.

The reception was held in the Elks Hall on Front Street where the bride's table was appropriately decorated with colored streamers and wedding bells and centred with a traditional three-tier wedding cake. Tapering candles and the bridal bouquet added to the attractive nuptial setting.



The bride's mother received the guests wearing a three-piece green wool suit, black accessories, while feather hat and a corsage of Orange Delight roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted dressed in a green wool sheath, brown accessories and a corsage of Orange Delight roses.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls and points west the bride chose a tailored white wool suit, black accessories and a corsage of Orange Delight roses.

Guests were present from Toronto, Pembroke, Stratford, Oakville, Ottawa, Angus, Downsview, Kingston, Picton and Montreal.

A miscellaneous shower honoring the bride was held by the maid of honor, Darlene Goulah. A presentation was held by the employees of J. Lanning Co. at which time she was the recipient of a coffee table, ash tray and magazine rack.

Mr. and Mrs. Beer will reside at 30 Roxborough Street, Toronto.

LOBSTER
Frankly Expensive
But Wonderful
by Mary Moore

As you know I brought fresh frozen lobster in vacuum packcans with me on the plane when I returned from Halifax last month. I gave some as Christmas gifts to my lobster-loving friends, one of whom was born in Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, but saved two precious cans for my own guests. Once I made Lobster Thermidor and at another time and for a larger crowd I made Lobster Bisque. You can buy this vacuum pack fresh frozen lobster in supermarkets on some occasions.

WEDNESDAY
(Over Dinner)

Dinner Menu

LOBSTER THERMIDOR
(serves 4):

One 14-oz. can vacuum pack fresh lobster, ½ cup chopped mushrooms, ¼ cup butter, 1-3 cup water, 1 chicken bouillon cube, 1-3 cup cooking sherry, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup 18% cream or rich milk, ¼ teaspoon dry mustard, ⅛ teaspoon salt, shake of pepper, ½ cup fine buttered crumbs, ½ cup grated Parmesan cheese, paprika. Open can of lobster and drain off the brine and reserve it. Break the lobster meat into bite-size pieces, removing the flat cartilage bone in the claw meat, if any. Sauté the mushrooms gently in the butter for 3 or 3 minutes. Stir in the flour to blend, then stir in the cream, water, bouillon cube, sherry and brine until thick. Add the lobster pieces, mustard salt and pepper. Heat through. Now if you have individual "shells" pile the mixture in them or into individual ramekins or into a shallow baking dish. Sprinkle top with the buttered crumbs then with Parmesan cheese and then with paprika. Bake at 400 deg. until mixture just bubbles.

NOTE:

Fresh frozen lobster is pink and has been partially cooked so requires only short cooking time.

LOBSTER BISQUE (serves 8 to 10 generously — extended with scallops):

Scald 8 cups milk in top of double boiler with 1 onion sliced, 2 stalks celery chopped coarsely, 4 or 5 sprigs parsley, 2 bay leaves and ¼ teaspoon ground dill seed (optional). Melt ½ cup butter and stir in ½ cup flour, 2 teaspons salt, ¼ teaspoon white pepper. Stir in strained, scalded milk until thick. Cook 1 lb. scallops in ¼ cup water for 5 minutes. Drain and add liquid to milk sauce. Cut each scallop into 4 pieces. Open one 14-oz. can vacuum pack fresh frozen lobster, tip brine into milk mixture and break lobster into small pieces, removing any cartilage. Add lobster and scallops to milk mixture and heat through but do not boil. Pour soup into preheated tureen. Garnish outer rim with chopped parsley and centre with sprinkling of paprika.

LOBSTER (OR SHRIMP OR SCALLOP) NEWBURG (perfect for chafing dish):

Blend together in top of double boiler 1 tablespoon each butter and flour. Stir in 1 cup light cream until thick. Season with ½ teaspoon sal and shakes of pepper and paprika. When nearly ready to use beat 3 egg yolks and pour a little of the cream sauce into them, stirring and return all to double boiler. Add at least 1 cup chopped lobster meat (or shrimp or cooked scallops) and ¼ cup cooking sherry. Serve at once on toast points or patty shells. If desired sherry may be omitted and a little more cream added.

Ann Landers

Room-Mates' Elderly Father Is Lecherous Old Elk

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm a 29-year-old career girl who shares an apartment with another career girl who is my age.

Nina (not her real name) is a fine person and we get along well. But I don't know what to do about her father.

The old gentleman is 73, white-haired, a snappy dresser and has been a widower for about 10 years. At first I thought he was being "fatherly" but I now have reason to believe he is a lecherous old elk.

He dropped over twice last week when he knew Nina was at her aunt's for dinner. Last night after Nina had left for the weekend he showed up at 9:30 p.m. I tried to be pleasant although I resented the intrusion. When I offered to make some tea he pulled me on his lap. I told him to behave or get out. He said he was only joking and accused me of having no sense of humor.

Is it possible this old goat could be thinking what I think he's thinking? Or am I mistaken, as he claims? — ROOMIE.

• • •

DEAR ROOMIE — Just because there's snow on the roof doesn't mean there's no fire in the furnace. Tell him not to show his face around there unless he has been invited by his daughter. And furthermore let him know if he so much as puts a hand on you — in jest or otherwise — you'll tell Nina to invite him over only when you aren't there.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My brother, his wife and their two teen-agers moved here from Rochester several months ago. Twice we invited them to attend church with us. They seemed to enjoy the services both times but they did not join.

Last week my sister-in-law was bragging to some women at a bridge party how she and her family have been attending a different place of worship every Sunday. She said they had visited 26 different churches, temples and synagogues and that they could continue for several months without repeating. Then they plan to start again.

According to her, the children are learning that "God exists wherever you look for Him." She claims the children are getting a wonderful education.

How do you feel about this approach to religion?—ANCHOR-TYPE.

• • •

DEAR ANCHOR — It's very inexpensive. So long as they are guests they need not assume real responsibility for the upkeep of any church.

If everyone shared this philosophy of floating worship there would be no churches, temples or synagogues for your relatives to visit.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm going with a man who is separated from his family but not divorced. He has three teen-age children. Doug and I are together about four nights a week. On Fridays he takes his suitcase over to his ex-wife's house and stays there until Monday morning.

I told him last night to take his choice. If he wants to live half the week with them he can leave me alone the other half of the week. He replied, "I can always get another girl friend but I can never replace my children." I told him that he was a fool because one of these fine days his kids will be married and he'll be alone. He seemed shook but didn't reply.

Do you think now is the time for me to insist he make a choice? — TIMING COUNTS.

• • •

DEAR COUNTS — You've already told him to make a choice and he chose his family. Remember? Now why don't you get smart and make another choice — like a man who isn't married.

• • •

The Experts Say

Beware of Buying Perfume Because You Like the Name

By JANET KASE

MONTREAL (CP) — Perfumes, that magic potion so dear to a woman's heart, should be chosen carefully and worn at the right time, says a Montreal expert.

Beatrice Frechette, who has served as a perfume consultant in a department store for 30 years, says the most important factors in choosing are suitability to the individual personality and body chemistry.

The same perfume smells different on different people, she says. For this reason buying perfume without some care can result either in no scent at all or an unpleasant one when it is applied to the skin.

As an example of what is meant by keeping personality in mind—if you're a small, delicate woman stay away from heavy, exotic scents. And be wary of buying a perfume just because you like its romantic name.

At the perfume counter choose two scents, Mrs. Frechette advises. Dab one on each wrist and wait 10 to 15 minutes. That's because body warmth affects the scent and the skin takes time to absorb the perfumes of the perfume.

"I send my customers away for a coffee break. When they return, the perfume smells the way it will all day.

"If a woman has an extreme oily skin she should be very careful with perfume. Perfume and oil don't mix well. Such a woman should choose a light, flowery fragrance.

Mrs. Frechette says she doesn't think young girls should wear perfume, suggesting that at 18 or 19 they might start using toilet water.

French perfume is still the worlds best, she feels. But whatever is chosen, there's one important piece of advice: "Never wear too much. It's worse than none at all."

Western Girls' Knees Are Raising Eyebrows in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Western girls' knees are raising Russian eyebrows in Moscow.

And it's not only the Russian women who are complaining—the men are, too!

The trouble centre on a clash of customs: In the Soviet Union it is considered not polite or decent for a woman to show her knees.

Thus, you never—or almost never—see a Russian woman cross her legs in public.

No matter how gracefully a Western girl manages it, she invariably draws looks of astonishment and disapproval.

A young English girl who relaxed while sitting in a Moscow subway train caught a sharp reprimand from a well-covered Soviet matron.

The Russian woman leaned forward in her seat and told the girl, who was sitting opposite: "Uncross your legs—it is not decent to sit like that."

The girl did as she was told.

UNGAINLY SPRAWL

"It's absurd," she said later. "You see women sprawled with their legs apart—most undignified and unladylike by our standards—and yet they object if you show a little knee."

The Russians have a passion for concealment—yet it has its contradictions. Russian women think nothing of going to the beach clad in panties and bra.

To prevent clashes with Soviet sensitivities, diplomatic diplomats have given their female employees some advice on what not to wear in Moscow.

Definitely out are: Very bright woollen stockings; tights; ski pants.

Tights and ski pants are too revealing, Russians think—show too many curves. Men and women frown when they see a girl in them.

But old Russian sensitivities seem to be changing slowly.

Not so long ago you would never see a Russian girl in slacks. Now about Moscow's streets you occasionally see a Russian girl in ski pants of a kind, though not a tightly fitting as the Western style. Most Russians still think ski pants are for skiing.

TRAFFIC STOPPER

Another Western girl working here went for a walk wearing bright red woollen stockings. She had brought them from Britain especially for the Russian winter.

The stockings almost stopped traffic. Wherever she went Russians gaped and glowered at her, giggled and pointed.

"They crowded around me everywhere I went," she recalled. They gesticulated and nudged each other. Some laughed. Others seemed outraged. Even men."

Later the reason for the Russian interest was made clear: In the old days Russian prostitutes wore red stockings to advertise.

I just daren't wear them again," the girl giggled. I almost caused an international incident."

Wear an attractive inflatable bathing suit like an old goldfish bowl, petticoating ground in the bottom, topped with an inch and a half of sandy soil. Dampen and thoroughly before inserting cuttings, and use a spray atomizer for watering.

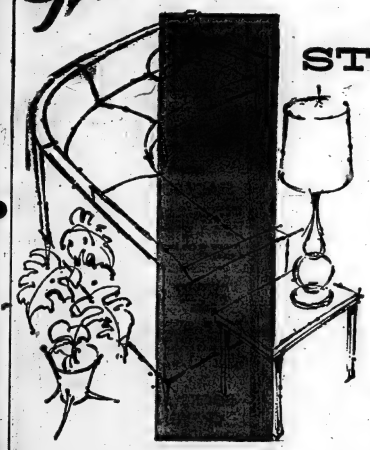
Question: I'm leaving on a cruise the end of January and will head for warmer climes in the Caribbean area. I'm going with a friend who works in my office. Since neither of us has been on a cruise ship before, we're not sure what sort of dress would be appropriate for evening. We plan to bring sports outfits and casual dresses for daytime wear aboard ship and for sightseeing. But we'd like to know what sort of attire would be correct for evenings. — C. M. A., New York City



Answer: Dress usually is formal for dinner aboard ship in the evening. Ashore, the type of dress worn depends on the sort of restaurant in which you'll be dining. An afternoon dress usually is appropriate. Aboard ship though, dining usually is formal and gowns may be either full length or cocktail length. Evening separates are a good bet for ease of packing and for greater variety. Your travel agent or the fashion consultant of the cruise line will be able to provide specific tips on dressing for the type of trip you'll be taking.

Question: You've written in your column many times that a guest shouldn't give her hostess a helping hand in serving, clearing, etc., unless the hostess requests aid. Recently I read somewhere that it's impolite for a hostess to ask her women guests to assist her — that they were invited to enjoy themselves not to work. Naturally I'm a little confused. Could you clarify this point for me? — Mrs. Y. B., Trenton, N. J.

Answer: When a hostess has no other help, there's no reason why she can't ask a very close friend or two to pass cups, or even give her a hand clearing dishes from the table. Of course, she shouldn't keep any guest hopping all evening. If she's well-prepared and has the party planned thoroughly in advance, down to the last detail, she shouldn't have to be in a frenzy about serving and clearing herself. A hostess shouldn't expect or even ask that friends help prepare trays or do the dishes, but it's perfectly permissible to ask a particular friend to pass a tray of canapes while she sets up another one, or to hand around coffee cups while she doles out the dessert.

Many Issues

cials discourage use of the term "Quebec House," saying this would result in a horde of visitors seeking mocassins and maple syrup.

tween Canada and France.

Pearson said he hopes his talks with de Gaulle, to get under way later today, may lead "to even closer accord between us within the framework of the Atlantic alliance."

Of the alliance itself, he said: "We wish the voice of this great country to remain strong and clear."

Pompidou's welcoming statement took special note of the historic ties between Canada and France and the 5,000,000 French-speaking Canadians "are especially dear to us."

He told Pearson he was sure he would witness a warm affection for Canada during he prime minister's stay.

Pearson's RCAF Yukon aircraft was diverted to Le Bourget Airport, on the northern outskirts of Paris, from fog-bound Orly. However, the plane touched down within a half-hour of its expected time.

CEREMONY SMOOTH

The welcoming ceremonies, including brief statements by Pearson and Pompidou and the inspection of a French Air Force guard of honor, went off smoothly.

A rapid drive through busy Paris streets, lined with French gendarmes, followed and Pearson and Martin, with their wives went to the Crillon Hotel for a private luncheon and rest before Pearson's first private meeting with de Gaulle.

He was to be the president's guest at a dinner and reception tonight.

In his airport statement, Pearson said he hopes his visit will emphasize the deep friendships, common heritage and the traditions of France and Canada.

"In the past Canada and France have stood side by side on the field of battle We have also worked together in the task of peace.

"Today especially is this association important when France and Canada are both facing a period of transition and rapid development."

Diplomats expect France and Canada to decide on periodical policy consultations as a result of the talks here.

Atomic polley inside the North Atlantic alliance, the coming "Kennedy round" of tariff-cutting negotiations and such issues as trade relations between the European Common Market and Canada and increased French investment in Canada were likely to be discussed.

Pearson was greeted by French Prime Minister Georges Pompidou and Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville as he stepped from his Canadian-built turbo-prop plane.

ENDS FRIDAY

The visit will wind up Friday when Pearson leaves Paris to inspect Canadian air bases in eastern France.

The Canadian prime minister was expected to be sympathetic to France's demands for changes in NATO and to the French nuclear force.

Pearson recently indicated his government's wish for revision of its defence policy inside NATO, and, like the French, Canada has shown no enthusiasm for the projected American-backed multilateral nuclear force.

His visit, though in return for one President de Gaulle paid to Canada in 1960, was viewed as being far from a formality.

The French leader was understood to be watching Pearson's growing independence from the United States. One result may be the setting up of a permanent inter-governmental consultation committee between France and Canada.

Economic issues were also up for discussion. Canada fears the effect of future European Common Market developments on its wheat exports, now that the trade group has agreed on a concrete system for integrating farming with the industrial common market.

The prime minister's Yukon marked with the red lettering of the RCAF rolled to a stop before a waiting party of officials. Pearson, Martin and their wives walked down the stairs of the plane and were warmly greeted by Pompidou and Couve de Murville. Then they walked into the honor salon on a red carpet that had been rolled out over the rain-soaked runway.

Standing in the glare of television lights, Pompidou and Pearson made brief statements. Pearson spoke in English and French.

Welcoming Pearson, Pompidou said he was convinced the visit would bring about closer cultural and economic links between France and Canada.

The French premier speaking in French said: "Canada is not only a great friendly and allied country whose soldiers twice came over here to fight and die at our side on our soil, it is also a country where 5,000,000 people speak our language and safeguard our culture — 5,000,000 people in whom our blood flows."

Pearson, replying in French, said: ". . . We have looked forward with pleasure to this visit which we hope will serve to emphasize the deep friendship, common heritage, and traditions of our two countries."

Pearson said he hoped he talks would lead to a closer accord between the two countries within the framework of the Atlantic alliance—"the alliance in which we wish the voice of this great country (France) to remain strong and clear."

MEETS IN PRIVATE

Pearson's crowded program includes two private sessions with de Gaulle in the president's Elysee Palace offices in addition to a formal dinner and reception contacts.

With an eye to his domestic scene where Canadians of French origin are insisting on Canada's bilingual and bicultural status, Pearson will have two meetings Thursday with Charles Lussier, general - director of the Maison du Quebec, a cultural showcase for the province on the heart of the Paris Left Bank.

The French have given the Maison du Quebec almost embassy treatment since its opening about two years ago. De Gaulle himself received Quebec Premier Lesage during Lesage's visit here last year.

Both French and Canadian officials predict the Pearson visit will produce an agreement to conduct Canadian-French relations on a close and systematic basis — through regular meetings of a Canadian - French ministerial committee. Canada already has a similar arrangement with Britain and the United States.

PRESENT AGREEMENT

These sources also foresee agreement on a wider program of cultural exchanges between France and both the English-speaking and French-speaking populations of Canada.

As to economic relations, Canada would like increased trade with France, and easier access for farm exports to the six-nation European Common Market. Pearson is expected to raise the issue of the forthcoming world trade negotiations in Geneva—the so-called Kennedy round—where Canada hopes to see tariffs reduced.

Proposals for the establishment of an assembly plant for French cars in Canada may come up, too. The French may raise their desire to see the French-built Caravelle twin-jet aircraft in use on Canadian airlines.

As joint members of NATO, the two countries have an interest in the future of RCAF units now stationed in France. These planes may soon be armed with American - built nuclear warheads, but de Gaulle has steadfastly refused to permit foreign atomic warheads on French soil.

Accordingly, these Canadian planes may shortly be shifted to Britain or to West Germany. This issue may also be discussed by the two leaders.

formation and that reorganization will take place in the departments of reform institutions, labor and the attorney-general.

On the economic front, the government promised to intensify its Ontario trade crusade and to broaden the work of the Ontario Economic Council. It also hinted at "further steps in the minimum wage field."

GIVES WARNING

The government made it known it would not submit to further changes in federal-provincial tax - sharing arrangements that would be to the detriment of Ontario.

"It is a hard economic fact that the rapidly growing regions require the greatest expansion of services," the speech said.

"In the (federal - provincial) conferences that lie ahead, the fiscal arrangements must be such that they do not impair Ontario's ability to finance its rapid industrial and communi'y growth."

The speech gave no clue that the government planned to introduce any controversial legislation during this session of the legislature.

BUDGET STILL TO COME

No mention was made of the province's proposed medical care program and small reference was made to other welfare measures. The 6,000 - word speech also avoided mention of taxation. The government will present its budget later in the session.

The speech noted that the enlarged 108-seat legislature, in which the government has 77 members is made up of the "youngest group of members in our entire history."

Twenty-three members are 40 years old or less and the average age of the 108 members is 45. Redistribution in Metropolitan Toronto added 10 seats to the former 98-seat House.

SELECT NEW COMMITTEES

To keep the members busy the government proposed the establishment of three new select committees—one dealing with youth affairs, another to review problems of the aged and a third to study the province's mineral resources.

The speech said the legislature will be asked to extend the life of the select committee on consumer credit. It said an interim report expected from the committee during the session could result in some new legislation.

Referring to Canada's centennial celebration in 1967, the speech noted that Jan. 11, 1965, will be the 150th birthday of Sir John A. Macdonald, Canada's first prime minister.

"It is proposed that due honor and recognition be accorded the memory of the great patriot and statesman whose political wisdom, clear vision and unfaltering courage were such decisive factors in placing Canada on the road to nationhood," the speech said.

Co-incidentally, Jan. 11 is also the birthday of Premier Robarts. And Sir John A. Macdonald, like Mr. Robarts, was an Ontario premier.

PLANS CELEBRATION

The speech said Ontario is going ahead with plans to celebrate Canada's centennial by giving municipalities detailed information on projects to undertake.

Much of the speech constituted a review of changes under way within the government.

The speech said the new department of university affairs would work in conjunction with the province's advisory committee on university affairs to deal with grants and other university matters.

WATER MAIN FACTOR

The new University of Guelph would include three existing agricultural colleges in Guelph plus an arts college to be known as Wellington College.

Listing reasons for the establishment of the department of energy and resources the speech said power and water were being used up rapidly.

"We need to manage these precious natural assets in a way that will best preserve them. . . ."

The new department will also oversee the Ontario Energy Board the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Stanley Randall, economics and development minister, is also energy minister at present but the reorganization should mean the appointment of a new minister.

The speech said a water management program will be primary responsibility of the new department.

"With a rapidly increasing population and a soaring per-capita use of water, it is imperative that steps be taken immediately to implement water conservation projects designed to restore the receding water tables of the province. . . ."

The reference to minimum wages said the labor department now is completing a scientifically-based survey of wages—the first of its kind ever undertaken in Canada.

Data obtained from this could be the basis for further steps in the minimum wage field, the speech said. At present the $1.25 minimum wage for men is applicable only in the Oshawa-Toronto-Hamilton area.

Picton Ints Clobber RCAF Flyers

PICTON (Staff) — In a penalty studded game, the Picton Intermediates made it 17 in a row as they clobbered the RCAF from Trenton by a lopsided 9-3 score here last night with a much larger crowd than usual in attendance.

It was Picton all the way, from the 25 second mark of the opening period, when they scored their first marker, it was a case of how many they would win by. They outskated, outhustled, outshot and outscored the visitors by a wide margin.

There were 22 penalties called, including two for fighting, two ten-minute misconducts and a game misconduct.

Picton led 4-0 at the end of the first, increased that to 7-2 at the end of the second and ended the game 9-3.

Doug Murray was the bad boy for Picton getting a minor for elbowing, a minor for boarding and fighting major, all at once at the second period 9.02 mark. Jason Shields of Trenton was hoisted for two for boarding, he cussed out the official and was given a misconduct. He belted his stick down the ice in disgust and followed it to the dressing rooms with a game misconduct. Davy Jones, Picton's playing coach objected, a little too strongly to a penalty to Lionel Boily and was banished for ten.

Jim Guernsey fired four for Picton, John (Shaker) Baker fired one but assisted in four others. Carl Stacey with two, Larry Pero and Ron Weese each fired one to round out the scoring.

At the .25 mark of the first period, Carl Stacey took a perfect pass from Shaker Baker and fired a low one to the outside corner. At the 2.10 mark Baker took a combination of passes from Davy Jones and Lionel Boily to beat Gerry Johnston. Picton made it 3-0 when Guernsey fired his second of the night at the 4.56 mark with Baker and Jones assisting. Larry Pero ended the first period scoring when he belted in a pass from Baker at the 6.14 mark. Bob Fawcett set up the play.

The fans were hardly back in their seats for the start of the second period when at the 13 second mark, Carl Stacey fired his second of the night with assists going to Pero and Fawcett. Ron Weese scored the "picture goal" of the game at the 3.26 mark of the middle frame. Ron picked up the puck behind his own net, skated up the right side, went around the defence, went in alone and fired one that Johnston did not see.

At the 4.42 mark Pero fired one into the upper left hand corner after taking a perfect pass from Doug Murray.

It was not until the 17.54 mark of the second period, that Trenton was able to beat Tom O'Halloran, Ken Currie fired a Roger Plane pass that eluded the catching hand of O'Halloran. At the 18.30 mark, Joe St. Pierre beat him again with a slap shot with Plane and Yvon Blanchard getting assists.

In the third period Trenton scored their third and last marker when Blanchard took the puck to the blue line, rifled one on which O'Halloran fanned.

Jim Guernsey came back with a pair, one at the 17.50 mark with Fawcett picking up the assist, the other at the 19.06 mark with Baker and Pero assisting. At the 19.57 mark Bob Fawcett took passes from Stacey and Baker, pulled the trigger and that was that.

Slow Getting Divorce Says Richard Burton

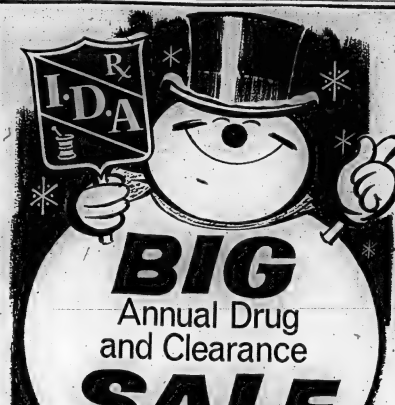
PUERTO VALLARTA, Mexico (AP) —Richard Burton said Monday he and Elizabeth Taylor might not be able to marry for six months.

"Miss Taylor still has problems with Mr. Fisher," Burton said, referring to Miss Taylor's husband, singer Eddie Fisher.

"Possibly we'll have to leave Puerto Vallarta without my getting a divorce," Miss Taylor said.

"The matter is in the hands of the lawyers," he added.

Miss Taylor and Burton have been facing a race with time in their expressed hopes of being married here, where they came rehearsals for his production of last September for Burton's "Hamlet."



In Las Vegas singer Eddie Fisher denied that he is blocking the marriage of Burton and Miss Taylor.

"As I have said time and time again, I want to be out of his snake pit," Fisher said. "I love my life as it is now. I do not want to be a part of their lives in any way, in anything of the best man in the world to

Reached at a Casino where he is appearing, Fisher commented: "I have more important things to work out than be concerned whether they get married. I have engaged the services of a lawyer and I really don't think it makes any difference to them, or to anyone else, what I do."

Fisher and Miss Taylor are partners in a firm that controls the profits from the movie Cleopatra, which could be from $2,000,000 to $7,000,000.

Burton leaves near the end of this month for Toronto to begin take care of this for me because body else."

Overheard Men Plotting Holdup Says Witness

BRANTFORD (CP) — A 23-year-old rooming house operator broke and sobbed Tuesday as she told an Ontario Supreme Court jury she overheard three Brantford men plotting the holdup of a store where Preston Graham, 36, was shot and killed last Oct. 17.

Mrs. Barbara McColeman was testifying at the capital murder trial of Marvin Dzikowics and James Smale, both 20, and Ronald Newell, 26.

The trial adjourned for 15 minutes during cross-examination when she cried out: Daddy, daddy." Her father, Louis Bonar rushed to her side before Sheriff Goron Campbell ordered him to return to his seat.

Mrs. McColeman, who spent 2½ hours on the witness stand, testified on the events leading to the holdup—from an attempt made the previous night to when the men returned to the room long house the night of the murder.

After the jury left for the day, Mr. Justice S. H. S. Hughes warned gurads to keep witnesses away from the prisoner's box. His order came after one witness, Mrs. Jeanette Teather, 21, stopped to say something to Dzikowics after she had testified.

TAKE THE PLACE

Mrs. McColeman testified she heard the three men threaten to take the place at the corner of Marlboro and Charlotte Street the night of Oct. 16. She said Dzikowics said he would go bang, bang" if anybody tried to stop them.

She told of blue and white pills being taken by the accused who lived at the boarding house with her and her husband, Roy, 28, Mrs. Mae and Eleanor Lavenhelm, 26, now of Swansea Ont.

A warrant has been issued for Mr. McColeman for not answering a subpoena. He is believed to be in California.

Mrs. McColeman told of the three leaving the house Oct. 16. Dzikowics came scuttled, had a gun she had been keeping for him.

They returned later, she said, saying they were too late getting to the store and overheard Newell say they would try again the next night.

Mrs. Teather testified blood was streaming from a wound on Dzikowics' head when the three men returned to the house Oct. 17. She said she heard Newell say to Smale: If that man dies, I'm not going to hang for anybody."

Justice Dept. Plans New Move Against Reds

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — Another round in the lengthy hide-and-seek court fight between the U.S. justice department and the U.S. Communist party is about to begin. And there are no more indication that the department can nail down its query now than when the game began 13 years ago.

At issue is the U.S. government's drive to smash the party's organization, bring its finances and membership before the public eye and send some of its officers to jail as alleged Soviet agents seeking to overthrow American democracy.

But by shifting and turning behind the U.S. constitution, the party has avoided snares, even winning a major court battle which the department now seeks to reverse.

A department spokesman said the government is considering a petition in the full nine-member bench of U.S. Appeals Court to reverse the Dec. 17 decision of the court's three - member panel. A decision on this petition is to be taken by Jan. 21.

This Dec. 17 judgment rejected a lower court conviction of the party for failure to register with the department as a Soviet agent. The party had been assessed a $120,000 fine.

Other charges and other fines were to follow if the government's case had been sustained.

Chevrier Will Be First French-Speaking Diplomat Since Post Created in 1880

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Lionel Chevrier will be the 11th Canadian and first French-speaking diplomat to represent Canada in London since the prestige-laden post of high commissioner to Britain was created in 1880.

Prime Minister Pearson announced Tuesday that Mr. Chevrier, his close friend and former lieutenant since 1958, will take up his new duties Feb. 7.

Mr. Chevrier, 60, will succeed Hon. George Drew, 69, former Ontario premier and national Progressive Conservative leader who was named high commissioner shortly after the former Diefenbaker government came to power in June, 1957.

Mr. Chevrier resigned from his Commons seat for Montreal-Laurier Dec. 27 but will remain in the cabinet until his successor in the justice portfolio is named in a cabinet shuffle expected next Monday.

He is serving as acting prime minister this week while Mr. Pearson pays an official five-day visit to France.

SEEK NEW LOOK

There has been speculation that the federal government wants to give the diplomatic post a "dicultural look" by sending a French-Canadian to London and appointing an English-speaking career diplomat as ambassador to Paris.

The Paris appointment is expected to be announced this month. Pierry Dupuy is retiring from the post after being ambassador there and commissioner - general of the 1967 world's fair in Montreal.

Mr. Chevrier's London salary was set by cabinet order-in-council and was not announced.

Mr. Drew received a slary of $18,000 plus an annual allowance of about $23,000, travel expenses and living accommodation. Cabinet ministers get $35,000 a year.

Mr. Chevrier first entered the Commons in 1935 at the age of 33 as MP for Stormont. The Ontario constituency is divided about evenly between French- and English-speaking residents and was taken in Mr. Chevrier's home town of Cornwall.

An affable, bilingual lawyer, he joined the Mackenzie King cabinet in 1945 as transport minister and supervised the tricky negotiations with the United States that led to the construction of the $475,000,000 St. Lawrence Seaway in 1954-58.

HEADED SEAWAY

He left the cabinet in 1954 to become the first president of the Canadian seaway authority. Six weeks before the June 1957 federal election defeat, he rejoined the cabinet as privy council president.

He served as House leader and MP for Laurier from 1957 until the Liberals returned to office last April.

His eight-month tenure as justice minister and leading Quebec representative in the cabinet was marked by controversies over prosecutions against officers of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.) and federal relations with the Quebec Liberal government.

"For many years now he has been my political colleague and my personal friend," the prime minister said in a prepared statement read at a press conference. "I owe him in both capacities more than I can ever acknowledge."

Mr. Chevrier said he was very happy to be able to take on this post."

PRAISED DREW

The prime minister also paid tribute to Mr. Drew, whom he asked twice last year to stay on in London until a successor was named.

He said there was no more distinguished person in the public service than Mr. Drew, and sat in the Commons as opposition leader from 1948 to 1956, when Mr. Drew was premier of Ontario from 1943 to 1948.

Mr. Chevrier was born April 2, 1903, the son of J. Elphege Chevrier, a former Cornwall mayor and a French-Canadian leader in Ontario. He attended the University of Ottawa and Osgoode Hall law school in Toronto and was called to the Ontario bar in 1928.

He rose rapidly in government during the war, heading the Commons subcommittee on war contracts in 1942, moving up as parliamentary assistant to munitions minister C. D. Howe in 1943 and taking over the transport portfolio in 1945.

He married the former Lucienne Brule of Ottawa in 1932 and they have six children.

Alarm at Possible Outcome Of Arab Summit Meeting In Cairo Not Detectable

OTTAWA (CP) — If there is any alarm here over the possible outcome of the current 13-nation Arab summit meeting in Cairo, it is undetectable.

Diplomatic quarters don't see the Arab states as sufficiently united to mount any kind of military (operation against Israel and thus jeopardize the United Nations Emergency Force on the Egyptian-Israeli frontier or the UN observer supervisory organization on the Syrian front.

Canada has the largest single contribution to both UN bodies.

Immediate concern here is of the Arab states is Israel's proposed diversion of water from the Jordan River for irrigate part of the Negev Desert.

Informants said Tuesday the Arab nations are more likely to invoke the UN—that is, take their case to the UN Security Council—than to take any action which would make the UN's position more difficult or untenable.

STRONG INTEREST

Canada has taken a strong interest in Middle Eastern affairs for a long time but especially since the formation of the UN Emergency Force in 1956 after the Anglo-French-Israeli invasion of Egypt.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, who has visited the Middle East at least twice, proposed in the House of Commons Parliament that Canada convene, in Canada, a conference of representatives of Israel and the Arab states to talk about possible settlements of their disputes. The key stumbling block is that Arab states do not recognize Israel.

External Affairs Minister Martin, who has also been in the Middle East, said, in the Commons Dec. 21: "We continue to harbor a sincere interest in trying to bring together the representatives of the United Arab Republic and Israel.

"We have been the object of Canadian policy for a long time. I can only say that our efforts in this connection are continuing."

NOT AGAINST IT

Informants said President Nasser of Egypt has never given any indication that he wants the UN Emergency Force withdrawn. The force operates on Egyptian territory only.

Canada still regards the forces as necessary. Though some thinning out of the 5,000-man force has begun as an economy measure, this country is not reducing its contribution.

There are nearly 1,000 Canadians—879 soldiers and 85 airmen—serving with the UN Force in Egypt. In addition, 20 Canadian Army officers are serving with the UN truce supervisory organization in Israel, Lebanon, Syria, Jordan and Egypt.

There are also 50 Canadian airmen with the UN mission in Yemen where Egypt and Saudi Arabia have been fighting in support of the opposing sides in the civil war there.

TO BROADEN OUTLOOK

WARSAW (AP) — Communist Poland moved today to broaden economic contact with the West, announcing it is sending top government trade experts to the United States and Britain. Deputy Trade Minister Franciszek Modrzewski left for Washington to pursue Warsaw's bids for new shipments of U.S. grain and tariff concessions and also to survey markets for Polish goods. Vice-Premier Jarosewic will go to England Sunday for a visit at the invitation of the British government.

Postponement In Pension Plan Approved

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature opened today on a note of federal-provincial harmony over pension plans.

Federal health officials approved Tuesday's announcement by Premier Roberts that he will postpone implementation of part of Ontario's pension plan by a year.

The provincial plan, originally scheduled to start Jan. 1, 1965, will be postponed until 1966 to avoid a conflict with the federal plan, the premier said in a statement.

Pension plans have been the cause of friction between Ontario and the federal government during the provincial election campaign and the federal-provincial conference in Ottawa.

JUDY HAPPY

But Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said in Niagara Falls she is pleased with the premier's decision.

"The dangers in moving ahead on both fronts at the same time would cause great confusion in industry and the adjustment of their plans to meet both dominion and provincial legislation," she said.

She was confident of a period of even closer co-operation between federal and provincial governments.

A health department spokesman in Ottawa reacted similarly, saying the announcement was an encouraging development."

There is every reason to look forward to improving pensions in general through co-operation between all levels of government," the spokesman said.

WANTS DETAILS

Mr. Roberts said the postponement was due to a delay in learning full details of the federal plan.

This action will make room for a federal pension plan and will enable a conflict to be avoided if the federal plan is established while the postponement is in effect," the premier said.

A confidential memorandum from Ottawa on federal government proposals for the plan was received Monday by the premier but aides said this did not prompt the decision to delay the plan.

The premier said the province wants to learn in particular what effect the federal plan would have on private pensions and private savings in Ontario.

Employers and employees might have altered existing pension plans next year to conform with requirements of both federal and provincial plans, he said.

The delay, at the same time, will give an opportunity for a full and thorough public inquiry into the federal proposal before it is established," the premier said.

Former Student Crashes Plane Into University

SHAWNEE, Okla. (AP) — A former student ended his intended to crash his plane into a school building Tuesday and five minutes later died in the craft into a classroom of Oklahoma Baptist University.

The flyer, identified as Robert Lawson, 42, was killed. No one inside the building or on the campus was injured. A class of about 40 students was in session in the building.

Fred Reese, manager at Municipal Airport, said Lawson indeed that the administration building should be evacuated because he intended to crash into it and take his own life.

"I tried to stall him," Reese said. "He said he was going in and give it five minutes—and he did."

The administration building was evacuated as Lawson directed, but it turned out to be the wrong building.

The plane soared through the wall of Shawnee Hall. The plane hit the third floor of the building, tore through the roof and it fell to the ground outside the building.

Authorities said Lawson buzzed the building several times before he made the final dive. Lawson's son, Mike, attends the university.

There was no explanation why Lawson deliberately crashed into the building. He rented the plane earlier in the day.

IN FLORA'S WAKE — Houses such as these, shattered by the violent winds of Hurricane Flora last Sept. 30, are being rebuilt on the island of Tobago by volunteer labor as the country's 34,000 people employ a self-help recovery program. Total damage from the savage storm was estimated at $31,500,000. (CP Photo)

5,000-Gallon Water Tank Used as Home

DARWIN, Australia (CP)—Arvid (Harry) Blumentals, 37-year-old Latvian migrant who shoots crocodiles for a living, has moved into a new home—a 5,000-gallon water tank.

He bought it for $47 from the estate of northern Australian eccentric Roger Jose, a cultured and highly educated man who lived in the tank for 47 years until he died in November at the age of 69.

Jose had the wood-and-metal tank turned upside down, using the floor as the roof of his home. He said he liked it because "it was cyclone-proof, but he admitted it got terribly hot in summer.

It is located at Borroloola, 460 miles south of Darwin, Australia's northernmost city. Borroloola is in an arid area where the summer temperature usually is more than 100 degrees and often as high as 120.

Blumentals says he'll probably stay in the tank for the rest of his life, too. His neighbors, except for four white people who live at Borroloola, are wandering aboriginals.

Hurricane May Be Blessing

The Caribbean island of Tobago was one of the hardest hit by hurricane Flora in September. In this story a Canadian Press reporter tells of Tobago's recovery program.

By RUSSELL ELMAN

SCARBOROUGH, Tobago (CP)—Two young men carrying saws trudged through the drizzle up a steep, muddy mountainside path to help put a new roof on a house severely damaged by hurricane Flora last Sept. 30.

Bus conductors—not carpenters — they had volunteered to spend their day off helping on the reconstruction job. They didn't expect to get paid.

In this spirit of self-help, Tobago's 34,000 people have taken the first steps to put themselves back on their feet after the savage storm.

People have grouped together to rebuild damaged homes. Women have gone to work to repair roads. Resort owners have fixed up their hotels and guests houses so that all are open for business as usual during the winter tourist season.

Meanwhile, mountainous Tobago, long considered a pretty but relatively poor and backward neighbor of Trinidad, is enjoying the limelight as government planning for future development.

It has its own five-year plan aimed at revitalizing agriculture and boosting its tourist industry.

MANY HOMELESS

"I believe our rehabilitation is getting into top gear," says Carl Sardina, president of the Tobago Chamber of Commerce. "Flora may turn out to be a blessing in disguise."

The hurricane left a trail of devastation estimated at $31,500,000, making thousands homeless, ripping roofs and walls off hotels and flattening coconut plantations.

Within days aid in the form of food and clothing began pouring in from abroad, including Canada. Trinidad's Prime Minister Eric Williams organized a relief fund which has raised $400,000 in Trinidad and he personally took command of the start of the rehabilitation program.

At the end of six weeks nearly all essential services such as water, electricity and communications were back to normal. Most of the homeless had found some sort of shelter. Outbreak of disease had been averted and travel restrictions between Tobago and Trinidad had been lifted.

Now the islanders are reassessing their future prospects in the light of Flora, which underlined the fragility of an economy based on copra and coconuts.

SLOW TO MATURE

"Emphasis must be given to agricultural redevelopment," says Sardina.

This was already being considered before Flora, and a study of land use on the big estates had been suggested with the aim of increasing agricultural productivity.

An air traveller can see thousands of coconut palms strewn over the tropical landscape like broken matchsticks. Of those trees still standing, a large proportion have lost their coconut-growing potential.

Worst hit are the large estates—principal employers of labor on the island — but small-holders suffered, too.

A major problem is that it takes five to 10 years for coconuts to mature. In the meantime islanders will be in desperate need of cash income. There are proposals for more ground crops such as cassava or bananas which grow rapidly and could offer a quick return.

The problem is heightened because in recent years there has been a drift away from the soil with a constant flow of men and women to Trinidad in search of work in the larger, more prosperous island. Once an exporter of food, Tobago has had to import food from Trinidad.

FREE CLOTHING

The need to create more employment is pressing, although in the immediate aftermath of Flora people have been kept busy helping up the mess.

Money earned by women on road work has helped many a family's financial situation and free clothing and food, much of it supplied through the International Red Cross, has been an added boon.

Encouragement of the tourist trade is considered essential at this time. Whereas tourism normally is an important, yet secondary part of Tobago's economy, loss of tourist income now on top of Flora's devastation could be a deadly blow.

Trinidad and Tobago Tourist Board officials feel more could be done to foster the tourist trade in the summer months as well as the traditional season during the first three months of the year. It's hoped there will be increased government assistance through tourist promotion and advertising and attractive air fares to bring more visitors to the island's tranquil beaches.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Belleville Sales and Ad Club which, I am told, can lay 1,000 at the monthly Knife and Fork League get-together, will be told how it is done on a baseball diamond next Tuesday evening.

GEORGE ANDERSON

Or at least how the 1964 edition of the Toronto Maple Leafs expect to do it come soft breezes and warm sunshine time.

That demon publicity man of the SAC membership Gerry Hyde, ex-mayor, sports fan, lawn bowling and curling buff, tells me that George "Sparky" Anderson, the newly appointed field manager of the Leafs will toss assorted verbal strikes and balls at the calory-collection affair come Tuesday twilight-ling.

"Sparky," I presume, is the goodwill ambassador of the Fleet Street Stadium ballhawking crew, and is the first of his kind to orate here since the days of 'Rudy' Rudolph.

And if "Sparky's" podium performance is half as good as his second base capers for the Leafs and seven other pro clubs over a period of 11 years, then the SACs are in for an evening of delightful Sales-Ad rhetoric.

If you followed the fortunes of the diamond Majleos last summer or for the past four years, you will know that "Sparky" came up Leaf-wise the hard way. His fiery antics at second base earned for him the "Sparky" handle and the playing-coach job last summer.

Always a favorite of the fans and one of the Leafs' all-time most popular players, Mr. Anderson capped off the season last year by winning the "Silver Glove Award" as the National Association's finest fielding second baseman for 1963.

Leaf general manager Frank Pollock looking over the herd for a field manager felt that some of "Sparky's" fire and infield pyrotechnics might rub off on some of the other Leafs, so he "put the finger" on Anderson as the Joe for the job.

His choice of "Sparky" met with the unanimous approval of both the Milwaukee Braves and Washington Senators front office. The Leafs have a 1964 working agreement with both these clubs.

Anderson was born in 1934 and 19 years later he donned his first pro uniform with the Santa Barbara Club. The next three years saw him perform with the Pueble, Fort Worth, and Montreal clubs. In 1957 he was with Los Angeles and returned to Montreal in 1958.

He played 152 games with the Philadelphia Athletics in 1959 and a year later began a four-year tenure with the Maple Leafs.

Never a Ruth, Mantle or Maris, "Sparky's" batting average hovered around the mid .260's. His best mark was .296 with the Pueble club in 1954. Since then his batting marks have ranged between .218 (Phillies) and his Pueble record, .318.

But put him in his favorite sport cavorting around second base and he'll make a juiced-up hare look like a trapped bear. And he'll never make the NFL Giants or Chicago Bears because he is five feet nine inches high and tips the scales at 155 pounds.

I don't know how many of the SACs are baseball buffs but those that aren't should come away with the knowledge that a strike is not a union-management stir; a "foul" is not an old-age pensioned hen and diamonds have vice other than being a girl's best friend.

QUITS LISTON

CHICAGO (AP) — Ben Bentley, veteran boxing figure, quit his job Tuesday as publicity director for world heavyweight champion Sonny Liston. Bentley said he resigned in a dispute over handling closed-circuit television in Chicago for the Liston-Cassius Clay title match Feb. 25 in Miami Beach, Fla. "Liston's advisers gave me every reason to believe I would have rights for closed-circuit TV in several Chicago locations," Bentley said. "Jack Nilon, Liston's adviser, broke his word."

Hecklers Included Leafs Smythe ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Young Given Five-Game Suspension

MONTREAL (CP) — Defenceman Howie Young, one of the National Hockey League's biggest disciplinary problems, will sit out Chicago's next two games because of the way he reacted to Toronto heckling Jan. 4.

League president Clarence Campbell Tuesday imposed a five-game suspension on Young, effect Jan. 7, as punishment for having cursed and spat upon a woman spectator.

The penalty wasn't as severe as it could have been. Campbell said earlier, after gathering evidence in Toronto and Chicago during the weekend, that the Black Hawks bad man could be suspended for life.

The incident took place while Young was sitting out a minor and a major penalty in the second period.

In Chicago, Young commented:

"I'm glad the whole thing is all over and I'm sorry I caused so much trouble."

TEMPER FLARED

His temper flared under vigorous heckling and he became involved in an altercation with occupants of the adjacent box seats, among them Stafford Smythe, Toronto's NHL governor and president of Maple Leaf Gardens.

Campbell said a report on the incident from Carl Voss, league referee-in-chief, was supported by all witnesses and by motion pictures of the game.

"The witnesses verified that in the course of the altercation Howie Young had directed several very obscene curses toward the spectators and that he had spat toward the Smythe box, striking a lady occupant full in the face."

Campbell said Young freely admitted his actions at an official hearing and had apologized in writing to "all of the people who were the victims of his actions."

In his own defence, the 25-year-old defenceman said he was provoked by severe heckling "and was particularly angry because his hecklers included the owner of the opposing team."

NO EXCUSE

Campbell didn't accept this as a valid excuse. "Professional athletes must accept heckling as part of their vocation and maintain decent responses to it," he said.

"Young's conduct in this case appears to have been actuated more by the source of the heckling (Smythe) than by its content and this aspect of the incident will certainly require the league's consideration to avoid any similar situation in the future."

Young already has missed three of the five games covered by the suspension. He will be sidelined when the Hawks visit Montreal Thursday and when New York visits Chicago Saturday.

Ironically, the first game he is eligible to play is against the Leafs, who visit Chicago Sunday.

This isn't the first time Young has been hauled up on the carpet.

OUT FOR THREE

He was suspended for three games last season, when he set an NHL record of 272 penalty minutes, for throwing a stick at referee Frank Udvari.

Detroit Red Wings also tried to straighten him out through suspensions before trading him to Chicago last summer for goalie Roger Crozier.

The Wings suspended him last season for failing to show up at a players' meeting and in 1961-62 for drawing needless penalties. He was taken off the active list in the same season for twice missing practice.

Young was jailed briefly last summer, the result of a restaurant brawl. He received a suspended sentence.

This season, he ranks fourth in penalties with 97 minutes. Ahead of him are Chicago's Reg Fleming with 110 minutes, New York's Vic Hadfield with 102 and Chicago's Stan Mikita with 101. Over the last 2½ seasons, Young has paid $250 in automatic fines for a total of six misconduct penalties and two game misconduct penalties.

Non-Cooperation Of Players

Plata Resigns Post

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

Misbehavior of the Belleville Junior "B" hockey club has forced team coach Ed Plata to resign his post, it was learned here yesterday.

"Their conduct is a disgrace, not only to the players themselves but to everyone connected with the club," Plata said in an interview last night.

"They have a complete disrespect for all authority and I have been unable to get cooperation from four or five of them in particular," the likeable schoolteacher-coach continued.

Plata said "the players and others involved with the team blame everyone else, argue with the referees and continually draw misconduct penalties and warnings from the OHA."

"They kept screaming about how bad the officials are here but out of about eight home games this season I remember only one game where I did not agree with the way the game was refereed".

Plata quit the coaching job after last Friday's game, here against the Picton Merchants. He stormed directly out of the arena after the "B"s had drawn three misconducts, three game misconducts and a major among 13 penalties handed out against Belleville in the third period. The misconducts brought the team's total to 16 in 13 league games this season.

The ex-coach said he does not know where the blame should fall for the players' actions. "I really hate to see this continue and maybe now the ever takes over will be able to talk some sense into them. There are some real fine lads on the team but even they are being influenced into playing rough, getting into fights and arguing with the referees."

Plata said he did not mind too much when people stopped him on the street and asked, "what is the matter with those boys, if the players at least appreciated just a little what you are trying to teach them and at least try to co-operate".

"Four or five of them showed me no appreciation or even attempted to co-operate", he said.

Gordie Bell, president of the club since the fall of 1962, agreed that Plata was receiving no co-operation.

"I don't blame Ed in the least, he tried and they just ignored what he told them", Bell said.

The club president also announced that Bob Taylor has been named as the team's new coach.

"We assured Taylor that we were going to lay down the law", Bell added, "and we are having a team meeting at the arena tonight (Wednesday) at nine o'clock.

"I want all the players there and intend to tell them that they will either start doing as they are told or they will be replaced by younger players from the minor system", Bell concluded.

"Taylor is stepping into a thankless job, the same as Plata had. Coaches get nothing for their trouble, they do it because they want to help the kids, and we are going to demand that the players at least do as they are told", Bell concluded.

Bell also said that a very important meeting of the club's executive has been called for the following night, Thursday, at 7.30 at Mahaffey's Shoe Store.

The "B"s will make their first start under Taylor here this Friday night against the Gananoque Islanders.

Banff Rated Even Chance

1968 Olympics

CALGARY (CP)—Eight years of labor preparing a bid by Banff, Alta., for the 1968 Winter Olympic Games will be pressed into a compact 30-minute presentation before the International Olympic Committee Jan. 28 at Innsbruck, Austria.

The Calgary Olympic Development Association brief, supported by the Canadian Olympic Committee, will be the final stage in efforts to bring the games to Canada for the first time.

Banff, a mountain resort of 3 000 lying in the Rocky Mountains 80 miles west of here, is rated an even chance with Grenoble, France, to gain IOC approval. Other proposed sites are Lake Placid, N.Y.; Sapporo, Japan; Sion, Switerland; Oslo, Norway; and Lahti, Finland.

If successful, CODA will have brought into reality a dream considered little more than a fantasy 35 years ago.

And while the official Canadian delegation makes last-minute preparations, Banff relaxes under 20 inches of snow. Most of the 1,500,000 tourists who visit the resort each year do so during the summer.

A 14-man technical group of federal and Alberta government representatives also will travel to Innsbruck for the games. They will act as observers and if Banff is successful will hurdle with IOC officials in an effort to map out details so an immediate start can be made on facilities.

CODA has spent $250,000 promoting the Banff bid. However, more than $12,000,000 will be spent preparing the site if Banff is awarded the games.

A booth has been established at Innsbruck. To add color to the display, an RCMP officer has been assigned to make the trip.

Art Smith first suggested Banff be the site of the Olympics in a speech in Parliament 35 years ago. Few people heeded him.

But eight years ago the idea was revived by his son, Art Smith Jr. CODA was established to promote the plan. Today it has 120 active members, all business and professional men anxious to see Banff become a year-round sports centre.

Canada At Innsbruck

'We Can't Win' Says Trio

MONTREAL (CP) — Three former members of Canadian entries in world hockey tournaments, Bobby Rousseau, Red Berenson and Connie Broden, believe Rev. David Bauer's Olympic team will return from Austria defeated.

"I don't think they'll win," says Broden, a member of Whitby's unbeaten Dunlops in 1958 at Oslo. "Under existing rules we can't win an Olympic tournament."

Rousseau and Berenson, both members of Montreal Canadiens, also thought Father Bauer's collegians would lose.

"Father Bauer has disciplined this team very well," says Berenson, who played with Belleville at Prague in 1959. "I don't think they'll win but they'll give us good representation."

Rousseau, who saw infrequent action at the 1960 games at Squaw Valley, Calif., thought the team should have played against stiffer competition in Canada before heading overseas.

"They have shown they can beat the best amateur teams in Canada," he said, "but they should have played against National and American League teams."

Sox Double Ward Salary

CHICAGO (AP)—Third baseman Pete Ward signed his 1964 baseball contract with Chicago White Sox today for almost twice his last season's salary.

Ward, a native of Montreal, was reported to have had his salary increased to about $15,000 for the season from an $8,000 minimum last season. Ward led Chicago in hitting with .295 and in runs batted in with 84.

Hawks Tie Habs 5-5

Generals Clobber Rangers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League and Oshawa Generals of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series have a common interest these days—it centres around 15-year-old defenceman Bobby Orr.

Boston, the parent club for the Generals, call Orr the greatest hockey prospect in the country. Orr displayed a mutual respect for the Bruins recently when he said he chose them over three other clubs because "they're a team of the future."

The youngster continued to support Boston's confidence in him Tuesday night when he registered his 20th goal of the season in Oshawa's 10-2 drubbing of Kitchener Rangers in Bowmanville.

What's strange about scoring 20 goals Nothing, except that Orr is a defenceman and the goal let him just five short of the one-season goal-scoring record for defencemen set two years ago by Jacques Laperriere, now with the Montreal Canadiens in the NHL.

CANADIENS TIE

In other league action Montreal Junior Canadiens tied 5-5 with St. Catharines Black Hawks and Peterborough Petes downed Hamilton Red Wings 5-2.

The idle Toronto Marlboros had their lead cut to 10 points and now have 37. Peterborough's win left them in third place with 40, followed by Niagara Falls Flyers with 36, St. Catharines 34, Oshawa, 28, Hamilton, 17, and Kitchener, 13.

Stretch Lead To Eight

Athletics Bomb Hornets

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Woodstock Athletics are determined to prove it takes more than technicalities to hold on to first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series.

Earlier this week two protested games were set aside by the OHA and as a result Galt Hornets dropped back into a second-place tie with Welland Broilers, six points back of Woodstock.

Tuesday night the Athletics played host to the Hornets and bombed the visitors 9-2 to stretch their lead to eight points and bring their total to 35. Galt and the idle Burloaks are deadlocked with 27.

The Athletics will get a chance to support their claim on first place tonight when they go at it again with the Hornets in Galt.

Oakville Oaks remained in fourth place with 20 points while the tail-end Port Colborne Sailors edged Guelph Regals 7-5. Guelph has 17 points, the Sailors 10.

Tuesday night's game replaced the season's first home game in Woodstock, postponed because of a failure in the arena's ice plant.

Toby Black paved the way for the Athletics with a three-goal effort while Ron Mixon fired a pair. Singles went to Ted Power, Rico Caron, Bernie Lawrence and Ron Caudron.

Larry Pfaff and Jim Dahmer scored for the losers.

Mike Green scored three goals to lead the Sailors to their fifth win of the season. Bob Judge added a pair and George Montague and Bill Searle got singles.

Guelph marksmen were Rick Hay, Don Duke, Bob Krouse, Lloyd Mercer and Jack McIntyre.

Fractured Opponent's Skull

Player Gets Jail, Fine

MONTREAL (CP) — An amateur hockey player was sentenced to a week in jail and fined $100 Tuesday for fracturing an opponent's skull in a game at suburban Verdun last year.

Yvon Trudel, 27, was also ordered to post a $500 bond to keep the peace for one year.

Judge Jean Tellier said the attack on player Michel Cyrenne was "a cowardly, brutal and deliberate assault." An operation was required to remove a blood clot on the brain of Cyrenne, who was struck on the head by a hockey stick.

"One would say that hockey players are under the impression that there will be no police intervention and no criminal charges, regardless of what they do, the judge said. Certain sports, he said, have developed a "spirit of violence and brutality" which must be stopped.

The violence was setting a bad example to youngsters who idolize players as heroes.

Maroons Get Ray Ouimet

CHATHAM (CP) — Chatham Maroons of the International Hockey League have acquired the services of Ray Ouimet, 22, the leading scorer in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series.

Ouimet, a centre with the first-place Rouyn-Noranda Alouettes, is the first player to arrive under the new scouting system.

SPORT BRIEFS

REJECT DEMAND

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (Reuters) — South Africa has rejected the International Olympic Committee's demand that it abolish racial separation in sport but asked not to be excluded from the Tokyo Olympic Games this summer, IOC Chancellor Otto Mayer said Tuesday night. Mayer said the IOC will decide what action to take at its meeting in Innsbruck, Austria, Jan. 27.

HORSES OFF AGAIN

CHARLES TOWN, W.Va. (AP) — The horses will run at Charles Town Race Track again Wednesday after a two-day layoff because of a 20-inch snowfall. The Bowie Track in southern Maryland, below Baltimore, had scores of workmen with snow plows clearing away 11 inches of snow. A 52-day race meeting at Bowie is scheduled to open Friday.

TOO SEVERE

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — The Nova Scotia Fish and Game Association rejected a proposal Tuesday for automatic manslaughter charges in cases of hunting fatalities. The motion calling for the manslaughter charge, proposed at the association's annual meeting by the Cape Breton association, met little support after several delegates said they felt the measure was too severe.

NAME COACH

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP)—Bert Clark, 33, assistant at the University of Washington, was named head football coach Tuesday at rival Washington State University. The former Oklahoma star succeeds Jim Sutherland, who was released Jan. 21 with a year to go on his $17,000 contract. Contract terms and salary for Clark were not revealed. Clark played one season with Calgary Stampeders.

CHAMPS OUT

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Mrs. Ralph Dware's Moncton Beaver rink, Canadian women's curling champion in 1963, has been knocked out of contention in New Brunswick zone playoffs. Mrs. Dware's rink, with the same personnel that won the national championship last year, fell to Mrs. Phil D'Entremont 9-8 Tuesday.

GIVES BIG VIEW

A special color television camera designed in Britain for hospital use provides pictures of a surgical operation on a 15-by-nine foot screen in an adjoining room.

Fred Glover Suspended 3 Games

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Barons said Tuesday player-coach Fred Glover, under suspension by the American Hockey League because he fired a puck in the general direction of a referee last weekend, will be back in action against Pittsburgh Jan. 22.

A club spokesman said the Barons received a telegram from AHL president James G. Balmer setting Glover's suspension at three games, including the game he missed Sunday. Glover, a Toronto native, thus will miss a Jan. 18 game against Baltimore and a Jan. 19 game at Rochester.

He was fined $75 as a result of the incident Saturday night in a game against Buffalo Bisons. Referee Bill Friday said Glover fired the puck at him after arguing over a penalty.

Seventeen Make Up Squad

Father Bauer Names 'Whiz Kids'

ZURICH, Switzerland (CP)—The 17 men who will make up Canada's team in the 1964 Winter Olympic Games hockey tournament were named Tuesday by Rev. David Bauer, coach of the Canadian Olympics.

Bauer had to cut four of the 21 men travelling with the Olympics, currently in the midst of a 10-game exhibition tour preceding the opening of the games Jan. 29.

The four, who will remain with the team through its tour and during the games in Innsbruck, Austria, but will not play in the Olympics are:

Goalie Rick Broadbelt of Montreal, defenceman Jack Wilson of Victoria and forwards Al McLean of New Westminster, B.C., and David Merrifield of Fort Arthur, Ont.

Bauer announced the names of the 17 chosen for the Olympics when the Canadian team passed through here en route to Moscow where two exhibition games are scheduled today and Friday. The Canadians played to a 4-4 tie with a squa of Canadian professionals now playing hockey in Europe in a game in Geneva Monday night. They now have three victories and a tie in four games in Europe.

MET DEADLINE

Monday was the deadline for naming the 17 men who will make up the team contesting the Olympics.

The 17 named are:

Goalies Ken Broderick, Etobicoke, Ont., and Seth Martin, Trail, B.C.

Defence: Hank Akervall, Port Arthur; Barry MacKenzie, Weston, Ont.; Ross Morrison, Toronto; Terry O'Malley, Toronto.

LUGANO, Switzerland (AP)—The U.S. Olympic hockey team scored four goals within five minutes in the first period and then barely defeated an all-star team of Swiss, Italian and Canadian players 5 - 4 Tuesday night.

In Bern, the Japanese Olympic team defeated a Swiss club of Bern 5-4.

CHURCHILL FIT

LONDON (Reuters) — Sir Winston Churchill Tuesday attended the House of Commons, from which he will retire when the present parliamentary session ends later this year. The 89-year-old statesman looked fit, and cheerful and stayed 40 minutes.

Komets Clip Muskegon

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fort Wayne Komets, not too long ago locked with Toledo Blades and Port Huron Flags in a battle for first place in the International Hockey League, are enjoying a comfortable nine-point lead atop the standings.

The Komets walloped the cellar-dwelling Muskegon Zephyrs 7-2 in Fort Wayne Tuesday to extend their unbeaten string at home ice to 18 games. The win pushed their point total to 50. The idle Blades have 41.

Port Huron dropped a 5-4 decision to the Bulldogs in Windsor to remain in third place with 35 points. Windsor's victory enabled them to take over sole possession of fourth place with 29 points.

Des Moines' Oak Leafs, with 27, have a one-point spread over Chatham Maroons. Muskegon rides the tail-end with 22.

Swim Report Premature, Says C.N.E.

TORONTO (CP) — George Dubbie, sports manager of the Canadian National Exhibition, Tuesday cited earlier reports that the CNE's annual professional marathon swim in Lake Ontario would be revised this year as "premature."

"It has been suggested and we're considering it," said Dubbie. "There isn't any doubt that it would be more exciting if it came across the lake rather than 15-mile triangular course outside the exhibition.

"But it is premature to say if it will go on. We have written to the Toronto Power Suadron to see how many cruisers might be available. We need one per swimmer. We haven't received a reply yet."

"Also we have to investigate staizing points. We're considering Niagara-on-the-Lake, Port Dalhousie and Hamilton but we haven't decided on anything. It will all depend on what financial arrangements we can make with the exhibition."

Mountain View Ski Club

The slopes of the Mountain View Ski Club are encased in an icy sheath forcing temporary a cessation of skiing and other winter recreation.

The rains of a week ago effectively wiped out the snow mattress and subsequent sub zero weather shackled the runs and general topography in a gleaming ice cover.

However the management is not letting the grass grow beneath its figurative feet. A second tow is now being installed and will be ready for use within a week or so, following governmental inspection and approval.

The tow is located at the east end of the club property immediately behind the chalet.

Reports of ski conditions at the club will be published in this newspaper every Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Minor Hockey

Meanwhile, Comets won the lone Juvenile contest while Leafs and Canadiens chalked up Midget victories.

SQUIRT

G. Duffy fired three goals in pacing Leafs to a 4-1 decision over the Canadiens. M. Coates potted the other Leaf goal. Creelman gained two assists, Taylor and Wannamaker one piece. D. Long scored on a solo effort for Canadiens.

Rangers clipped the Bruins 5-1. Brian Cousins and Rick Meagher potted two Ranger goals apiece and W. Andrews got the other. J. Foley drew the only assist. M. Hayes tallied the Bruins' marker.

Hawks thumped the Wings 8-1, led by Neil Morrison with three goals and Peter Fralick with a pair. J. Richardson, Tom Rogers and John Mulvihill also scored with assists going to Wayne Warner, Fralick and Neil Smith. D .Smith got the Wing goal, aided by R. Foster.

JUVENILE

Comets nipped the Midget All-Stars 6-5, sparked by K. Hannah's three-goal performance. B. Lancaster, R. Denard and F. Farrell potted the other goals. Lancaster also earned two assists, F. Ellis, Denard and R. Poste one each. E. Mastin, B. Bateman, S. White, S. Holmes and D. Dickey tallied the Midget markers. R. Summers got a pair of assists, R. Hannah D. Duvall and S. Holmes one apiece.

MIDGET

Leafs edged the Bruins 3-2 with Dale Duvall scoring two goals. John Doran potted the other one. Ray Summers and J. Smith were the Bruin marksmen.

Canadiens shaded the Hawks 4-3 in another tight Midget battle. Hunter, Hibbard, Rosebush and S. Lee scored for the winners, all unassisted. Shareland, Denyes and Ford collected Hawk goals, J. Cole getting two assists.

FINE WINDMILL

SISBEY, England (CP) — Members of the Lincolnshire local historical society want to restore an old windmill, said to be the finest in England, which has stood for 96 years here. They are trying to raise £1,000 toward the cost of repairs.

Aces Shade Providence, Bisons Lose

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A two-goal splurge in 39 seconds and a regular "knockout" supplied the highlights in American Hockey League action Tuesday night.

The two-goal effort by Ed Hoekstra and Leon Rochefort—carried Quebec Aces to a 3-2 win over Providence Reds in Quebec and enabled the Aces to stretch their lead in the Eastern Division to three points.

The knockout was credited to left winger George Konik and it was scored on himself when he slammed into the boards following his winning goal in a 5-4 overtime victory for Baltimore Clippers over Buffalo Bisons.

The win left Quebec with 44 points while the idle Hershey Bears boast 41. The Bears can tighten the count tonight when they visit Pittsburgh Horne's.

The Baltimore triumph gave them 39 points, good for third place, with a four-point lead over Providence. Springfield Indians are last in the East with 27 points.

CLEVELAND ON TOP

The West, idle Tuesday except for Buffalo, has Cleveland Barons leading with 47, followed by Pittsburgh with 45, Rochester, 40, and the Bisons, 28.

Alienation Of Affection

Durocher Faces $150,000 Suit

MIDDLESBURY, Vt. (AP) — Leo Durocher, coach of Los Angeles Dodgers baseball team, was named Tuesday in a $150,000 civil suit alleging he alienated the affections of a Vermont housewife, his lawyer said.

The complaint was brought by Rene Morin, a Swanton, Vt., stonemason, who charged that Durocher stole the affections of his wife Anna.

Durocher denied the allegations in a statement he issued through lawyer Ralph A. Foote.

The statement said:

"There is no truth in any single allegation of the entire complaint. I have had the privilege of having plaintiff's daughter, Carolyn, as a friend for the past three years and through this friendship I have become close friends with many members of her immediate family. This includes Carolyn's mother, Mrs. Anna Morin, and this is the only basis on which I have known her."

Carolyn Morin was described as a striking beauty in her 30s who left university to pursue a career as a model and TV actress.

Miss Morin and her three sisters—Mrs. Jean Hadley, Mrs. Paula Sharkey and Mrs. Elinor White — issued this statement through Foote:

"There is no truth whatsoever in the charges made by our father.

"Leo Durocher is a most honorable gentleman, a friend, particularly of Carolyn, but indeed of all of us, and he has had no dealings with our mother."

Morin could not be reached for comment.

A writ was served on Durocher Monday. He was brought before Assistant Judge Leon Bushey and ordered to post bail of $30,000 or be jailed. Three unidentified local men immediately put up the bail.

SET UP WORKSHOP

A television workshop to be set up in Stuttgart, West Germany, will teach young people the theory and practical aspects of television.

Richard Boone Show Likely To Close End of Season

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC's ambitious Richard Boone Show has talented performers, experienced directors and scripts usually written by sound professionals. It should be a better anthology series than it often is.

All dramatic series have ups and downs. But this one has a disproportionate number of downs.

Tuesday night's presentation, The Hooligan, was a typical offnight. It was adapted—with ill-advised freedom—from a Chekhov comedy called The Bear. The first mistake was to move the Russian writer's characters into American wild west.

Boone played a terrible-tempered loudmouth trying to collect some bad debts.

After about 45 minutes of steady shouting by Boone, he met a widow who yelled back. Of course they fell violently in love and were happily screaming at each other at the fadeout.

An NBC executive, talking up the series last summer, suggested an "added plus" would be the audience's curiosity to see what Boone and his repertory company would be up to each week.

Instead, it has been rather distracting to try to find Harry Morgan behind the handlebar moustache or Bethel Leslie in a dark wig playing a Brigid.

The series, an expensive one, is not expected to continue past this one season.

Recommended tonight: The Danny Kaye Show, CBS, 10-11 EST, with Jackie Cooper and Dorothy Collins.

Egyptian Actor Wants to Make One More Film

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Egyptian actor Omar Sharif and his movie star wife, Faten Hamama, have a design for living. That is, if you can call it living when a married couple resides 7,000 miles apart.

Omar is the Egyptian actor who scored an international hit (and an Academy nomination) as Peter O'Toole's desert buddy in Lawrence of Arabia, and priced himself out of the Arabic market.

Miss Hamama remains in Cairo to care for their seven-year-old son and her career in Egyptian films.

"She has been in films for 24 years — ever since she was seven," said Sharif. "She enjoys that life, and it would be wrong to ask her to leave.

"On the other hand, it would be impossible for me to return to films in Egypt. I've already had one good picture in the International market, and I've just made another—Behold a Pale Horse with Gregory Peck and Anthony Quinn. Now it is important for me to make one more good picture, and I would like to make it in Hollywood.

HAS CHOICE

"I think I will be able to, because I have my choice of a number of good scripts. Picking the right one is the only problem; it is difficult to make a choice after working with such good directors as David Lean and Fred Zinneman.

"If I can get this third good movie, then I will be able to spen more time in Cairo. But in the meantime my wife and I will have to live in different parts of the world."

Besides enhancing his reputation, work in Hollywood would help fatten the family fortunes. Sharif has yet to haul in really top money.

"For Lawrence of Arabia I believe I was paid $25,000 in all —for a year and, half's work," he said. "I did not receive a great deal for Behold the Pale Horse, but I have no complaints. For a Zinneman picture I would work for nothing.

GRAND PRIX
AUTO RACING THRILLER
OPENING HERE TOMORROW

All the thrills, chills and excitement of the world's greatest auto races highlight American International's "The Young Racers" which opens Thursday at the Park Theatre.

Filmed on the scene in color at the world famous Grand Prix racing classic sites of Europe, "The Young Racers" stars Mark Damon, William Campbell, Luana Anders and the International Playgirls. Also featured are three Grand Prix racing champions, Jimmy Clark, Bruce McLaren and Trevor Taylor.

Actual thrilling races seen in "The Young Racers" are the 1962 Grand Prix classics at Aintree, England; Spa, Belgium; Rouen, France, and Monte Carlo, Monaco. The story of the film is that of two great racing champions, each with a different personality and reason for racing, who clash over women and fight it out on the race course.

"The Young Racers" is a picture which combines the thrills of the world's most spectacular and dangerous sport with an unusual human story to make for one of the screen's most unforgettable entertainment experiences.

On the same program 1001 thrills "Eric the Conqueror," in color starring Cameron Mitchell and the Kessler Twins. Complete shows at 7.00-8.40.

PROVIDE SPECS

TORONTO (CP)—The sum of $10 to provide eye specialties every year to garment workers was included in an agreement signed Monday between the Toronto Sportswear Manufacturers' Association and the International Ladies Garment Workers Union (CLC). The contract covers 30 plants and 1,300 employees and provides seven-per-cent increases to piece workers, $3 a week to hourly paid workers and $5 to cutters.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For January 16
By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Depend upon your own personality — not merely acceptance of others. Now you are your own best salesman. Highlight diplomacy, understanding of delicate questions. Be a good listener.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Others may be misinformed concerning your intentions. Do something about it — make your views clear. Say what you mean — mean what you say. Stress clarity.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Favorable lunar aspect today corresponds to new opportunity. Display knowledge. Read. Discuss current events. You can make wonderful impression on "important" person.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Quiet reflection may be necessary on what appears an "impossible" problem. Answer will come from within. Give yourself a chance! Refuse to quit. Time will turn events to your favor.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): What appears a monotonous task could hold exciting possibilities. Put best efforts forward — no holding back. Determination, will-power raises your prestige.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Key is work combined with relaxation. Pacing is important. Strive for balance. Includes dealings with associates. Don't become involved in family dispute.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Excellent for change, travel, variety. Good, too, where romance is concerned. Important that you recognize when you encounter it. Don't turn away too quickly!

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Best for finishing rather than starting new projects. You may not perceive entire picture. Wait for additional facts. You'll be happier in long run! Rely on powers of reason.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Welcome new ideas. Encourage associate who asks your opinion. The more you give now — the more you receive. Means be out-going. Show consideration for, one who attempts to please you.

Capricorn (Dec. 23 to Jan. 20): Spotlight on home improvement, "necessary luxuries." Time also apt to be filled with apparent contradictions. Remain aware, alert. And maintain sense of humor. You may need it!

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Check reliable sources. Guesswork won't be enough. The more facts at hand, the better for you. Highlight versatility. Avoid scattering forces. Co-ordinate activities.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Overcome reluctance. There is no need to be timid. Speak up. Applies especially where money matters are concerned. Cycle moving up. You could now add to income

If today is your birthday . . . you are introspective, often called upon to handle important responsibilities.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Aquarius, Pisces, Aries. Special word to Virgo: Resist temptation to be a "referee." Steer clear of complicated family involvements.

TOWNSHIP OF THURLOW
By-law No. 1964-1

In the matter of The Municipal Act, and in the matter of the incorporation by-law of the Corporation of the Township of Thurlow and the by-law providing an allowance for Statutory

Notice is hereby given pursuant to Section 459 of The Municipal Act, R.S.O. 1960, Chapter 249, that the Corporation of the Township of Thurlow intends to pass a by-law to pass at its regular meeting to be held at the Township Hall in the Village of Canniffton on the 10th day of February, 1964, at 8:00 o'clock p.m. (D.S.T.) or as soon thereafter as the council can be heard, to close all that portion of the road allowance between the Township of Thurlow and the Township of Sidney and Thurlow in Concession VI, in the County of Hastings and Province of Ontario, which said parcel is described as follows —

Providing that the eastern limit of the road allowance between Lots 32 and 33 in the said Concession VI, Township of Sidney and north 19 degrees 30 minutes west 33.07 feet to the western limit of the aforementioned road allowance;

THENCE south 19 degrees 30 minutes east 1320 feet, more or less, to the southern limit of the aforementioned road allowance between the Townships of Thurlow and Sidney, and the southern limit of the King's Highway No. 2 as widened by Instrument No. 7235;

THENCE south 70 degrees 15 minutes 30 seconds west 33.00 feet and southern limit 40.07 feet to the western limit of the aforementioned road allowance;

THENCE north 19 degrees 30 minutes west 1320 feet, more or less, to the eastern limit, 33.00 feet to the place of beginning, according to Deposited Plan Number 1446;

THENCE north 0 degrees 30 minutes, 30 seconds west 1320 feet to the western limit of the new Highway No. 2 (1913) feet to the eastern limit of the said improved road allowance;

THENCE north 19 degrees 30 minutes west 1320 feet, more or less, said eastern limit, 520.69 feet to the place of beginning.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that the Council may by said By-law at its meeting to be held at the time and place above mentioned, the Council of the Corporation of the Township of Thurlow shall then and there hear in person or by its counsel, solicitor or agent, and who desires to appeal that his lands will be prejudicially affected by the said By-law and who applies to be heard.

6th Sidney

6TH SIDNEY—The ladies of Scott's U.C.W. held a successful pot-luck dinner in the church hall last Wednesday noon with Mrs. Bob Coulter as hostess.

Wednesday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edison Sine were: Mr. and Mrs. John Wilman and Mr. Blake Wilman, Belleville; Mr. Lewis Phillips, Marmora and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Davison, Alberta.

Mr. and Mrs. Grenville Sine were Saturday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sine, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Dafoe accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Bill Gray to Frankford to Toronto on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Clare and boys of Thurlow called on Mr. and Mrs. Edison Sine on Sunday evening.

UNIONDALE DAIRYETTES

The Uniondale Dairyettes held their final meeting of the club "The Milky Way" recently, which was in the form of a work meeting to complete their record books, at the home of their leader, Mrs. Morley Sine. Each of the nine girls completed the course in preparation for Achievement Day which is to be held in Alumni Memorial School Belleville on February 1st.

The Uniondale girls will be in charge of the exhibit "The Story of Milk Bottle" when Yvonne Bedard will give the commentary.

At the close of the meeting Joyce (now Anderson) Frost was presented with a shower gift from the members which included a set of stainless steel mixing bowls and a stainless steel setting of stainless steel cutlery.

COMMUNITY SHOWER

Last Friday evening a large crowd was in attendance at a community shower in honor of Joyce and Francis Frost at the home of his parents.

Mrs. Clifford Elliott as master of ceremonies presided over a short program consisting of music and readings. Mrs. George Striker read an address of welcome and the young couple was presented with a large wall mirror, a tri-light lamp and a basket of groceries. Mrs. Lee's Institute also presented them with a gift and a number of individual gifts were received.

EQUIPMENT SOLD

STAMFORD, England (CP)—Obsolete American rocket base equipment in Britain, once worth millions of pounds, was sold at an auction in this Lincolnshire town for a total of £37,852.

PENNY BOOM

LONDON (CP)—The Royal Mint says the country is going through a new boom in pennies. They coined 137,640,000 in 1962, which brings the number of pennies circulating in Britain up to 1,000,000,000.

BUSY TRAMS

EASTBOURNE, England (CP)—American businessman Don Sorensen was fascined by the narrow - gauge trams running alongside a Sussex beach. He travelled up and down the track for two hours, then asked the conductor, "Say bud, how much for these little streetcars?" They weren't for sale, but Claude Lane, the owner, sold him three early - type trams, which were sent to New York.

Bonarlaw

BONARLAW — Several of this community attended the funeral of Annie McComb who lived her entire life in this district before moving to Sidney township ten years ago. She was a valued member of the Anglican Church, Women's Institute and W.A.

Committees to Study Youth Affairs, Problems of Aged, Mineral Resources in Ont.

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government will ask the legislature to establish three new select committees to study youth affairs, problems of the aged and mineral resources in Ontario.

The announcement was made today in the speech from the throne read at the opening of the legislature.

The speech said the committees will give members of the legislature a chance to use their talents "in serving the interests of Ontario and its citizens."

"The large majority of members chosen by the people of Ontario to support the government will not be cause for complacency," the speech said.

BIG MARTIN

Premier Roberts led his Progressive Conservative party to an overwhelming victory in the Sept. 25 provincial election, taking 77 seats compared to 24 for the Liberals and seven for the New Democrats.

The speech said the select committee on youth affairs would study "the whole question of greater youth participation in every sphere of community life and the place and problems of young people in a modern technological society."

The committee on problems of the aged would undertake a study on the social, economic and medical needs "to guide us in future legislation," the speech said.

The fact that the older population was increasing substantially indicated the need for such a comprehensive examination.

WIDEN SURVEYS

The appointment of a committee dealing with mineral resources was tied into plans announced by the government to increase its survey and mapping programs by 25 per cent. This was aimed at learning more of mineral resources in Ontario.

The government said 23 geological parties will be in the field during the coming year. An area of 35,000 square miles between Cochrane and James and Hudson Bays would be surveyed from the air.

To implement the government's policy of full use of all natural resources, the committee would be appointed to enquire into the exploration and development of mineral resources.

The committee on consumer credit appointed during the 26th session also would be reconstituted during the 27th, the speech said.

It indicated that an interim report expected from the committee at this session could result in credit legislation.

Winters May Seek Seat In Byelection

HALIFAX (CP) — The Chronicle-Herald says in its issue from "reliable but unofficial sources" that Robert H. Winters, former public works minister, will return to the federal cabinet and will run in a Montreal byelection Feb. 10.

Mr. Winters was a member for Lunenburg-Queens and a cabinet minister in the administration of Louis St. Laurent.

The Chronicle-Herald says its sources "indicate Mr. Winters will re-enter politics as heir-apparent to Prime Minister Pearson as national leader of the Liberal party.

While Liberal candidates have already been nominated in Montreal St. Denis, vacated by the resignation of Postmaster-General Denis, and Montreal Laurier, left vacant by the resignations of Justice Minister Chevrier, the report says these two resignations have paved the way for Mr. Winters return to the federal field.

Northern Electric Link With Bell Is Found Legal

Transport Board Rules Against Toronto Firm

OTTAWA (CP)—The board of transport commissioners has dismissed a bid to declare that the Bell Telephone Company of Canada illegally acquired controlling interest in its manufacturing subsidiary, Northern Electric Company Limited.

In an 18-page judgment made public today, the federal board tossed out a move by Industrial Wire and Cable Company of Toronto to give Northern Electric to wind up its multi-million-dollar business and become an internal division within the Bell empire in essence, the board upheld the validity of a 1941 deal whereby Bell Telephone acquired shares in Northern Electric.

Industrial Wire contended that Bell, under its 1880 act of incorporation, was legally entitled to acquire shares only in telephone companies. That was based on a clause in Bell's act giving it authority to Bell to purchase shares of companies "possessing, as proprietor, any line of telegraphic or telephonic communication."

Bell said that Northern Electric actually owns a pair of wires stretching 19,000 feet between their Montreal offices, and that this entitled Bell to share ownership of Northern Electric.

Opposition Says Speech Inadequate

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government was both criticized and praised for its throne speech opening the provincial legislature session Wednesday.

Farquhar Oliver, Liberal House leader, and Donald C. MacDonald, leader of the New Democratic Party, both issued statements saying the speech was inadequate.

Proposals dealing with university affairs were welcomed by Dr. Claude Bissell, president of University of Toronto, and with some reservations by Rev. E. Carlisle LeBel, vice-chancellor and president of the University of Windsor.

The establishment of a department of university affairs and of a Crown corporation to help universities finance development programs were announced by the government.

AWAITS LEGISLATION

Mr. Oliver said members must wait until the introduction of legislation to determine what the government has in mind.

"For instance, no mention is made of a medicare plan in spite of the fact the government promised a plan. They seem now to be drowning their own child.

"Truly this is a typical Tory document—many words and little else."

Mr. MacDonald said that while the speech "places a welcome emphasis on the problems of education, particularly at the higher level, there is nothing in the throne speech to allay fears we are not acting vigorously enough."

The proposal to establish the department of university affairs must be examined carefully to see if it raises the prospect of unwarranted intervention into the traditionally autonomous operation of universities, he said.

"The desperately needed streamling and abolition of all our horse-and-buggy municipal legislation still lies away off in the future."

The NDP leader said the government's proposal for coping

Canada Wants Few Arms

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Bring on disarmament. The economic consequences attesting it would be child's play compared to the 1945-47 reconstruction period.

This, in effect, is what Canada has told the United Nations for the UN's continuing study of the economic consequences of complete world disarmament.

Coincidentally, the government has been given an example of the modern method of Leating swords into plowshares: A European brewery has offered to buy the surplus RCAF rotating radar at Metz, France, to use as a beer sign.

The Canadian government's report to the UN on the economic difficulties posed by disarmament, filed with the UN secretariat some time ago, now is being brought up to date. The report takes on added significance with the resumption Jan. 21 in Geneva of the 17-nation disarm a m e n t negotiations — though no official here expects more than some preliminary East-West agreement, if that.

Various government departments compiled information for the report but the defence production department is responsible for most of it. The new Economic Council of Canada is also expected to make a similar study, though this lies well in the future.

ESTIMATES COST

The UN estimates that the world is spending about $120,000,000,000 annually on arms and armed forces. Canada's share runs around $1,600,000,000 annually.

The Canadian report to the UN says the economic adjustments needed in Canada after the Second World War were "vastly greater" than those which the most drastic disarmament program would require today.

"Canada views with confidence the smaller problem of shifting resources after disarmament today," the report says.

"High levels of both employment and income would be maintained during disarmament"

Even the total elimination of all existing armed forces and expenditures would involve a shift of resources only one-seventh as great as that required in the immediate post-war period.

In 1944, war expenditures accounted for 72.5 per cent of all federal spending. In 1947, defence spending was only 11 per cent of the total. Today it is about 25 per cent.

In 1952-53 the defence budget represented 8.1 per cent of the gross national product. Now it represents about four per cent.

Pearson Talks to de Gaulle On Cold War, Cultural Ties

CP from AP-Reuters

PARIS—Prime Minister Pearson of Canada today paid homage on behalf of his country to Frenchmen who died in two world wars—in both cases fighting as Canada's allies.

Beginning the second day of his official visit to France, Pearson motored up the Avenue des Champs-Elysees to the Arc de Triomphe to place a wreath on the tomb of the French unknown soldier. The unidentified hero was killed in the First World War, but the body also symbolizes France's losses in the Second World War.

The prime minister was greeted beneath the Arc by French War Veterans Minister Jean Asinteny. A company of the Garde Republicaine presented arms while a band played the national anthems. The prime minister stood silent and bareheaded for a minute after the bugler sounded Aux Morts.

Pearson signed the official visitors' book, then returned to his hotel to receive a call from Charles Lussier, director of the delegation of the province of Quebec in Paris. The delegation is largely a cultural operation but the French have paid almost as much attention to it as if it were an embassy.

Later, with an obvious eye to the importance of Quebec and French-Canadians on his domestic political front, Pearson drove to the Left Bank delegation itself to inspect the Maison du Quebec.

The two functions were the only public ones scheduled for the second day of Pearson's three-day state visit. He and External Affairs Minister Paul Martin were luncheon guests of Prime Minister Pompidou before participating in another private meeting with President de Gaulle.

Pearson and de Gaulle talked for 90 minutes Wednesday during which they exchanged views on the cold war thaw and steps to strengthen economic and cultural ties between Canada and France.

At Quebec House, Pearson was presented with a specially-bound copy of a book on early Canadian architecture — Les Maisons Anciens du Canada Francais by Jean Palardy. Pearson said it will be especially appreciated by Mrs. Pearson who is furnishing a room with early Canadian furniture at 24 Sussex Drive, the official residence of Canadian prime ministers at Ottawa.

Pearson spent almost an hour with Lussier and his staff, chatting about the work of the Quebec agent - general here and about changing attitudes in Canada toward bilingualism and biculturalism.

Wednesday night, Pearson attended a banquet given in his honor by de Gaulle at Elysee Palace. The Canadian prime minister said in reply to a toast by de Gaulle that Canada sought closer political, economic and cultural ties with France, with whom Canada was linked by common heritage.

De Gaulle said in his toast closer co - operation between France and Canada would result from Pearson's visit.

Martin conferred for an hour Wednesday with Couve de Murville and told reporters they discussed French investment in Canada as well as other economic and cultural topics.

Zanzibar Will Not Follow Cuban Pattern in Govt.

ZANZIBAR (AP) — Foreign Minister Abul Rahman Mohammed Babu said today that Zanzibar's new government will be socialist but will not necessarily follow the Cuban pattern.

In a roadside interview Babu said the island "quite possibly" will remain within the British Commonwealth. He was on his way to a meeting of the revolutionary council of the 300 white-walled Palace of Wonders from which rebels last Sunday ousted the island's sultan.

Babu, who has been known for Communist sympathies, was accompanied by four armed lieutenants. One said he had been trained in Cuba along with Babu's nephew Zamiharis.

Several other Zanzibari rebels are believed to have been trained in Peking and a correspondent of Communist China's New China news agency arrived Jan. 10, two days before the revolution.

(In London, Western and African diplomats speculated that Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai, now on a tour of Africa, might visit Zanzibar to display Peking's support for the revolutionaries.)

Asked what position was held in the government by self-styled "field marshal" John Okello, Babu said he was a revolutionary leader of equal status as President Sheikh Abeid Karume and other politicians."

Two British warships arrived off Zanzibar today. One, the frigate Rhyl, had 100 troops aboard. The British high com-

Arabs Plan War Charge

By JANET KASH

MONTREAL (CP) — Gershon Avner, Israeli ambassador to Canada, says the summit conference of Arab leaders in Cairo is bent on destruction and plotting war.

Mr. Avner addressed the closing banquet Wednesday night of the four-day Hasash-Women's International Zionist Organization convention here.

The ambassador warned that the Arab conference which ended in Cairo Wednesday was the first stage in a war of nerves that will go on for many months."

He said the Arabs' main concerns were to "sabotage Israel from further development and strength" by attempting to cut off water from the Jordan River" from going towards the rehabilitation of people in southern Israel."

There were indications in Cairo Wednesday that the Arabs were reaching agreement on their own water scheme to counter Israel's plan to divert part of the Jordan waters for irrigation of the Negev Desert.

WILL OPPOSE CUTOFF

The Arabs have been talking about cutting off the Jordan headwaters, which Israel says it will oppose with force.

Mr. Avner predicted there would be a "public relations battle in this very country" over Arab-Israeli dispute over the Jordan water rights.

The Israelis were accustomed to these threats, the ambassador continued, and they would not be deterred from carrying on a water development acheme within their own borders.

"Sometime in 1964 when our engineers are ready, the taps will be turned on."

Howard Sachar, director of the Jacob Hiati Institute of Brandeis University in Jerusalem, spoke to the group on the development and history of the state of Israel.

"WE SHOULD SERVE"

He called on young North American Jews to give one or two years of their service and skills to Israel, which he described as a "vulnerable little land" facing a continuous and difficult economic battle.

Earlier Wednesday, Mrs. Charles Blenzer of Montreal was elected new national president of Hadassah-Wizo. She succeeds Mrs. Harry Cohen of Sydney, N.S., who served in the post for four years.

New national vice-presidents are Mrs. Louis James of Toronto, Mrs. Myer Wine of Vancouver, Mrs. Philip Sheps of Winnipeg and Mrs. Irving Pink of Yarmouth, N.S.

United Europe Plea Is Issued

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson and Italian President Antonio Segni ended two days of talks with a call Wednesday for a united Europe linked with the United States in an Atlantic partnership.

In a joint communique they said political and military talks on establishing an Atlantic nuclear force missile fleet are progressing satisfactorily.

They said the forthcoming round of tariff-cutting negotiations in Europe must be pursued energetically to stimulate trade and noted the need for exploring means of improving relations with the Soviet Union.

Segni also emphasized the need for an Atlantic partnership and a politically united Europe in an address to a joint session of Congress.

Panama Canal Control Turned Back to Civilians

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the face of a new surge of popular unrest in Panama and an indicated hardening of the Panamanian government's stand on U.S. relations, the army today turned back control of the Panama Canal Zone to civilian authorities.

At the height of the riotous demonstrations and shooting outbreaks at the border between the republic and the zone last week, Governor Robert J. Flemming Jr. turned over the governorship to Gen. Andrew O'Meara, commanding general of the southern command with headquarters in the zone.

Today the Pentagon announced it had received this announcement from the governor.

"I hereby relinquish to Robert J. Flemming Jr., governor of the Canal Zone, responsibility for law and order in the Canal Zone and all other responsibilities within the Canal Zone other than the command of United States military forces and United States military installations."

There was no immediate explanation for the army's withdrawal, suggesting a military view that the situation had quieted down, a year's training order as new violence appeared to threaten.

The dispatch reporting that move, however, also said that life within the zone itself was back to a semblance of normalcy.

Plans Complete Break With U.S. If Plea Refused

U.S. Likely to Ignore Demand It Negotiate

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Panama has decided on the United States today to agree to negotiate a new Panama Canal treaty.

President Robert Chiari told reporters that despite Wednesday's agreement to resume diplomatic relations as quickly as possible, he is going ahead with a complete rupture unless Washington agrees to negotiate a new pact.

Chiari said he would call the rest of his diplomatic personnel home from Washington and ask the U.S. government to withdraw its staff from Panama City. He said Costa Rica would represent Panama in Washington. But he set no time schedule for the withdrawals.

Chiari broke relations last Friday, during violence along the Canal Zone border that cost the lives of 21 Panamanians and four U.S. soldiers. But so far he has recalled only Ambassador Augusto Arango from Washington, and the two governments talked steadily together until they reached the agreement Wednesday under auspices of the Organization of the American States.

WASHINGTON DISAGREES

In Washington, the U.S. government insisted it had not agreed to negotiate a new treaty, only to discuss all issues between the two countries since diplomatic relations are resumed. There was no indication that the United States would agree to Chiari's demand.

Officials in Washington were concerned over the situation but said they had no notification from Panama of intention to make a complete break. U.S. officials still hoped that the agreement for resumption of relations and talks would hold up.

But pressure on Chiari was

Uranium Stockpile Not Answer

By JOHN R. BELL

OTTAWA (CP) — W. M. Gilchrist, president of recently-formed Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited, said Wednesday that further stockpiling may not be the answer to Canada's shortage of uranium problems.

His statement indicated that the federal government may not continue after July 1 to buy and stockpile uranium from three Ontario producers.

The government last June 26 announced that it would buy and stockpile uranium for one year from Faraday Uranium Mines Limited at Bancroft and Milliken and Consolidated Denison at Elliot Lake.

Prime Minister Pearson said at that time it was a short-term measure to give the government a period to develop alternate employment for the two communities. He also said that to stockpile any longer could force down world prices for years.

Mr. Gilchrist said any decision to continue stockpiling until uranium again is in heavy demand in the 1970s as a fuel for nuclear power plants would involve a federal outlay of from $250,000,000 to $500,000,000.

The head of the government's uranium purchasing and selling agency said nothing concerning has developed yet in attempts to find alternate work for men who would be laid off if the three mines close after July 1.

Mr. Gilchrist said the diffi-

Silence and a Black Sash Used Against Apartheid

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Their only weapons are silence and a black sash. Yet, in the hands of a group of white women, these weapons, directed against the stringent racial laws of white-ruled South Africa, are making an impact throughout this republic.

The strongman architect of South Africa's security laws, Justice Balthazar Vorster, has labelled them a leftist organization. But the majority of the Black Sash members are middle-aged, conservative housewives, many from wealthy, influential families.

They are more at home attending bridge parties and afternoon teas than facing an occasional barrage of rotten eggs, tomatoes and verbal taunts of abusive youths.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Jean Sinclair, mother of seven children, the Black Sash women intend stepping up their campaign this year.

Their protest meetings are generally held in the dim eye of lunch - time or homegoing commuters. No speeches are made and no literature distributed.

Wearing a broad black sash as a symbol of mourning, the women stand with bowed heads. A single placard indicates to passersby the reason for their vigil.

Often people join them as they stand at a busy intersection, near government offices or at city halls.

Their campaign has gained considerable newspaper publicity through the African continent.

The Separate Representation law, which allows a suspect of any race to be held in solitary confinement for up to 90 days without trial;

House arrest, which can confine people of all races to their homes without trial for as much as five years, allowing them freedom only to earn a living but curtailing all social and political activities;

The Group Areas Act, which segregates all races into separate residential areas, preventing social contact among whites, blacks and coloreds (people of mixed races).

Prime Minister Vorster's reworded government offen is quick to silence critics of its apartheid policy, but has attacked against the Black Sash.

"We have no quarrel with Communists," says Mrs. Sinclair, "but with members throughout the whole of South Africa, many from influential families, they cannot succeed in this smear campaign."

Voluntary donations, some from overseas sympathizers, finance the Black Sash.

"Our greatest problem is to win our cause here in South Africa," said Mrs. Sinclair.

"We have seen opened our eyes to new realities. A few would stand alongside us during one of our protest demonstrations for fear of recriminations from government sources. You cannot blame them."

At the outset, in 1955, the Black Sash reported 10,000 active members. Today the numbers have been whittled down to a hard core of a few thousand.

This, in effect, is what Canada has told the United Nations for the UN's continuing study of the economic consequences of complete world disarmament.

Coincidentally, the government has been given an example of the modern method of locating swords into plowshares: A European brewery has offered to buy the surplus RCAF rotating radar at Metz, France, to use as a neon sign.

The Canadian government's report to the UN on the economic difficulties posed by disarmament, filed with the UN secretariat some time ago, now is being brought up to date. The report takes on added significance with the resumption Jan. 21 in Geneva of the 17-nation disarmament negotiations — though no official here expects more than some preliminary East-West agreement, if that.

Various government departments compiled information for the report but the defence production department is responsible for most of it. The new Economic Council of Canada is also expected to make a similar study, though this lies well in the future.

ESTIMATES COST

The UN estimates that the world is spending about $120,000,000,000 annually on arms and armed forces. Canada's share runs around $1,600,000,000 annually.

The Canadian report to the UN says the economic adjustments needed in Canada after the Second World War were "vastly greater" than those which the most complete disarmament program would require today.

"Canada views with confidence the smaller problem of shifting resources after disarmament today," the report says.

"High levels of both employment and output can be maintained during disarmament"

Even the total elimination of all existing armed forces and expenditures would involve a shift of resources only one-seventh as great as that required in the immediate post-war period.

In 1944, war expenditures accounted for 72.5 per cent of all federal spending. In 1947, defence spending was only 11 per cent of the total. Today it is about 25 per cent.

In 1952-53 the defence budget represented 8.1 per cent of the gross national product. Now it represents about four per cent.

United Europe Plea Is Issued

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson and Italian President Antonio Segni ended two days of talks with a call Wednesday for a united Europe linked with the United States in an Atlantic partnership.

In a joint communique they said political and military talks on establishing an Atlantic nuclear missile fleet are proceeding satisfactorily.

They said the forthcoming round of tariff-cutting negotiations in Europe must be pursued energetically to stimulate trade, and noted the need for exploring new paths in developing relations with the Soviet Union.

Segni also emphasized the need for an Atlantic partnership and a politically united Europe in an address to a joint session of Congress.

Pearson Talks to de Gaulle On Cold War, Cultural Ties

CP from AP-Reuters

PARIS—Prime Minister Pearson of Canada today paid homage on behalf of his country to Frenchmen who died in two world wars—in both cases fighting as Canada's allies.

Beginning the second day of his official visit to France, Pearson motored up the Avenue des Champs-Elysees to the Arc de Triomphe to place a wreath on the tomb of the French unknown soldier. The unidentified hero was killed in the first World War, but the body also symbolizes France's losses in the Second World War.

The prime minister was greeted beneath the Arc by French War Veterans Minister Jean Asinteny. A company of the Garde Republicaine presented arms while a band played the national anthems. The prime minister stood silent and bareheaded for a minute after the bugler sounded Aux Morts.

Pearson signed the official visitors' book, then returned to his hotel to receive a call from Charles Lussier, director of the delegation of the province of Quebec in Paris. The delegation is largely a cultural operation but the French have paid almost as much attention to it as if it were an embassy.

Later, with an obvious eye to the importance of Quebec and French-Canadians on his domestic political front, Pearson drove to the Left Bank delegation itself to inspect the Maison du Quebec.

The two functions were the only public ones scheduled for the second day of Pearson's three-day state visit. He and External Affairs Minister Paul Martin were luncheon guests of Prime Minister Pompidou before participating in another private meeting with President de Gaulle.

Pearson and de Gaulle talked for 90 minutes Wednesday during which they exchanged views on the cold war thaw and steps to strengthen economic and cultural ties between Canada and France.

At Quebec House, Pearson was presented with a specially-bound copy of a book on early Canadian architecture — Les Heurbes Anciens du Canada Francais by Jean Palardy. Pearson said it will be especially appreciated by Mrs. Pearson who is furnishing a room with early Canadian furniture at 24 Sussex Drive, the official residence of Canadian prime ministers at Ottawa.

Pearson spent almost an hour with Lussier and his staff, chatting about the work of the Quebec agent - general here and about changing attitudes in Canada toward bilingualism and biculturalism.

Wednesday night, Pearson attended a banquet given in his honor by de Gaulle at Elysee Palace. The Canadian prime minister said in reply to a toast by de Gaulle that Canada sought closer political, economic and cultural ties with France, with which Canada was linked by common heritage.

De Gaulle said in his toast that co - operation between France and Canada would result from Pearson's visit.

Martin conferred for an hour Wednesday with Couve de Murville and told reporters they discussed French investment in Canada as well as other economic and cultural topics.

Zanzibar Will Not Follow Cuban Pattern in Govt.

ZANZIBAR (AP) — Foreign Minister Abul Rahman Mohammed Babu said today that Zanzibar's new government will be socialist but will not necessarily follow the Cuban pattern.

In a roadside interview Babu said the island "quite possibly" will remain within the British Commonwealth. He was on his way to a meeting of the revolutionary committee of the white-walled Palace of Wonders from which rebels last Sunday drove the island's sultan.

Babu, who has been known for Communist sympathies, was accompanied by four armed lieutenants. One said he had been trained in Cuba along "many" Zanzibaris.

Several other Zanzibari rebels are believed to have been trained in Peking and a correspondent of Communist China's New China news agency arrived here Jan. 14, two days before the revolution.

(In London, Western and African diplomats concluded that Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai, now on a tour of Africa, might visit Zanzibar to display Peking's support for the revolutionaries.)

Asked what position was held in the government by self-styled "field marshal" John Okello, Babu said he was a revolutionary leader of equal status as President Sheikh Abeid Karume and other politicians."

Two British warships arrived off Zanzibar today. One, the frigate Rhyl, had 100 troops aboard. The British high com-

Arabs Plan War Charge

By JANET KASS

MONTREAL (CP) — Gershon Avner, Israeli ambassador to Canada, says the summit conference of Arab leaders in Cairo is 'bent on destruction and plotting war.'

Mr. Avner addressed the closing banquet Wednesday night of the four-day Hassah-Women's International Zionist Organization convention here.

The ambassador warned that the Arab conference which ended in Cairo Wednesday was the first stage in a war of nerves that will go on for many months."

He said the Arabs' main concerns were to "sabotage Israel from further development and strength" by attempting to cut off water from the Jordan River" from going towards the rehabilitation of people in southern Israel.

There were indications in Cairo Wednesday that the Arabs were reaching agreement on their own water scheme to counter Israel's plan to divert part of the Jordan waters for irrigation of the Negev Desert.

WILL OPPOSE CUTOFF

The Arabs have been talking about cutting off the Jordan headwaters, which Israel says it will oppose with force.

Mr. Avner predicted there would be a "public relations battle in this very country" over Arab-Israeli dispute over the Jordan water rights.

The Israelis were accustomed to these threats, the ambassador continued, and they would not be deterred from carrying on a water development scheme within their own borders.

"Sometime in 1964 when our engineers are ready, the taps will be turned on."

Howard Sachar, director of the Jacob Hiatt Institute of Jewish University in Jerusalem, spoke to the group on the development and history of the state of Israel.

'YOUTHS SHOULD SERVE'

He called on young North American Jews to give one or two years of their services and skills to Israel, which he described as a "vulnerable little land" facing a continuous and difficult economic battle.

Earlier Wednesday, Mrs. Charles Bessner of Montreal was elected new national president of Hadassah-Wizo. She succeeds Mrs. Harry Cohen of Sydney, N.S., who served in the post four years.

New national vice-presidents are Mrs. Louis James of Toronto, Mrs. Nyer Wine of Vancouver, Mrs. Philip Sheps of Winnipeg and Mrs. Irving Pink of Yarmouth, N.S.

Plans Complete Break With U.S. If Plea Refused

U.S. Likely to Ignore Demand It Negotiate

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Panama put pressure on the United States today to agree to negotiate a new Panama Canal treaty.

President Robert Chiari told reporters that despite Wednesday's agreement to resume diplomatic relations as quickly as possible, he is going ahead with a complete rupture unless Washington agrees to negotiate a new pact.

Chiari said he would call the rest of his diplomatic personnel home from Washington and ask the U.S. government to withdraw its staff from Panama City. He said Costa Rica would represent Panama in Washington. But he set no time schedule for the withdrawals.

Chiari broke relations last Friday, during violence along the Canal Zone border that cost the lives of 21 Panamanians and four U.S. soldiers. But so far he has recalled only Ambassador Augusto Arango from Washington, and the two governments talked steadily together until they reached the agreement Wednesday under auspices of the Organization of the American States.

WASHINGTON DISAGREES

In Washington, the U.S. government insisted it had not agreed to negotiate a new treaty, only to discuss all issues between the two countries on diplomatic relations are resumed. There was no indication that the United States would bow to Chiari's demand.

Officials in Washington were concerned over the situation but said they had no notification from Panama of intention to make a complete break. U.S. officials still hoped that the agreement for resumption of relations and talks would hold up.

But pressure on Chiari was

Uranium Stockpile Not Answer

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP) — W. M. Gilchrist, president of crown-owned Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited, said Wednesday that further stockpiling may not be the answer to Canada's short-term uranium problem.

His statement indicated that the federal government may not continue after July 1 to buy and stockpile uranium from three Ontario mines.

The government last June 26 announced that it would buy and stockpile uranium for one year from Faraday Uranium Mines Limited at Bancroft and Milliken and Consolidated Denison at Elliot Lake.

Prime Minister Pearson said at that time it was a short-term measure to give the government a period to develop alternate employment for the two communities. He also said that to stockpile any longer would force Crown uranium prices for many years.

Mr. Gilchrist said any decision to continue stockpiling until uranium again is in heavy demand in the 1970s as a fuel for nuclear power plants would involve a federal outlay of from $250,000,000 to $1,000,000,000.

The head of the government's uranium purchasing and selling agency said nothing concrete has developed yet in attempts to find alternate work for men who would be laid off if the three mines close after July 1.

Mr. Gilchrist said the diffi-

Silence and a Black Sash Used Against Apartheid

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Their only weapons are silence and a black sash, but in the hands of a group of white women, these weapons, directed against the stringent racial laws of white-ruled South Africa, are having an impact throughout this republic.

The strongman architect of South Africa's security laws, Justice Balthazar Vorster, has labelled them a leftist organization. But the majority of the Black Sash members are middle-aged, conservative housewives, many from wealthy, influential families.

They are more at home attending bridge parties and afternoon teas than facing social disgrace, rotten eggs, tomatoes and verbal taunts of abusive rowdies.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Jean Sinclair, mother of five children, the Black Sash women intend stepping up their campaign this year.

Their protest meetings are generally limited to the steps of lunch - time or homegoing commuters. No speeches are made. Only silence is distributed.

Wearing a broad black sash as a sign of mourning, the women stand with bowed heads. A single placard indicates to passersby the reason for their vigil.

Often people join them as they stand at a busy intersection, near government offices or at town halls.

Their campaign has gained considerable newspaper publicity through the African continent.

Recently the Black Sash women participated in countrywide protests against:

The new detention law, which allows a suspect of any race to be held in solitary confinement for up to 90 days without trial;

—House arrest, which can confine people of all races to their homes without trial for as much as five years, allowing them freedom only to earn a living but curtailing all social and political activities;

—The Group Areas Act, which segregates all races into separate residential areas, prohibiting social contact among whites, blacks and coloreds (people of mixed race).

Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd's government often is quiet to silence critics of its apartheid policy, but has not acted against the Black Sash.

"They'd like to call us Communists," says Mrs. Sinclair. "Until members throughout the whole of South Africa, many from influential families, they have succeed in this smear campaign."

Voluntary donations, some generally limited to pennies, keep the Black Sash going.

"Our greatest problem is to dwell our minds here in South Africa," said Mrs. Sinclair.

"We have even opened our doors to Negroes and a few

Jury Requests Purchase Of Permits Be Mandatory For All Excavation Projects

The deaths of two young Belleville construction workers may yet serve to eliminate a hazardous pocket of confusion in the province's safety laws.

Douglas Cronkright, 33, and 25-year-old Patrick Black perished in the cave-in of a sewer trench at the Tops Motor Hotel November 14th.

Yesterday, a coroner's jury requested purchase of permits be mandatory for all excavation projects in the province.

Yesterday a coroner's jury found they died from asphyxiation "in complete absence of shoring and safety precautions."

There were three recommendations with the verdict suggesting (1) that operators of excavating equipment take an examination on safety laws; (2) that present sections of current safety regulations be incorporated into all by-laws governing trade practices; (3) that permits be required on all similar excavations "which will automatically require a check by the safety inspector."

The last was the most significant. It was the jury's solution to what evolved as a linchpin in the circumstantial chain surrounding the cave-in.

Enforcement of the safety law was a crucial part of the finding.

The Trench Excavators' Protection Act, the law in question, already sets out the mandatory safety measures in connection with such projects. However, many contractors are unaware they have had it drawn to their attention.

UNAWARE OF PROJECT

The Act is among measures enforced by such municipal officials as safety inspector Mr. David William Dix. Mr. Dix told the inquest yesterday he was unaware of the Tops project.

But three local contractors yesterday stated they had never heard of the Act.

The employer of the victims, Jack Lambert, said he was unaware of its provisions until the day after the fatal accident.

A friend of Cronkright's, Mr. Foxboro contractor Marvin Reid, said he had never received a copy of the Act.

William Robert Chapman, a city plumbing contractor, volunteered the same information after he requested permission to take the witness stand.

"That encyclopedic book is something I have never seen and it is something I've never been asked to see at any time," he said.

"Is there anything else?" asked Crown Attorney John Pringle.

"It is the book I was concerned about sir . . . that there isn't any way of getting it out to people."

Both Mr. Lambert and Mr. Reid said they never had to obtain permits for excavations in Belleville or its surrounding municipalities. Mr. Lambert said he believed Toronto was the only municipality where such permits were mandatory.

FOUR INFRACTIONS FOUND

The excavation machine used on the Tops project was a back-hoe.

The inquest also learned from William R. Ovens, Ontario department of Labor construction safety officer, that it was not mandatory to hold a licence for its operation.

He also listed four infractions of the protection act he found at the scene of the cave-in. The soil, he said, was composed of sand, stone and clay.

Emile LeBelle, councilor for the Construction Safety Associations of Ontario also requested permission to speak. His request, in the operation with Contractors Association and the Workmen's Compensation Board circulated much safety literature, he said. Amendments in safety regulations were kept current through publication in trade papers.

However, with many contractors in the field, he admitted it was "unfortunate" no mailing system had been devised to keep employers and employees abreast of existing laws.

Finally, Mr. Lambert took the stand once again and suggested that pertinent sections of excavators protection act should be included in all by-laws governing construction trades.

"If you do this it is a constructive criticism," he concluded.

RECALLED TO STAND

Mr. Lambert was recalled to the stand near the end of yesterday's the day-long inquest whenever a witness aroused the jury's curiosity or interest.

Among these witnesses was Mr. Reid who spoke briefly to Crankright shortly before the cave-in.

"Did he complain to you at any time about the condition of the trench?" asked Crown Attorney John Pringle.

"No."

"In your experience, what do you think about the walls of the ditch being sloped up?"

"At that depth I think they should be."

Mr. Lambert then testified his company has had short-handed manpower on hand. If they were insufficient, workmen were at liberty to pick up additional supplies.

In this instance is "Douglas Cronkright had felt that shoring was necessary in more quantities than what we had then he would have picked it up. He was authorized to do that."

Earlier, Mr. Lambert said he regarded Cronkright as the senior man on the job.

In his voluntary testimony, Mr. Chapman said he was unaware of its provisions until the day after the fatal accident.

A friend of Cronkright's, Foxboro contractor Marvin Reid, said he had never received a copy of the Act.

Mallard Duck Enjoys Winter In This City

The Bay of Quinte area may be in the grip of solid winter weather but there is one Mallard duck about the city which is still making like summer.

Fast running water in the river above the Upper Bridge is not yet frozen over and the lone Mallard was seen yesterday paddling the open stretch to the full.

He would venture into the ripple section and be carried downstream by the current and then do it all over again.

Bryce Philp New President Of AOTS Club

The first regular meeting of the year of the Bridge Street Church A.O.T.S. Men's Club was held on Wednesday evening with the retiring president, Charles Bristol, presiding. Mr. Bristol throughout the day-long inquest whenever a witness aroused the jury's curiosity or interest.

Among these witnesses was Mr. Reid who spoke briefly to Crankright shortly before the cave-in.

"Did he complain to you at any time about the condition of the trench?" asked Crown Attorney John Pringle.

Population Of Town Set At 13,697

TRENTON — Last year's official population for Trenton was 13,147. With annexation of parts of Murray and Sidney townships, the population was increased by 550. Added to this will be the increase in population within the 1963 boundaries of the corporation. Final population figures will be included in next week's assessment report by Trenton council, compiled by assessment commissioner Allan Bostock.

But for all intents and purposes, the present population of the town is set at 13,697.

TRENTON — A statement in Tuesday's Ontario Intelligencer that the Trenton Figure Skating Club paid only $6 an hour, (half paid by the club) for ice in the community gardens, was incorrect.

Jack Allwright, president of the local club, said on Wednesday that this club did pay the reduced rate of $6 an hour for ice time. As fees for skating instruction are set by the rate of rental and the cost of hiring instructors in mind, Mr. Allanright was disturbed at the thought that club members might question his fees schedule on the basis of the newspaper report .

The Trenton skating club, in operation for the past two years, now boasts 70 members between the ages of four and 15. Skating sessions are held Tuesday and Thursday nights at the gardens.

PAY INCREASE

A general pay hike has been announced for nurses and members of the non-nursing staff at Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Nurses salaries have been increased from $333 to $370 and other increases run from $300 to $330 per month and include such categories as nursing assistants, housekeeping aides, orderlies and laundry aides.

Mayor Ellis Heads Officials To Peterborough

Belleville was well represented at the Export and Manufacturing Conference held yesterday at the Bonaire Hotel in Peterborough with close to 10 city hall officials and local industrialists making the trip to the Lift lock City.

Included in the local representation attending the conference were Mayor Jack Ellis and Aldermen Frank Murray, Frank Sharpe and Ken Jones, City Manager J. R. Reynolds, Earl Dickenother, secretary manager of the Chamber of Commerce and Norman Keith.

Mayor Ellis, with Alderman Murray as chairman of the Industrial Committee and Mr. Dickenother acted as local conveners for the conference.

The conference, aimed at increasing exports by district manufacturers, was sponsored jointly by the Ontario Department of Economics and Development and the Lake Ontario Development Association.

$40,000 Loss At Scott's Store In Gilmour

MADOC (Special) — There must be some kind of a jinx plaguing the Scott Grocery Store at Gilmour, 20 miles north of here.

Wednesday afternoon fire completely destroyed the grocery store with a loss of approximately $40,000. It was the third time in the past four years that fire had destroyed a section of the store.

Mr. Scott bought the business from Verne McMurray five years ago.

The fire in the 80 by 60 foot frame building started about 2.00 p.m. Very little stock was saved, while a half ton truck parked along side the store was also lost.

Fire fighting equipment from the Township Department on No. 3 Highway answered the call for assistance but could do little to save the building.

MISS BEATRICE ARMSTRONG, Reg. N. Trenton

Lifetime resident of Trenton with the exception of service as an armed forces nurse in World War I, Miss Beatrice Armstrong, Reg. N., of Trenton died in Trenton on Wednesday evening. She was in her 80th year.

Daughter of the late Canon F. W. Armstrong and Mrs. Armstrong, she was born at Colborne, was educated in Trenton, later training as a nurse at Kingston General Hospital.

As a nurse she went overseas in 1914 with the Queen's Nursing Corps and served in Cairo, Egypt, and later on the Western Front during the battle of Ypres, where for bravery for working under fire and bombing she was decorated by Queen Mary.

She is survived by a sister, Mrs. H. A. Moore of Trenton, and four brothers, H. V. Armstrong and R. M. Armstrong, also of Trenton; Hobe Armstrong of Welland, and Arthur Armstrong of Niagara Falls.

Also surviving are a number of nieces and nephews.

MRS. WILLARD CHEDISTER

Resident of Belleville for the past five years after having formerly lived at Kaladar and in Saskatchewan, Mrs. Maude Clarke Chedister, 318 Pinnacle Avenue, died in Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday. She was in her 83rd year.

Born in Chicago, Illinois, Mrs. Chedister was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Turnbull.

She was a member of the Presbyterian Church, Belleville, belonged to the Cadillac Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star in Saskatchewan.

Twice married, her second husband, Willard Chedister, died in 1946, and her first husband, William Lloyd Moss, in 1907.

She is survived by one son, George Moss of Kalamazoo, Mich., and two daughters, Mrs. Priscilla Morford of Flint, Mich., and Mrs. Don. (Mary Jane) Little of Belleville.

There are five grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon from the John R. Bush Funeral Home, interment in Belleville cemetery.

Parks' Board Votes to Hire Surveyor

TRENTON—The members of the Trenton Parks' Board, meeting Tuesday night, voted to hire a surveyor to define the boundaries of some of the parks' lands owned by the corporation. The board is especially concerned with the boundary at the Bayshore Boulevard end. A letter to council will ask that parks' land on Mount Pelion be more clearly defined as a number of cases have arisen in the past few years where owners of certain areas was in question. On the mountain, some land is owned by the town, some by the board and some by the utilities commission.

Town council had asked the board members if they were agreeable to accepting a sum of money in lieu of land at 10 per cent land grant in the Sider development, in west Trenton. Tuesday night the board decided that as no parks' area was needed in this area, (Hanna Street and Wagar Drive) they would approve the substitution of cash.

A land board also agreed to give the town 20 feet of land along the east side of Hanna Street. Council has been asking for feet of land along the east side of the Dye Finishing Company property, and will use this land and the parks' board land to widen Flim Street between Shatter and Wagar Drives.

Present at the meeting were the chairman, William Ireland, secretary, Mrs. Gerald Baker, and board members John Saylor, Norman Armstrong and Donald McPherson.

MRS. PETER MILNE

The funeral of Mrs. Peter Milne was held this morning from the George F. O'Brien Funeral Residence to St. Michael's Church, where Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. J. McAvoy.

The funeral was well attended and many floral tributes attested to the esteem which Mrs. Milne was held by her friends. Prayers at the graveside in St. James' cemetery were said by Rev. T. Boyle.

The bearers were: Fred St. Louis, William Peoples, Robert, Kenneth and William Nolan and John Zebedee.

IN MEMORIAM

NICKLE — In loving memory of a wonderful mother, Mrs. Jas. A. Nickle who passed away Jan. 19, 1963.
The world may change from year to year,
And friends from day to day,
But never will the one we loved,
Be forgotten or put away.
—Lovingly remembered by family.

KING — In loving memory of my dear husband, Frank King, who passed away Jan. 16, 1962.
God knew best when he called you home,
That the hills were hard to climb,
But the valley of rest so fair,
Sometime we shall meet you there,
When,
We will meet "our loved ones",
There.
—Lovingly remembered by Sarah.

WICKSON — In loving memory of our mother and grandmother, Mary Wicksen, who passed away Jan. 16, 1962.
The gates of memory were opened,
A gentle voice said "come;"
And with sorrowful submission,
She gently entered home.
—Lovingly remembered by Mabel, Jean and Ken.

COX — In loving memory of my dear husband, Ernest Cox, who passed away January 18, 1962.
Sadness and sorrow, memories and secret tears still flow;
What is dearest is not forgotten,
No one will ever know.
When I am sad and lonely,
And everything goes wrong,
I seem to hear you whisper,
Cheer up and carry on.
Dad, I'm now your picture,
Don't cry, just smile and say,
I'm with Jesus and I'm happy,
We will meet again some day.
—Ever remembered by wife Jessie.

WICKSON — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Anna Wickson, who passed away January 18, 1962.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond and true,
There is not a day, dear mother,
We do not think of you.
—Sadly missed and mourned by her son Harry and daughter-in-law Mabel and grandchildren Rhonda, Lorene and Debbie.

WICKSON — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Anna Wickson, who passed away January 18, 1962.
God saw you getting weary,
God saw your life was hard,
He came and stood beside you,
And whispered, "Come with Me."
He closed no one a last farewell,
Nor even said goodbye,
But those we love we know it,
And only God knows why.
—Sadly missed and mourned by daughter-in-law Lois and grandchildren Ronald and Wayne.

KING — In loving memory of our dear wife and mother Lena King who passed away Jan. 19th, 1962.
God knew that she was suffering,
That the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed her eyes in silence,
And whispered, "Peace be Thine."
Away in the valley of rest so fair,
By the valley of rest so fair,
Some day we shall meet you there.
—Sadly missed and mourned by husband, Ernest, Brenda and Wayne.

CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to all our relatives, neighbors and friends for their many deeds of kindness during our recent bereavement in the sudden loss of a loving husband, father and grandfather, Mr. Roy Sutherland. Dr. Russell and Dr. Thompson, all nursing staff and the Thompson Funeral Chapel. Thanks to you all.
Mrs. Hector Jordan and family.

Men Never Could Have Been Rescued Dr. Scott Tells Jury

Coroner Dr. J. Russell Scott yesterday revealed a stark fact about the deaths of Douglas Cronkright and Patrick Black.

They could never have been rescued from the sewer-ditch cave-in that took their lives December 11th at the Tops Motor Hotel.

The time element had been a macabre factor in the fatal incident.

They are believed to have died on the busy motel lot at least five hours before the collapse of the trench was discovered.

Dr. Scott made the statement to Monica Black, young widow of one of the victims, rose before the inquest to query why the ditch had not been checked when she phoned the motel that night.

"Mrs. Black, as a doctor I can tell you if they had found out seven minutes after the cave-in it would have been too late," the doctor said.

"I don't suppose that helps, but still," he added sympathetically ". . . all the help they had there at 11:30, if they'd been summoned, it happened it would not have saved them."

The back-hoe used for the 10-foot ditch connecting the new sewer line with a city trunk on nearby North Front Street, contractor Jack Lambert both men had been buried.

However, its spotlights had not been switched on at the time and motel manager Charles Wenzel installed the motor could not be heard inside the motel.

MUST HAVE GONE HOME

About 5:30 p.m. a woman believed to be Mrs. Black telephoned the receptionist and asked if the men were still on the job.

The girl went to a restaurant window didn't see anyone around and switches and answered: "They are not there. They must have gone home."

About 10:30 William Black, a brother of the victim, went to the motel, found the machine was still running and also phoned contractor Jack Lambert.

"As soon as he came over he said "My God, something's happened."

Mr. Lambert then called police.

He noticed both men in Roy Paine's gasoline station opposite the motel at 4:45 p.m.

At 10 p.m. when he went to the restaurant he noticed the shovel was operating without lights.

". . . I mentioned that to the receptionist and she said 'Well they are working late and they are probably out having coffee or something'—and I didn't pay any attention to it," concluded Mr. Strood.

Roy Paine said he believed the men were at work until about 5 p.m. Cronkright at one point made mention of water seepage.

SAW PARKED CAR

Constable Jack Black said he saw his brother's car parked at the Lambert construction office on the night of the 11th and chatted Patrick Black was working overtime. Monica Black phoned twice to inquire about her husband and after the second call —about 10 p.m. — he decided to go down to the Tops.

He spotted the machine still running, dashed to the top of the excavation and saw the trench had collapsed.

"I ran into the Tops Motel and convinced them there was a cave-in."

Mr. Black said his brother the day previous had mentioned a cave-in while both men were working in the trench. This provoked a lengthy round of questioning which concluded when Dr. Scott suggested the alleged collapse may have been some reference to the water seepage mentioned earlier.

Rescue operations got underway about 11 p.m.

The jury set the times of death at 8 p.m.

Fur Harvest In District On Increase

Tweed District trappers have been steadily increasing their harvest of raw fur over the past several years. For the first two months of the new 64 season, local trappers have presented over 4000 beaver pelts for sealing, an increase of more than 1000 pelts for the same period of time a year ago.

Mink appear to be more plentiful this year and already trappers have taken 1,000 pelts. In addition, 15 fisher have been trapped along with two lynx and two marten; the latter two species being newcomers to the area.

Beaver in particular are in very strong demands and pelts at the Bob's Trapper's Fur Sale at North Bay are bringing as high as $37.00. This is at least 15% above last year's prices.

Muskrats also are selling exceptionally well with prices as high as $2.25. Otter, a fairly stable fur piece, usually sells for $35.00 to $40.00 per handled pelts, while fisher ranges from $10.00 to as high as $64.00 for a small dark pelt.

Local trappers from the Tweed District are making more use of the Fur Sales at North Bay. This past season saw 249 separate shipments to the Association as compared to 163 shipments in 1962.

Application Forms Illegal Says Charlotte

OTTAWA (CP)—Mayor Charlotte Whitton said Wednesday that employee application forms used by the city of Ottawa are illegal under the Ontario Human Rights Code but argued that the code itself is a form of discrimination against Ottawa employers.

She was testifying at a Human Rights Commission inquiry arising from complaints by Noel Lomer of Ottawa, a university student who tried to get a city job in the summer of 1962.

In his complaint to the commission, Mr. Lomer specified that he was drawing attention to the application form itself and did not claim that he, personally, had been discriminated against.

Lawyer Charles Dubin, representing the Ontario Human Rights Commission, told the hearing that the city's job application form is discriminatory because it seeks information on the applicant's nationality, citizenship, religion, birthplace and parents.

Mayor Whitton said that in many fields, social service and welfare particularly, the city must deal with people of different ethnic origins. To do the job, it had to have persons familiar with the various languages and customs. This was impossible without asking applicants about their racial and language backgrounds.

The mayor read a lengthy argument in favor of changing the code.

Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville, conducting the inquiry, will report his findings later to provincial authorities.

Petty Thieves Stage Break-ins

Petty thieves have staged two break-ins in the Belleville district in 24 hours.

Last night the Spur service station on Highway 2 east of the city was entered. Thieves apparently found no money as stole 12 gallons of gas instead.

City police still are investigating a break-in earlier at Market Metal and Minerals, 63¼ Front Street.

Burglars left with the office cash box — which was empty.

BELLEVILLE TOWERS

Work on Belleville Towers, the new apartment building at Victoria and George Sts. is stalled for the time being. Supervisor Nicholas Dix of the Oakville Building Co. Ltd. says bricklaying will begin again as soon as weather permits. Just a few more bricks to lay, he says and the second floor ceiling joists can be installed. Total cost of the project planned for the building, with 40 suites.

Furnace is on site, but not installed and Mr. Dix expects someone from the gas company to lead in a supply line during the next week or so. No immediate plans to install the furnace yet.

First plans were to start renting by early May, according to a spokesman for Woodkel Investments, the owners. Delays with water problems on the site and other problems moved the date on. Plans now call for occupancy in late spring or early summer.

BELL BUILDING

Too cold last Saturday, to make the second pour on the slab for the second floor of the new office for Bell Telephone, Victoria and George Sts. Superintendent Charles Farmer says he will pour first chance he gets. Brickwork progressed on the reinforcing rod for the second half of the slab, for the south wall and the west end two stairwell supporting walls above the second floor level.

Roof of the new building is temporarily closed in and a forest of jacks, supporting the slab for another few weeks until it cures. Furnace room below ground level is pretty well finished, but no furnace on site yet. Temporary heat is on, downstairs.

EASTVIEW HEIGHTS

Don Keller says he has six houses now at Eastview Heights, three of them sold and two of those three occupied. In addition he has one sold but not started yet, and three being built for speculation. Of the three started - but - unfinished houses, one is being painted now, one is being bricked and is rough-plastered. Plans are to start framing two this week.

WILSON'S TUNE-UP SERVICE

With a 600 square foot concrete block garage and frame living quarters above it on Coleman St., now, Ray Wilson of Wilson's Tune Up service plans a 900 square foot addition on top and bottom. Permit has been issued and Mr. Wilson says W. Danford and sons will begin the building as soon as the frost is out of the ground.

CHEESE WAREHOUSE

Nearing completion now on the cheese warehouse addition. Plastic foam - insulation material is pretty well finished on the walls and ceiling of the cold storage rooms - not started yet on the floor. Office space upstairs is rough finished and heated.

'BAY BRIDGE

Second of the two main supports for the damaged section of the Bay Bridge is in place now, work going fast on the overhead trusses. Might be able to dismantle the traffic-directing Bailey Bridge, section this week.

CHARLES LAMBERT

Belleville builder Charles Lambert meets with Ontario Municipal Board representatives today in the city hall, to discuss building permits for his Sidney Court apartment development. He has two on the site now, wants to build two more but he has no permits for them yet. The permits may be issued as a result of today's meeting.

This is the second time Mr. Lambert has argued essentially the same case. Some time ago he took options on four lots in an area annexed to the city a few years ago, out along Sidney Street. The lots had 86 feet frontage and by-laws in the annexed area called for an 80-foot minimum to build four six-plex buildings Mr. Lambert planned. Mr. Lambert went to the Board of Adjustment and met the restrictions lifted, but his option had lapsed and been picked up by Leo Buckley. Superior tendent Charles Farmer says he will pour first chance he gets. Brickwork progressed on the reinforcing rod for the second half of the slab, for the south wall and the west end two stairwell supporting walls above the second floor level.

Roof of the new building is temporarily closed in and a forest of jacks, supporting the slab for another few weeks until it cures. Furnace room below ground level is pretty well finished, but no furnace on site yet. Temporary heat is on, downstairs.

QUINTE HOME BUILDERS' ASSOCIATION

Quinte Home Builders' Association is giving booster prizes now, two of them a week to beginning in January. Prizes are given at the meeting Tuesday night included a lawn chair, donated by Don Keller and won by Marshall Hopkins and a pen and pencil set, donated by Don Hobbs and won by Albert Horlock.

The Association decided, during the meeting, to invite members of other Home Builders' Associations in the province to attend the Quinte group's meetings. Members of the Kingston and Peterborough associations will attend a hundred mile radius of Belleville. Purpose of the exchange is to trade ideas.

SHOWS IRISH TEMPER

LONDON (AP) — Four men dropped in on a gasoline station in suburban London Wednesday and demanded the money in the till. They picked the wrong man. The attendant, Patrick Kelly, 60, a former Irish cop, wrestled the four out of the station. Police caught them an hour later.

Fourth Storm Sweeps South

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Another winter storm brought snow and ice to the central portion of the southeastern United States today. It was the fourth snow storm of the winter in a region where snow once a year is the rule.

The snow and freezing rain moved across the region from the southwest. The storm developed over the northwest Gulf of Mexico and is following a pattern set by earlier winter storms.

The weather bureau issued a critical weather warning including a wide area from parts of southwest and central Texas through east central and northeast Texas, southeast Oklahoma, southern Arkansas, northern Louisiana, portions of Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and southern Tennessee.

Cold weather dealt Florida a blow Wednesday. The state's winter vegetable crop was damaged, but there was little damage to the citrus crop.

Expect Queen To Visit Canada In October

OTTAWA (CP) — A reliable informant said Wednesday the Queen is expected to visit Charlottetown and Quebec City next year in connection with the 100th anniversary of the conferences in those old colonial capitals which led to Confederation in 1867.

Officials previously had hoped the Queen would visit Ottawa and Charlottetown conferences by visiting the Prince Edward Island capital. She will formally open the new Fathers of Confederation Memorial Buildings. It was in Charlottetown that Canada's delegates met in 1864 to study and follow the same lines as those which led to the lifting of the restrictions on Mr. Buckley's lots.

Fiesta tango; Suzanne Loguther and Robert Cronk.

Willow waltz: Lynanne Row and Lyn Lightfoot.

Ten fox: Lorraine Lightfoot.

Leo Durocher Under Bail Of $30,000

MIDDLEBURY, Vt. (AP) — Leo Durocher, Los Angeles baseball coach, left Vermont Wednesday under $30,000 bail set after he was named in a $150,000 alienation-of - affections complaint.

The complaint was signed by Robert Murray, a Boston, Vt., bricklayer who alleged that Durocher alienated the affections of Murray's wife, mother of four grown daughters.

Durocher denied the complaint Wednesday, saying that his association with Mrs. Anna Morin was strictly as the mother of a close friend, Miss Carolyn Morin.

Miss Morin was described as a student at Middlebury College who attended the University of Vermont and went on to a career as a model and television actress.

Miss Morin and her three children have by today to issue a statement also denying that there had been any dealings between Durocher and their mother.

ASSETS ROCKET

Assets of Canadian trust companies have risen by 10 per cent between the third quarters of 1962 and 1963, the bureau of statistics reported Wednesday. Most of the funds for this increase came from demand deposits in trust companies, which rose 38 per cent to $857,000,000, and term deposits, up in 18 per cent to $2,334,000,000. Total assets increased to $2,334,000,000 from $1,822,00, in third-quarter 1962.

SHIPMENTS UP

Shipments of Canadian - made motor vehicles in the January-November period last year totalled 56,234 units, or 21.7 per cent more than in the same period a year earlier. Shipments of imported U.S. vehicles in that period declined to 6,482 units from 17,516:

ASK FOR REPORT

Attorney-General Cass of Ontario said Tuesday he will ask for an interim report from a special committee studying Ontario's securities legislation. The report will be presented to the current session of the legislature. Appointed last October, the committee grew out of the take-over of Canadian Oil Companies by Shell Investments Ltd.

SELL INTEREST

Controlling interest in a $15,000,000 development on New Providence island in The Bahamas has been relinquished by Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor and the other original shareholders to a group of seven who recently purchased 51 per cent interest in the venture. The remaining 49 per cent remains with Mr. Taylor and the original shareholders.

Arab Leaders Agree to Form Joint Military Command

By GEORGE McARTHUR

CAIRO (AP)—The 13-nation Arab summit conference has agreed to set up a joint military command in an effort to head off Israel's diversion of Jordan River waters.

In a remarkable display of unity, the often feuding leaders of 100,000,000 Arabs voted Wednesday night to establish a military committee with "administrative and financial possibilities as well as permanent headquarters, and all that these entail," a spokesman said.

A final summit session to approve the resolution was expected tonight.

Though the spokesman said Arab leaders had agreed on a "positive solution" of the problem raised by Israel's irrigation project, it still was generally doubted they anticipate war with Israel soon.

The spokesman would give no details of the new command except to declared to say whether all Arab states would participate.

The spokesman said the agreement did not specify the number of Arab forces might operate and did not limit the command to any specific task. He would not say whether troops of one nation would be stationed in the territory of another.

Britain and the United States made inquiries through their Cairo embassies about the joint military plans. An Arab spokesman revealed the embassies reaffirmed Western views on the Arab-Israeli situation in an apparent warning that Britain and the United States are not bound by their pledge to prevent armed conflict in the Middle East.

In Tel Aviv, Premier Levi Eshkol of Israel warned the Arab leaders: "We shall frustrate any attempt to interfere with us."

But no matter what is accomplished in the military field, it appeared the conference would pay dividends in the field of Arab unity. President Nasser of the United Arab Republic and King Hussein of Jordan agreed to exchange ambassadors again, signalling a new truce in one of the bitterest of Arab feuds.

An Egyptian spokesman said restoration of diplomatic relations between the U.A.R. and Saudi Arabia is "virtually certain." He said this might lead to settlement of the war in Yemen, where Egyptian troops are tied down while propping up the republican regime of President Abdullah Sallal against the ousted monarchists aided by Saudi Arabia.

MAY BE LAST

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan legislature will open Feb. 6 for what is expected to be its last session before a provincial general election. Premier Woodrow Lloyd announced at a press conference. The session is the fourth of the 16th provincial legislature. Current standing in the 55-seat House is CCF 34, Liberal 21. The last election was June 8, 1960, and the next one could be as early as June 8, 1964, or as late as spring election candidates will be battling for seats under terms of a redistribution.

Charge Millions Gambled in Plan For Fast Plane

LONDON (AP)—A parliamentary watchdog committee accused the British government today of taking a multi-million-pound gamble in its agreement with France to develop a supersonic airliner.

The committee complained that the treasury played no part in preparing the agreement, and the project shows no guarantee of getting its money back.

The plane involved is the projected 1,504 - mile - an - hour Concorde, which Britain and France have agreed to develop jointly at a cost approaching £170,000,000 ($510,000,000).

The criticism came from a House of Commons investigating committee on which both Conservatives and Laborites are represented.

It reported: "It is clear that if the French government decided for any reason whatever to abandon the project, the British contribution might have to be written off entirely."

The committee said sales of 150 to 200 Concordes would repay a great deal of the development and production cost. But it saw no assurance that this number of sales could be guaranteed and said airline operators were notably cool toward widespread introduction of supersonic jets.

CANBERRA (Reuters) — The government has given the Australian overseas airline Qantas permission to negotiate the early delivery of 10 supersonic airliners, Civil Aviation Minister Senator Shane Paltridge announced today.

Six of the liners would be delivered within the decade four would be the joint Anglo-French Concorde, he said.

Paltridge said supersonic airliners were expected to go into service early in 1970.

DENIED NEW TRIAL

MONTREAL (CP) — Georges Marcotte, a self-confessed gangster as the Santa Claus bandit who shot and killed two policemen in December, 1962, was denied a new trial Wednesday by the Court of Appeal.

Robarts in Trouble

As the new Ontario Legislature opened its first full working session Wednesday, Premier John Robarts found two of his major legislative projects in trouble.

Both his proposal for portable pensions and his plan to make certain that medical care insurance is available to all have hit snags.

There, though, the similarity ends. The Premier's decision to put back the effective date of the Pension Benefits Act from Jan. 1, 1965, to Jan. 1, 1966, was not the result of lack of preparation on his government's part, but was made necessary by the entry into the same field, or a part of it, of the Federal Government, with a universal pension plan of its own.

Premier Robarts has decided, we think wisely, that it would be in the best interests of Canada as a whole if the implementation of the Ontario plan was postponed so that the more comprehensive Federal plan can be carefully studied. Only when the full details of the Federal proposal are known will Premier Robarts, and the people of Ontario, be able to decide with any assurance of accuracy whether their best interest will be served by accepting the Federal proposals, or whether Ontario should copy Quebec's decision to institute its own plan.

Premier Robarts reiterated that he does not object to a federal pension plan in principle. We think the majority of Ontario citizens will agree with him that, if other things are even nearly equal, the wider the scope of the plan the more beneficial it will be.

It is worthy of note that provisions of the Ontario plan that would not be affected by any federal plan will come into effect as scheduled on Jan. 1, 1965. This means that after that date private pension plans will have to comply with the provisions of the Ontario act which require pensions to be "portable," travelling with the employee from job to job. In the beginning this was virtually the sole aim of the inquiry into pensions first instituted by then Premier Leslie Frost. Its great advantage is that it enhances "labor mobility," a highly necessary condition if unemployment is to be kept to a minimum in an economy which is being affected by rapid technical changes, so that there are frequently shortages of labor in one sector of the economy, or one region of the province, at the same time as layoffs occur in other sectors or regions.

The other problem which faces Premier Robarts, while perhaps not of his own making in the narrowest sense of that term, is not the result of unforeseen circumstances, but of a misjudgment. He set himself the task of devising a medical insurance scheme which would at once make the same time provide all with the opportunity to acquire adequate coverage, yet be acceptable to the medical profession and the insurance firms. It now appears that the latter objective is met by his proposal, but that dissatisfaction with the proposals is rampant among those whose help he expected to be best informed on the needs of the less wealthy segments of the population. Criticisms have fallen into two main classes, those aimed at the coverage to be provided, which many organizations regard as inadequate, and misgivings with respect to the way in which it is proposed this limited coverage should be purchased for those on low incomes.

Premier Robarts would be well advised to resort to the same "breathing spell" with respect to this proposed legislation as he has authorized in implementing the pension legislation already approved. It is doubtful whether he will be able to come up with a formula which will provide the breadth of coverage and the universal scope which critics of the present proposals desire, without displeasing the medical and insurance men. But at least, given time, he might make a stab at it. To push through anything resembling the plan originally drafted might be a simple matter, in view of the Premier's overwhelming majority in the Legislature, but might nevertheless be politically unwise. Delay will be criticized, but it is better to be assailed for over-caution than to place on the statute books a plan which fails to meet the real needs of the people.

He-man drinkers are like Pavlov's dog which got hungry every time the bell rang. We gave patients a substance that tasted like whisky, but wasn't. Do you know, some of them got gay. — Dr. Frederick Damarau, London medical research consultant.

Extremism---Who Are Its Leaders, What Are the Signs?

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Into almost every speech these days, Prime Minister Pearson and members of the Cabinet have referenced to the urgent need for everybody to remain calm amid the still-rising uproar over Bilingualism and Biculturalism.

The prime minister speaks of the danger to national unity of what he calls the "extremists" on both sides, French and English, or, putting it another way, Quebec and the other nine provinces, since this is the way things appear to be equated in this supposed "extremism-unity" equation.

It seems fairly clear who the extremists, at least in one camp, may be — obviously the bombers in Montreal who already have killed one man and maimed another — and perhaps even the Separatists who clamor for Quebec's "independence," some of them in High Places.

Who the extremists on the other side may be, so far hasn't been quite so apparent, although talk has been current in the Capital here that British Columbia's Premier Bennett, Alberta's Premier Manning and certain MPs have been less than sanguine about Quebec's aspirations as Prime Minister Pearson would some months ago inc lights in the Federal administration think they should be.

Among the MPs might be Steve Otto, Liberal MP for York East, who has publicly spoken of Quebec practising what he has called "apartheid."

HOW FAR?

Another could be Lloyd Francis, Liberal MP for Carleton, who has publicly complained that, in the eyes of the Government's eye, it is necessary to be French and able to say "oui" and "non" in English — and positively pointless to be English unless fluent in French.

The line still has to be drawn between merely the questioning attitude of concern and that of extremism.

Take the case of Mr. D. K. Tannahill, an architect at City Hall.

He wrote a letter to the editor of an Ottawa paper protesting about the "shoving of French down our throats."

And he received bomb threats.

Was he an "extremist?"

Consider his letter:

"There is room for Mayor Charlotte Whitton for speaking up. (She had said the city would not respect the use bilingual street signs.) If we had a few more people like her in this country, and especially in Parliament, things might be less worrisome."

He concluded his letter saying that a few "vociferous French Canadians" were trying to force their language on the entire country and wondered why the Federal Government was not showing a stronger stand on the issue.

He concluded, then:

"If people want to speak French, fine. Let them speak it in their homes, but not in their own province of Quebec. But don't please, let them shove it down our throats."

CAME THE EXPLOSION

This is "extremism?"

Or is it merely a worried man addressing a letter to the editor of the newspaper he reads?

Whatever it was, he wished he had never written the letter.

For in the 36 hours after its publication, his phone at home rang at least 30 times.

One caller threatened to blow up his home, another to burn it down.

What did-he say when he answered the phone, and about came to the other end of the line?

"I told them that I didn't want to speak French. That I was too old to start learning it now.

"And that I didn't want my children to be forced to speak French when it should be something they ought to be allowed to decide for themselves."

To one indignant caller who dressed him down for not "knowing that Canada is a French country," Mr. Tannahill replied, mildly as hoped, that history didn't quite bear this out.

He made what he thought was an inoffensive and historically objective reference to the Plains of Abraham and history's account of the engagement there between Generals Wolfe and Montcalm.

It was then the caller blew up and threatened to dynamite the Tannahill home.

Extremism?

Depends on which end of the phone you are, it seems.

Strictly Personal

No Such Thing As Imaginary Complaints

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: There is no such thing as an "imaginary complaint," for the very act of imagination makes it real; a woman who believes she is ugly acts ugly and thus gives the impression that she is ugly; a man who feels sick might as well be sick.

Envy is the only passion that has no compensating pleasure: it is wholly negative, nothing can ever satisfy it, and it polarizes the atmosphere of one's life to the exclusion of any basic gratification.

The junction at which religion and psychiatry meet, in their common goal for the human personality, was succinctly stated by Stevenson nearly a century ago when he wrote: "To be what we are, and to become what we are capable of becoming, is the only end of life."

"Well, I didn't get everything I wanted for Christmas," said a wise child of my acquaintance, "but that I thought of all the things I didn't get that I didn't want!"

The toils of Sisyphus were not more incessant and ineffectual than the labors of husbands and wives who keep trying to change each other into someone else — not realizing that each such one else" would have different defects they would try to change.

The people who think that "faith" is a good thing to have, no matter what it is faith in, merely cheapen and debase the whole concept, and turn what should be the greatest truth into a kind of spiritual therapy; as Santayana observed, "Its brute necessity of believing something so long as life lasts, does not justify belief in particulars."

How many would continue collecting works of art if the paintings were never allowed from appearing on the canvas? About the same number who continue to read the Hoi Polloi if he were dressed in rags, playing the fiddle with a tin cup, on the street?

It's hard to estimate who does the most harm: the parent who neither cares about what the child is doing, or the parent who is perpetually directing, guiding, planning and setting goals; the latter, I think, is the more injurious, for the fullhearted child has at least a 50-50 chance of turning up heads, while the heavily-disciplined child has the choice only of failure or success without joy.

The finest definition I've ever read is C. C. Colton's sentence, written in 1810: "Mark history aright and you will find love; Brutus in glory; Cæsar in dominion; the first found in prison, the second assassinated, the last ingratitude — and each destruction."

More Than Teaching

Calgary Albertan

By all means let us step up safety education. It will not be wasted effort. But we doubt by itself it will eliminate bad driving and its consequences. We suspect that as long as it is possible for motorists to exceed speed limits and other traffic regulations and get away with it, a good many will do so — is the belief that the regulations are for the birds, but for "expert drivers" like themselves.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

30 YEARS AGO

January 16th, 1944.

Despite the fact that the winter is almost over, a summer-time business carries on with increased activity as several ice-pad curling rinks are being prepared for shipping to many parts of Canada. Unusual as it seems during zero and subzero weather, Mrs. Geo. Boniface, proprietor of the Bon Glad Gardens is busy preparing these bulbs to meet the demand from gladiolus fanciers.

A few years ago, says Mrs. Bonisteel, the gladiolus was mostly a hobbyist's flower, but it has become one of the leading blossoms in commercial trade, especially for summer growing. And more recently it has been used for greenhouse forcing for Easter. Many florists will recall the rich riot of color and beauty of the growing fields of gladioli to be seen as they passed the Bonisteel nurseries and outdoor beds during the summer months.

While proceeding to his home at Consecon along Highway No. 2 in Prince Edward County, Charles Jinks observed what appeared to be a tire lying alongside of the highway. His suspicions were well founded when he stopped, as he found a complete tire, tube and rim lying on the side of the road.

40 YEARS AGO

January 16th, 1934.

At the first session of the city council for this year on Monday, Ald. Jas. H. Harker gave notice that he would introduce a motion to the effect that arrangements be made to have all 1934 taxes paid in three installments, viz: June, August and November 30th, with a discount of three per cent be allowed on the first payment, five per cent on the second payment and the third payment to be at par with no per cent added if not paid on due date and four per cent added to the unpaid balance after thirty days. As this was a notice of motion no discussion was allowed, and are now paid in two installments.

At the annual meeting of the Belleville Horticultural Society the following officers were elected: Hon. Presidents, William Harvey, Sr., Wm. Bell, Charles J. Symons, J. B. Findlay, Alfred R. Symons; president, Mrs. George Hepburn; first vice-president, S. Munnings; second vice president, Quentin Boyd; secretary-treasurer, Miss Dorothy Wansbrough; directors, Mrs. C. J. Symons, Mrs. A. The annual report of Mr. J. O. Herity, manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, shows that much progress is being made by the Chamber.

At the annual business meeting of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, all the officers were re-elected, and the following additional deacons were appointed: Messrs. W. B. Riggs, W. H. Merry, A. L. Stillwell and A. E. Hogle. Mr. M. Hitchon is the church clerk. After forty-one years of continuous service as treasurer, Mr. C. A. Hart is retiring from office and as a token of appreciation the church presented him with a handsome gold watch, chain and locket. Mr. Albert Blackburn will succeed Mr. Hart as treasurer.

Mr. J. O. Herity has accepted an invitation to address the students at the Ontario Business College in the near future on the subject of journalism.

Two senior and two junior curling rinks from Kingston played similar rinks here last evening and the honors were carried off by the Kingston rinks, both senior and junior. In the senior contest Kingston made 35 shots to Belleville's 24. The following composed the Belleville rinks: First senior rink: J. M. Farley, Percy G. Pitney, Morley F. Duff, J. W. Davison, skip, 23. Kingston 12. Second senior rink: A. Jones, J. A. Kerr, W. H. Bottum, F. Dolan, skip, 6, Kingston 22. First Belleville junior rink: W. Yates, Alfred R. Symons, F. D. Diamond, Charles J. Symons, skip, 15, Kingston 13. Second Belleville rink: E. Dickens, J. C. B. McCurdy, W. H. Hudson, M. C. Ellis, skip, 8, Kingston 22. At the close of the game the visitors were entertained by the Belleville club.

Computer Stumbles

Hamilton Spectator

"Brain fails as Christmas Shopper" is a newspaper headline announced, and no, we didn't think it was referring to us. But we did think it was an intriguing headline, and so we read on.

The "brain" referred to was one of those disgusting electronic computers. It was employed by a Paris department store and it boasted that it could select the "perfect Christmas gift for anyone." All the computer had to do was provide the machine with accurate information as to the age, sex, taste and personal pleasures of the recipient.

It goes without saying that enough Parisians fell for the idea to keep the machine busier than 100 clerks. It made thousands of selections, on the basis of the information given it, and was given a large-bonus.

Then the proverbial roof fell in. Christmas came and went, and when the store opened again, there was a tremendous queue. It was looking for refunds. Yes, you are right—scores of people were trying to exchange gifts picked for them by the computer.

Serves the computer right. It had its "senses" trying to pit the cold, rational and unemotional rigidity of its system against the erratic, often hysterical, and highly egocentric shopping frenzies of a real, live customer being with an honest to-goodness IQ!

Old Letters Valuable

Edmonton Journal

Housewives who become furious with husbands who store old books and letters should be encouraged to read reports of sales in London. One lot of letters and documents concerning the last days of Shelley and Byron, which had been kept by Edward John Trelawny, sold recently for $2,200, a collection of the works of Sir Richard Burton brought $1,200 and the Rossetti papers, a collection of a translation of the Aeneid which had belonged to Dr. Samuel Johnson, for brief Beethoven letters brought $3,100 and $1,950.

The junk in thousands of attics may be no more than that but old papers are worth a glance before they go to the bonfire. Pearls are where you find them and while a bit of Canadiana may not rank with Notes on Shelley and Byron it is worth a lot more than it was short years ago.

To Your Good Health

Cannot Say Air Better in Florida Than Arizona

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter's two children must move to a different climate because of bad cases of asthma, bronchitis, etc. She has spent a fortune trying different tests, pills, etc.

Is Florida as good a location as Arizona? I would like your unqualified opinion. — Mrs. J.J.

I don't know that you mean "unqualified," but I'll do what you'll get — my unqualified opinion. Because I have absolutely no qualifications for trying to say whether Florida would be better than Arida.

You see, there isn't any climate that is "best" for asthma, bronchitis and miscellaneous respiratory troubles.

Asthma, with few if any exceptions, involves allergy or hypersensitivity, and is affected also by nervous tension.

Expecting these elements to be changed by moving to some new climate is setting things disappointment. It is true that there may be differences in the air, but I can't say that I have. I've ragweed than others, and hay fever victims have less trouble. So, in some instances, certain cases of asthma might be benefited by a different climate, because the plant life would be different.

But trying to guess in advance? Don't try it, because you may find that you have spent a lot of money and disturbed the family and gained nothing.

Most asthma in children can best be attacked first by having a very careful study of the child's allergic sensitivities, whether from food, plants, dust or other factors. Along with this, the cooperation of the parents, in trying to eliminate by the best and common-sensible about the trouble, is usually a necessity. If some of the foods or drugs or materials can be identified, and the child protected from coming in contact with them, it is begin to develop a certain degree of tolerance. And as the asthma subsides, so does the fear of further attacks. Nerves come under better control and help prevent the "triggering" of new attacks.

Medications to relax the constricted air passages and the use of antihistamines, are helpful but cannot be expected to do the whole job. So shopping around for different pills is an expensive and fruitless way to go at it, because you don't get at the basic cause.

However, if people are determined to move, the only way I can give is this: Try a visit, long enough to give you a decision. Don't sell the house before you uproot the whole household, and go barging off to Shangri-La.

Dear Sir: A neighborhood family has been infected with pinworm. Could my children, by playing with theirs, get infected? Incidentally, I was in coin and an unstamped, self-addressed envelope for your booklet, "Pinworms." — The Commonest Pest." — Mrs. M. M.

Yes. In fact, that's probably the most common way the condition spreads. Preserving is about as big a piece of thread a quarter of an inch long or less. The eggs are invisible to the naked eye. But they get onto clothing, onto hands, and then are swallowed.

If your children wash their hands — every time — before eating, and bathe frequently, they will be fairly safe. But it's not easy to get kids to do this. I trust your neighbors are having their children treated. It can take several weeks to learn whether pinworms in them have been acquired. The booklet will tell you how to watch for the signs and how to combat the pests. And, I'm happy to say, the newer medications for treating pinworm are highly effective.

Note to F. H. W.: Some cataracts progress rapidly; others so slowly that surgery may not be necessary.

Replies Which Kill Sales

Industry

A Christmas shopper (not an unreasonable man) reports that indifference, impoliteness and near-insolence on the part of some sales staffs is once again on the rise.

Allowances, of course, must be made. The tempers of people under pressure are apt to fray and the would-be purchaser who gives all kinds of trouble at five minutes to closing, must, perhaps, expect to get his comeuppance.

The curious thing is that the worst offenders among sales clerks where courtesy is concerned are so often those who are under the least pressure. They make it quite plain from the very first that in waiting upon you they are doing you a favor. They do not know the answers to your questions (and have no intention of finding out), and they most decidedly are not interested in resolving the doubts you may have regarding the merchandise.

As our shopper friend says: The way you treat the public in the business of selling to the public seem totally unsuited to it." Like so many in the plant who couldn't care less whether the product for which he is responsible is delivered or not, they seem quite oblivious to the fact that their continued employment depends on the customer coming back.

It is of such as these that the Canadian Retail Federation is thinking in publishing as it has lately done a listing of "common, last words" guaranteed to ensure that the customer does not return. Among them:

"We don't have it and we can't get it."

"Someone over there will help you."

"It may be in the stockroom."

"The difference between the $9.99 and $12.99 items is $3.00, lady."

"We're taking inventory."

"If you don't have a sales-check, I can't help you."

"I can't help you, it's not my department."

"We stopped giving that service long ago."

"You can't expect much choice at this price."

"Look around, you'll probably find it."

"It's over there."

"It's $67.98 — if we have it in your size."

"Are you sure you take a size 9?"

"Well, you get what you pay for."

"It'll come from the warehouse, and I can't say when you'll get it."

Used Car Frauds

Unions Merge

MONTREAL (CP)—The members of two international graphic art unions have approved a merger of the organizations, it was learned today.

The unions are the Amalgamated Lithographers of America (Ind.), with 40,000 members, and the 20,000-member International Photo Engravers' Union of North America (AFL - CIO, CLC).

COURTESY PATROLS

BRUSSELS (AP) — Belgian motorcycle police will patrol a different road each month, but instead of tickets they'll give out gifts, beverages and courtesy reminders about traffic laws. The idea is to have at least one fatality-free road in Belgium per month.

PC Delegates To Make Choice At Meeting

VANCOUVER (CP) — Choice of a new or open vote on party leadership will be up to the delegates at next month's meeting of the Progressive Conservative party, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Wednesday.

The Conservative chief added, however, that by unbroken tradition a standing vote is taken on this matter at annual meetings, and the Ottawa sessions do not constitute a leadership convention.

He told a press conference he wished to express no view on the matter. His objective remained to follow Sir John A. Macdonald and Mackenzie King as Canadian prime ministers who lost power and regained it.

Mr. Diefenbaker conceded "direction" in the recent record of his party, but he said it is not unprecedented after an election defeat, when there is "always an undercurrent of criticism."

MONTREAL (CP) — Leon Balcer, former transport minister in the government of prime minister Diefenbaker, says he doesn't agree with Mr. Diefenbaker's view on the result of the 1967 world's fair to be held in Montreal.

Mr. Balcer, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Trois-Rivieres, told a party meeting here Wednesday:

"I do not agree with Mr. Diefenbaker when he says the expenditure planned for the fair are too high."

Mr. Balcer said the fair constitutes "a chance for a new test of Canada to prove to Quebecers that all Canadians are with them" and as such "warrants the planned outlay."

A reporter asked the former cabinet minister to comment on the possible necessity for the Conservatives to name a new leader at their national conference in Ottawa Feb. 5.

"I leave that entirely to the meeting," he replied. He made the same comment when asked about whether a secret vote on the leadership question should be taken at the conference.

Four Trenton Area Youths Given Jail Terms, Probation Periods for Series of Thefts

It took 45 minutes in Hastings County Court yesterday to read the charges against four Trenton area youths involved in a two-month crime wave. The teen-agers pleaded guilty to a total of 61 charges involving breaking and entry, theft and vandalism. Magistrate Phillip Baker, of Kingston, sentenced each of the four to two months in the county jail, two years suspended sentence and probation which includes a curfew and prohibits ownership or operation of a motor vehicle, and a total of 83 one-year suspended sentences distributed between the boys.

The boys are also required to pay a total of more than $700 in restitution. In addition, the boys may not associate with any person having a known criminal record. This prohibition means they may not associate with each other after their release from jail.

FOUR CHARGED

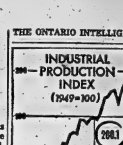
Robert Cecil Carr, of Glen Miller, is 18 years old and has a grade ten education. He faced a total of 17 charges.

Garry Wayne Down, of Trenton, is also 18 years old and has a grade ten education. He faced 16 charges.

Walter Merritt Kirby of Trenton is 19 years old. He faced 16 charges.

Robert John DeFosse of Trenton is 17 years old, and has a grade seven education. He faced 12 charges.

The two-month crime wave began during October of 1963 and included break-ins of schools, stores, restaurants, automobiles and cottages from Bayside as far west as Brighton and Presqu'ile. Little was stolen during the crimes, and much of what was stolen was abandoned but damages were heavy. Provincial police officers listed several radios, a typewriter and a television set among stolen goods thrown into the Trent River.



DON CONFESSED

The crimes were solved, Dec. 6 last year when Garry Down, confessed his part in the events to Trenton constable Sidney Vickers. Constable Vickers, OPP constables Lorne Stinson, Jim Graham and Jack Bolger of Brighton and OPP Constables K. Baziren, William Wills and Gordon Oliver of Belleville had previously suspected the boy's connection with the crimes.

Defence lawyer Roderick Campbell of Trenton described the crime wave as "a series of escapades by boys who were looking an outlet" and lawyer Gregg Hutton, also of Trenton, argued that the boys' confessions showed their willingness to reform. The crimes confessed by the foursome included some for which had not been reported to police.

Before passing sentence Magistrate Baker warned the boys their criminal records, which would include a long jail term probable if they ran afoul of the law again. He told them they could possibly be jailed for life on the charges to which they pleaded guilty.

The magistrate imposed the prohibition against owning or operating automobiles because, he said, he considered the boys' mobility an important factor in the cause of the crimes. The boys are, however, permitted to operate a motor vehicle owned by an employer, if the operation of the vehicle is a normal part of their jobs.

INDUSTRIAL OUTPUT DOUBLE 1949 LEVEL — Canada's seasonally adjusted index of industrial production increased by 1.2 per cent during October, 1963, reaching a level of 200.1 — a double the 1949 figure upon which the index is based. The Nov. 1 figure compared with the Sept. 1 level of 197.8. (CP Newsmap)
